TRAFFIC SLOWS TO THIRD OF RATE IN CITY WHEN IT REACHES COUNTY

Clayton and Natural Bridge Road Bottlenecks Cut Average in Rush Hour, Detailed Check Shows.

Traffic bottlenecks outside the St. Louis city limits on Clayton and Natural Bridge roads cause a slowdown to about one-third of the speed which motorists are able to average within the city during evening rush hours, a traffic check by the Post-Dispatch showed last week.

Routes chosen for the check, made last Thursday, a typical business day with clear weather, parallel roughly the proposed Daniel Boone and Mark Twain expressway routes, respectively. These are included in an $8,500,000 expressway program, part of the $39,712,000 bond issue to be submitted to St. Louis county voters Nov. 22.

Reporters, starting from downtown points and keeping close speedometer and time checks, were able to average 25 to 26 miles an hour on Market street and the express highway to Skinker boulevard and on Twelfth boulevard-North Florissant avenue—Natural Bridge to Goodfellow boulevard.

But on Clayton from Skinker to Brentwood boulevard in the county the rate dropped to an average of 9.2 miles an hour and on Natural Bridge from Goodfellow to Carson road to an average of only 7.7 miles an hour. The slowdowns resulted mostly from long waits when approaching intersections both with and without traffic signals.

Another part of the expressway program—the Ozark route in southern St. Louis county—would provide similar rush-hour relief for congestion on Gravois, Lemay Ferry and Union roads. The traffic load on these arteries in the county is not now as heavy as on Clayton and Natural Bridge, but a much heavier load is expected by the time the expressway is built, because of the current rapid population growth in this area.

Rapid Progress to Tamm.

In checking traffic conditions westward from downtown, a reporter started out Market from Twelfth at 5:02 p.m. He was able to proceed virtually without a slowdown to Grand boulevard, where there was a wait of a few seconds at the temporary crossing north of Market.

Progress continued to be rapid west of Grand, and the automobile entered the express highway, 3.1 miles from Twelfth, at 5:10½. There was heavy traffic on the express highway, but movement was smooth and rapid to a point just west of Tamm avenue, where machines were backed up half a mile to Skinker.

It was now 5:15, so the 5.9 miles from Twelfth had taken just 13 minutes, at an average speed of 27.2 miles an hour. Two more minutes were required to cross Skinker, making 15 minutes for the trip from downtown.

The real slowdown began west of Skinker. It took four and a half minutes to travel the .7 of a mile to Big Bend boulevard and another 10 minutes to reach Brentwood boulevard, 1.7 miles to the west. The Brentwood delay started just west of Hanley road and it took nearly seven minutes to go from there to Brentwood.

Traffic dissipated rapidly west of Brentwood and the three and a half miles to Lindbergh boulevard were traveled in seven minutes, or at a rate of 30 miles an hour. The 12.3 miles from Twelfth boulevard had required 36½ minutes.

Estimate in 1950 Cited.

If the 27.2 m.p.h. rate east of Tamm avenue could have been maintained all the way to Brentwood boulevard, the trip to

COUNTY LIBRARY TAX WINDFALL PUT AT $116,000

Board Has No Plans for Spending It, Will Seek to Rectify Situation.

The St. Louis County Library Board stands to get a windfall of $116,000 in unanticipated revenue from current tax levies for next year's operations, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., president of the board, said yesterday. He said the board has no plans for spending the extra money.

First notice that the extra money would be forthcoming came last week with the announcement by County Clerk Leo E. Sievers that total taxes levied for the library were $1,066,154, an increase of $692,615 or 185.5 per cent over last year. Amount actually collected will probably be somewhat less than the total contained in the bills.

"The board," Wallace said, "has no interest in obtaining any more revenue than we sought, and we sought what was needed. We will take steps to rectify this situation as soon as we know, legally, what we can do. Our course will depend on steps the county takes in assessing property next year."

150 Pct. Increase Voted.

County voters last April approved an increase in the tax rate for library purposes of 150 per cent, from 10 cents to 25 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. This was expected to produce between $900,000 and $950,000 this year, providing additional funds for expansion, operation and maintenance.

In August, after increased county real estate assessments were ordered by the State Tax Commission, the library cut its tax rate from the authorized 25 cents to 18 cents. It was thought the reduced figure would produce about the same amount that had been anticipated from the old rate and assessments.

Wallace said yesterday the county library district, for which 1954 tax levies totaled only $373,539, had made detailed plans for use of the expected increase in revenue but none for the prospective extra $116,000. As a matter of fact, he said, the board had been worried that the reduced 18-cent rate would not produce the desired sum.

Further Study Needed.

As to whether the library tax rate would be cut below this year's level as a result of the apparent heavier yield, Wallace said this would "depend on further study of the situation." He pointed out that litigation is pending on challenges by taxpayers of the county's action in applying a blanket increase to real estate valuations.

Wallace said the county's tax situation, clouded by its efforts to comply with the state order to raise valuations to an average of 30 per cent of market value, would have to be clarified before the library

Barkley and Clements, Who Fought Him in Primary, Urge His Election as Governor.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 5—"Happy" Chandler, who was read out of the Democratic party last Aug. 4 and then took it over the following Tuesday by winning the nomination for Governor, wound up his campaign in western Kentucky today watching one of his principal detractors eat large helpings of Chandler-cooked crow.

But Senator Alben W. Barkley, who had made a pre-primary radio speech in which he charged Chandler had deserted the Democratic party on at least three occasions and had allied himself with the Dixiecrats, ate it with a smile if not with relish.

"I implore and pray you not to vote for A. B. Chandler," he had said last August.

"I give my full and enthusiastic support, without reservation and without equivocation, to A. B. Chandler and the full Democratic ticket," he told audiences yesterday and today as he toured a 17-county area south of here side-by-side with Chandler, returning to Paducah, Senator Barkley's home town, for a rally tonight.

Clements Falls in Line.

Kentucky's other Senator, Earle C. Clements, who denounced Chandler and joined Senator Barkley in supporting Judge Bert T. Combs for the nomination, also knows the taste of Chandler crow.

Senator Clements, assistant Senate majority leader, an important figure since Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, majority leader, suffered a heart attack, was notified by Chandler soon after his primary victory that Chandler would make it a point to defeat him for renomination next year.

So Senator Clements followed Senator Barkley in adopting the old political rule: "If you can't whup 'em, jine 'em."

Only Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, also a Combs supporter who sought to prevent Chandler's political comeback, has steadfastly refused to take to the hustings in behalf of Chandler although he had been scheduled to speak at three meetings. He did announce simply after the primary that he would support the Democratic ticket.

For a time, the Republican organization held high hopes for its nominee, Edwin Denney, who resigned as United States District Attorney for Eastern Kentucky to make the race.

Feeling among the Democratic "ins" against Chandler had been so bitter and the attacks so acrimonious that it was scarcely conceivable that they could vote for the man they excoriated, much less campaign for him. They expected to receive the votes of a substantial number of Democrats.

Long before the white man pushed the wilderness road over Cumberland gap, Kentucky was called by the Indians the "dark and bloody ground" because of constant wars between the Iroquois and Cherokees, a reputation that Kentucky Democrats have maintained by their internecine warfare.

The Republicans had forgotten how quickly Democratic primary campaign wounds heal, and the political climate of the Principal Sees Red When Bull Is Slipped Into Girls' Dormitory

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 5 (UP)—Who let the bull into the women's dormitory?

A hasty meeting of students and deans was called at Ontario Agricultural College today to find the answer.

A woman employe found a 1000-pound bull asleep on a rug in a downstairs room of a residence for women students when she went to work this morning. The girl students also were asleep.

Apparently the bull had run wild in the library lounge before dropping off to sleep. Lamps were upset and rugs ruined.

Dr. Margaret McReady, dormitory principal, was seething. "It was one of the filthiest tricks ever pulled on us," she snapped. "This time the male students have bitten off more than they can chew."

JUDGE CRITICIZES DOWD'S DELAY IN CASES OF 2 BOYS LONG HELD IN JAIL

Bar Group to Look Into Matter—Habeas Corpus Hearing Tomorrow for One Robbery Suspect.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd was criticized yesterday by Presiding Circuit Judge John K. Regan for delays in prosecution of two young airmen who had been held in city jail—one for 80 days and the other for 74 days—after robbery charges against them had been dismissed in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Meanwhile, Frank P. Aschemeyer, chairman of the Criminal Justice Committee of the St. Louis Bar Association, told the Post-Dispatch he and Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr., vice chairman of the committee, would study the cases of the two 17-year-old airmen, Eugene Woodard and Eugene Kmetz of Scott Air Force Base. Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin termed their detention illegal.

Dowd, who said the cases of the two youths were delayed because of the grand jury's investigation of alleged pay-offs to some policemen by brothel operators, announced he would set aside the pay-off inquiry this week and ask the grand jury to extend its working hours until all cases of persons held in jail on various criminal charges can be heard by the jury.

"About 50 defendants are at present in jail, held for grand jury action," Dowd has told the Post-Dispatch. "They are held under informations and warrants charging homicide, robbery, assault and other crimes."

Petition Filed for Writ.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in St. Louis Court of Appeals for the release of Woodard yesterday. Presiding Judge Lyon Anderson of that court set tomorrow at 9 a.m. as the time for a hearing on the writ.

Judge McLaughlin in denying a petition for a similar writ, ruled in effect that Woodard's detention was illegal from last Aug. 15 until the time McLaughlin issued a bench warrant for his arrest following the return of indictments against him and Kmetz by the grand jury last Thursday.

The court record showed that robbery charges against Kmetz and Woodward were dismissed by Provisional Judge William O'Toole in the Court of Criminal Correction Aug. 15. Dowd's office heard about the dismissal and both youths were rearrested.

At the hearing before Judge McLaughlin Friday, the judge explained that the circuit attorney had authority to rearrest defendants who had been dismissed of charges at a preliminary hearing, but could only hold them for 20 hours for investigation.

Regan's Statement.

Judge Regan, in his statement yesterday, said:

"I believe Dowd instead of rearresting them shortly after their discharge should have presented the matter to the grand jury, which was then in session, if the evidence warranted it. If the grand jury indicted the defendants, he should have proceeded to take them to trial.

"I do feel these men should not have been held as prisoners awaiting action by the grand jury on the same charge for which there had been a judicial determination that there was a lack of probable cause to hold them for trial. Under the law, Dowd had a right to have them arrested immediately and present the case a second time to a regular judge for a preliminary hearing.

"We don't want any erosion of civil rights anywhere, and particularly not in St. Louis. It is my opinion that Dowd did not deliberately intend to violate the prisoners' rights, but his office has been engaged in an arduous investigation. Possibly this matter was overlooked. He

NEW YORK MAYOR TO SPEAK HERE AT DEMOCRAT DINNER

Missouri Democrats will hold their 1955 Jefferson-Jackson dinner here Dec. 14 at Hotel Chase, with Mayor Robert Wagner of New York as the principal speaker, it was announced yesterday.

Following the custom of recent years, sponsors of the fund-raising dinner will pay $100 each for their tickets. Other guests will be charged $25. The funds raised will be used to pay the Missouri party's share of the expense of Democratic National Committee operations.

Mark R. Hollorian, Democratic National Committeeman for Missouri, announced that Thomas J. Guilfoil, St. Louis attorney, will be general chairman of the dinner, and Louis McGee of Kansas City will be vice chairman. Dillon J. Ross, president of the Jefferson Bank & Trust Co. of St. Louis, will be treasurer.

BIOFF MURDER INQUIRY GOES INTO CHICAGO AND NEW YORK

Los Angeles Also Checked in Search for Clues — Believed to Be Revenge or Mafia Killing.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 5 (UP)—An investigation into the gangland auto-bomb murder of former labor racketeer William (Willie) Bioff extended to Los Angeles and New York underworlds today and was hidden behind a curtain of official secrecy.

Bioff, who lived quietly at a fashionable northeast Phoenix home for seven years under the name William Nelson, was killed yesterday when the starter of his pickup truck set off a powerful bomb.

Bioff's home was only a few miles from Grace Ranch, owned by Peter Licavoli, notorious Mafia leader, who was mentioned in the Kefauver crime hearings.

Convicted of Extortion.

Bioff, a former convict, was found guilty in 1941 of a $1,000,000 extortion plot on the movie industry and sentenced to serve 10 years in prison. But he and George E. Browne, former president of the AFL International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes, turned informers on Al Capone hoodlums in 1943 and gained release.

Sheriff's investigators here termed the bomb plot a "revenge killing" and Los Angeles police expressed the belief it seemed to fit "a pattern of Mafia vengeance."

Maricopa county sheriff L. C. Boies said that we "have some leads," but emphasized "We can't say anything about them now."

Sheriff's investigator Lt. Ralph Edmundson said that authorities in Los Angeles, Chicago and New York were helping in the case and supplying information. He said the investigation was in a "preliminary stage."

"We are starting from scratch," he said. "We have to learn a lot about Bioff we didn't know."

Neighbors of the residential area where Bioff lived with his wife, Laurie, said they didn't know his real identity. Officers indicated they knew he was there.

When Edmundson was asked whether they were keeping an eye on him, his only response was "What do you think?"

'Dabbled in Stocks.'

Bioff's wife, who had waved goodby to him seconds before he stepped on the starter of his pickup outside the garage of his home, said he was "retired" and had "dabbled in stocks and bonds."

Investigators declined to disclose what they had learned about Bioff's business dealings, but Edmundson said "there are no indications that we can come up with" that he was involved in any rackets while living here.

Bioff, a short, heavy-set man who in the period he lived in Phoenix wore expensively-tailored western clothes, was convicted of an extortion plot that involved charges he sought to shake down Hollywood movie heads for $550,000. It was contended he had threatened to call a nationwide strike of film projectionists.

He admitted later he extorted $1,800,000.

Film Producer Questioned.

The Associated Press said that one of those indicted as a result of Bioff's testimony in New York was John Roselli, now a film producer in Los Angeles. Police there said they had accounted for Roselli's

SOLDIER HUNTERS STALK DEER BUT BAG SENATOR'S IRE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—An argument over military hunting of deer in New Mexico spread to Congress today with a protest by Senator Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico.

It's an "outrage," Chavez said, for Army men to go deer hunting on a 400,000-acre target range in his state without due respect to state game laws.

The big range is separated by a small strip of New Mexico territory from nearby Fort Bliss, Tex.

Maj. Gen. P. W. Rutledge, commanding general of the antiaircraft artillery and guided missile center, has served notice he thinks it unnecessary for his men to buy New Mexico's $50 non-resident hunting license to shoot deer on the range. He claims exclusive federal jurisdiction over the area.

New Mexican officials countered: Just wait until those military hunters try crossing our land strip on the way back to Texas.

So far, the Pentagon has tried to steer clear of the fuss, but Chavez—head of a Senate Appropriations subcommittee handling defense spending—today asked that all other members of the Senate and House join in his protest.

French Decide to Restore Ben Youssef to Morocco Throne

Cabinet Votes to Reinstate Deposed Sultan Following Appeal by Foreign Minister Pinay.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (UP)—The Government decided tonight to restore Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef to the Moroccan throne from which he was removed by the French two years ago.

A special cabinet meeting presided over by President Rene Coty made the decision at the suggestion of Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, who returned from the Geneva conference for the session.

Ben Youssef, who was flown to France from his exile in Madagascar 10 days ago, will return to Rabat before Nov. 18, high sources said. The date is the "throne fete" commemorating the twenty-eighth anniversary of his enthronement.

France deposed Ben Youssef Aug. 20, 1953, when the powerful Pasha of Marrakesh, Si Hadj Thami el Glaoui, threatened to march on Rabat at the head of his Berber tribesmen to unseat the pro-nationalist sultan.

Two years of bloody uprisings, terrorist bombings and killings followed Ben Youssef's exile to the Indian ocean island of Madagascar.

Ten days ago Ben Youssef and his retinue were flown to Paris and took up lodgings in the exclusive Henri IV hotel at suburban Saint Germain en Laye.

Pinay is expected to inform Ben Youssef officially of the cabinet's decision at a meeting tomorrow.

The decision was a foregone conclusion ever since El Glaoui, formerly Ben Youssef's bitterest enemy, recently did an about-face and called for his prompt return to Morocco.

Mohammed Moulay Ben Arafa, who replaced Ben Youssef, abdicated last week after going to Tangier and urged support for his predecessor.

A communique issued from Premier Faure's office said the door is open to "constructive negotiation" on the future of Morocco. It said France will make good on its pledges "to favor Morocco's accession to the status of a modern, free and sovereign nation within the framework of an inter-dependence with France."

CALLS IN ENVOYS OF BOTH NATIONS IN ATTEMPT TO HALT BLOODSHED

State Department Complains Also About Reports U.N. Truce Men Have Been Prevented From Doing Jobs.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UP)—The United States accused both Israel and Egypt of armistice violations today, and urged them to agree to an immediate cease-fire to end "bloodshed and loss of life" in their pocket war.

In notes handed to the ambassadors of both nations, the State Department expressed its "deep concern" at the most serious clashes in the Middle East in seven years.

In blaming both countries for the fighting, the State Department also complained about reports that United Nations armistice observers "have been prevented from carrying out their assigned functions."

In the interest of peace, the department urged both sides to accept the United Nations cease-fire plan calling for the withdrawal of all forces from the demilitarized zone in the El Auja desert and the clear marking of the now poorly defined borders.

Appeals to Both.

It also appealed to Israel and Egypt to give the U.N. truce observers "full liberty to perform their peaceful functions" and help preserve order along the disputed frontiers.

The United States told the two ambassadors it "deplores resort to force" and "strongly supports" the U.N. cease-fire plan "to ease the present situation."

U.N. officials continued to decline to make public what their proposals were. However, the proposals were reported to call for withdrawal by both sides from demilitarized areas, setting up a buffer zone, and providing for better marking of disputed lines.

(In Geneva, Russia was reported to be hinting that the tension in the Middle East could be reduced by a conference among the big powers, the Arabs and Israelis. Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov was said to have mentioned the idea in a talk early this week with Israeli Foreign Minister Sharett).

Allen Meets With Envoys.

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen, America's top Middle East trouble shooter, summoned the two ambassadors to the State Department to receive the United States appeal.

Allen conferred for 32 minutes with Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban and then spent 35 minutes with Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Hussein.

Neither visitor met the other. Both announced their governments were interested in peace and would consider the U.N. cease-fire plan. Each envoy blamed the other's country for the fighting. Eban charged that Egypt had committed an "invasion" of his small nation. Hussein said Israel had committed a "dangerous aggression."

Hussein said there is no need for the United States to address an appeal to Egypt. All it had to do to achieve peace, he said, was to ask Israel to end its "premediated aggression."

Assurances Given.

Eban, on the other hand, said he gave Allen assurances that "if the Egyptians stay on their side of the demarcation line, they can have complete tranquillity." If they don't, he told newspaper men, "they don't deserve complete tranquillity."

Eban repeated Israel's need for United States arms to counter the arms shipments Egypt had been receiving from Communist satellites under the direction of Moscow.

However, Eban said Israel would study the U.N. cease-fire proposals "in a constructive spirit."

Hussein did not specifically discuss Egypt's attitude toward the plan, and neither envoy would commit himself in advance of conferences with his home government.

In its notes, the State Department pointed to the "increasing tempo of hostilities" between Egypt and Israel.

"According to our information," it said, "there have been violations of the general armistice agreement by both Israel and Egypt which have led to bloodshed and loss of life.

". . . Recent reports have also been received that United Nations observers . . . have been prevented from carrying out their assigned functions. The

FLYER WALKS OUT OF MOUNTAINS 3 DAYS AFTER CRASH

NEWPORT, Tenn., Nov. 5 (UP)—A missing doctor whose plane crashed in the rugged Smoky Mountains three days ago walked out to a Tennessee Ranger camp today, tired, hungry but in good spirits.

Dr. Samuel Sullenberger, 42 years old, of Dandridge, Tenn., appeared at the Big Creek ranger station near here this morning and was fed by the rangers.

The three-day aerial search of the rugged mountain area was called off.

Chief Park Ranger G. B. Lyle said Dr. Sullenberger told him by radio that he was "in pretty good shape, in good spirits, but have some minor injuries."

Lyle said Dr. Sullenberger's plane crashed Wednesday on the North Carolina side of the Smokies, in one of the most rugged sections of the park. The crash occurred, the doctor told rangers, when his newly purchased Piper Cub developed motor trouble and was "caught in a down draft."

He said he spent Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights in the wreckage of the plane. The temperature was below freezing much of the time.

SHORT-CUT FOUND FOR ACCEPTANCE OF ENVOYS TO U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The State Department is chopping a short cut through a protocol problem that has held up formal acceptance of a group of new ambassadors to the United States.

Under time-honored procedure, new ambassadors must present their credentials to the President in a personal call. But new envoys from Colombia, Iceland, Lebanon, Laos, Luxembourg, Pakistan and the Philippines have been unable to do this because of President Eisenhower's illness.

So the State Department has worked out a stop-gap plan: The ambassadors can file their papers with the Secretary of State who then forwards them to the temporary White House in Denver for Mr. Eisenhower's approval.

With Secretary of State Dulles at the Geneva Big Four meeting, Under Secretary Herbert Hoover Jr. already has sent the credentials of five ambassadors-designate to Denver.

EISENHOWER QUIT? HAGERTY ANSWERS 'NO,' ALSO 'NUTS'

DENVER, Nov. 5 (AP)—James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, scoffed today at the idea that President Eisenhower might resign before serving out his term.

Hagerty was told at a press conference there has been speculation that Mr. Eisenhower might resign before Jan. 20, 1957, if he decides against seeking re-election.

Hagerty replied he could comment on that in "two words and you can take either of them—'No' or 'Nuts'."

FLAMES ROUT GUESTS AT PARK PLAZA HOTEL

Blaze Starts in Kitchen and Shoots Up Ventilating Shaft to Roof —Many Spectators.

Fire that started from grease ignited in a first-floor kitchen of the Park Plaza Hotel late last night shot up through a ventilating chute to the roof but was confined to the chute.

The grease became ignited in a grilling oven and although the flames were confined to the chute, dense smoke infiltrated upper floors of the hotel.

All guests above the twenty-fifth floor were ordered to leave their rooms. Many of them flung coats over pajamas and milled about the lobby. Guests from a party given by Robert Baskowitz in the Tiara Room on the twenty-seventh floor appeared in Gay Nineties costumes in the lobby.

A red glow and dense smoke emerging from the topmost floor could be seen for miles in all directions.

As motorists flocked to the scene, traffic, which is usually heavy on Kingshighway on Saturday night, became badly congested. Extra police were detailed to keep vehicles moving.

The first alarm was sounded at 11:25 o'clock, followed six minutes later by the second [illegible].m.

Firemen used elevators to reach the flames which from a distance looked like a smouldering volcano.

The flames subsided about 11:50 o'clock.

Erected in 1933, the hotel is the newest major hotel in the city.

'LOCHNESS MONSTER' TO BE PURSUED WITH RADAR

LONDON, Nov. 5 (UP)—A fisherman said today he plans to use radar in an attempt to catch Scotland's fabled "Monster" of Lochness.

Stanley Tomkins's monster-fishing project brought immediate complaints from Scottish highlanders. They said they don't want any outsider fooling with their top tourist attraction.

Tomkins and his aids plan to use radar to locate the "monster," then capture it with either a steel dragnet or a cable baited with a dead sheep. More than 1000 persons claim to have spotted the monster since 1933, but no one so far has succeeded in landing it.

To Err Is Mostly Male.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 5 (UP)—The State road department reported today that male toll bridge collectors took in $24,046 last month and made $14.15 worth of errors. Women collectors took in $17,208 and made only $5.34 worth of errors.

Sam Goldwyn Once Called Him 'Marshal Field Montgomery'

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

DENVER, Nov. 5—Reporters faltered today when they started to question Field Marshal Viscount Bernard Montgomery, not knowing how to address him.

"That's all right," laughed the British nobleman. "When I was in Hollywood last year Sam Goldwyn, who is a good friend of mine, gave a party and wanted to propose my toast. It was towards the end of the evening, and I don't know how many glasses of champagne he had, but he got up and said: 'I want to propose a toast to Mr. Marshal Field Montgomery'."

MONTGOMERY SEES PRESIDENT, EMPHASIZES HIS VALUE TO WORLD

British Field Marshal's Comment Stirs More Speculation About Eisenhower's Intentions for 1956.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Nov. 5 — British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery touched off more speculation about President Eisenhower's political intentions today, with a statement eulogizing the President as "terribly valuable" to the world.

After a 40-minute reunion with his old military comrade at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Montgomery told reporters the world as well as the United States, needs Mr. Eisenhower for his "human" approach to international problems.

Montgomery's remarks were expected to have political repercussions because of current uncertainty over Mr. Eisenhower's plans for 1956.

'Matter For Him to Decide.'

The Marshal denied his views had any political significance. Whether Mr. Eisenhower decides to run again next year "is entirely a matter for him to decide," Montgomery said.

He added that politics did not come up in their conversation, which was concerned with world problems.

The remarks on the President's value to the world were volunteered at the outset of the press conference, without prodding from reporters.

"He is not only your President, and you value him very highly in the states here, but we value him very highly in the world—terribly highly," Montgomery declared.

"You think, of course, he is terribly valuable from a United States point of view. That is right. But I tell you that he is not only your guy, he is our guy.

"He is our guy from a world point of view. It is frightfully important to get that right. And he is needed today from that world angle just as much as he is from your national angle."

Many political leaders, particularly in Europe, have a legal background which leads them to approach international problems from an essentially "legal or logical angle," Montgomery said. Not all problems, he declared, can be solved this way.

The 'Human Angle.'

"Now your President has a quality which these people haven't. He approaches these problems from the human angle, from the emotional angle if you like to call it that.

"And he has got the quality that he can look at people and smile at them, and they will do things. That is a tremendous thing. There are not a great many people like that. And that is why he is so terribly valuable from a world point of view."

Montgomery, deputy supreme commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization military forces, said also he believed the danger of global war had receded.

The world, he said, now is in a "pax atomica," with no nation wanting to use nuclear weapons. "The political leaders of the day," he added, "have arrived at the situation where the outlook for peace is good."

Montgomery was the personal guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower. He served with Mr. Eisenhower in the North African and European campaigns of World War II.

President Climbing Stairs.

Mr. Eisenhower moved into the final state of hospital convalescence today by climbing stairs for the first time, using a two-step exercise stile.

The President walked up and down the stile four or five times in the morning, and again in the afternoon.

Mr. Eisenhower, now in his seventh and probably final week of hospitalization, will be examined tomorrow afternoon by Dr. Paul Dudley White, noted Boston heart specialist who is the chief medical consultant on the President's illness.

Announcement of when the President will leave Denver is to be made after this examination.

The Denver White House announced that Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion B. Folsom would arrive here tomorrow night from Washington and confer with the President sometime Monday.

Vienna Reopens Famed Opera House Before Great International Audience

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

View of the reconstructed State Opera House in Vienna, Austria, which was formally opened last night in a solemn state ceremony. The opera house, destroyed by bombs during World War II, was rebuilt by contributions of music-loving Viennese.

Dulles, Stokowski, Shostakovitch, Henry Ford II Among Those Attending — Structure, Bombed During War, Rebuilt at Cost of $10,000,000.

VIENNA, Nov. 5 (AP) — Vienna's state Opera House—a symbol of western culture which went down in flames in the war—was reopened tonight before a glittering international audience.

As they celebrated, Austrians prayed that their nation's cultural rebirth might be the opening act of an era of world peace. Only 11 days ago, Austria was freed from foreign troops for the first time in 17 years. They left in time for Vienna to reopen its opera in freedom and independence.

The penny contributions of the Viennese, clinging to their love of music and song and regarding the Opera House almost as a personal possession, made the opera reopening possible.

On March 12, 1945, five American bombs reduced the baroque building to a rubble heap. Austria sank into despair from which full recovery appeared today. A festive gathering of 2500 saw Ludwig Von Beethoven's "Fidelio" — the story of a man unjustly imprisoned and finally liberated. The story parallels Austria's recent history.

Thousands Stand Outside.

Thousands of Viennese who had no tickets stood in a mist before the floodlit Opera House to watch the arrivals and listen through loudspeakers to the opera.

The audience represented the new Austrian republic and a cross-section of the modern world. It included statesmen such as United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who six months ago was here to sign the treaty which gave Austria its freedom on Oct. 25. Dulles and his wife flew in from Geneva, and Dulles said he wanted to be among "those who have come here to honor the great contribution in culture that Austria has made to the world."

There were conductors such as America's Leopold Stokowski and Vienna-born Bruno Walter, composers such as Russia's Dimitri Shostakovitch, industrialists such as Henry Ford II and Austria's own industrial magnates, financiers such as Henry and Guy Rothschild.

Sprinkled here and there among the 2095 who had seats and the 539 in the standing room were a few of the survivors of those great aristocratic families who with the Hapsburgs once ruled the great Austro-Hungarian empire. Up on the uppermost gallery were those Viennese who, by their small contributions, won the right to standing room places.

20,000 Sought Tickets.

Those in front seats paid up to $500 apiece for their places. Boxes for six cost $650 each, but there had been no lack of persons asking. More than 20,000 applications were received.

The first night crowd included some 300 Americans, who flew into the Austrian capital for the right to walk on the Opera House's new red plush carpets and sit before the shimmering iron curtain, covered with 135,000 pieces of minutely thin gold leaf and then listen to Beethoven's great opera.

The last opera staged in the old house was almost prophetic —Richard Wagner's "Twilight of the Gods." It was put on in June 1944. Then the house was closed, and the next spring it was bombed. The resulting fire destroyed everything except the front part with the lobby and the main stairway.

Completely Modern.

The rebuilt house, estimated to have cost $10,000,000, looks outwardly like the old building. Although the color scheme of the interior remains the same rich red, cream and gold, it has been completely modernized.

Elevators have been installed for the third and fourth gallery audiences. There are special hearing aids for the hard-of-hearing and reading lamps for patrons who like to follow the scores of the operas.

The Opera House's proudest boast is its stage. Big enough to hold 400 persons, it also is tall enough to take a good-sized Vienna apartment building. It moves in sections—up, down, forward, back and to the side—so that while one scene is being played, another is being set up. An additional revolving stage collapses and can be stored in a wall when not in use.

FOUR CHILDREN IN FAMILY KILLED BY AUTO FUMES

Father Overcome Listening to Football Game on Car Radio in Basement.

BECKLEY, W. V., Nov. 5 (AP) — Richard F. Watts Jr. could not bear to miss the wind-up of a football game so he went to the basement last night to listen on the radio in his station wagon.

His four children were found dead this morning. The 37-year-old insurance man and his wife are in a hospital, apparently recovering from carbon monoxide fumes.

Investigators said Watts for some reason turned on the engine of the station wagon, perhaps because the battery was weak or perhaps to keep warm.

All the windows of the station wagon were up. The garage was closed. Watts lapsed into unconsciousness.

The carbon monoxide went up an open stairway six or eight feet from the station wagon and into bedrooms above the garage where Mrs. Watts and the children were asleep. All the windows in the one-story house were closed.

The four youngsters are Roberta, 7, William Jr., 3, Mary Beth, 2, and Michael, 1.

Coroner B. B. Richmond said Mrs. Watts apparently woke up about 9 a.m. when she fell out of bed probably in convulsions. She found one of the youngsters was dead in her bed. Mrs. Watts was able to call a doctor and the fire department.

Members of a rescue squad estimated the children had been dead about four hours when they arrived.

Watts had been trying to listen to the West Virginia-George Washington football game in Washington on an upstairs radio but reception was so bad he decided to try the receiver in the station wagon.

ISRAELI PLANE REPORTED SHOT DOWN BY SYRIA

Aircraft Said to Have Crashed in Lebanese Territory — One Airman Believed Saved.

CAIRO, Nov. 5 (UP)—Syrian forces shot down an Israeli plane today, a report from Beirut, Lebanon, said.

The report said the plane crashed in Lebanese territory two miles from the Syrian border near Banias.

One of the crew members was saved from the blazing plane, the report added.

(In Tel Aviv, Israeli army spokesman Maj. Dan Gov said he had "no knowledge whatsoever" of any Israeli plane being downed in Lebanon.)

This would be the first time the Arabs have shot down an Israeli plane. Last Sept. 1 Israel claimed two of its jet planes had shot down two Egyptian jets inside Israeli territory. The Egyptian War Ministry said the two planes had crashed.

CLASHES RENEWED ALONG GAZA STRIP

JERUSALEM, Nov. 5 (AP)—For the second day, Israeli and Egyptian forces clashed today along the Gaza strip. An Egyptian spokesman said an attack by nine Israeli armored cars set off a 45-minute gun duel. An Israeli spokesman said three Egyptian attempts to invade Israel in that area were repulsed. Neither side reported casualties.

By Israeli account, the Egyptians blasted with medium weapons at an Israeli motorized patrol in the Ain Hashlosha zone opposite the lower section of the Gaza strip. The patrol returned the fire, a military spokesman said, and proceeded on its way with no losses. Medium weapons in the border skirmishes include mortars and machine guns.

The Israeli spokesman denied the Israeli patrol had attacked, and declared the Egyptian version was an attempt to distort the truth. Israel filed a protest with the United Nations Mixed Armistice Commission.

The Egyptian spokesman said the Israeli armored vehicles approached the Israeli-Egyptian demarcation line south of Khan Yunis in the lower Gaza strip and started firing at Egyptian positions. The Egyptians returned the fire and the Israelis withdrew, he said.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman did not pinpoint the three Egyptian invasion attempts. The Israelis reported two Egyptian platoons attacked Israeli positions two miles east of the southern Gaza border line yesterday and were beaten back.

Fifty miles south, Israeli and Egyptian guns faced each other atop the El Sabha plateau, but there were no reports of a resumption of the fierce 17-hour battle which ended Thursday.

This week's major fighting was on the El Sabha plateau in the El Auja-Nizana demilitarized zone. In giving conflicting accounts of the battle for a checkpost there, the Israelis and Egyptians apparently were talking about two different positions on the same plateau, which is crossed by the Israeli-Egyptian border.

Correspondents who visited the area yesterday said the terrain showed little traces of fighting in which the Israelis claimed they killed 50 Egyptians. The Egyptians said they killed 200 Israelis, a figure Israeli spokesmen call untrue. Both sides now claim they hold the checkpost—the Egyptians saying they gained it back by a counter-attack.

Molotov Uses Recess to Fly Home, Possibly for New Orders

Trip May Presage Some Dramatic Move by Russian in Attempt to Regain Initiative.

GENEVA, Nov. 5 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov took advantage today of a three-day Geneva conference recess to make a hurried flight to Moscow which may presage some new Soviet move to regain the initiative in the East-West duel over Germany.

The aging but seemingly tireless Russian set himself the gruelling task of about 20 hours' flying time between now and resumption of the parley here Tuesday afternoon, along with the appearances he will have to make in connection with the Nov. 7 anniversary of the Communist revolution.

In western quarters there was thought that the Soviet diplomat, forced into the position of blocking free elections and reunification of Germany, may have devised a new, dramatic plan to regain the offensive, may be asking Premier Bulganin for instructions, or had been summoned for new orders.

Molotov's Position.

Molotov is in this position:

1. He had managed to preserve the status quo, if that was the objective.

2. He had resisted the idea of free elections in Germany though he had compromised on European security enough to offer a new plan that would not abolish the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but would leave Germany divided.

The West viewed the Russian as being in a corner, compelled to take such a stand against German reunification that he was bound to lose ground in the eyes of the Germans.

The interlinked European security and German reunification problems are again on the agenda for Tuesday's session, the ministers have met seven times and consumed 29 hours of debate since the conference opened Oct. 27.

Dulles Seeing Tito.

All four ministers left Geneva but some of their working committees, including experts on trade, culture and East-West contracts, remained. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was in Vienna en route to Yugoslavia for Sunday lunch with Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz.

British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan went to London to engage in the Burgess-Maclean debate Monday. French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, journeying by air to Paris, commented that he thought it was a good idea to get away from the scene of the conference for two or three days.

President Eisenhower's adviser on disarmament, Harold E. Stassen, arrived from Paris. He said he had been summoned by Dulles to start work on the disarmament phase of the Big Four meeting. On the same plane was Arkady Sobolev, head of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations in New York.

The West Germans announced Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano would fly to Geneva to meet with the Western ministers Wednesday on the German issue.

Violinist Oistrakh to Visit U.S.

MOSCOW, Nov. 5 (UP)—David Oistrakh, Russia's most famous violinist and professor of music at Moscow's conservatory, has received a visa to enter the United States and will leave shortly, it was disclosed today.

MENDES-FRANCE NOW CONTROLS FAURE'S PARTY

Elected First Vice President of Radical Socialists — Can Veto Candidates.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (UP)—Ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France won control of the Radical Socialist party today by an overwhelming vote that lent him new strength in his backstage struggle against Premier Edgar Faure.

Mendes-France was elected first vice president of the party as its annual convention here, making him in effect its principal leader and giving him the power to veto its choice of candidates in the coming elections.

The party's nominal president, Edouard Herriot, is an octogenarian who takes little active part in party affairs.

Faure, himself a Radical Socialist, made no attempt to oppose Mendes-France in the election because he knew he had no chance to win.

The ex-Premier was the only official candidate for vice president, but he won by slightly less than a two-thirds majority —1005 votes in a total of 1533. The other 528 delegates voted for various party leaders—most of them for prewar Premier Edouard Daladier, who is considered a pro-Mendes - France man.

The convention made its sentiments clear even before the vote. When Mendes-France entered the hall last night he received an ovation, but when Faure came in most of the delegates began shouting "Resign! Get out!"

The party specifically opposes Faure's plan to hold parliamentary elections next month, six months ahead of time. It has demanded that he resign if the predated elections are approved by Parliament.

One delegate suggested today that the party withdraw its resignation demand if Faure consents to prolong the life of the present Parliament until April 2 instead of dissolving it Jan. 2, as he now plans to do.

The National Assembly approved the early-election plan by a heavy majority in a confidence vote Thursday, but a new vote will be necessary if France's upper house amends the measure.

BLAIR FORMALLY ANNOUNCES HE IS A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Lt. Gov. Has Eyed Office for 8 Years — First Major Entry to File—Carpenter, Dalton May Be Next.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5—Missouri's 1956 election campaign got off to an early start today, when Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. of Jefferson City formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Blair, 53-year-old attorney who has had his eye on the governorship for more than eight years, is the first major party candidate to announce formally his candidacy for the state's top executive office.

In a brief announcement, the widely-known and politically-active Lieutenant Governor said that on Monday he will file his formal declaration as a candidate with the Secretary of State.

He appealed for the support of all Missouri voters, and pledged to "represent all of the people" if nominated and elected.

"For years," he asserted, "I have been going over this state addressing various educational, religious, civic, social and political groups and frankly expressing my views on many issues. I think I have made myself clear at all times.

"As the campaign progresses I will make my position clear on all public issues that arise and will do so long in advance of the time the people are called upon to choose their nominee for Governor."

Others Due to Act.

Blair's early entry in the race is expected to force the hands of Attorney General John M. Dalton of Kennett and State Commissioner of Agriculture L. C. Carpenter of Columbia, his potential opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the primary election next August.

Both Dalton and Carpenter are active candidates for Governor, although neither has made any announcement. Carpenter's friends report he may make a statement on his plans within a week or two, and Dalton is likely to follow sometime later.

Blair already has assurances of some important party organization support. Richard R. Nacy, Jefferson City banker and central Missouri Democratic leader, and James M. Pendergast of Kansas City promised to support him at the party's Jackson Day rally in Springfield early in 1953.

It is reported that J. V. Conran, southeast Missouri Democratic leader, has sent word that he will back Blair, and that the Lieutenant Governor also has picked up some organization support in St. Louis and Kansas City.

However, many St. Louis Democratic ward leaders have not taken sides yet. Leaders of the Democratic coalition forces in Kansas City, including William Sermon of Independence and Jackson County Clerk Ben Nordberg, also are waiting to see how the campaign develops before deciding which candidate they will support next year.

Blair Given Edge.

But most Democratic leaders believe Blair is out in front for the gubernatorial nomination at this time, because he has spent years preparing for the race.

Now serving his second four-year term as Lieutenant Governor, Blair has been active in Democratic politics for 28 years. He served two terms as city attorney of Jefferson City, beginning in 1925, and later served two terms as Cole county Representative in the Legislature. In the 1931 session he was Democratic majority floor leader.

He entered law practice in Jefferson City in 1924. In 1930 he was elected president of the Missouri Bar Association, and was the youngest man to hold that office. He served three years with the Army Air Force in the European Theater during World War II, being discharged with the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was elected Mayor of Jefferson City in 1947, and resigned after being elected Lieutenant Governor in 1948.

A member of a widely-known Missouri family, he is the son of the late Judge James T. Blair Sr. of the Missouri Supreme Court, who later practiced law in St. Louis. A brother is Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair of Cole county, and another brother, William, is probate judge here.

P. A. Tate, Temperance Leader, to Be Candidate.

P. A. Tate, former superintendent of the Temperance League of Missouri, announced last night he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor next year. He lives at 6041 Elizabeth avenue, St. Louis.

He was superintendent of the League, which was previously called the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, from 1930 to 1953 and vigorously opposed repeal of prohibition in 1933. Tate said he would run on a platform of "good, clean government for Missouri.

BALLOON ASCENT OF SCOTT FIELD MAN TO BE MARKED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—The ascent of the stratosphere balloon Explorer II 20 years ago will be commemorated Friday in the Black Hills region of South Dakota by a group of military and civilian officials including Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, chief of the Strategic Air Command and Gov. Joe J. Foss of South Dakota.

The balloon reached a height of 72,395 feet, or more than 13 miles, on Nov. 11, 1935, with two Army Air Corps captains, Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson, riding in a sealed metal sphere dangling from the balloon bag.

Anderson, now a retired major general, was stationed after World War I near St. Louis at Scott Air Force Base, then called Scott Field, from where in 1922 he took off in a wind-blown blimp flight that landed him eventually in Alabama. On a 1934 flight in Explorer II's predecessor, Explorer I, he and Stevens were accompanied by then Maj. William E. Kepner, now a retired lieutenant general, also formerly of Scott Field. Stevens died in 1949.

FATHER, SON HIT BY AUTO WHICH FLEES, DRIVER CAUGHT

Merle Newell, 6246 Washington avenue, Berkeley, and his son, Roger, 9 years old, were injured last night when they were truck by an automobile in front of 123 South Florissant road, Ferguson.

The driver stopped momentarily and then went on, but the license number was traced to James V. Dunlap, a Negroe, 1025 Wesley avenue, Kinloch. Dunlap, arrested by Kinloch police, admitted striking the Newells, Ferguson police said. He was quoted as saying he became frightened and fled.

Newell suffered a leg injury and was released after treatment. The boy suffered internal injuries and was being treated by a private physician, who said his condition was seriou. A second son, Tom, 6, who was crossing the street with his father and brother, was uninjured.

County Traffic Flow Slowed by 2 Bottlenecks

Lindbergh would have taken only 26½ minutes. On the basis of the Elliott expressway study of 1950, the time from Twelfth to Lindbergh on the completed Daniel Boone Expressway would require about 20 minutes.

In the traffic check from downtown to Lambert-St. Louis Field via Natural Bridge, the reporter left Twelfth and Olive street at 4:56 p.m. and traveled the six and one-half miles to Goodfellow in 15 minutes, with virtually no slowdowns except one east of Goodfellow, where machines were backed up about two blocks.

From Goodfellow west, movement was by fits and starts almost all the way to Carson road. It took seven minutes to travel the .6 of a mile to Kienlen avenue-Jennings road, 11 minutes to go 1.3 miles to Lucas-Hunt road and seven minutes more to get to Carson, 1.6 miles farther on. Progress was particularly slow at Lucas-Hunt, with vehicles backed up more than a quarter of a mile.

West of Carson, travel became rapid on the dual-lane highway and the three miles to the new terminal building at Lambert-St. Louis Field was covered in four minutes. The 13-mile trip from Twelfth and Olive to the airport had taken 44 minutes, 25 of which had been spent moving the 3.5 miles from Goodfellow to Carson.

At the rate of travel accomplished within St. Louis the airport would have been reached in 27 minutes. Driving time from downtown to the airport over the Mark Twain Expressway would take less than 20 minutes, it is estimated by Missouri Highway Commission engineers.

Estimate on Ozark Route.

Similarly, travel time on the Ozark Expressway from downtown to Lindbergh boulevard near the present Union road (via the U.S. Highway 61 connection) would be only 20 minutes compared with 35 to 45 minutes at rush hours now. Lindbergh boulevard south of Kirkwood would be reached in 25 minutes over the main expressway route.

Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and former Mayor, said yesterday that passage of the $39,712,000 bond issue would do more than benefit just the county and its residents—it would also "round out one of the most remarkable area-wide development programs in the United States."

The combination of projected improvements in the county with those already approved in St. Louis "will make the St. Louis area far more attractive to business and industry," Kaufmann asserted.

"The expressways, new roads, enlarged recreational facilities, improved hospitals and health centers—these and all the other improvements in publicly maintained facilities—will, without question, make the St. Louis area a better place to live and work in. That will attract more business and industry to our area. And that, in turn, will mean more and better jobs and a higher level of local prosperity.

"I have been in most of the larger urban areas that compete with St. Louis and St. Louis county as locations for new plants, new offices and new stores, and I have noticed that the most progressive, the ones that are improving theeir public facilities at a rapid pace, are making much of that fact in their efforts to attract new business and industry."

Indorsed All Proposals.

Kaufmann pointed out that the chamber had indorsed all eight county bond issue propositions and that chamber members and personnel were working actively in the bond campaign.

Indorsement of the bond program by the executive board of the Metropolitan Church Federation was announced yesterday. Acting unanimously, members ordered copies of the resolution sent to all ministers with a request that they urge parishioners to vote favorably.

JUDICIAL COMMISSION VOTE MAKES RUN-OFF NECESSARY

Harold F. Hecker, 5926 Clemens avenue, and George W. Curran, 2738 Utah street, were the leaders in an election by St. Louis lawyers yesterday to choose a new member of the Eighth Judicial Circuit Commission, but neither received a majority and a run-off election between them will be held Dec. 10.

Hecker received 252 votes, Curran 234, and Thomas J. Guilfoil, 6208 Rosebury avenue, 148. Four others received one each. The election was conducted by Phelim O'Toole, clerk of the circuit court for civil causes.

The winner will succeed Fred J. Hoffmeister, whose term expires in December. The commission's function is to submit three names to the governor for appointment of one when a vacancy occurs in the circuit court.

Whittaker Chambers Improved.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 5 (UP)—Whittaker Chambers, admitted former Communist courier who suffered a heart attack last week, was reported "slightly better" today. Dr. E. R. Wilkens, Chambers' physician, said he is "resting rather comfortably" at his home here.

PAIR ROBBED ON STREET, HOLDUP MAN FIRES SHOT

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas F. Gilman, 7306 Calvin avenue, Jennings, reported they were robbed of $10 last night at Channing avenue and Locust street by a man who fired a shot from his pistol when he seized Mrs. Gilman's purse.

The bullet did not strike either Mr. or Mrs. Gilman. Police said the pistol may have been discharged accidentally. The robber, a Negro, took Gilman's wallet containing $1 and the purse containing $9. He wrested the purse from Mrs. Gilman's grasp.

The Gilman's said they had parked their automobile near the intersection and had walked toward Grand boulevard where they planned to go to a theater. They noticed a parking space closer to the theater, they said, and had returned to move their car there when the robber appeared.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL

Mrs. Etta E. White, 79-year-old widow of 3844 McDonald avenue, suffered a head injury yesterday in a fall at her home. Police reported she fell down six concrete steps, striking her head. She was taken to City Hospital.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE STRIKE SET FOR TOMORROW

Walkout of 20,000 Workers Scheduled for 7 a.m. — May Be Extended to Brown.

Union representatives of 20,000 production and maintenance employes of International Shoe Co. voted uanimously yesterday to strike at 7 a.m. tomorrow following their rejection of the company's final wage proposal in a contract dispute.

In addition, a recommendation for a strike will be made tomorrow to the union committee negotiating with Brown Shoe Co., which has made the same offer as International, a union spokesman said.

The two unions involved, the CIO United Shoe Workers of America and the AFL Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, represent employes of about 40 International plants in Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas and Kentucky, and 9000 employes in 21 Brown plants in Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Delegates from a total of 38 locals of the two unions voted the strike action against International at a meeting at the Mark Twain Hotel. Authorization for a strike vote previously had been given by rank-and-file members of the unions.

Company's Offer.

International offered an immediate 5 per cent wage increase, retroactive to Nov. 1, with additional 2½ per cent increases each year in a three-year contract, Russell Taylor, president of the United Shoe Workers, said. Average hourly wage now is $1.22, he added.

A company source last night confirmed Taylor's version of the latest International offer of a three-year contract.

The unions demanded an immediate 8 per cent increase, retroactive to Nov. 1, and a 4 per cent hike in the second year of a two-year contract, Taylor said.

Contracts in effect between International and both unions expired Oct. 31, but were extended to midnight tonight because of the death of Edgar E. Rand, president of the company. Brown's contract with the unions also expired Oct. 31 and was not formally extended, but negotiations were continued along with International, Taylor said.

No further negotiating sessions have been scheduled, but federal conciliators, who have participated since Sept. 16, said they will do everything possible to effect a settlement before the strike deadline, Taylor said. Negotiations have been in progress since Sept. 12.

Arbitration Not Provided.

Existing contracts do not provide for arbitration of a stalemate, Taylor said.

The unions represent "better than 90 per cent of the production employes of both companies" and their contracts usually set a pattern in the local shoe industry at least, Taylor said.

The unions voted a strike under similar conditions two years ago, but a settlement was reached before it was called, Taylor said. It is the third consecutive year the two unions have bargained jointly.

International, one of the largest shoe manufacturing firms in the country, reported net earnings, before taxes, of $10,560,990 for the six-month period ended last May 31.

"Our contract with the unions continues through midnight Sunday," a company official said after learning of the union strike vote yesterday. "Before that time, the company has no comment to make."

DONNELLY TO SET MARK FOR HOLDING GOVERNOR'S POST

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, who rewrote the state's history books by being the first person ever elected to two full terms as Governor of Missouri, will establish another record next Saturday. On that day he will have served as the state's chief executive longer than any other person in Missouri history.

The present record is held by Gov. John Miller, the state's fourth Governor. After digging through dusty records, Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri, reported that Miller served as Governor from Jan. 20, 1826 to Nov. 21, 1832, or a total of 6 years, 10 months and 1 day.

Next Saturday Gov. Donnelly will have been Missouri's chief executive for 6 years, 10 months and 2 days. He served four years and 2 days during his first term, in 1945-49, and will complete two years and 10 months of his second term Saturday.

Donnelly was re-elected Governor in 1954, after an interval of four years in private life. Under the present Missouri Constitution, a Governor is ineligible to succeed himself but can serve again after an intervening term.

Boy Killed With Ancient Musket.

CLINTONVILLE, Wis., Nov. 5 (AP)—Thomas Krueckenbert, 10 years old, was killed last night when his brother Karl, 13, accidentally discharged an ancient flintlock musket borrowed from a gun collector for use in a school play. The musket contained an old powder load.

KROGER STRIKE SETTLED, STORES OPEN THIS WEEK

28 Maintenance Men Accept 24.8-Cent-an-Hour Wage Rise, Fringe Benefits.

Fifty-two Kroger Co. food stores in the St. Louis area were expected to reopen this week, following acceptance yesterday of a new wage agreement by AFL maintenance men, who ended a strike called last Sept. 14.

The 28 maintenance men, members of Local 6, AFL Firemen, Oilers & Maintenance Men, voted to accept a wage increase of 24.8 cents an hour offered by the company at the final negotiating meeting on Thursday. Pickets were withdrawn from the Kroger warehouse and bakery, where the men are employed, opening the way for a resumption of deliveries by AFL Teamsters, who had refused to cross the picket line.

Company officials were reported out of the city last night, and there was no announcement of the exact time for reopening the stores, which must be restocked with meat and other perishable goods. The stores were closed several days after the walkout occurred, and have been picketed sporadically. Included were three stores in East St. Louis and one in St. Charles.

Edward J. Weber, business agent of Local 6, said the strikers, who demanded an increase of 50 cents an hour, accepted approximately one-half that amount "out of consideration of the 2000 other employes." The strikers, who conducted the picketing, received union strike benefits. Many of the clerks and other non-strikers obtained temporary employment in other stores.

In addition to the hourly increase, the maintenance men received fringe benefits under a new three-year contract. Fifteen cents of the hourly increase is retroactive to June 1. The balance will be paid in steps. The previous wage scale, in an agreement expiring last May 31, was $2.25 an hour, for a 40-hour week.

Negotiations leading to the settlement were conducted with the assistance of United States Conciliator M. K. Sheehan.

BIOFF MURDER INQUIRY SPREADS OVER COUNTRY

movements and quoted him as saying: "My God! I thought Willie was in South America. I'm sorry this has to come up again. The last thing I want is any more publicity. I'm living here alone and quietly. I don't know anything about what happened in Phoenix."

(Of those indicted, one killed himself, two were shot to death last year and aside from Roselli, the others are being sought for questioning.)

FBI Checks Explosive.

Boies said that fragments of the explosive used in the bomb had been sent to Federal Bureau of Investigation testing laboratory in Washington.

Bioff's body was blown through the roof of the pickup in the explosion. Parts of his body were found over the yard of the $40,000 one-story home, where the Bioffs kept about $100,000 in antiques that they had collected in their travels.

By the Associated Press.

Police were tracking down a host of rumors circulating in Phoenix. They included reports:

That Bioff last Thursday bought into a Reno gambling place and angered a rival syndicate.

That he was acting as a fence for diamonds and other items.

That he tried to "muscle in" on what local underworld there is in Phoenix.

Bioff Sought by Capone Gang, Investigators Here Say.

St. Louis investigators have learned from time to time of the intensive efforts of the remaining members of the Capone gang to find Bioff and Browne. Revenge was the motive for the search, it was said, because testimony by Browne and Bioff helped convict six Capone gangsters.

At one time, investigators said, the search extended into Mexico. It was believed that Bioff and Browne themselves circulated reports they had gone there, dragging a red herring across the hunters' path.

Bioff's residence in Phoenix was considered a bad choice by St. Louis police officials, because in recent years gang leaders from all over the country have been meeting at Grace Ranch, owned and operated by Licavoli, who lived in St. Louis in his youth and who is now a notorious Mafia leader.

The bombing death of Bioff, St. Louis police said, is almost identical to that of Thomas Keen, one-time Wellston dog track operator, who was killed in 1951 in San Mateo, Calif., by a bomb wired to the starter of his Cadillac. Keen was operating a manufacturing company in California which made race track equipment. His partner was J. Howard Quinn, also of St. Louis, who operated dog tracks in Oregon, was a notorious gambler and once was a partner in the old Hyde Park Club, gambling casino, in Venice, Ill.

Keen's murder was never solved.

Browne Believed to be "West of Chicago."

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (UP)—George E. Browne, convicted with Willie Bioff and a group of Capone gangsters in the extortion plot against the movie industry, is in little danger of meeting the same fate as Bioff, informed quarters here said today.

Browne, labeled a "labor racketeer" in the investigation and subsequent indictment and conviction of principals in the movie extortion, no longer is seen in this area. He is believed somewhere "west of Chicago," and may be associated with the motion picture industry or with motion picture labor in some fashion, some associates believe.

He was president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes. Like Bioff, he was convicted of putting the squeeze on the movie industry, and running his labor union as a "racket."

But he was not expected to be a target for gang gunfire. He was regarded in some quarters as a "sucker caught in a switch," and although his testimony, like Bioff's, won him an earlier parole than others, authorities believed that pressure was put on him by Bioff and others at the time of the extortion; that Browne was told to "go along—or else" and he went along.

Browne at one time had a farm near Richmond, Ill., where he had planned to retire. A few years ago he appeared there, but not for long. Like Bioff, it was believed federal authorities granted him permission to change his name without regard for parole violation.

It was believed his family is with him, wherever he is.

CHANDLER WINDS UP HIS CAMPAIGN, FOES EAT CROW

last three months seems to have been particularly salubrious for convalescence. After all, Chandler will control the party and its delegation to the Democratic national convention next August, and what holder of a top political spot wants to be left off the list of delegates?

Chandler headquarters at Louisville forecast a vote of 700,000 at next Tuesday's election. In November 1954, nearly 800,000 ballots were cast when Senator Barkley beat the Republican nominee, John Sherman Cooper, by about 71,000.

Chandler, according to Joseph Leery, one of his campaign co-chairman, will win by 100,000. The candidate, himself, given to neckties with four-leaf clover and wishbone motifs, insists with studied gravity that his majority will be, not 100,000, but 113,000.

G.O.P. Prediction.

At Denney headquarters in Louisville, Eldon S. Dummitt, campaign manager, finds one point of agreement with the Democrats —, the vote will be about 700,000—" if it be fair election day."

Denney, Dummitt said, will win by 60,000 as a result of strength in Louisville and aid from anti-Chandler Democrats. Loyal but somewhat more realistic Republican leaders say their man will win by 15,000. Actually, away from the Denney campaign organization, informed Republicans are under no delusions and aren't even that optimistic.

Chandler, although honestly confident of election by a substantial majority, wants to make it as impressive as possible. That would help at the national convention at Chicago among other places.

He worked hard as he wound up his campaign in his native Henderson county last Wednesday. His home now is at Versailles (pronounced a la Missouri with a long "a"), near Frankfort.

He worked particularly hard at Henderson, the county seat, in fact, because National Broadcasting Co. cameramen were on hand to film his performance for a news broadcast next Monday night.

Chandler the showman turned on the tears, dabbed at his eyes and began:

"This is the most difficult of all my speeches and I need not tell you that this is a moment of high emotion for me.

"'This is my own, my native land.'" (He really said it.)

And he told how he had "earned my first 25 cents" by "dropping tobacco plants."

Pulls All Stops.

The husky former football player and coach rang all the changes—confidence, humility, scorn for his opponent, indignation at Republican "ineptness" and downright rascality, and undying love for the United States, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, Henderson county, Henderson, each of the loyal who had come out in the rain to jam the courthouse full, and all the folks at home.

Going on and on, he outlined his plans for Kentucky roads, health, education and welfare, interrupted by occasional polite applause.

Then he got back in strides by introducing his 85-year-old father, Joseph Chandler, who rose from his front row seat and waved to the audience amid resounding cheers.

"When I was a youngster," the younger Chandler went on, "Dad told me never to go to a burlesque show. I might see something I wasn't supposed to see. So I saved my money, went to town, found a burlesque show. Sure enough, I did see something I shouldn't have seen —my father."

That was the high point of the speech for many of his listeners.

It was at the Henderson meeting that Senator Clements made his first appearance with Kentucky Democrats' new boss man.

Chandler swung his hand in a graceful sweep toward the Senator and smiled.

"I'm glad Senator Clements is here," he said. "We have had political differences but I know he will join me in saying that we never have had any personal differences in our lifetime, and that goes back to when we played baseball together as boys."

Views on Foreign Policy.

Again with the affable Senator Clemens at his side, Chandler spoke Wednesday night at the Hopkins county courthouse at Madisonville, astonishing observers by turning from contemptuous reference to his opponent to, of all things, foreign policy.

"We should have learned," he said, "whether we like it or not, that we are our brother's keeper. This is one world. Anything that happens anywhere affects us all. We have been thrust into a position of world leadership and we must assume that burden."

It was the first time in the campaign that he had mentioned the subject.

The Madisonville meeting was notable, too for Senator Clements's speech.

"Let's forget the primary and go to work on the general election," he said. "This election will have a prime impact on what is going to be done nationally in 1956. We are going to place a Democrat in the White House then."

Comparing the Democratic primary to a football game, the speaker said:

"Sometimes we don't always agree with officials' decisions in a football game, but their decisions are final. The decision of Kentucky's electorate is final and after a primary our eyes must be on the future and not on the past."

Calling Chandler to the microphone and placing his hand across the candidate's shoulders, Senator Clements said to him:

"You deserve to win. You're going to win. Good luck to you."

Thrust At Governor.

Chandler then took a swing at the only Democratic leader in high office who hasn't joined his cheering section — Gov. Wetherby.

"Almost everybody has joined with me," Chandler declared. "Anyone who enters the primary is obligated to support the winner. Anyone who doesn't weakens himself and weakens his party."

In the last desperate hours of the primary campaign, when it became apparent to the old pros that they had made a mistake in laughing Chandler off as a has-been, Senator Barkley took to the radio for his celebrated castigation of the politician who was proving that his flamboyant oratory and his vocal renditions of "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky" and "My Old Kentucky Home" were still vote-getters.

Senator Barkley denounced Chandler as a Dixiecrat and a deserter of the Democratic party. Only once during the 1952 presidential campaign did Chandler refer to Adlai Stevenson, and then, according to Barkley, Chandler said: "The Democratic party has nominated a fellow named Stevenson; I don't know anything about him."

Senator Barkley recalled that upon the death of Senator M. M. Logan in 1939, Keen Johnson, then Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky and the Democratic nominee for Governor, appointed Chandler, then Governor, to the Senate upon his resignation. Although Chandler had fought him bitterly for reelection in 1938, Barkley related, he took the freshman Senator under his wing as Senate majority leader and befriended him.

When Canhdler announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the full six-year term in 1942, Senator Barkley recalled, in his preprimary talk John Y. Brown, who had suppoorted Barkley in his race against Chandler in 1938, filed also as a candidate in spite of Barkley's request that he leave the field to Chandler. Chandler won, and, assured of a six-year term, suddenly dropped his co-operative policy toward Barkley and the Administration and consistently opposed them.

In 1945, Chandler disregarding Barkley's entreaties, resigned to take a $50,000-a-year job as baseball commissioner. This permitted a Republican Governor to appoint a Republican Senator. In the election of 1946, to fill the vacancy for the term to which Chandler had been elected in 1942, Barkley declared that Chandler supported Cooper, Republican nominee, against Brown, nominated by the Democrats.

In 1951 the major league club owners voted Chandler out of his baseball job.

Senator Barkley accused Chandler of personal activity to prevent him from getting the presidential nomination at the 1952 convention although the Kentucky delegation had been instructed to support Barkley.

In 1948, Barkley said, Chandler, in addition to opposing the Truman-Barkley ticket, also fought for Republican Cooper against Virgil Chapman, Democrat. Furthermore, Barkley related, Chandler brought to Kentucky Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who had been nominated as Dixiecrat candidate for President, entertained him in the Chandler home and managed his campaign.

Denney Campaigning Hard.

Denney has been campaigning furiously, handicapped by lack of funds that enable the Chandler forces to buy large amounts of advertising space and radio and television time.

He has attacked Chandler as irresponsible and undependable and chided those Democrats who opposed Chandler in the primary so vehemently for their support of him now.

His platform includes a minimum foundation program for school improvement, a campaign to bring more industry to the state, an expanded highway program, improved care for the mentally ill, revision of tobacco taxes and an improved state park program.

Chandler does not deign to answer Denney and speaks with exaggerated derision of his opponent's platform.

He still bets his money on "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky" and "My Kentucky Home," a few funny stories, endless hours of handshaking and backslapping and now a little help from the old pros who have hopped on the bandwagon.

That's enough, he thinks, to assure him of the blanket of roses at next Tuesday's finish line.

district could determine what tax rate would be necessary to finance its future operations.

Several factors, Wallace said, made it unusually difficult for the board to predict with accuracy the amount it would receive from this year's collections. The board had to work with estimated figures concerning tax valuations, he said, and it applied a 60 per cent increase to previous valuations in certain rural areas where an 85 per cent increase subsequently was ordered.

Expansion plans announced when the tax increase was submitted to the voters, include construction of four regional branch libraries in the next four years, and an addition to the main library at 6814 Natural Bridge road, Beverly Hills. The district now has two branches, located in rented buildings in Overland and Kinloch.

Two Sites Studied.

Paul R. Wetherbee, business manager for the board, said two sites were under consideration now for new branches, and it was hoped one could be completed in 1956. The two are the south branch, to serve the Affton, Lemay, Mehlville and Crestwood area, and the northwest branch, to serve the Overland, St. Ann, St. John and Breckenridge Hills area. He declined to name the sites.

The building program is expected to cost $1,750,000 over five years, Wetherbee said. He said the branches would be comparable in services to the main library, which has 50,000 books, an auditorium seating 225 persons, a film collection department and other facilities.

He estimated that personnel needed at each of the regional branches would be less than half the 50 persons handling library functions at the main library. Book maintenance, automobile shop and other special facilities at the main building would not be duplicated.

Wetherbee also said there was a continuing need for expansion of the library's bookmobile program, which has 14 vehicles and is said to be the largest of its type in the world. The program, Wetherbee said, still does not extend to all areas of the county.

The county library district serves 455 square miles, including all of the unincorporated part of the county and 85 of its 96 municipalities. Not included are the municipalities that have their own library facilities.

In its ninth annual report, for the period ended last April 30, the board reported a total of 234,185 books on hand, with a circulation for the year of 1,325,034. The report estimated that the proposed four new branches would be adequate for only 10 years if the county's population growth continued at present rates.

Every Inch a King.

NEW DELHI, Nov. 5 (AP)—President Rajendra Prasad's special railroad car is being refitted for the 16-day state visit of Saudi Arabia's King Saud starting Nov. 26 at Bombay. The biggest a lteration is replacement of the master bed with one to accommodate the Arabian monarch who stands six feet, six inches.

4 MEN BEATEN BY ROBBERS, 3 SEVERELY HURT

Motorist Flagged Down on Highway, Another Victim Accosted at Traffic Signal.

Four men were beaten by robbers, three of them so severely they required medical treatment, police reported yesterday.

Joseph Sheppard, a construction foreman of Wood River, was beaten severely and robbed of $28 by two men, who motioned to him to stop his automobile on U.S. Highway 67, north of the St. Louis city limits, Friday night.

Sheppard, who is in City Hospital with a fractured jaw and head injuries, said the men were standing beside an automobile, and one of them waved a handkerchief. Thinking their machine was disabled, he stopped. The assault and robbery followed. The robbers fled in their machine, and Sheppard drove to Hall's Ferry circle, and called police.

Beaten in Alley.

James C. Crenshaw, an assembler, 4402 North Nineteenth street, was beaten by two men who dragged him into an alley in the 1900 block of Bissell street early yesterday and robbed him of $23. He was treated at City Hospital.

Gerald Ruffin, route 2, Belleville, was threatened with a knife and beaten in an alley in the rear of 2732 Lawton boulevard Friday night, after a robber forced his way into Ruffin's automobile at Olive street and Channing avenue.

Ruffin told police he stopped for a traffic signal, and a Negro armed with a knife got in beside him. He was directed to drive to the alley, where a second man was waiting. "Let's kill him," one man suggested. He was beaten and robbed of $35 and his topcoat. After the men fled, Ruffin drove to City Hospital and was treated for a lacerated hand and contusions of the head.

Joseph DeGonia, Cadet, Mo., was robbed of $60 by two men who seized him in the 1100 block of South Fourth street Friday night and pulled his coat over his head. The robbers, Negroes, also took DeGonia's wedding ring.

Wallet Taken.

Bernard McDonald, a railroad switchman, 7808 Virginia avenue, was robbed of $85 by two Negroes who accosted him in the 1500 block of South Third street Friday night.

Police summoned by neighbors to the Jacob H. Rubin dry goods store, 1011 North Vandeventer avenue, arrested a burglar who was standing beside a pile of merchandise which had been shoved through a hole in the brick wall into the alley. Two other men fled as the officers approached.

The prisoner, booked as Hadley Sydnor, Negro laborer, 5000 block of Minerva avenue, admitted, officers reported, that he and two companions knocked a hole in the rear wall and were preparing to load their loot into his automobile when they were interrupted.

Benjamin F. Stepman, an automobile dealer, 1292 Hodiamont avenue, reported that burglars stole jewelry valued at $1780 and $80 cash from his home in the absence of the family Friday.

A 1955 Cadillac automobile, men's clothing valued at $1800 and a shotgun were taken from the home of Owen H. Mitchell, an insurance agent, at 6390 Forsyth avenue, Clayton. Clayton police said they could find no evidence of forced entry into the house. The car was in the garage, which was not locked.

Two safes in the offices of the Westerheide Sheet Metal Works, 2525 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, were battered open early westerday by burglars, who fled with about $500. Hammers, a drill and other tools were left behind by the burglars, who were unsuccessful in an attempt to open a third safe.

REFUGEE PROGRAM GAINING SPEED, M'LEOD REPORTS

HOBOKEN, N.J., Nov. 5 (AP) —Scott McLeod, administrator of the 1953 Refugee Relief Act, said today the program to bring non-quota immigrants to the United States is "shifting into high gear."

McLeod returned to the United States this morning aboard the Holland America line's Nieuw Amsterdam after a study of the refugee program which can bring in 209,000 persons in three years and four months, ending Dec. 31, 1956.

Chief member of the United States delegation to the third session of intergovernmental committee for European migration held in Geneva during his trip, McLeod said he also toured consulates in Germany and Holland. He said the biggest kink in the refugee program is the lack of job guarantees for the immigrants, adding: "The success of this program is up to Americans."

AMERICAN PHILATELIC GROUP TO MEET HERE NEXT YEAR

The 1956 annual convention of the American Philatelic Society will be held in St. Louis next September, at Hotel Jefferson, it was announced yesterday.

SENSITIVE PLAYING BY PIANIST FLEISHER

Symphony Soloist Is Fluent in Beethoven C Major Concerto.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

The American pianist Leon Fleisher appeared as soloist last night with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in a poetically conceived and sensitively executed performance of the Beethoven G Major Concerto. Vladimir Golschmann conducted. The purely orchestral contributions to the program were the Overture to Beethoven's "Fidelio" and the Schubert Symphony in C Major.

Fleisher's playing of the Beethoven Concerto was fluent, gracious and intimate; and in its purely mechanical aspects of tone production and clarity of phrase maintained a high level of excellence. What he evidently felt most strongly were the lyrical and meditative elements in the score together with their allusions to a larger context of poetic mystery. What may be roughly described as the "dramatic" aspect of the music which would be apparent at certain points in a tighter line and a more explosive inflection of the phrase, was played down. Every artist must be allowed his own vision, however, and Fleisher's realization of his was consistently expressed and with great beauty.

Conductor Golschmann's treatment of the Schubert symphony, judging by the first two movements, was big in scale, homogenous, and boldly communicated. The richness of material in this work makes practically every bar an invitation to the interpretive caress. To yield to such would be to turn a performance into a multiplicity of small mosaics. Mr. Golschmann carried it forward in a steady continuity of movement of lines; but with modifications sufficient to bring out its variety The orchestra sounded cohesive, alert, and fluent.

The "Fidelio" overture made a stimulating opening number for the concert. It was incisively played and the orchestra as a whole, as well as in its several sections, had a higher degree of solidity and depth than it had previously shown. This was heartening evidence of the fact it had begun to unify.

The program will be repeated this afternoon.

EX-POLICEMAN HELD IN SALE OF $1000 BILLS FOR $600

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 5 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today announced the arrest of Charles Rothschild of Mound City, Ill., on a conspiracy charge in connection with an alleged $50,000 swindle involving the sale of $1000 bills at $600 each. Three other men were arrested previously.

W. H. Williams, FBI agent in charge of the Springfield district, said in a statement the conspiracy hinged on the sale of the money to Robert and Kenneth Close of Toledo, O., last July 28.

He said the transaction ostensibly was to avoid Internal Revenue Bureau inquiry into possession of the $1000 bills.

Rothschild, a former Cairo, Illinois policeman, was arrested Friday night at a football game in Cairo, Williams said. He is being held in Murphysboro, Ill., under $25,000 bond on a federal warrant charging him with fraud by use of interstate wire and conspiracy.

LATIN BLOC TO TRY TO ADD 4 NATIONS TO FALL-OUT UNIT

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 5 (UP)—A spokesman for the 20-nation Latin American bloc said today his group will press Monday over United States opposition to add four countries to a proposed scientific committee on atomic fallout study.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified by name, said talks "in good spirit" were going on with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief United States delegate, in an attempt to get some settlement of the split before the vote.

But, the spokesman emphasized, "we have 48 sure votes in the Political Committee for our amendment" if the United States refuses to withdraw its opposition. The committee is near a vote on a resolution which would set up an 11-nation committee of scientists to collect reports on fall-out and any other atomic radiation and make them available to members of the United Nations and its agencies.

WOMAN FINALLY RECEIVES LETTER MAILED IN 1936

PRATT, Kan. (UP)—A letter mailed to Mr. Sam Stearman on July 28, 1936, reached here recently.

For nine years the letter either traveled about the country or lay in some undetermined place. Ten years ago it was delivered to Mrs. Stearman's grandmother in Center, Tex. She placed it in a trunk.

There it lay until after her death. Those going through her effects found it, still sealed, and sent it on to Mrs. Stearman, wife of a minister here.

Oshkosh Match Plant Closes.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 5 (AP)—The Diamond Match Co., in business here since 1880, closed its Oshkosh plant permanently yesterday. About 250 employes were on the payroll, with 52 of them being offered employment in plants of the company in other parts of the country. Severance pay or pensions were given other workers, depending on age.

ARMED SERVICES TO GRANT LIBERAL HOLIDAY LEAVES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UP)—The military services are planning liberal holiday leave policies for the Christmas holidays.

The Army will suspend training at its camps and schools in this country from Dec. 21 through Jan. 3, to permit trainees to take up to 10 days' leave. During the holiday period, leave will be granted to as many service men as possible, with about half going home over Christmas and the remainder over New Year's.

The Navy established a holiday period from Dec. 17 through Jan. 2. Navy personnel generally will be granted 10-day leaves, covering one holiday or the other.

The Air Force will permit holiday leaves from Dec. 19 through Jan. 9. Air Force commanders are ordered to be as liberal with leave during this time as military conditions permit.

The Marine Corps will have two 10-day holiday leave periods—one starting on Dec. 17 and the other on Dec. 28. Training at Marine Corps schools will be suspended from Dec. 17 through Jan. 8.

ROBBERY VICTIM LEFT DEAD IN HIS AUTO IN ALTON

Shot in Head and Chest —Had Visited Tavern After Being Paid for Driving Truck.

Police last night were seeking clues to the identity of the killer of Joseph C. Elfgen, a truck driver and former temporary Alton policeman, whose body was found early yesterday in the front seat of his automobile parked in the 200 block of William street, Alton. His money and a gold wedding ring he habitually wore were missing, police said.

The body was found at 12:15 a.m. by two policemen cruising in William street. They stopped to investigate, they said, because the head was "cocked unnaturally to the right side."

Dr. Henry Halley, coroner's pathologist, said an autopsy revealed he had been shot once under the lobe of the left ear and once in the chest above the heart with a .32 caliber revolver. Coroner Ben F. Staten estimated he had been dead about an hour and a half at the time he was found.

Elfgen was seen by an Alton taxicab driver coming out of a tavern about 5 p.m. Friday. Police advanced the theory that he visited several taverns and his murderer drove him out McAdams Highway, shot and robbed him, then drove the machine with the body in it back to town and propped the body behind the steering wheel.

Police learned Elfgen had been driving a truck on a road building project at Hamel, Ill., and had been paid Friday. The robber did not take a watch, which coroner's deputies found in his pocket. His automobile was impounded and search for clues to the identity of the killer.

Robbed, Killed

JOSEPH C. ELFGEN

Elfgen, 43 years old, lived east of Greenfield, Ill. He was the father of five children, three of them by his second wife, Mrs. Jane Elfgen, with whom he lived. The other children, by his first wife, are grown sons, Dallas and Malcolm Elfgen.

Following World War II, in which he served as a corporal and was wounded in Italy, Elfgen obtained a temporary position as patrolman on the Alton Police Department. He was a step-son of the late Alton Police Magistrate Clem Hawkins. His mother, Mrs. Beth Hawkins Richey, lives west of Greenfield.

ALMOST RESCUED IN FIRE, WOMAN FALLS, SUFFOCATES

MIDDLETOWN, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP)—Just as fireman Morris Pitts reached through a broken window for her hand, 78-year-old Mrs. Lillie Pierce fell backward and suffocated in her burning home last night.

Before Pitts could climb through the broken window, smoke and heat drove him back. Mrs. Pierce was alone when the fire apparently started from an overheated coal stove.

PARADES, TALKS SCHEDULED FOR VETERANS DAY

Banks, Many Schools to Be Closed Friday — Formerly Was Armistice Day.

Veterans day, formerly known as Armistice day, will be observed in St. Louis Friday with parades, ceremonies and speeches honoring men and women who have served in the nation's military establishment.

Nov. 11 had been observed as Armistice day since 1918, until last year when, by act of Congress, it was designated Veterans day.

High point of Friday's activities will be a parade at 2:30 p.m. in downtown St. Louis by members of veterans organizations, Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force units, and bands and bugle corps.

Military groups from various high schools and colleges in the area also will be represented in the marching columns.

A Veterans day parade in Overland will be sponsored by Thoman Booth American Legion Post and Otto Trachsel Veterans of Foreign Wars Post. Marching units will assemble at Ritenour High School stadium at 9 a.m. and will move out at 9:30 a.m. toward the traffic circle in Overland where the parade will end.

Stores in St. Louis will remain open for the day, but banks will be closed. All city public schools will be closed, as will some county public schools.

Catholic elementary schools in the city and county will observe the holiday, but most Catholic high schools will remain open. All Lutheran schools in the city and county will be closed.

All stations and branches of the Post Office will be closed, and there will be no carrier delivery service, although special delivery mail will be delivered as usual. Pick-up of mail on Veterans day will follow the schedule used normally on Saturdays.

A luncheon will be held at the DeSoto Hotel at noon with Senator Stuart Symington as the principal speaker.

William Cook is general chairman of the Veterans day celebration and Steve Kriwanek will serve as parade marshal.

The Catholic Gold Star Mothers, Inc., will attend a memorial mass for all the war dead on Veterans day at 11 a.m. at Immaculate Conception Church, Lafayette avenue and Longfellow boulevard. Their chaplain, The Right Rev. James P. Johnston, will be celebrant.

FBI CHIEF WARNS AGAINST THE PICKPOCKET SEASON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UP)—FBI director J. Edgar Hoover warned Christmas shoppers today to be on the lookout for pickpockets and purse snatchers during the coming holiday season.

Hoover said all types of "sneak thieves" are especially active during the Thanksgiving-Christmas period.

Last year at this time, he said, shoplifting increased 43 per cent above the average monthly toll. Purse snatching was up 36 per cent and "pockets were picked with 24 per cent greater frequency than during the average month," Hoover said.

PRESIDENT SETS UP MEETING WITH CONGRESS CHIEFS

Summons Leaders of Both Parties to White House Conference in December.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—President Eisenhower has summoned congressional leaders of both parties to an important conference at the White House next month, it was learned today.

Republican leaders will meet with the President Monday, Dec. 12, to help shape the Administration's legislative program for the election-year session starting Jan. 3.

On Tuesday, Dec. 13, Democratic leaders who hold the majority position in Congress will join the talks and learn in broad outline President Eisenhower's legislative program.

This program has been hammered out in part in the President's bedside conferences with Cabinet leaders the past several weeks at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital at Denver.

To Stop Over in Capital.

The President is expected to announce the Dec. 12-13 White House legislative conference on a brief stopover here late next week. He will be in Washington a couple of days, then set up the temporary White House at his comfortable farm at Gettysburg.

The conference at the White House will signal the President's return to a more active duty status. It will also give most of the congressional leaders their first look at the President since his heart attack Sept. 24.

Mr. Eisenhower is expected to live in Gettysburg for most if not all the month of December. Just how long is not yet certain.

His plan to attend the Dec. 12-13 White House conference indicates that Mr. Eisenhower will from time to time make other excursions to Washington for important government business before moving back to the White House.

The President's present intention to attend the session rests entirely on continued progress toward recovery from his heart attack. It was understood, however, that his doctors have approved the schedule, subject to possible change, and that Mr. Eisenhower will take personal charge of the conference.

To Set Tone of Talks.

That does not mean he will sit in on long technical discussions. But it is now planned that the President will be on the scene to set the tone and tenor of the discussions.

The Dec. 12 session, with only Republicans present, is intended to produce broad agreement between the leaders and the Administration on major outlines of important legislation to be sent Congress next year.

It is probable the sessions will produce little more than a broad statement of Administration intentions to press for legislation in such politically sensitive areas as tax, farm, school construction, water resource development, postal rates, highways and others.

Eisenhower Not Expected to Use Regular Office.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—White House officials said tonight they do not expect President Eisenhower to use his regular office when he returns here for a faw days before going to his Gettysburg (Pa.) farm.

They said the ailing President, if he want to save trips to the ground floor west wing where he usually works, could use the oval room on the second floor of the residence quarters.

The oval room, on the same floor as the mansion's bedrooms, is equipped with a desk and a telephone and has often been used by the President for conferences. The room also is used to receive guests invited to the President's stag dinners.

BOY HUNTING ELK KILLS FATHER, COUSIN IN ONE SHOT

MOSCOW, Idaho, Nov. 5 (AP)—A 16-year-old boy apparently mistook his father and cousin for elk in a wooded area about nine miles northeast of here today and killed both with one shot from his rifle, Latah County Coroner E. R. Short said.

The dead were Lee O. Bunch, 47, Potlatch, Idaho, and his nephew, Leonard Bunch, 13, Moscow.

The fatal shot was fired from about 150 feet and struck Leonard in the stomach and then hit Lee in the thigh, severing an artery. Both were dead when officers arrived at the scene about an hour after the accident.

The shot was apparently fired by Donald Bunch, son of Lee, Short said. The youth was being treated for shock.

GIRL, 2, FALLS 16 FEET, BROTHER, 12, CATCHES HER

JUPITER, Fla., Nov. 5 (AP)—Jimmy, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. White, arrived home from school yesterday just in time to hear his 2-year-old sister cry out.

Looking up he saw the child, Jackie, attempting to balance herself on a porch railing.

She tumbled 16 feet into her brother's waiting arms. Neither was hurt.

Seven Algerian Rebels Killed.

ALGIERS, Nov. 5 (AP)—Seven nationalist rebels were killed and 16 captured in operations by French security forces in Algeria during the 24 hours up to Saturday evening.

NAVY SKYRAIDER BOMBER EXPLODES, ONE KILLED

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 5 (UP)—A naval Skyraider bomber exploded and crashed in a wooded area on the outskirts of Rockford today, killing one person.

Farmer Roy Lundquist, who saw the crash, told authorities the plane sounded as though it were diving, then exploded just above the treetops and slammed into the earth in a flaming mass.

spokesmen for Glenview Naval Air Station near Chicago identified the Skyraider, and said they had been notified of the crash by a test project plane also in the area.

Identity of the pilot was withheld.

Coty to Visit Chile.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP)—France's President Rene Coty expects to visit Chile next year—probably in March—on an invitation from President Carlos Ibanez. Other Latin American countries are expected to extend invitations.

CRITICAL COMMENTS
WALTER KERR, N. Y. Herald Tribune: "What is most remarkable about 'The World of Sholom Aleichem' is its genuine kindliness... Human warmth, generosity and affecting simplicity have carried the day."
THE CATHOLIC WORLD: "Simply written, simply played, the greatest charm of these three short plays is the fabric of faith and fun and kindliness out of which they are fashioned."
SAM LESNER, Chicago Daily News: "'The World of Sholom Aleichem' is sheer magic . . . exquisite dramatic entertainment."
VARIETY: "Full of humor, color, sentiment and nostalgia. Provides some of the best theatre in New York."

U.S. BLAMES EGYPT AND ISRAEL FOR BREAKING TRUCE

United States continues to believe that these United Nations observers should have full liberty to perform their peaceful functions."

Intentions Sought.

The department asked the ambassadors, in conclusion, "for information with respect to their governments' intentions regarding these matters."

To reporters Eban expressed "grave concern . . . at the spectacle of Egyptian troops advancing beyond the demarcation line and entrenching themselves in Israeli territory with every evident intention of staying there."

Hussein told reporters the Israelis were responsible for the interference with the U.N. observers. He assured Allen Egypt had no "aggressive intentions." He also expressed the opinion that Israel "may be preparing another aggression."

MOLOTOV HINTS AT MIDEAST TALKS

GENEVA, Nov. 5 (AP)—Russia was reported tonight to have floated a long-expected diplomatic balloon in a move toward settling the Middle Eastern crisis its way.

Western diplomats said a broad hint has reached the American, British and French ministers here informally and indirectly from Russia's V. M. Molotov. The suggestion was said to be that Russia believes tension in the Middle East can best be reduced if an early conference can be arranged among the big powers, the Arabs and the Israelis. Russia, he indicated, will be ready to take part in such a conference.

Molotov was understood to have mentioned the idea, without elaborating on it, to Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett of Israel here last Monday. Sharett presumably relayed it to the Western powers.

The Western powers, as of now, are dead against giving the Soviet Union a voice in the affairs of the region which for long has been their sphere of influence. They regard Communist arms-pedding and diplomatic dickering with the Arab states as a dangerous intrusion.

Another major roadblock that would seem to rule out any early fulfilment of Molotov's reported plan lies in the attitude of the Arab state. They appear to be as unanimously and as hotly opposed as ever to sitting down at the same conference table with the Israeli.

American, British and French governments are swapping views on all aspects of the tense situation. One major issue, the informants said, is engaging their attention:

If United Nations efforts fail to keep the Israeli and Egyptian armies apart, should American, British and French troops be sent to the frontier region to help keep the two sides apart?

Informants said the question is being considered in the context of the American-British-French declaration of 1950. The Western powers by that declaration took on themselves the role of Middle Eastern policemen.

None of the Western powers wants to send troops to Palestine. The action undoubtedly would be unpopular in their home countries, in the Middle East and with most Asian and Communist nations. Informants said the issue nevertheless is a live one which will assume even greater urgency if U.N. peace efforts fail.

Burns Doubts Dispute Will Grow Into Full-Scale War.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, United Nations truce supervisor in Palestine, said tonight he did not believe "the Israeli-Arab dispute will grow into full-scale war."

Burns made the statement to reporters at the airport as he boarded a plane for Jerusalem. He has been conferring with British diplomats in London on his way back to the troubled Middle East from U.N. headquarters in New York, where he reported on the tense Israeli-Arab border situation.

"I think there is a fair chance of getting a pause in the fighting to enable the situation to be stabilized," Burns said. "I don't think the Israeli-Arab dispute will grow into a full-scale war. It is possible but my guess is that it is not likely to happen."

ELMER KERCKHOFF TO HEAD MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY DRIVE

Elmer M. Kerckhoff, secretary of Pevely Dairy Co., has been appointed campaign chairman of the 1955 Thanksgiving week March for Muscular Dystrophy, it was announced yesterday.

As chairman, he will organize and direct the annual appeal to raise funds for research in the cause and cure for the fatal disease which chiefly affects children, Mrs. Walter Boerner, president of the Greater St. Louis chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, said.

The local campaign is part of a nation-wide house-to-house canvass during the Thanksgiving week on behalf of victims of muscular dystrophy.

TASS QUOTES GLENN FORD ON DESIRE TO VISIT RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass said today movie actor Glenn Ford told a group of Soviet reporters touring Hollywood that his "most ardent wish" was to visit the Soviet Union and see Soviet cinema, ballet and plays.

The Tass report carried in the Soviet press quoted Ford as saying "It is necessary to consolidate the friendship between actors of our countries as an active means of achieving mutual understanding."

Tass said Hollywood's warm reception of the Russian reporters was "in sharp contrast to the rudeness shown them by pickets in front of the hotel where they were staying."

Truman Warning to U.S.: Have Faith in God but Keep Powder Dry

Ex-President, Speaking in New Orleans, Admonishes Nation Not to Be 'Deluded by Dreams.'

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5 — Former President Harry S. Truman warned tonight that the people of the United States must keep their faith in God but at the same time keep their powder dry.

Addressing a dinner meeting of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, a gathering of Jewish groups, Truman gave something in the nature of a sermon.

He said that religious faith can be a great source of strength to those who strive for world peace. He added the hope that modern weapons of war may work for peace because they are so ghastly that no nation dares to use them.

"They are so terrible," he said, "that they may bring world peace and understanding."

'We Must Not Be Deluded'.

In an oblique reference to the peace talks which have been in progress in recent months between the Western powers and Russia, the former President said:

"We must not be deluded by dreams, we must not give way to foolish optimism, or assume that we will be saved by some lucky break or a lot of high-sounding words.

"We are confronted by the very real troubles that ordinarily arise between nations, and beyond that, by the powerful nation that has fallen under an evil philosophy that schemes and fights for world conquest.

"These are not dangers that will melt away because world leaders meet and talk about peace. The dangers will not disappear because we hope for them to disappear. They must be met and faced in their real dimensions. When we see them for the terrible threat to civilization that they really are, we must meet them head on and have faith that our efforts will win and that we can have a peaceful world, with atomic fission working for that purpose and not for our destruction."

Emphasizing that "we cannot throw away our defenses in the silly hope that after we have disarmed and are helpless the Communist nations will do likewise," Truman said:

"The job is much harder than that, but we can do the job, we can win this struggle if we have faith and keep our powder dry, just as we have done in the past."

Values Given By God.

He said that we believe that the values we cherish were given to mankind by God and that as children of God we are under an obligation never to surrender those values.

"After all," he said, "our forefathers had faith when they were building this nation. They had faith in liberty, and toleration and equality between men, because they believed these things were given them by their Creator. They did not give up, even though the struggle must have seemed perilously close to failure at times."

"We must believe," he said, "that if we persist, these fundamental principles will liberate the human spirit, and in the time to come, will bring about the overthrow of all forms of tyranny over the minds of men."

"We must act for brotherhood as we talk for brotherhood and then our ideals of freedom for the whole world can and will be accepted," Truman said.

When he arrived here this morning on his first visit to New Orleans since 1944, he was greeted by more than a thousand people. He was accompanied by Mrs. Truman.

Throughout the day, visitors crowded his suite at the Hotel Roosevelt here, carrying copies of the first volume of his memoirs and seeking his autograph. He obliged.

SECTION OF A.T.&T. CABLE IS STOLEN IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 5 (UP)—Communications between Cleveland and cities to the west were disrupted nearly four hours today after thieves broke into an American Telephone & Telegraph Co. vault, hacked away a 60-foot section of telephone cable and carted it away.

The cable was the main long lines connection between Cleveland and Detroit. It also served as the main carrier for the three wire services and several radio networks.

The three-inch, lead-covered cable carried 812 circuits. It was known by A.T.&T. as a "K-carrier."

Telephone company spokesmen said thieves used a hacksaw to cut out the section. How they gained entrance to the vault, and how they made their escape in the noon-hour traffic from the downtown street where the theft occurred, remained a mystery.

KNIGHT PLEDGES TO FREE DELEGATES AFTER FIRST VOTE

Portland, Ore., Nov. 5 (AP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said today that if he heads the California delegation to the Republican national convention, he will release it after the first ballot to vote as it pleases for the presidential nomination.

"That's the purpose of a free delegation," he told reporters on his arrival to address the western Republican conference.

The California governor spoke of the "favorite son" slate, pledged to him, which he intends to file in the June 5 California primary in the event that President Eisenhower does not seek re-election. If Mr. Eisenhower runs, Knight repeated, his state's 70 votes will be committed to the President.

By a "free delegation" Knight said he meant a delegation which would not be bound to any candidate. California election laws prohibit uninstructed delegations.

LIQUOR VIOLATIONS BY TWO COUNTY TAVERNS CHARGED

Warrants charging liquor law violations at two St. Louis county taverns having 3.2 per cent beer licenses were issued yesterday as a result of raids by St. Louis county police Friday night.

Frank M. Ceresia, owner of an establishment at 10618 Tesson Ferry road, Affton, was charged with possession of liquor and with permitting gambling. The raiders said they found five men there in a poker game with the place closed.

Mrs. Geneva Dietrich, wife of the owner of a tavern at 2747 Telegraph road, was charged with selling beer to a minor, and the bartender, Edwin A. Hoss, was charged with sale after officers bought drinks of whisky.

RUSSIAN TEEN-AGERS LIKE JAZZ, RED VISITOR SAYS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5 (AP)—The music of American composers George Gershwin and Richard Rodgers is becoming increasingly popular in Russia, a visiting Soviet pianist said today.

And Russian teen-agers like American jazz, Emil Gilels told a reporter.

Gilels, accompanied by his composer-wife, Forizet, is making a concert tour of the United States under State Department sponsorship. He is a professor at Moscow conservatory.

SATISFACTION OR MONEY BACK

WAKE UP TOMORROW MORNING REALIZING YOU CAN GET FAST TEMPORARY RELIEF FROM THE MINOR ACHES AND PAINS OF ARTHRITIS — RHEUMATISM, ETC., . . . OR PAY NOTHING!

HOSPITAL AND CLINICAL REPORTS THIS NEW TYPE MEDICATION GIVES TEMPORARY PAIN RELIEF FOR MOST SUFFERERS OF THE MINOR ACHES AND PAINS. THOUSANDS OF USERS DESCRIBE AMAZING RESULTS.

If you suffer from minor aches and pains of Arthritis-Rheumatism you will be glad to know that you can get fast and temporary relief from a new type of medicine now available under the name of SUSTAMIN 2-12. Ordinary pills and capsules that you take every few hours seldom give the continuous medication required. At night they leave you helpless, allowing pain to disturb your sleep. But now, thanks to modern medical science there is no longer any need to suffer in this manner.

AMAZING RESULTS PROVED IN HOSPITAL TESTS!

A new medical report released by a group of outstanding hospitals and clinics indicates you no longer have to be satisfied with short duration, pain relief. They tested the amazing new SUSTAMIN 2-12. The results were gratifying. For most, pain relief was noted quickly . . . With SUSTAMIN 2-12, pain relief was not of "short duration," but lasted for long periods. Many users report pain relief all night . . . So why spend money on old-fashioned, short duration medications* when you can have the newest development of modern medical science? SUSTAMIN 2-12 gives long lasting—often all night relief!

HOW SUSTAMIN 2-12 WORKS!

SUSTAMIN 2-12 is so potent you take only 2 tablets every 12 hours. SUSTAMIN 2-12 tablets work for long periods and at night while you sleep to relieve pain . . .

TRY SUSTAMIN 2-12 TODAY AT OUR EXPENSE. IF NOT SATISFIED, PAY NOTHING.

Try SUSTAMIN 2-12 without risking one penny. Here is our guarantee: If the minor aches and pains of Arthritis, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Bursitis, Lumbago, Neuritis are not relieved faster, more completely and continuously . . . if stiff muscles are not given new freedom of motion—if you don't sleep without pain—and if SUSTAMIN 2-12 is not completely satisfactory we will refund your full purchase price and send you a FREE package of any other product* you say works better than SUSTAMIN 2-12. Nothing can be fairer, all we ask is that you try SUSTAMIN 2-12 and prove to yourself that SUSTAMIN 2-12 works for you.

SUSTAMIN 2-12 "TIME TABLE" CONSTRUCTION

Now, for the first time you no longer need settle for unsatisfactory, old-fashioned, ordinary pills and capsules that last only about 3 hours. It's been medically tested in leading hospitals, you get the best relief of minor aches and pains with long lasting medication. A group of hospitals and Arthritis clinics reported that the "Time Table" construction of SUSTAMIN 2-12 is different from any other type of medication for the temporary relief of minor aches and pains of Arthritis, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Bursitis, Lumbago, Neuritis. It assures long lasting and beneficial medication. You get effective temporary pain relief in all parts of the body with only 2 tablets every 12 hours.

NEW PRODUCT GIVES RELIEF TO THE TEMPORARY AND MINOR PAINS OF MOST SUFFERERS.

After 35 Be Wise About Irregularity!

After 35 — when your system naturally slows down . . . you may need this special aid to daily regularity. SERUTAN acts like laxative fruits and vegetables. Safe. Non-habit forming.

AS YOU GROW OLDER, your system naturally slows down, and you may find that keeping regular is more of a problem—that the laxative you've been using is no longer best for you.

What you should try today, is the all-vegetable laxative aid, SERUTAN, which is especially designed for people over 35, and, here's the reason why: SERUTAN is entirely different from pills, salts or oils . . . acts on a true basic principle like laxative fruits and vegetables to help keep you regular. Many doctors advise this principle—that's why you should try it.

And you can take SERUTAN with complete confidence, for it contains no habit-forming drugs.

Great News for the Temporary Relief of Minor Rheumatic and Arthritic-Like Pains in

Aching Joints and Stiff Muscles

NEW "PILL-WITHIN-A-PILL" KEEPS PAIN AWAY LONGER

If you suffer from the common and minor rheumatism and arthritic-like aches and pains, caused by aching joints and stiff muscles, try the wonderful new preparatioon . . . ZARUMIN! ZARUMIN is entirely different from ordinary pills and capsules. It's actually a pill-within-a-pill. When you take ZARUMIN, instantly the outer pill begins to dissolve rushing effective, temporary relief to painful joints and tender tissues. Then, two or three hours later, the inner pill begins to dissolve, rushing a fresh supply of relief to painful spots. Thus you enjoy a real night's sleep. And, of course, you get longer lasting relief from pain during the day, too.

ZARUMIN can be used even for those with heart condition, high blood pressure, or excess weight . . . because it contains no sodium for those on a low salt diet. So, if you suffer from the common and minor rheumatic and arthritic-like aches and pains, get ZARUMIN . . . the remarkable new preparation that keeps pain away longer. Get ZARUMIN now. Money back if not satisfied. Take as directed. If pain persists, see your doctor.

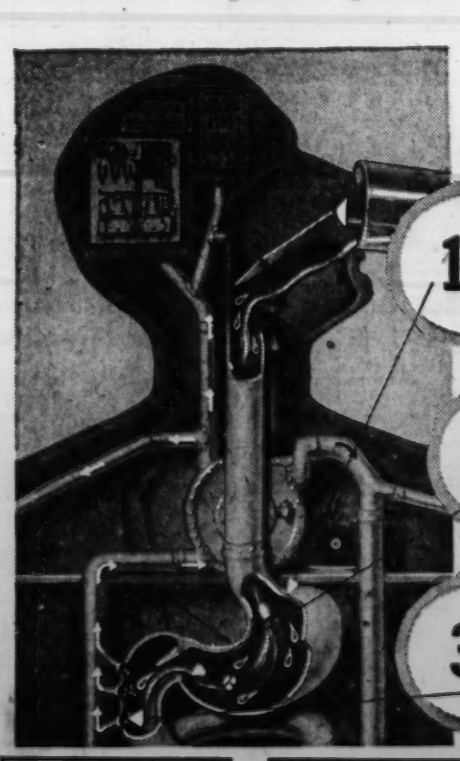
acts twice as fast as aspirin!

Doesn't upset your stomach . . .



because Bufferin combines aspirin with two highly effective antacid ingredients which actually protect your stomach from aspirin irritation.

1 Medical science knows that a pain reliever must go through the stomach and into the blood stream to relieve pain.

2 Bufferin combines aspirin with two antacid ingredients. These speed the pain reliever out of the stomach and into the blood stream twice as fast as aspirin. So . . .

3 Bufferin acts twice as fast as aspirin to relieve pain. And it won't upset your stomach as aspirin often does.

TEACHERS URGED TO CREATE DESIRE FOR GOOD MANNERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP)—A philosophy professor yesterday told some 1700 teachers they should give their pupils the desire for decent manners.

Dr. Houston Peterson of Rutgers University defined manners as "considerate human relationships." He said that only if attention is paid to these relationships can morals be improved.

Dr. Peterson spoke at a meeting of the Fifth District Teachers' Association.

DULLES CALLING ON TITO TODAY TO MEND FENCES

American Secretary Expresses Hope for Closer U.S.-Yugoslav Relations.

By STAN SWINTON

PULA, Yugoslavia, Nov. 5 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will pay an unprecedented visit tomorrow on President Josip (Tito) Broz, whose country has been given new strategic importance by Soviet efforts to penetrate the Middle East. It is the first visit of an American Secretary of State to Yugoslavia.

Dulles has an important diplomatic fence to mend — more important than he faced on his recent flying visits to Italy and Spain, in the opinion of most observers. Since the visit of Soviet Premier Bulganin and other Soviet leaders to Belgrade last May, there have been dramatic changes in the Mediterranean scene.

Relations have become friendly again between Yugoslavia and Soviet Russia after years of acrimony. The Communist world has won important influence in the Arab world through the arms deal with Egypt and other contacts. Greece and Turkey, stout Western allies, have been feuding. To discuss these problems Dulles will fly from Vienna to this sunny Adriatic seaport and then go by cutter a mile offshore to meet Tito on the secluded island of Brioni.

Statement by Dulles.

In an address recorded in Geneva, for broadcast to Yugoslavia, just before he left the Swiss city today, Dulles said:

"A common cause has joined our nations in two world wars. Yugoslavia's fight to win and keep independence is a dramatic chapter in history. Your country more than once has made it plain that it will be no man's satellite. We applaud this stand.

"You want to be independent, prosperous and free to choose your destiny. This is what we Americans also want for Yugoslavia, for ourselves and for every nation. That creates a common bond between our peoples—a bond which I hope will grow ever stronger."

Diplomatic sources expect four main topics to be discussed by Dulles and Tito:

1. The Middle East. Dulles is expected to express to Tito his concern over the deterioration in Israeli-Arab relations and to urge Tito to use his influence toward calm on both sides. Tito has official invitations to visit Egypt and Israel but has not said when he will go.

Cyprus Dispute.

2. The Balkan pact, which binds Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey in a mutual defense agreement. Greece and Turkey are in violent dispute over the British crown colony of Cyprus. There have been riots in both countries. Most Cypriots are Greek and want union with Greece. This is strongly opposed by Britain and Turkey, which ceded the island to Britain and has a Turkish minority there. Yugoslavia has been the most important mediator between Greece and Turkey. Dulles is expected to thank Tito for this and ask continued efforts to reconcile Greece and Turkey. He also may mention that it would be useful for Yugoslavia to urge easing of the little publicized border tension between Syria and Turkey.

3. U.N. Security Council seat. The United States has been supporting the Philippines for this seat against Yugoslavia, the British choice. Dulles will explain the United States position and conceivably could trade United States support in the U.N. for Tito's assistance elsewhere.

4. Yugoslavia-Soviet reconciliation. Dulles probably will ask Tito for a friendly explanation of Yugoslav-Soviet relations. Yugoslavia already is on record that ther recent improvement will not mean any change in its relations with the West.

Dulles also is expected to give Tito a briefing on the Big Four conference at Geneva. Yugoslavia may ask for more surplus American wheat, since the Yugoslav crop is poor again. Dulles might mention the American desire to have more inspection privileges on arms furnished Yuogslavia.

LIVESTOCK COMPANY PLANS TO APPEAL U.S. SUSPENSION

Attorneys for Henry C. Daniels & Co., livestock commission firm at National Stockyards, said yesterday they would file an appeal from the Agriculture Department's suspension of the firm's registration, which would prohibit it from doing business for four months.

In the appeal the attorneys said the suspension order was "incorrect and unjust." The order is to become effective Nov. 24.

At a hearing in St. Louis last June, it was alleged the firm used for its own purposes proceeds from the sale of livestock consigned to it for sale on a commission basis, overcharged for feeds and failed to give reasonable service in selling livestock.

PATMAN CHARGES SOME FIRMS LOBBY THROUGH DUMMIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UP) — Chairman Wright Patman (Dem.), Texas, of the House Small Business Committee says there is evidence that lobbyists are sidestepping laws requiring them to register with the Government.

"We have found," Patman said, "that certain big corporations are forming dummy organizations in which they function under . . . high-sounding names."

He said these organizations, operated by lawyers and public relations experts, come before Congress "with false faces" with the result that Congress does not know where the organizations' money actually comes from.

Patman issued his statement yesterday after hearing complaints of small business men about price discrimination.

Neither the Department of Justice nor the Federal Trade Commission "has done anything to stop these discriminatory practices," Patman said. He said the complaints "raise serious questions concerning the adequacy" of the law requiring lobbyists to register.

JUDGE'S GHOSTED LOVE NOTE SPEEDS TO PROTEGE'S WIFE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 5 (UP)—A love letter ghost-written by a judge sped today to Milwaukee, where it may persuade a wife to make up with her matrimonially-muddled husband.

The husband, Cornelius Byrd, told Judge Elmer D. Doyle the other day that he would like to have his wife, Jewell, and his three-year-old son, James, return to him here, but he felt he couldn't write a persuasive enough letter.

The judge wrote the letter yesterday, had Byrd sign it, and then it was sent to the wife. The letter read in part:

"My Dearest Wife:

. . . I really love you very much. I have really missed you and our baby since we have been separated. I want you to know that I love you and the boy dearly. . . . The boy needs both of us and I am positive that I can make a good home for you and him.

"Let me know if you will accept my offer and I will send a ticket for both of you.

"With love and kisses . . . Your loving husband."

After writing the letter, Judge Doyle declared happily, "This ought to do it."

HOME LENDERS' DISCOUNTS SAID TO GOUGE BUYERS

G.I., FHA Borrowers Overcharged, Patman Says — Suggests 3 Pct. Ceiling.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UP) — Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), Texas, said today many G.I. and Federal Housing Administration home buyers are being overcharged hundreds of dollars because of "flagrant" mortgage discounts. He termed this a "shocking scandal."

Patman, chairman of the House Small Business committee and a frequent critic of the Republican administration's fiscal policies, said the Administration's "do-nothing" and hard-money policies are to blame. He demanded "immediate remedial action."

In a statement he said that G.I. and FHA loans—in which the Government guarantees or insures repayment, to help the borrower get more favorable terms—are being commonly discounted in some sections of the country by 5 per cent or more, and that he had heard of cases where G.I. loans were discounted by as much as 9 per cent.

Such discounts mean, in effect, that the lender gives the builder less than the face amount of the loan. In the case of a 5 per cent discount, the builder would get only 95 cents on the dollar. The home buyer, however, would repay the full dollar, plus the agreed interest rate.

Hundreds Gouged.

"A shocking scandal . . . is developing in the Government FHA and G.I. housing programs," Patman said. "Many veterans and other government-assisted home buyers are being gouged for hundreds of dollars because of a do-nothing administration.

"Apologists for the present situation claim that the builder often absorbs the discount from his profit margin, but this is so much hogwash. In the final analysis it is added to the cost of the home which the borrower buys with an FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed loan."

Patman said some discounting of loans is inevitable due to a general tightening of mortgage credit. He said this results from monetary policies of the Republican Administration.

"But I cannot condone discounts of from 5 per cent to 9 per cent, which add from $600 to more than $1000 to the cast of a $12,000 home," Patman said. "This is an unconscionable disgrace and I think the Administration is guilty of the grossest negligence in permitting such abuses to exist."

Suggest 3 Per Cent Top.

Patman said a possible solution would be for FHA and the Veterans' Administration to set by regulation an allowable discount. He said 3 per cent might be a reasonable top. If the Administration fails to act, he said, he will introduce in the next session of Congress a bill to stop "the shocking mortgage discount abuses."

Housing industry sources said discounting of G.I. and FHA loans has been a common practice, varying from section to section and time to time, as the supply and demand for money varies. At one time the Veterans' Administration prohibited discounting of G.I. loans. The result was that G.I. money dried up, and the prohibition was repealed. Opponents of the discount practice charge that it makes the legally regulated G.I. and FHA interest charges meaningless.

JUDO EXPERT HELD IN DEATH OF MAN IN FIGHT OVER DOG

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP) —James Baker, a former world judo champion and Marine veteran of Guadalcanal, was jailed today in the death of a neighbor during a fight over a mongrel dog named Candy. The dead man was Edward A. Bollinger, a mechanic who owned the dog.

Bollinger left the dog with Baker while Bollinger was serving a jail term for driving without a license. Released yesterday, he went to pick up the dog last night.

Sheriff's deputies said they learned that an argument began when Bollinger accused Baker of mistreating the dog by not keeping it in the house at night. They said Baker told them Bollinger drew a knife and "without even thinking I grabbed his arm in a judo hold and hurled him over a 20-foot embankment. I meant to disarm him, not kill him."

Dr. Victor Cefalu, coroner's autopsy surgeon, said the death was caused by a neck injury.

ST. LOUIS U. GETS $2500 'COST OF EDUCATION' GRANT

An annual $2500 "cost of education" grant has been presented to St. Louis University by the Johnston Foil Manufacturing Co., it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of the university.

"The 'cost of education' grant is a feature of many scholarships now provided by industry, foundations and individuals interested in the support of private higher education," Father Reinert said. "We are grateful to the company, not only for its generosity, but for its understanding of education which guided its decision."

The scholarship will be awarded annually by the university as a part of the regular competitive freshman scholarship program. Winners will be required to maintain a "B" average in their studies.

BILL FOR NEW U.S. OFFICE BUILDING HERE

Karsten to Introduce Measure for $19,800,000 Structure.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — A bill authorizing construction of a new federal building in St. Louis, to cost $19,800,000 and to be financed by the Government, has been prepared for introduction in the next session of Congress, Representative Frank M. Karsten of St. Louis announced today.

"Under my bill, the Administrator of General Services and the Postmaster General will be authorized to acquire a suitable site and enter into contracts for construction," Karsten stated.

A new federal building in which scattered Government offices in St. Louis would be concentrated has been under discussion for years. One of the sites suggested was the block immediately north of the Civil Courts Building; another was the block now occupied by the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets.

If the new building were put up under the 1954 lease-purchase act, it would be erected by a private builder and would be leased to the Government for, as an example, 25 years, after which the title would revert to the Government. Under such an arrangement, local taxes would be paid on the building, and it has been estimated that the Government would pay out $43,650,000 over the 25-year period.

Karsten opposes the lease-purchase plan as too costly and favors a procedure by which the Government would borrow the required funds, erect a building by contract and repay the borrowed money in time. The General Services Administration estimates that the Government under the second plan would save $15,225,000, the saving to be effected largely at the expense of the City of St. Louis, which would lose the tax revenue.

Karsten said that Peter Strobel, commissioner of public buildings, was preparing a study of the building costs as a lease-purchase project for submittal to the Bureau of the Budget.

New Challenges for Priest.

GENOA, Italy, Nov. 5 (AP)—Italy's mountain-climbing priest, the Rev. Father Alberto de Agostini, is sailing to Buenos Aires to challenge the unconquered peaks of the Chilean Andes and Tierra del Fuego. He has made nine expeditions to South America since 1910 and pays for them out of an inheritance from his industrialist father.

A-WAR WOULD AID REDS, SAYS DR. EISENHOWER

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 5 (UP)—Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University, warned last night that an atomic war would "create the very economic and social chaos, and the human misery in which Communism tends to thrive and democracy tends to die."

"We are clearly at a period in history when, to gain our great purposes, we must depend primarily upon persuasion rather than coercion," he said. "While remaining militarily and economically strong so as to discourage an enemy who respects only power, we must at the same time build the sturdy structure of permanent peace."

In a speech at the state convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Dr. Eisenhower said that "in this precarious period of half-peace, half-war if we tried to build peace solely in harmony with man's best instincts, we would only create opportunity for the Tamerlanes, and Alexanders, and Napoleons, and Hitlers, and Stalins of history to take control."

"Of course this nation will fight again, and successfully in a purely physical sense, if it must," he said. "But by so doing we probably would not reach the larger intellectual and moral goals."

HOSPITAL FEE GROUP TO GO ON DESPITE DOCTORS

Says Medical Society's Disapproval Is an 'About Face' — Cites 1954 Stand.

The Institute of Medical Education and Research, an organization financed by staff physicians fees from non-indigent patients at City and Homer G. Phillips hospitals, will continue to function despite the official disapproval of the St. Louis Medical Society, it was announced yesterday.

Spokesmen for the institute, a non-profit agency authorized by city ordinance early in 1954, pointed out that the society's hostile attitude was an "about face," inasmuch as the council of the society previously, in the fall of 1953, had approved in detail the plans for setting up the fee-collecting agency.

The society, at its meeting Friday night, voted to withdraw the tentative approval it gave the institute last April. The vote followed a negative report by the council, read by Dr. George L. Hawkins, secretary. About 200 of the society's 1300 members were present.

Institute Under Fire.

From the time the institute was organized 19 months ago, it had been under fire from some doctors here who viewed it as a form of "corporate" practice of medicine. Fees collected by the institute are used for education and research.

Opponents of the institute contended that the new fee-collection apparatus tended to sanction the presence at charity hospitals of patients who could pay, thereby placing the city insitutions in competition with private hospitals.

Both Dr. Leo V. Mulligan, president of the institute, and Dr. Cyril Costello, chief of staff at City Hospital, took the position yesterday that the institute's operations would not be affected, in the immediate future at least, by the medical society's adverse vote.

They pointed out that the institute, which has offices in City Hospital and a membership of 350 physicians, was created by law with certain specified duties. "We're in no position," Dr. Costello said, "to be influenced by an opinion on a matter which is a city ordinance."

Dr. Mulligan said more than 75 per cent of staff physicians at City and Homer G. Phillips hospitals favored the institute plan. It was developed he said, because in the past, non-indigent patients accepted on an emergency basis could be charged hospital fees, but there was no legal way to charge medical fees, even though expenses were covered by insurance.

Dr. Mulligan said the institute had collected about $70,000 to date. About $4500 has been spent in research on skin grafts. In addition, $45,000 has been committed for a research laboratory at City Hospital.

HALF OF WHOOPING CRANES FAIL TO SHOW UP AT REFUGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The United States Fish and Wildlife Service said today only half of the last surviving flock of whooping cranes has arrived at its Texas wintering grounds.

The whoopers usually reach the Aransas refuge on the Texas gulf coast by late October. So far, only 13 whoopers—including four youngsters—have arrived from their summer nesting grounds in the Canadian wilds.

The flock was down to 21 birds when they went north this year. The Canadian Wildlife Service has reports of four to six baby whoopers being sighted this summer. The spokesman said that five-foot tall birds might have temporarily landed some place en route. Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay asked hunters last month not to shoot any large birds.

10 AWARDED $25 BONDS AS PRIZES FOR PAINTINGS

Ten members of the Society of Independent Artists of St. Louis have been awarded $25 Government bonds as prizes for paintings in the society's current No-Jury Show at Kiel Auditorium refectory, it was announced yesterday. The awards were based on balloting by members of the society.

The winners: Genevieve Brackman, Paul G. Tirmenstein, Miriam A. Bowe, Victor Joseph Kunz, Beatrice Carter, Gertrude Hance, Leona Chappell, Virginia Moberly Schlueter, Marjorie Thul Steinmeyer, Laura LeMoine.

Honorable mentions were given Virginia Bohling, Helen Koch and Lillian Thoele. The show, which is on public view whenever the refectory is open for symphony concerts and other public events, will extend through Dec. 31.

AMERICAN FARMERS MARVEL AT IRISH ACRE PRODUCTIVITY

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland, Nov. 5 (AP)—Twenty-four farmers from Missouri and Kansas expressed astonishment yesterday at how much the Irish farmer expects an acre to produce.

The Americans, making a world study tour organized by Kansas City radio station KCMO, visited Irish farmers for three days.

"What impressed us most was to see how many Irish farmers can make a living on a 30-acre holding," said Alfred McLeod of Lawrence, Kan. "The farmers here seem to have five head of livestock to the acre. Our ratio is more like five acres to a cow."

PERMITS NEEDED TO INSTALL HOME GARBAGE DISPOSERS

Installations of garbage disposers and flame-type incinerators for garbage and rubbish are in violation of ordinances unless proper permits have been obtained and the installations have been approved by city inspectors, Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric said yesterday.

Complaints received about faulty operation of garbage disposers are usually the result of improper installation, Sestric said.

Both plumbing and electrical permits are required for such installations and the subsequent city inspections will assure that these appliances will work properly, whether they are rented or purchased, he said. Sestric asked householders to insist that installers obtain necessary permits.

Improper installation of incinerators not only violates the city's anti-smoke ordinance but also produces hazards to life, health and property, he pointed out. Permits for these must be obtained from the city's smoke division and the installation must be inspected by smoke inspectors. When incinerators have electrical connections, electrical permits must also be obtained. When flue and brickwork is involved in the installation, a building permit must also be secured.

CHIANG EXPECTS TO BE ON THE MAINLAND IN 1957

TAIPEI, Formosa, Sunday, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek told a group of visiting overseas Chinese yesterday that he expects to spend his seventy-first birthday in 1957 on the mainland.

The overseas Chinese came here this week for celebrations on his sixty-ninth birthday last Monday. Chiang, who has vowed to drive the Communists from China, told the visitors at a city hall reception not to come next year for his seventieth birthday.

"The year after," he added, "I'll invite you to spend my birthday either in Nanking or Peiping."

CASTILLO TO BE HONORED HERE ON TUESDAY

President of Guatemala to Speak at Luncheon — Making Tour of U.S.

The president of Guatemala, Carlos Castillo Armas, will be honored here Tuesday and will speak at an official luncheon at Hotel Jefferson, under auspices of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, the St. Louis Council on World Affairs, and the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis.

Castillo, the army colonel who led a successful revolt against the Communist-dominated government of Jacobo Arbenz Guzman in Guatemala last year, is making a tour of United States cities, and will fly from here to Denver for a meeting with President Eisenhower Wednesday.

He is the first head of a foreign state to visit St. Louis since Queen Marie of Romania was here in 1926.

He and his wife and a party of 25 Guatemalans, including 12 newspaper reporters, are scheduled to arrive from Detroit at 10 a.m. Tuesday in President Eisenhower's plane, the Columbine, accompanied by Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

At the Naval Air Station at Lambert-St. Louis, Castillo will be given a 21-gun salute, and then the visitors will proceed to City Hall, where Mayor Tucker has arranged a reception.

After the luncheon the party will make an industrial tour of the city, including stops at Monsanto Chemical Co. and the Anheuser-Busch brewery, and that night the presidential party will be guests of Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thomas, at a private dinner at Deer Creek Club in St. Louis county.

SURGEONS URGED TO GEAR FEES TO SERVICE GIVEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP) — The director of the American College of Surgeons said yesterday that surgeons should gear their fees to the services rendered and to the patients' rights.

Addressing an assembly of college initiates, Dr. Paul R. Hawley said: "It is immoral to charge a millionaire $5000 to splint a broken finger because the service is not worth that much; and . . . it is immoral to charge a man $1000 for a gastrectomy (stomach operation) who earns $50 a week and has a large family, because it is beyond his reasonable ability to pay."

Dr. Hawley told the new applicants for membership that the college regards exorbitant fees as "dishonest money making."

An outspoken opponent of fee-splitting, he added: "You must remember that the evil of fee-spliting lies not in the division of money, but in the inducement to refer the patient to you for any other reason than the quality of care you can give, then he is recreant to his duty. And, if you have offered him any inducement, other than your ability as a surgeon, you are guilty of an unethical practice."

EX-SENATOR PROCTOR OF KANSAS CITY DIES

Twice Sought U.S. Senate Nomination—Served as City Counselor.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 5 (AP)—David Proctor, city counselor and former Missouri State Senator, died today. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Proctor, who twice had sought the Republican nomination for United States Senator, became ill yesterday in his office at City Hall.

He was elected to the Missouri Senate in 1920, a year after he had declined the Republican nomination for Mayor of Kansas City. He was a member of the Senate Conference Committee which prepared the final draft of Missouri's highway law, adopted in 1921.

He sought the United States senatorial nomination in 1928 and again in 1940. He became city counselor in 1946.

Mr. Proctor, born in Monroe county, Mo., was graduated from William Jewell College and the Columbia University law school. At the latter institution he was a classmate of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Survivors include his wife; a son, David Proctor Jr., a Kansas City lawyer, and two daughters, Mrs. Richard C. Montague, Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Robert Jenks, Kansas City.

Proctor was well known for the epigrams he used in his campaigns for the senatorial nomination.

He supplemented his political activities with the authorship of several books, among them "Pay Day," "False Faces on Quality Street," "Riding High," and "Ways and Means of Curbing Crime."

He was appointed an assistant city counselor in 1942 and four years later succeeded William E. Kemp, former Mayor, as head of the city's legal department. Besides representing the city in several major utility rate cases, his office handled bond litigation and annexation suits.

RUSSIA BELIEVED HOLDING P.O.W.S AS SQUEEZE ON BONN

MOSCOW, Nov. 5 (AP) — Western circles here speculated today that a sudden stoppage in repatriation of German war prisoners was a Soviet pressure move to induce West Germany to speed up establishment of diplomatic relations.

Reports from Germany said of 9626 prisoners due to be sent home, only 6200 had arrived so far, and none had been sent since Oct. 22.

One informant said he had heard a rumor that the Russians were miffed that the appointment of Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin as ambassador to West Germany had not officially been confirmed.

In addition, the Russians apparently want the Germans to push arrangements for a Soviet embassy in Bonn.

Zorin himself, who was not available for comment today, told newsmen at a reception Thursday he had been named new ambassador to Bonn. West German Foreign Minister Henrich von Brentano said later Zorin had not yet been officially confirmed by Germany.

The agreement to re-establish diplomatic relations was made during negotiations here in September with Chancellor Adenauer.

S. J. GOODMAN TO MANAGE FOUR FAMOUS-BARR STORES

Appointment of Stanley J. Goodman as general manager of the four Famous-Barr Co. stores in this area was announced yesterday by Morton D. May, president of May Department Stores Co., the parent company.

Goodman has been assistant general manager for the last two years, and succeeds May in his new position. He joined Famous-Barr in 1948 as assistant general manager of the Clayton store, later became its general manager, and when the Southtown store was opened in 1951, he was put in charge of that branch also.

The May company has 30 stores, and with more in the building and planning stages May said he found it necessary to devote more time to corporate matters, and do more traveling.

EISENHOWER FAMILY BIBLE

ABILENE, Kan., Nov. 5 (AP) —A family Bible recording six generations of President Eisenhower's family, including the only formal record of the birth of the President's father, David J. Eisenhower, has been presented to the Eisenhower Foundation here. It will go on display in the museum along with other family possessions.

The Bible is believed to be at least 200 years old. It is in German and was printed in Switzerland.

FIREMEN HOSTS AT LUNCH DESPITE ALARMING DELAYS

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 5 (AP)—Firemen were playing host to dignitaries associated with the muscular dystrophy fund drive and were even cooking food for the luncheon at the fire house.

The alarm sounded, the fire fighters dropped their aprons and pots and pans and slid down the fire pole. They returned shortly and resumed cooking.

The gong went off again and so did the aprons. Down the pole and away went the laddies.

For the third time the alarm went off to end the kitchen activities.

The determined firemen and equally determined guests made it on the last attempt and a meal was finally completed and eaten.

The fires were only minor.

DRAKE UNIVERSITY TO HONOR CHAPEL DONOR OREON SCOTT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 5—Oreon E. Scott, a St. Louis real estate dealer and a leading layman of the Christian church, will be honored Tuesday at the dedication of a new $40,000 memorial chapel he donated to Drake University. It is named for him.

The speaker at the dedication service will be the Rev. C. E. Lemmon, minister of the First Christian Church at Columbia, Mo.

The chapel is connected by a canopy to Medbury Hall, new home of the Drake Divinity School, which was dedicated last May. Both buildings were started in December 1953.

STAYED AS 'WOC' 5 MONTHS AFTER FIRM HIRED HIM

Former Government Employe Tells of Getting Higher Pay From Private Employer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Frederick F. Franklin, a former Government section chief, has testified he stayed with the National Production Authority for five months as a non-salaried official after returning to the payroll of the Vanadium Corp. of America.

Franklin, now Vanadium's district manager in Cleveland, told a House Judiciary subcommittee he rejoined the Vanadium Corp., a New York firm, in October 1952, at a $1700-a-year increase from his NPA salary.

Meanwhile, Franklin said, he remained in his NPA job. By the time he left NPA the next April, he said, he had been promoted from assistant chief to chief of the agency's ferro-alloys section.

Difference in Pay.

Franklin said his NPA post paid $10,800 a year and that Vanadium rehired him at $12,500 a year, plus up to $300 a month in expenses during the time he stayed on in NPA, then part of the Department of Commerce.

The former NPA official appeared before the subcommittee in its investigation of whether conflicts exist between the private interests and federal duties of business men who serve the Government without salary while remaining on private payrolls. Such business men are called "WOC's"—short for "without compensation."

Franklin said he had worked for Vanadium before joining NPA in 1951. He said he returned to Vanadium's employ the next year because he felt he had better prospects there and because he was disappointed at not having been made an NPA section chief earlier. He became chief of the ferro-alloys section two months later.

Given Instructions.

The witness testified that when he became a WOC, Vanadium officials instructed him not to report any NPA information to them that was not available to other firms as well.

Under questioning by subcommittee lawyers, Franklin said he wrote W. C. Keeley, Vanadium's president, and Gustave Lauv, a vice president of the firm, in what Franklin said amounted to a request for advice on handling a chrome ore situation.

Franklin said that situation was one in which Vanadium's interests coincided with those of other ferro-alloy firms. He said he also consulted officials of other companies, but could not recall writing any letters to them on the problem.

TWO COUPLES CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDINGS TOGETHER

A double celebration of fiftieth wedding anniversaries will be held today by Mr. and Mrs. Hugo F. Simon of 3407 Wyoming street and Mr. and Mrs. William Clausen, 4571 Carter avenue, at the home of the Clausens' daughter, Mrs. Fred Reynolds, at the Carter avenue address.

Mrs. Simon said her friendship with the Clausens dated back to the days all three were attending the old Bethlehem School in North St. Louis. Simon is a retired cabinetmaker and Clausen a retired salesman.

Friday was the actual date of the Clausen anniversary, but the celebration was postponed until today. A reception on Thursday, the date of the Simon anniversary, will be held at the home of the Simons' daughter, Mrs. Wilbur W. White at the Wyoming street address.

ST. LOUIS COLONEL RETURNS FROM ENGLISH BASES' DUTY

Col. Ben W. Lichty, of St. Louis, who commanded three United States Air Force bases in 18 months in England, has returned to the United States for duty in the Pentagon.

Col. Lichty, who is visiting his mother, Mrs. B. C. Lichty, 5938 Pershing avenue, was commanding officer of bases at Manston, East Kirkly and West Drayton. His new assignment is executive secretary, Air National Guard Committee on Air Staff Policy. He is to report at Washington on Wednesday.

TB SOCIETY SPENT $93,419 IN FIRST 6 MONTHS OF YEAR

Expenditures by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis totaled $93,419 in the first six months of the year for discovering unknown cases of tuberculosis in this area, the society announced yesterday. Expenditures were 44 per cent more than for the same period last year.

A spokesman for the society said more efficient case finding has been developed by extending the tuberculin patch testing program to many high school students who formerly received X-rays. Because of the low incidence of tuberculosis found in county high schools, patch tests have been substituted for chest X-rays for county juniors and seniors, he said.

Largest expenditure by the society was for health education services, which include speakers, films, literature and other health information presented to schools, industries and community groups. Health education expenses totaled $35,251 and case finding costs were $18,293. The society's source of revenue is the sale of Christmas seals.

OWNER OF OLD ABSINTHE HOUSE IN NEW ORLEANS DIES

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5 (AP)—Owen Brennan, owner of a nationally known French Quarter restaurant and bar, died yesterday. He was 45 years old.

His wife found him dead when she went to awaken him about 11 a.m. Relatives said death apparently was due to a heart attack.

Brennan operated Brennan's Restaurant and the Old Absinthe House, a New Orleans landmark just across the street from the restaurant. Brennan's restaurant won praise in national magazines for its food.

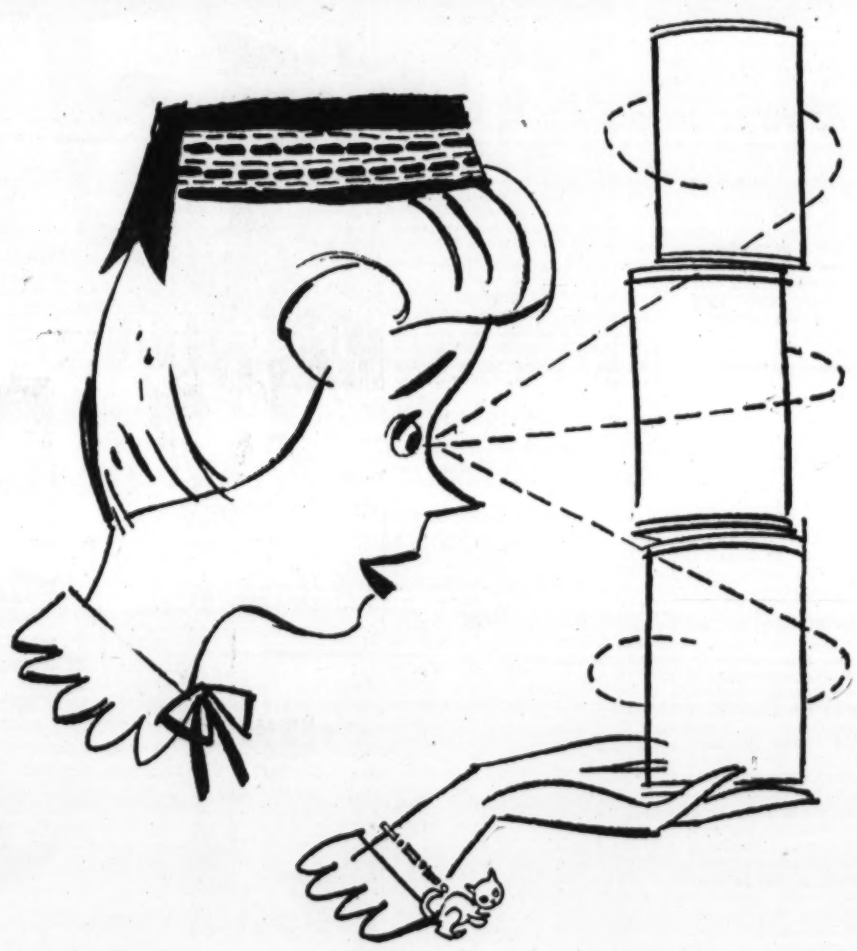
Let's clear up the confusion about cat food!



how brands of cat food differ

- what are "by-product" cat foods?
- which is better for cats: fish or meat?
- why add cereals to cat food?
- why does Puss 'n Boots cost a little more?

• What are "by-product" cat foods?

By-products are scraps of fish or meat left over after preparation of food for human consumption. Such cat foods do not provide a cat with all the vital nutrients he needs.

Puss 'n Boots is made of whole fish, caught and processed just for cats. The diagram shows how nature's life balance of nutrients is retained in Puss 'n Boots.

• Which is better for cats: fish or meat?

Biologists say that whole fish is probably the best single food you can give your cat. Meat contains many good nutrients, although deficient in others; it is a fine food for you because you can supplement it with other foods.

For cats, whole fish is better than meat—whether it's butcher's meat or a meat-based cat food—because the balance of nutrients in the body of a whole fish marvelously approaches the balance required by a cat.

The whole fish in Puss 'n Boots provides a cat with essential nutrients except carbohydrates, and those are provided by added cereals.

• Why add cereals to cat food?

The valuable cereals in Puss 'n Boots give your cat all-round nutrition, according to a formula worked out with biologists of a famous university. Don't confuse the food value of these cereals with a mere "filler." They give your cat the same benefits you obtain from vegetables and salads.

• Why does Puss 'n Boots cost a little more?

Since our fleets catch fish just for cats, and we process them whole, just for cats . . . it's obvious that it costs more to make Puss 'n Boots than to make by-product cat foods. Actually the cost to you is only a penny or two more per can.

Your Cat's Welfare Should Count Most!

If you feed your cat a food made from scraps, your pet will pay the penalty. Doesn't it stand to reason that a food made according to a scientific formula . . . by people whose main business is cat nutrition . . . should be best? But you don't have to take this on "theory."

Feed Puss 'n Boots regularly and see the difference in your cat! See his eyes brighten, his disposition grow more playful, more lovable! Pick up a week's supply of ready-to-serve Puss 'n Boots at your food store, and start feeding it now. Your money will be gladly refunded if you are not entirely satisfied.

How the Natural Life Balance of WHOLE FISH is retained in Puss 'n Boots

BONE STRUCTURE for calcium and phosphorus for sturdy frame. Made crumbly and digestible, retained in Puss 'n Boots.

FILLETS OR FLESH for proteins that promote growth. Generally reserved for human food, but retained in Puss 'n Boots.

LIVER, GLANDS. For vitamins and minerals. Often extracted for medicinal use, but they are retained in Puss 'n Boots.

Listen to "HOTEL FOR PETS." A delightful radio program, starring Frank McHugh. Monday through Friday afternoons, NBC Radio Network.

FIRMS, WORKERS INCREASE GIFTS TO UNITED FUND

Contributions Show Big Gain Over Last Year's Donations to Agencies.

A contribution of $83,203 has been made to the United Fund campaign by the Gaylord Container Corp. and its employes, it was announced yesterday by the company. The amount is 32 per cent more than was given by the combined group to the organizations now covered by the United Fund.

The Alco Valve Co. and its employes have given a total of $6771 to the drive, it was reported. The gift represents a 41 per cent increase over last year's donations.

A corporation gift of $4000 was made to the Fund by Boyd's clothing store, a 13 per cent increase.

City and County division volunteers will meet at noon tomorrow at Hotel Chase for a pep meeting. All divisions of the campaign will assemble for a general report meeting at noon Tuesday at Hotel Statler.

A total of $2,473,777 has been raised in the drive so far. The amount is 30 per cent of the $8,245,925 goal sought to provide funds for 114 health and welfare agencies in the St. Louis area.

Three firms were reported yesterday to have doubled their company gifts over the amount given last year to the various charities before they become United Fund agencies. They are the Multiplex Display Fixture Co., St. Louis Briquette Co. and Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter Co.

'PATRONIZING' U. S. TONE TOWARD EAST CRITICIZED

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5 (AP)—A former foreign minister of Pakistan today asked the United States to drop its "often patronizing, sometimes arrogant" attitude toward nations of the East.

Sir Zafrulla Khan, now a member of the International Court of Justice at The Hague, made his plea before the final session of the fifth conference of the United States National Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The attitude of the Western world is too often patronizing when it looks at the East, Khan said. And the East, hypersensitive in many respects, then shows its irritation with these "superior attitudes" of the West, he said. He urged Americans to live up their anti-colonial history, tradition and ideals.

3 BRITONS IN U.S. TO STUDY ATOMIC SECURITY METHODS

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP) — Three of Britain's top atomic security experts are visiting the United States for an exchange of ideas on security procedure, the Atomic Energy Authority disclosed today. The British record in this field has come in for American criticism at times.

Kenneth Morton-Evans, security director of the Atomic Energy Authority, heads the group. The others are Guy Liddell, special adviser on security, and Wing Comdr. Henry Arnold, chief security officer at the Harwell atom station.

A spokesman said they made the trip at the invitation of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

VATICAN CRITICIZES PRESS ON MARGARET'S ROMANCE

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 5 (UP) —Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, criticized the popular press today for the way it handled the romance of Britain's Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The newspaper praised Margaret for her announcement that she would not marry the divorced air hero and said it was a "noble message."

Newspapers deliberately passed over the religious reasons for Margaret's decision not to marry Townsend and concentrated instead on political motives, Osservatore Romano said.

WARREN WON'T BE A CANDIDATE, FRIEND ASSERTS

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Nov. 5 (INS)—A close personal friend of United States Chief Justice Earl Warren says that Warren will not be a candidate for the presidency under any circumstances.

Thomas M. Storke, publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press, said he made the statement on Warren's "authority."

Storke, a Democrat, said he returned from spending several days as a guest of the Warren family in Washington and "I can say on his authority, and unmistakably, that he is not and will not be a candidate for the presidential nomination."

Republican leaders have been listing the Chief Justice with Vice President Richard Nixon and Senate Minority Leader William F. Knowland of California as three likely candidates if President Eisenhower decides not to run for re-election.

CHARGES M'CARTHY FAILED TO TELL AIMS

Ex-Harvard Aid 'Surmises' Senator Wasn't Interested in Subversion.

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Leon J. Kamin, 27 years old, a former Harvard research assistant, testified yesterday in his defense on contempt charges that he "surmised" Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, was interested in his "connection with Harvard" and not with subversion in defense plants.

Kamin said that was why he prepared before going into the Senate subcommittee hearing Jan. 15, 1954, a statement in which he disclosed his intent not to reveal names of Communist party associates.

The defense rested after Kamin's testimony was finished. The trial is scheduled to resume Monday with final arguments by opposing counsel.

Kamin insisted McCarthy never told him the purpose of his inquiry. A long cross-examination failed to shake Kamin's claim that he was not notified of McCarthy's purpose. In this, his testimony directly contradicted the Senator.

Courts have ruled in order for a person to be convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions before a congressional committee the witness must first have been told the subject matter under inquiry.

Kamin, who has admitted Communist party membership between 1945 and 1950, is being tried at a jury-waived session before United States District Judge Bailey Aldrich on two counts charging contempt for refusing to answer two of McCarthy's questions.

The questions inquired whether Kamin knew of any Communists in defense plants and whether he knew that a Communist party organizer named Emmanuel Blum had contact with persons having access to classified (secret) material

Kamin, now doing research at Queen's university, Kingston, Ont., originally went to trial on six counts. Judge Aldrich acquitted him Wednesday on two counts dealing with Communists at Harvard. He ruled that McCarthy's questions on which the counts were based were so broad as to be beyond the scope of the inquiry.

At the same time Judge Aldrich also dismissed two other counts as duplications.

Kamin was asked under cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney John M. Harrington Jr. whether his counsel, Calvin P. Bartlett and John Slatonstall, had told him the subject matter of McCarthy's investigation.

Judge Aldrich, in requiring the defendant to answer, ruled that the defense had waived its privilege to keep communications between counsel and client confidential.

Kamin's answer to the question was "no."

Silent Partnership Dissolved.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 5 (AP)—Superior Court Judge E. Spencer Walton said today he would grant a divorce to Mrs. Ina A. Gillett, 52 years old, who testified that for eight years her husband, Walter, 55, spoke to her only once a year, inquiring about her income so he could make out income tax forms.

FATHER PIAZZA DIES; EDITOR OF MAGAZINE

Member of Congregation of Missions of Holy Family.

The Rev. Constantine B. Piazza M.S.F., editor of The Holy Family, a bi-monthly Catholic magazine, died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage he suffered Thursday night. He was 54 years old and was a member of the Congregation of the Missions of the Holy Family for 20 years.

Father Piazza was born in Padua, Italy, and moved to Rosati, Mo., with his father and two brothers after the death of his mother in 1913. He was ordained in 1940 and served as chaplain of Christian Brothers College and St. Louis County Hospital. He also assisted at St. Luke's parish, Richmond Heights.

Besides editing the 16-page magazine, Father Piazza set all the type and printed it himself. He lived at the order's provincial house, 7900 Clayton road, Richmond Heights.

Surviving are his father, Antonio Piazza, now of Venice, Italy, and two brothers, Eugene Piazzi of Rosati, and Charles Piazza of Memphis, Tenn. Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Wesdnesday at Holy Family Seminary, 2500 Ashby road, Overland, with burial in the cemetery there.

A Requiem High Mass for Father Piazza will be sung at 10 a.m. Tuesday at St. Luke's Church, Bellevue and Dale avenues.

Ineffective Book.

DETROIT (UP)—A book was returned to the Detroit Public Library recently, more than 23 years overdue. The book, returned to a library drop box anonymously, was charged out March 14, 1932. The title: "Defective Memory, Absent-mindedness and Their Treatment."

OVERGENEROUS BARKEEP'S DRINKS ON HOUSE CURBED

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (INS) — Judge Harry G. Hershenson laid down a set of rules yesterday to curb a generous Chicago barkeeper's penchant for buying drinks on the house.

The barkeeper, Walter J. Bafia, is being sued for divorce by his wife, Sophie, 39 years old, who charges that customers buy him a few drinks and after he samples his stock he becomes too generous.

The judge's rules for Bafia include: No buying drinks for customers nor accepting drinks from them; one shot of whisky, not two, for a highball; no free shots of whisky as a chaser for a customer who buys a bottle of beer.

RECOVERY RAPID, ADENAUER SAID TO NEED NO VACATION

BONN, Nov. 5 (UP)—Chancellor Adenauer is progressing so well in his recovery from bronchial pneumonia he will not have to take a convalescence vacation, his doctors said today.

"Only the unfavorable climate prevents him from taking walks outside his house," the bulletin said.

Adenauer spent the entire afternoon out of bed yesterday for the first time since he was taken ill last Oct. 9.

ST. LOUIS U. ALUMNI TO BE GIVEN AWARDS

12 Graduates Will Be Honored at Founder's Day Celebration.

Twelve graduates of St. Louis University will receive Distinguished Merit Awards from the university for "illustrating the highest ideals of the University's educational program in their daily lives," it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of the university.

The awards will be presented Nov. 15 at the Student Convocation of a Founders' day celebration marking the 137th anniversary of the founding of the university in 1818. The observance will be held Nov. 15 and 16.

The recipients, chosen by the Alumni Federation and a faculty committee, are:

Roy Alexander, managing editor of Time magazine, New York; Cornelius G. Dahm, chief geophysicist of Hunt Oil Co., Dallas, Tex.; Dr. H. Trendley Dean, secretary of the Council of Research of the American Dental Association, Chicago; Hord Hardin, chairman of the executive committee of Mercantile Trust Co.

Msgr. August R. Fussenneger, director of charities for the Indianapolis (Ind.) diocese; Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella Sr., professor and director emeritus of internal medicine, St. Louis University School of Medicine; William A. Kottmeyer, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary and special schools for the Board of Education.

CONCORDIA SEMINARY TO HONOR 4 FOR SERVICE

Three professors of Concordia Seminary and one member of the seminary board of control will be honored today on the anniversaries of their service. A service in their honor will be held at 4 p.m. in the seminary chapel, 801 DeMun avenue, Clayton.

The Rev. Dr. Theodore Heyer is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination and the twenty-fifth anniversary as a teacher at the seminary. The Rev. Dr. Paul Bretscher has served the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the seminary for 40 years as pastor and teacher.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Piepkorn, professor of systematic theology, and the Rev. Dr. George Wittmer, member of the board of control, complete 25 years of church work. The Rev. Dr. Wittmer is pastor of Messiah Lutheran Church, Grand boulevard and Pestalozzi street; he has been a member of the seminary board for eight years. Speaker at the service will be the Rev. Walter Wolbrecht, executive secretary of the Board for Higher Education of the Missouri Synod.

DR. ARTHUR E. WALTERS FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY

Funeral services for Dr. Arthur E. Walters, physician and former St. Louis county health commissioner, will be at 2:30 p.m. today at Parker-Aldrich undertaking establishment, 15 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves. Burial will be in Sterling, Ill.

Dr. Walters, 83 years old, died of a cerebral hemorrhage Thursday at St. Mary's Hospital. He served as the first full-time health commissioner in the county from 1926 to 1929. He had practiced for many years in the St. Louis area and had offices at 820 North Grand boulevard. He had no immediate survivors.

ODD NAME DROVE RABBIT TO DRINK, POLICE ARE TOLD

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 5 (UP) — Peter Rabbit says his name got him in trouble on an Easter Sunday about two years ago and that he's been in stews ever since.

Rabbit told police yesterday his troubles began that Easter Sunday when a policeman asked him for his name.

"When I told him the truth he thought I was a wise guy and hauled me down to the police station," Rabbit said. "It bothered me so much that I took to drinking and I've been in trouble ever since."

Rabbit, 21 years old, and two friends said they each sold a pint of blood yesterday to finance a drinking spree in New York.

Police said they then returned to Jersey City, stole an automobile to travel south, got three blocks and almost hit Motorcycle Patrolman Harold Shea. After a chase, all three were caught. They were ordered held in $1000 bail in magistrate's court despite Rabbit's eloquent plea.

MOTHER TRIES BUT FAILS TO SAVE CHILD FROM FIRE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 5 (AP)—A mother's efforts to lead her four-year-old daughter to safety failed here today and the child perished in flames which destroyed their small home.

Firemen said Mrs. Richard Caston led her daughter Sharon Ann through their burning home into the bathroom where she kicekd out a window. They said she then climbed into the window and reached back to get her daughter but lost her balance and fell to the ground outside.

She and a neighbor, Hansford Legg, could not get back into the flaming home to rescue the girl. Firemen found the girl's body in the ruins of the bathroom. The child's father was on a hunting trip. Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

BAR GROUP ASKS COURT TO UPHOLD SECURITY LAW

'Spotlight of Pitiless Publicity' Should Be Turned on Reds, Says Plea to Court.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP) — The American Bar association, in a strongly-worded brief, urged the Supreme Court yesterday to uphold the 1950 Internal Security Act so that a "spotlight of pitiless publicity" may be turned on the Communist party.

The act requires registration of organizations found by the subversive activities control board to be Communist "action" or "front" groups. They must list their membership and disclose their finances.

The high tribunal will hear arguments in the week of Nov. 14 on an appeal by the Communist party of the United States from an order by the board that it must register as an organization subject to the orders of Moscow. The party appeal asked that the law be struck down as violating fundamental liberties guaranteed by the Constitution.

The bar association, in its brief filed as a "friend of the court," declared:

"Each of the act's provisions, in context, and the act in tonto are reasonable and valid."

The brief stated further:

"By no sane or sound construction of the act can it be deemed to control freedom of thought or of speech or to apply to radical espousal or radical organizations unless they result from foreign domination of the Communist movement.

"No organization and no individual—however radical but not so dominated—is encompassed by this act. Nor is any person or organizatioon prevented from advocating any change, however far-reaching, however unsound, however obnoxious, through change in our Constitution. . . .

"The truth and the fact . . . is that the Communist party is not a political party in the sense used by the American people but a foreign dominated group posing as a political party for subversive purposes."

The bar association said the party was protesting that to register "would be to tarnish itself and lose for it access to the market place of ideas."

The brief then declared:

"If this speculation be true, the party must look elsewhere than to the Constitution for relief. The Constitution does not salvage from reasonable regulation those seeking, under foreign control, its destruction."

HUNTER ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY HIS 14-YEAR-OLD BROTHER

Monroe P. Hedrick of Franklay, Mo., a car helper for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was accidentally shot in the left thigh yesterday by his brother when hunting deer near Mineral Point, Mo. He was brought to Missouri Pacific Hospital here.

He told police his brother, Lawrence Hedrick, 14 years old, of Cadet, Mo., was unloading a .30-.30-caliber rifle when it was discharged and the bullet struck him. Hedrick is 25 years old. Mineral Point is about 55 miles south of St. Louis, in Washington county.

POSTAL EMFLOYES CHARGE INTERFERENCE BY OFFICIALS

A breakdown in postal service has been caused by departmental efficiency experts, inspectors and other top officials interfering with local post office operations, the Allied Postal Employes of St. Louis charged yesterday.

This interference demoralizes employes and disrupts service, the union council said.

The 4800-member group said it supported Representative Frank M. Karsten's proposal for a Congressional investigation of the basis for daily complaints about poor mail delivery.

JUDGE CRITICIZES DOWD DELAY IN 2 YOUTHS' CASES

should be especially mindful of the civil rights of everyone accused of a crime."

Dowd told the Post-Dispatch the grand jury had several witnesses scheduled to be heard on the police pay-off inquiry.

"However, due to Judge McLaughlin's statements concerning the delay in the other cases, the pay-off inquiry will be set aside until all confined cases (cases of persons held in jail) have been heard by the grand jury," he said.

"Prior to my administration, delays up to a year on the presentation of cases to the grand jury were not uncommon. We had presented all cases to the grand jury within 30 days until the pay-off inquiry took so much of the grand jury's time.

"I intend to talk with the grand jurors this week about sitting extra days to help us clean up the confined cases so we can promptly return to the pay-off inquiry. The grand jurors have been very co-operative and I feel sure they will increase their working hours until this situation can be met."

A spokesman for the executive committee of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, an affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the committee expressed "grave concern" over the case. He said:

"Here is a situation in which individuals are held in city jail for more than two months after discharge at a preliminary hearing, without presentation of their cases to the grand jury.

"A grand jury to which presentation of their cases could have been made was in session during the time these individuals were held in city jail, which confinement Judge McLaughlin has found to be illegal.

"It appears that the circuit attorney, when he desired, was able to obtain an indictment by the grand jury against these individuals (Kmetz and Woodard) within 24 hours after questions as to the validity of their confinement were raised."

Shock was expressed, the spokesman said, at "a press report of a statement attributed to the circuit attorney that there were as many as 50 men being similarly held. It is believed that this situation warrants an investigation by the circuit judges as to the possible deprivation of constitutional rights of these persons."

In yesterday's petition for a writ of habeas corpus from the appellant court, Irl B. Baris, attorney for Woodard, contended he was held illegally. "Dowd has deprived Woodward of his constitutional rights," Baris told the Post-Dispatch. "With this action I seek to redress the wrong done the boy."

The petition stated Woodard had been denied due process of law and been denied his constitutional and statutory rights to a speedy trial by jury, to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation against him and to be confronted by witnesses against him.

Kmetz was released from jail last Tuesday on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge McLaughlin who ruled he had been illegally held in jail. After his release the grand jury returned an indictment against him charging robbery. He had been turned over to authorities at Scott Field, and Dowd said he would take action to extradite him.

He and Woodard are accused of taking part in a $12 street holdup.

PILOTING PLANE WITH PERISCOPE HELD POSSIBILITY

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP)—A pilot can fly a plane by looking through a periscope

The experiment which proved it could be done was made at the University of Illinois aviation psychology laboratory. The project was another in the nine-year history of the laboratory which is exploring the human element in aviation.

The periscope experiment points to the future when the canopy bubble of the pilot's cockpit will give way to improved streamlining.

The laboratory, at the university's own airport, is the only facility of its kind in the country, a University of Illinois spokesman says. It works out problems for the Air Force, the Navy and private industry. Some examples include:

The Illinois system of flight training which uses a Link Trainer to give early instruction so pilots can have more time in the air during advanced training.

JOE K. HODGES FOUND DEAD, HOSE LEADS TO CAR EXHAUST

Joe K. Hodges, 31 Brighton way, Clayton, vice president of Scott Services, Inc., a chemical distributing firm, was found dead in his automobile yesterday in the driveway of the home of Mrs. Connie Willi, on Craig road north of Olive Street road. A garden hose had been attached to the exhaust pipe and extended to the front seat.

Police said Mrs. Willi, a widow, told them she had been going with Hodges, a widower, since last January, and that they quarrelled Thursday night over her refusal to marry him. She said she spent Friday night with relatives, and found the body on returning home yesterday. He was 51 years old and she is 47.

Officers said a note found on Hodges said: "Sometimes we all reach the end of the road. I have. I am very sorry it had to end this way."

15 Asphyxiated in Paris Fog.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP)—Fog, which lay heavily over the Paris region early today, caused stoves to draw badly and was partly blamed for 15 persons being asphyxiated after being found unconscious. Police said the stoves gave off fumes which the fog forced back into rooms.

NEWSPRINT MAKERS SCOLDED BY PREMIER

Duplessis Hints at Control of Prices in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5 (AP) — Quebec newsprint manufacturers were told yesterday by Premier Maurice Duplessis that they are "only lessees" of publicly owned forests.

He said that like all lessees, they must use their trust "in a reasonable and just manner."

In his first detailed statement of the Quebec government's policy on the newsprint situation since new price increases were announced, the premier said self-control is the best kind of control newsprint manufacturers can exercise. But he warned that "when abuses replace self-control . . . state control (sometimes) becomes necessary." He also challenged recent statements that there is a newsprint shortage now or imminent.

At his weekly press conference Duplessis said: "It is a detestable thing in itself, this state control—and not a recommendable thing in principle —which nevertheless becomes a necessity under certain circumstances."

The current controversy over newsprint prices, bringing protests from newspaper publishers in Canada and the United States, started two weeks ago when the St. Lawrence corporation announced a $5-ton increase. In quick succession, increases of $3 to $4 were announced by five other companies. Latest was Minnesota and Ontario Paper Co., which boosted the price $3 a ton.

Before the announced increases, newsprint sold for $126 a ton delivered in New York. Basic Canadian price was $122 a ton.

Quebec is Canada's largest producer and exporter of newsprint.

Duplessis made it clear that his government is concerned primarily with the cost of newsprint to Quebec province newspapers.

His statement followed speculation that the provincial government is studying the possibility of slapping controls on newsprint manufacturers. Duplessis gave no indication of how such controls could work. It is thought they would protect only newspapers in Quebec province.

Newsprint Firms Enjoying Era of Prosperity.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)— Newsprint making, an industry marked by severe ups and downs over the years, is enjoying one of the most prosperous eras in its history.

Profits of 10 major North American producers in the first half of the year climbed to $68,123,631, a jump of 17 per cent over the same six months of 1954.

This rise is less than the average for United States and Canadian business in general, due largely to the fact that newsprint demand held at a very high level in the first half of 1954 while most other fields were off.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS FUNERAL OF DALE CARNEGIE

BELTON, Mo., Nov. 5 (INS) —The personality expert who used to shock students by asking them: "How many people would come to your funeral?" —passed his own test yesterday afternoon. There was a large crowd of mourners as Dale Carnegie was buried in the little Belton cemetery beside his parents.

An overnight celebrity in the 1930s because of his book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," the former Missouri farm boy died Tuesday at his home in New York at 67.

Representatives of the Carnegie movement from all parts of the nation attended the simple service in the Belton Methodist Church. The Rev. Arnold Prater, pastor, told Mrs. Carnegie, other relatives and the many friends: "Dale Carnegie recognized early that no man can deal with life successfully without God. His philosophy caught the public's imagination because it had God as a central theme. Dale realized there was something of the image of God in every man and that only with God's help could men reach fulfilment."

Friends noted the author and lecturer bought a mausoleum in 1950—but had it built underground, since there are no others in the cemetery. Bodies of his parents were moved to the mausoleum shortly after it was completed.

Maneuvering for Democratic Nomination Masks Struggle To Shape Party's Platform

Many of Leaders Have No Candidate Yet, but Seek Decisive Voice in Setting Out 1956 Objectives.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

THE almost certainty that President Eisenhower's heart condition will prevent him from seeking or accepting a renomination is causing an undercover fight among Democratic leaders over the 1956 Democratic platform.

Whoever is nominated by the Republicans will have to promise to continue the Eisenhower program. But on what platform will the Democratic presidential candidate run? Will it be on the record and promises of former President Truman? Will it be the proposed legislation and votes of the Democratic majorities in Congress? Will it be primarily the personal platform of the nominee, whether he is Adlai E. Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee or someone who is not yet under serious consideration?

THESE QUESTIONS PARTLY explain some of the unexpected indorsements of "dark horse" candidates such as Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio by Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia; the private conferences that Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson is holding in the seclusion of his ranch in Texas and former President Truman's explanation that when he said repeatedly he was "for Stevenson" that did not mean he was supporting the 1952 defeated candidate for a nomination next year.

These pre-convention maneuvers by the highest party leaders are motivated by their determination to have a decisive influence in selecting the presidential and vice presidential candidates and in the writing of the party platform. As yet, many of these leaders have no candidates of their own for the nomination, but they want at least to have a veto power over candidates and what goes into the platform.

The Republican National Committee, through speeches by National Chairman Leonard W. Hall and other leaders, has clearly indicated that no matter who the Republicans nominate to carry out the Eisenhower program, the attacks on the Democratic candidate will be by way of assaults on the Truman record, just as the Democrats as late as 1952 tried to tie in Candidate Eisenhower with former President Herbert Hoover and the 1929 depression.

Stevenson, although not yet an avowed candidate, is so far ahead of the other aspirants that other national Democratic leaders, particularly those in Congress, fear that he may run away with the show, select his own man for second place and write his own platform. Some are reluctantly willing to accept him as the top nominee, but they want to have something to say about his running mate, the party platform and the kind of campaign he will conduct.

If Stevenson is not successful at the Chicago convention, these men who have rich and varied experience with behind-the-scenes trading among "dark horse" candidates, will be in positions of great power.

TRUMAN, EVIDENTLY ASPIRING to the role of elder politician as well as elder statesman, naturally wants the 1956 nominee and platform to reflect and support the acts and policies of his Administration. He is backed in this by New and Fair Dealers like Senators Paul Douglas of Illinois, Herbert Lehman of New York, Wayne Morse and Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon, Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, James E. Murray of Montana and Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia.

On the other side of the question are Southern conservatives such as Senators Russell of Georgia, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Spessard Holland of Florida and Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas, who want a "middle-of-the-road" candidate and consider for the time being at least, that Stevenson is too far left of center.

Some of these congressional leaders were the ones who blocked Truman's Fair Deal program, notably on civil rights. Others, like Johnson and Russell, want the 1956 nominee and platform to be bound by the legislative records made by the Democrats in the Eighty-third and the current Eighty-fourth Congress. They definitely do not want a nominee and platform repudiating or weakening that record, of which they are proud.

It is no secret that Truman was greatly irritated and at times disgusted with the type of campaign Stevenson conducted in 1952. Exponent of the "give-'em-hell" and "pour it on" school of campaign oratory, Truman believed that Stevenson's polished prose slipped by the ordinary voter without leaving a definite impression. He has never forgiven Stevenson for replacing Democratic National Chairman Frank McKinney of Indiana, whom he has described as "the best chairman the party ever had," by Stephen Mitchell of Illinois, who in turn was succeeded by Paul M. Butler of Indiana, one of McKinney's local rivals.

It will be recalled that Truman, without notifying Stevenson, jumped into the 1952 campaign when he convinced himself that the former Illinois Governor was not getting the Democratic message over to the voters, especially with the important labor bloc that had done so much for him and Roosevelt.

ADLAI STEVENSON — AVERELL HARRIMAN — ESTES KEFAUVER

RICHARD RUSSELL — LYNDON JOHNSON — FRANK LAUSCHE

"Motivated by determination to have a decisive influence in the writing of the party platform."

Stevenson, in return, has wondered whether Truman helped him or hurt him in that campaign. A lot can be said on both sides. There is no question, however, that Truman and his White House associates were important factors in the Eisenhower victory.

AT NEXT YEAR'S CONVENTION the Democrats will be in the position the Republicans were in from 1936 on. They will not have their own man in the White House who can speak with official and party authority to the public and private convention meetings, as Roosevelt did so effectively and Truman not so successfully.

The 1952 Democratic convention was unique because Stevenson was actually drafted after Truman had given ample evidence that Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky was his choice. In his memoirs, "That Reminds Me," the former Veep quotes a letter in which Truman instructed his alternate, Tom Gavin of Kansas City to vote for Barkley and to try to get the Missouri delegation to go along. Stevenson's nomination proved that a convention can be "open" to all comers even when a President in office has his own choice.

Without White House direction next year, the congressional leaders are likely to try to take charge of the Chicago convention. Their intra-party rivals will be the Democratic National Committee organization, of which Butler, a Stevenson protege, is chairman, and the governors and state chairmen.

The present opposition to Stevenson is mostly from Southerners, who unfortunately for themselves have no candidate of their own, since Russell announced that he will not make another try. Also unfortunately for themselves, many of them think less of Harriman and Kefauver as nominees than they do of Stevenson.

Before President Eisenhower's heart attack, many Southerners were content to let Stevenson have another nomination and to accept the legislative record of the congressional Democrats as the party's 1956 platform. The main objective would be not the White House, but larger Democratic majorities in Congress, where the Southerners, through seniority, have great power. This, they believed, would put them in excellent position for 1960, when the Twenty-second Amendment to the Constitution would make the President ineligible for a third term.

UNDER THIS STRATEGY they could outpromise the Republicans and blame the White House, specifically by congressional investigations, for most of the ills that might arise.

These same Democrats boast now that they can beat any candidate the Republicans put up next year if they can get the right nominee and platform. The defeatist attitude has been replaced by confidence. The main objective is the White House, the winning of which would carry Congress along with it.

The newly born urge to win is likely to put a damper on serious attempts for congressional approval of radical or New and Fair Deal proposals. This may not please former President Truman and some leaders of organized labor, but Senate Leader Johnson is convinced that it is in keeping with the present mood of the voters.

The Democratic position on farm price supports, school aid, federal highways, tax reduction, public power, Social Security extension, increase of the minimum wage and other subjects will be taken with the 1956 elections in mind. The Republicans, with President Eisenhower as their spokesman, will have the same thought. The voters will have the opportunity to decide who gets the credit or the blame.

Civil Aviation Flying Into Jet Age With Host of Unsolved Problems

Better Navigational Aids and Improved Airports Imperative to Cope With Higher Speeds to Come.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

CIVIL AVIATION in the United States is hurrying toward the jet age amid signs that hundreds of millions of dollars will have to be spent in the next few years to cope with critical problems of speed and traffic density.

Five years from now, as jet transports come into general use, routine transcontinental flights will be made at speeds near 600 miles an hour, 50 per cent faster than at present. Civil Aeronautics Administration traffic forecasts indicate that domestic airlines will be flying a minimum of 55,000,000 revenue passengers in 1960 and 70,000,000 in 1965 as contrasted with fewer than 33,000,000 in 1954.

Improvements in many airports and better navigational aids and traffic control systems will be imperative. Advent of the jets will pose whole new categories of problems, none of which appears insoluble, though all the answers are not in sight at the moment. Among these are simple problems of runway length and complex problems connected with reducing the terrific noise and vibration that have plagued persons dwelling near military jet air bases.

AT THE REQUEST of Congress, the CAA has prepared an accelerated five-year program for airways development and operation estimated to cost $500,000,000 in the period beginning next July 1. This plan is said to be on the desk of Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, who is considering its budgetary implications.

These CAA proposals do not involve airport construction. A congressional program authorizes Government expenditures of $63,000,000 annually for four years, beginning with the present fiscal year (1956) for aid in airport construction projects. Normal practice is for the Government to put up half the cost of improvements.

The CAA has announced, incidentally, that it will not subsidize the lengthening of runways to accommodate jet planes, on the theory that the new planes should be designed to fit present airports. There is a substantial amount of opinion that holds runways will have to be stretched out on airports not now handling international traffic, but there appears to be no universal agreement on exactly what may be necessary.

This is not overly worrying airlines executives, however. They take the position the public wants jet transportation and that problems connected with it will be ironed out in time. They are backing their faith with a great deal of money, as is shown by the sums they are ready to invest in the new planes. Here is the list thus far:

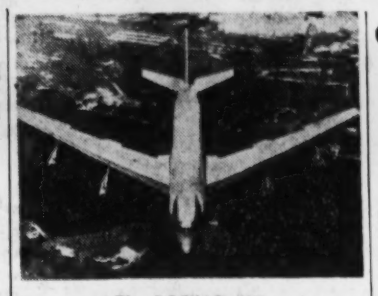
PAN AMERICAN WORLD Airways has ordered 45 jet transports costing $269,000,000. Twenty were ordered from the Boeing Airplane Co. of Seattle and 25 from the Douglas Aircraft Co. of Santa Monica. As utilized by Pan American, the Boeing, designated the 707, will carry 104 passengers in standard configuration and 125 tourist; the 707s are to be delivered between December 1958 and November 1959.

The Douglas DC8 planes will be delivered from December 1959 to January 1961. They will carry either 108 or 131 passengers. Both aircraft will be designed, according to the contract terms, to cruise at 575 miles an hour at 30,000 feet altitude. Pratt and Whitney engines will be used. The planes will be placed in international service.



The BOEING 707

Pan American has not yet announced how it expects to finance the purchases, but there has been speculation that one or more insurance companies may supply the funds. Eastern Air Lines recently negotiated a $90,000,000 development loan from the Equitable Life Assurance society to finance new jet and other equipment.

Eastern has budgeted $125,000,000 for 20 jet transports to be delivered not earlier than the winter of 1959-1960, but has not placed an order. It has, however, ordered 40 Lockheed Electra turbo-prop planes valued, with spare engines and parts, at $100,000,000, with deliveries set for the year beginning in August, 1958. Eastern has an option on 30 more Electras and has bought 50 of the latest and largest piston-type planes, Douglases and Constellations.

(The jet, or turbo-jet, airplane, is driven by a turbine-like engine that forces a stream of hot gases rearward through a pipe. The craft moves forward by reaction to the thrust of the gases. It has no propeller. Turbo-prop planes are driven by a conventional propeller attached to a jet turbine and are a sort of cross between a pure jet and the present conventional piston engine plane. Turbo-jets are particularly suited to long flights and turbo-props to flights of intermediate length.)

United Air Lines has announced it will spend $175,000,000 on 30 DC-8s, with deliveries starting in May, 1959. These will be designed for Transcontinental and Hawaiian service.

AMERICAN AIRLINES has announced it will spend $120,000,000 on 20 turbo-jets to be delivered beginning in the summer of 1959. Orders have not been placed. American has bought 35 Lockheed turbo-props for $65,000,000; the first of these are to go into operation in 1958. The Lockheed is the first turbo-prop passenger transport to be built in the United States; it has a cruising speed in excess of 400 miles an hour.

Capital Airlines already is operating the first turbo-props to be used in this country. These are British Viscounts, 44-passenger 325-mile-an-hour aircraft, three of which are on scheduled flights between Washington and Chicago, Norfolk and Pittsburgh. A total of 60 Viscounts costing $67,500,000 is on order, with deliveries scheduled at from two to three a month until mid-1957.

Braniff Airways is negotiating the purchase of up to 10 turbo-prop planes and up to six jet-propelled planes to be delivered in 1959 and 1960 as part of a $67,000,000 expenditure for new equipment. National Airlines has bought six DC-8 jets to be delivered in 1959 and 1960.

Delivery dates on all the jet planes are less firm than the airlines might wish. Nearly everyone expects some delays.

Schedules of the jet transports, which, in addition to speed have the advantages of being almost noiseless and vibrationless as far as passengers are concerned, and of traveling in calm air at altitudes of seven or eight miles, show great time savings on long trips. United expects to make the Chicago-New York flight in an hour and a half, an hour less than the present best time, and the Los Angeles to New York run in four hours and a half, as against seven hours and 40 minutes as at present. Pan American will fly from Chicago to London in six hours and 45 minutes.

The question of whether the new jets can land and take off at the average metropolitan airport still has no conclusive answer. It seems certain the runways at such airports as Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Miami and New York are adequate for the jets since they are classed as international express airports. For this classification runways must be a basic minimum of 8400 feet in length.

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD is classified intercontinental and must have a basic minimum of 7000 feet. Some experts think the jets will need runways of 7500 to 8200 feet; others say they will need 9000 to 10,000; others say less than 7500. A balanced view is that the airlines would not be venturing so much money in the field of jets if any of their executives thought the new ships would have difficulty landing wherever desirable or that airport authorities would not enlarge runways if necessary to obtain jet service.

The prescribed length of runway is subject to variation for temperature, elevation above sea level and gradient. There are regulations as to pavement loading limits, but these can be obviated in heavier aircraft by using more wheels in the landing gear. Jets are particularly sensitive to temperature variations. The temperature at take-off must be figured into the calculation of runway length needed. Also involved in this calculation are the weight of fuel, passengers and freight and the basic airframe design. There are no particular problems connected with landing a jet so far as runways are concerned.

The problem of jet noise in the vicinity of airports is one that is likely to cause trouble. The experience with the Viscounts has been that persons living near airports rushed from their homes to find out the source of the characteristic whine, but that when they came to recognize it they paid no more attention than to the roar of the piston plane. A somewhat similar experience with the Viscount has been reported from England.

The actual sound level of the turbo-prop is reported as less than that of piston-engined planes. The noise of the jet is another matter. Pan American has said its new Boeings will have silencers and "will make little more noise on the ground than present piston-engined planes." Noise after the plane takes the air will be less objectionable, because of the plane's speed and altitude, than the sound of conventional transports, it is said.

Boeing has built a $16,000,000 smaller and lighter prototype of the 707 and the director of the company's flight test section, Alvin M. Johnston, said this week that by 1958 the problem of noise near airports will be reduced greatly. A spokesman for the Air Force, which has had serious public relations problems in connection with jet operations, said a device which would work for one engine might not work for another. A CAA official said as far as he knew no practical noise eliminator or efficient reducer had been developed, but he expected that something "undoubtedly" would be invented in time.

THE NOISE OF A FOUR-ENGINE jet warming up near a residential neighborhood is described as just about "unbearable."

An Air Force officer commented:

"The Air Force and the airplane industry have spent millions of dollars on aircraft noise and vibration control problems and we are working on them right now. So far, there is no standard device in sight that will silence the jets without a sacrifice of power. The situation will be worse before it gets better, and about the only thing you can say is that these are the sounds of progress. After all, they used to throw rocks at the Model T."

Noise is by no means an academic problem. Citizens of Madison, Wis., became so incensed at the roars from an Air Force jet base that they started a movement to get rid of it. The Air Force was compelled to set up an expensive public relations program to explain the base was located at Madison for the protection of the citizens.

The Air Force was successful at Madison, but its argument would not hold for a civilian airport. If an airport is municipally-owned political pressure to restrict jet operation might be a possibility.

Perhaps the most serious problem posed by the growing amount of air travel and the coming of the jets is that of traffic control. The aircraft industry advocates complete traffic control of every flight and regards the present partial-control system of the CAA as obsolete. The CAA

Geneva Taxing Dulles's Ability and Industry

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA, Nov. 5.

SPEAKING to the American Legion in Miami shortly before he left for this second round of the Geneva negotiations, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that never has national policy faced so difficult and delicate a task. The balancing act between the tough policy of the cold war and the soft-spoken policy of a peace that is maybe yes and maybe no is taxing Dulles's very considerable energies and abilities as has nothing in his long career.

He has always worked extraordinarily hard with an absorption that has seemed to shut out the considerations of most ordinary mortals, but today he is working with an intensity that even those closest to him through the years say they have never seen before.

The other day he went with friends to a restaurant on the edge of the lake for lunch and presumably a bit of relaxation with the water gleaming a brilliant blue and the poplars on the shore all golden in the autumn sun. But Dulles had brought with him the draft of the speech he was to make at the conference that afternoon and between bites he worked over it, scarcely glancing at the view. He explained that there would just be time to get it retyped before the session began.

A mere catalogue of his activities since he came to Europe gives some idea of the pace. Going first to Rome, he conferred in 24 hours with top officials of the Italian Government.

IN PARIS, HE ATTENDED the last of the meetings preparatory to Geneva with the other two western foreign ministers—Harold Macmillan of Britain and Antoine Pinay of France—and participated in a North Atlantic Treaty Organization council session in which it was necessary to quell something like a revolt among the smaller powers against the assumption that the Big Three could determine their future in a European security pact.

Moving on to Geneva, he assumed the leadership in speaking for the West and in finishing the complex and legalistic draft of the Western proposal for a security pact to contain a reunified Germany.

On the one day the conference was in recess, he flew to Madrid to talk with Generalissimo Francisco Franco about the difficulties between France and Spain on the Moroccan issue, about United Nations membership and other problems.

This weekend, he is in Vienna for the gala opening of the State Opera and interspersed with the festivities there will be talks with Austrian officials. Tomorrow, he flies to Yugoslavia for luncheon with Marshal Tito on the island of Brioni off the Yugoslav coast.

All this in two weeks and the catalogue does not, of course, take into account the hours and hours spent in preparation for the conference table and in the interminable exchanges around that table.

Dulles is haunted by the thought—it is brought up at almost every conference he holds with European statesmen—that the spirit of Geneva has meant greater advantages for the Communist bloc than it has for the West. He can see the disintegration that has set in, the nationalist rivalries pitting one Western power against another, the growing neutralism, the bitter inheritance of colonialism in North Africa and the Middle East.

HIS ANSWER WHEN the question comes up is that naturally the removal of fear brings a certain disintegration which is perfectly visible in the West. But he adds that the same process is taking place in the Communist half of the world, with the satellites growing more restive and peoples demanding some of the good things of life in a peacetime atmosphere. The difference is that the disintegration in the Communist bloc is screened by the Iron Curtain. While this may be true, no one can prove it and the Communist gains, real and potential, are fairly conspicuous. That may help to explain why Dulles feels driven to move faster and ever faster on what must often seem a treadmill that carries him nowhere.

The American Secretary of State carries a burden that in the era of American leadership is second only to that of the President. He has long suffered—certainly since the beginning of mass communication and mass opinion—from having to work in a goldfish bowl with millions of onlookers who are sure they know more about his job than he does.

"Dean Acheson, Dulles's predecessor, became the most controversial figure in the Truman Administration next to the President himself. Dulles has not felt the sting of attack to anything like the degree that Acheson did for two obvious reasons. The first is the overwhelmingly favorable press of the Eisenhower Administration in general and Dulles in particular. He has been the subject of articles so adulatory that they must surely have embarrassed him.

The second reason is that he has tried conscientiously to make himself accessible to working newspaper men both at public press conferences and in background briefings. He has tried to answer questions put to him and explain American foreign policy to the public. This simple formula has a lot to do with a good press out of Washington although few officials in the present Administration seem to have learned the lesson.

But if Dulles has had in many instances an adulatory press he has also got a lot of criticism. Many people—and this rarely finds articulation—resent his constant invocation of moral principles. He is charged with substituting words such as "massive retaliation" for deeds and in fact speaking the loudest at the very time that American military strength was being drastically cut back. This charge is being made by the Democrats and it will be heard in greater volume as next year's campaign approaches.

IT IS DOUBTFUL, however that the Secretary will become a controversial political figure. With the climax of the tough policy last year, he is believed to have come down on the side of the faction

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory wealth or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'Honor Above All'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Princess Margaret's decision to put duty to church and state above personal happiness deserves the highest praise. This gay and lovely, young girl is an inspiring example to our youth, too often irresponsible, self-seeking and lacking in moral strength.

Her noble action reminds a cynical, modern world that "honor above all" is not an old-fashioned phrase that went out of date with the horse and buggy. Perhaps some may be brought to realize that "in every sphere of life the post of honor is the post of duty."

The Archbishop of Canterbury acted in a most courageous manner in upholding the principles of his church on the indissolubility of marriage, regardless of personal sympathy or the possibility of public disapproval.

MRS. EDWARD WAGNER.

'Winning Ticket'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Here, in my opinion, is a winning ticket for the Republican party: Ike Eisenhower for re-election as President, an Eisenhower brother as assistant President, and Nixon or Warren as Vice President.

BYRON MOSER.

As to the Eisenhower Papers

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Kansas is going to build a library at Abilene to house the Eisenhower papers. If they are to include only the actual original acts that Eisenhower really created in his term, a couple of cigar boxes would do.

What would be of real interest to the people as a whole would be to include the big talk put out by Ike and Nixon when they were campaigning in 1952. This way you could compare their talk with their actions.

Piper, Kan. J. W. MORGAN.

Farce of an Election?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

On Oct. 25, a school board election was held in the Normandy School District.

To vote in this election a voter just reported to any public school in the district, wrote a name and address on a slip of paper and then cast his ballot.

No registration was required and consequently no check was made to see if the voter lived in the Normandy School District. It was possible for a voter to cast a ballot at all of the polling places, using any name and address.

After an election last spring greatly increasing the school tax rate in Normandy, and after the passing of the cigarette tax earlier this month, I find it difficult to believe that only 600 voters cast ballots against an additional 20 cents increase in the school tax rate.

Are the opponents of the tax as well as the proponents represented among the election judges and clerks, or is the election just a farce?

A. KNETTER.

It Was Justice Holmes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your recent editorial on why Sgt. Provoo was freed after having waited in custody five and a half years on charges of treasonable acts while a Japanese prisoner in World War II, you quoted the late Justice Brandeis as saying that the United States Government should not play an ignoble part. These words were from the late Justice Holmes's dissent in the wiretapping case of Olmstead vs. U.S.

Poor Place for a Joke

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In a recent news item from Denver appeared the following:

"Benson (Secretary of Agriculture) has been trying to get rid of pork surpluses. He noted at a press conference that Mr. Eisenhower has been eating quite a bit of beef bacon and beef sausage which the doctors say do not have so great a fat content as the pork products. Benson said he urged the President to work in some of the pork items, doctors permitting, and that Mr. Eisenhower replied that he would be 'very happy' to do so."

If this conversation occurred, and we have no reason to doubt it if the intention was for the ailing President to do his share towards reducing the pork surplus, it was silly and ridiculous.

If the purpose was propaganda that some people might think it was wonderful that an ailing President would set such a fine example, it still remains ridiculous and silly.

And if it was expressed as a joke, as appears to be the case, the plight the unfortunate farmer is in at this time is certainly nothing to joke about by anybody, and least of all by the Secretary of Agriculture to or with the President.

Festus. ALBERT S. ENNIS.

$25 Is Too Much, Also

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

With reference to your editorial "If Surgery Costs Too Much," I think "Legal Robbery" would be a fitting heading. I too agree that $150 is too much for an appendectomy; also, the anesthetist fees are out of this world.

I just paid $25 for the administration only of the anesthetic for a comparable operation on one of my boys. ASPHYXIATED.

The Need for Ideas

The years since 1952 in American foreign policy are not notable for the quality of the ideas generated. Policy has coasted on the momentum of past initiative.... It is one thing to speak of having "seized the initiative" and quite another to know what to do with it. The stream of ideas, of imaginative thinking, had dried up. The power of energetic action seemed to have been lost.

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson writes these words in the current Harper's, and it is obvious at a glance that they are ex parte words from an interested source. Having a vested interest in the foreign policy ideas which he carried out in the Truman Administration, Mr. Acheson quite naturally regards them highly, and understandably might regard those of his successor as somewhat inferior.

Without attempting to decide whether Mr. Acheson is right in contending that Democrats provide a better source of foreign policy ideas than Republicans, thoughtful Americans should nevertheless ask themselves seriously whether our country is in fact adequately meeting the challenge of today's world situation. This is not a matter of which party is in power, so much as it is a matter of adapting both strategy and tactics in foreign policy to the new elements in that world situation.

The principal new element is, as James Reston pointed out in The New York Times, the movement of the cold war "from the arena of power into the arena of ideas." As atomic stalemate and a slow relaxation of tensions make increasingly unlikely the resort to war as a means of settling disputes, Washington policy-makers are becoming more acutely aware, says Mr. Reston, "of the need to redefine the policies and ideals which motivate the United States in this new phase of the world conflict."

To wage a war of ideas with weapons designed for a contest of armed power would be as futile as to seek military superiority with non-military resources. And if the years ahead are to witness a peaceful contest between East and West, rather than the test of sheer power which once seemed in prospect, we face a need to retool our thinking and our foreign policy to cope with this new situation.

Certainly the weeks since the summit conference have demonstrated that the Soviet Union, behind the "big smile," intends to go right on competing hard for the extension of its influence and the strengthening of its national position. The "spirit of Geneva" does not mean, for the Russians, that the ideological and power struggle has ended. But it could mean that they have decided to use primarily non-military methods of advancing their ends. If so, we need to make sure that we are adequately prepared to engage in the contest in this new form.

Secretary Dulles has continued and indeed elaborated Secretary Acheson's policy of seeking to contain Communism by a chain of military defense alliances. But the Southeast Asia pact is not preventing the increase of Communist influence in Southeast Asia, and the Middle East pact has not prevented a dangerous intrusion of Soviet influence into the Arab world. Defensive postures are not enough. Military alliances are not enough.

And the need is not for propaganda techniques so much as it is for ideas. For example, how can we prove that our anti-colonial tradition is alive today, and that the Soviets are not the sole champions of self-government which they spuriously claim to be? How can we demonstrate our devotion to the liberties we traditionally stand for, but sometimes forget? How can we show our awareness of the economic unity of the world, and our readiness to co-operate in a fair distribution of economic welfare?

It is not as Democrats or Republicans, but as Americans, that we need to seek the answers to these questions. For unless the right answers are found, we may see the Communists gain by peaceful contest what they were unable to gain by force.

To Mark a Birthday

The eightieth birthday of Eugene Meyer of Washington has been recorded in a way that must please him as much as his friends who made the arrangements. These friends, together with members of his family, have set up a fund of $300,000 to endow a chair of medicine at George Washington University, in the national capital.

A former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, first chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and originator of the farm loan system, Mr. Meyer might have been honored in the field of finance. As he has presided over The Washington Post since 1933 and thus has taken the lead in making it one of the most outstanding newspapers in the country, he might have been honored in journalism. Yet he and his wife, Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, are such warm human beings that the endowment of a professional post in medicine to relieve human suffering has an appropriateness all its own.

Warm greetings from the Mississippi Valley to them both on this happy occasion!

Delegation Has Its Limits

New ways of relieving President Eisenhower of presidential duties are being studied under the direction of Attorney General Brownell, according to Washington reports.

It appears to be no secret that Mr. Brownell and other Administration leaders have two purposes in thus trying to reduce the President's work load. On the one hand they want to make things as easy as possible for him when he gets back to his desk in Washington, and on the other, they would like to demonstrate that the routine of the job can be cut down sufficiently so that he might consider running for a second term.

Most Americans will sympathize with the general objective of whittling down the mechanical duties of the presidency. Presidents are not really elected to sign papers, but to make decisions. If the paper signing can be curtailed to allow more time for decision making, well and good.

But the real obstacle to any wholesale delegation of substantive powers is that a conscientious President cannot co-operate in such a surrender of his responsibilities. For example, one power which Mr. Brownell is said to consider delegating is the presidential review of court-martials involving the death penalty or the future of high officers.

To deny presidential review is to impair the rights of persons under trial by court martial. We doubt very much that President Eisenhower or any other President with a lively conscience would wish to take such a step just to suit his own convenience.

The presidency is a unique institution, vested by law and by force of circumstances in one man. Though some duties may be delegated, basic responsibilities cannot be. And in areas where an executive bears the basic responsibility he must inevitably retain the power to act. We would be surprised if the Administration leaders were able to find very many instances in which truly substantive powers of the presidency can be turned over to somebody else.

In the City of Brotherly Love

Next Wednesday the country will be reading the mayoral election returns from Philadelphia, Indianapolis and several other important cities to see what 1956 signs may be read from the results. These local races are the counterparts this year of the New Jersey governorship and Wisconsin and New Jersey congressional races in 1953 that proved to be harbingers of the party overturn in Congress last year.

The race for Mayor in Philadelphia invites particular attention. Four years ago the voters threw out the Republican machine that had run the City of Brotherly Love for more than a half century. They elected Democratic reform candidate Joseph S. Clark. They also gave him a new charter with which to operate. The changes in Philadelphia under Mayor Clark have been so remarkable that the Republican voters this last spring nominated a reform candidate of their own, 34-year-old W. Thacher Longstreth, Princeton-educated advertising man.

Almost everyone in Philadelphia thinks that Mayor Clark would be re-elected easily if he were running again. But he is not. He has stepped aside in favor of the Democratic District Attorney, Richardson Dilworth, Yale graduate. Actually it was Mr. Dilworth, a World War II marine, who started the Philadelphia cleanup. He obtained the Democratic nomination for Mayor in 1947 because the tired Democratic top command figured he would lose anyway. He did lose, but he made a lot of friends and laid the basis for the runaway victories that he won for District Attorney and Joseph S. Clark, a Harvard Phi Beta Kappa and World War II Air Force officer, won for Mayor in 1951.

One of the Dilworth disclosures led a corrupt city official to name six men with whom he had divided $200,000 of misappropriated tax money. A civic group confirmed other Dilworth charges with the result that there have been indictments, convictions and imprisonments.

Republican nominee Longstreth is anything but the darling of the old-line G.O.P. leaders since they did their best to beat him in the primary. He has strongly supported the charter that Messrs. Dilworth and Clark brought about and he has defended most of the reforms they have achieved.

Such is the race between two young men in politics whose outcome will be news this week. It would be mighty interesting on its own even if there were no presidential election coming up.

Indian Summer Opportunity

Leaf-chasing winds, cold rain, frost, and then the mellow sun again—that is how Indian summer came again in its ever-stimulating pattern. This is the annual denial that fall is "the melancholy season"—at least not until it begins to sacrifice its character to winter.

This is the time for that last fishing trip of the year, except for that not numerous breed which sits happily in the middle of a lake while ice forms on boat and gear. On Missouri streams, the season is already closed. But the fly rod can be set aside, and the old casting rod or the new spinning reel brought into play to capture a string of striped bass from one of the Ozark lakes or those of adjacent Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee. The morning's chill is not yet too sharp to be warded off by a few sweaters, and the air still warms up as the day matures.

This is a relatively lazy kind of fishing, even luxurious. With a good guide baiting the hook and taking off the fish, there is little of the aesthetic austerity of the individualistic quest for trout. There is, instead, opportunity for talk, for being intrigued by the wedges of migrating birds, for observing the rusting of the leaves on the trees, and for letting heavy thoughts rust out of the mind.

Now, too, the evening's woodfire is more than a smoky adjunct to the frying pan. From its flames comes the gold called for by the purple of the dusk. The flames add savor to apples and ruminations. Their friendliness may even tempt a man to believe that it is not such a bad world after all.

Honor to Five Legislators

Every two years, following the regular session of the Illinois Legislature, an organization called the Independent Voters of Illinois conducts an inquiry to determine the "best" legislators in the session. The standards of judgment include each legislator's voting record, floor activity, committee work and general legislative competence. On the basis of the 1955 session, the I.V.I. has named five members as follows:

Senators

Elbert Smith, Decatur, Republican.
Marshall Korshak, Chicago, Democrat.

Representatives

Richard Stengel, Rock Island, Democrat.
William Robinson, Chicago, Republican.
Paul Simon, Troy, Democrat.

Residents of Madison and Bond counties will recognize the last name as that of their young Representative who upset the Democratic bosses at Edwardsville in the 1954 primary and then went on to win a handsome personal victory in November.

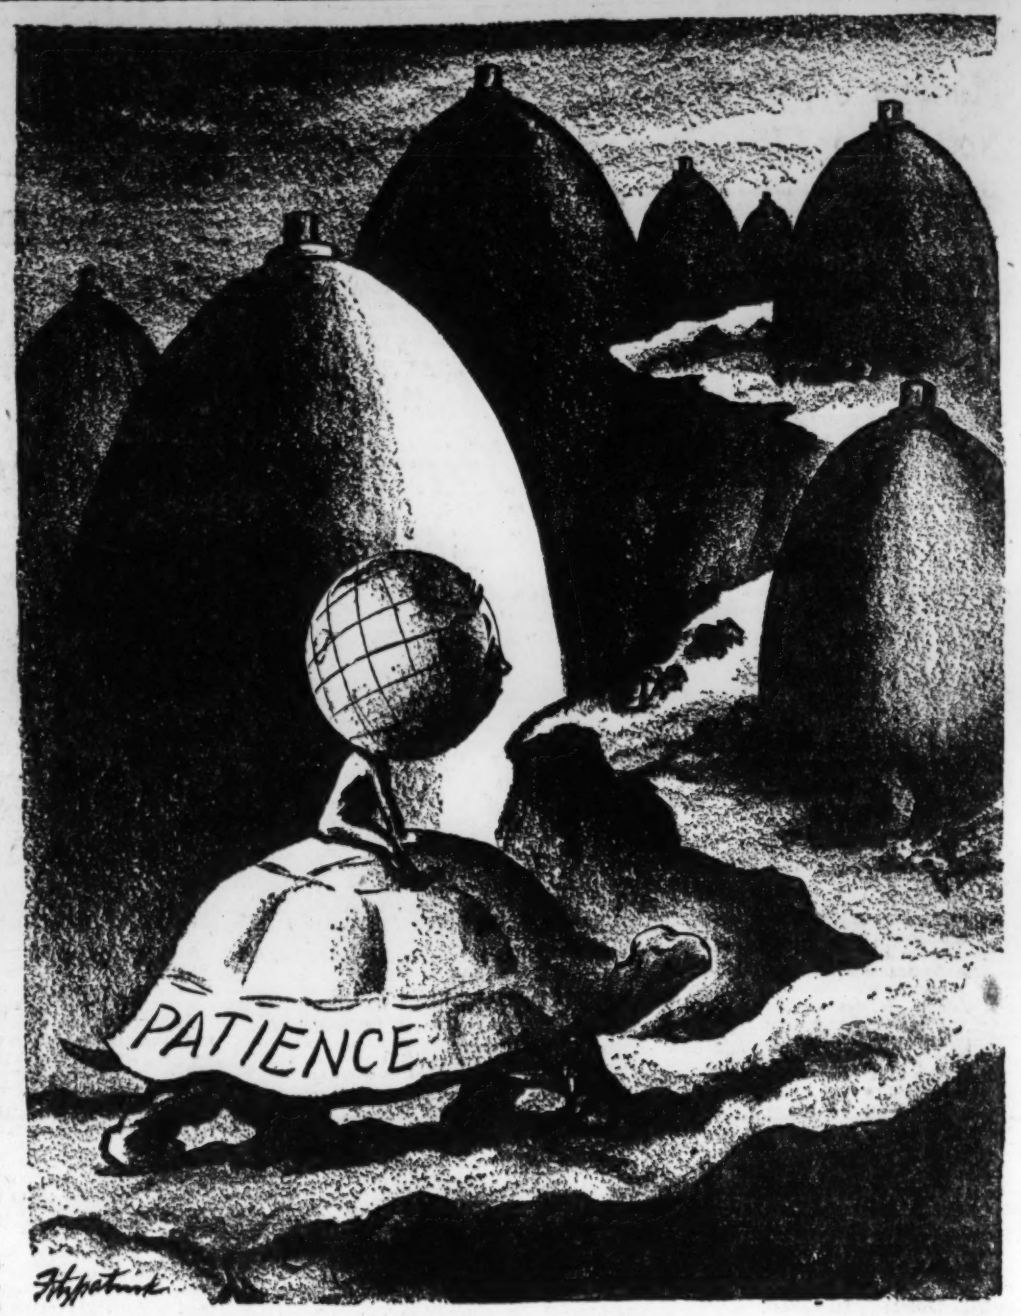
Maurice Utrillo, Popular Painter

It has been said more than once—and with more than a touch of a sneer—that paintings by Maurice Utrillo—who died Saturday—are mere "postcards." If so, what postcards! His portrayal of recognizable streets and buildings probably has contributed to a popularity which may be exceeded only by that of Van Gogh.

Popularity, of course, is not the only measuring rod to be held against a reputation. If it were, Director Charles Nagel of the City Art Museum probably would be under obligation to put all its treasures on the market to acquire that classic of popularity—the hill-ranging, winter wolf gazing down on a snow-bound town.

But neither is popularity to be ignored. It indicates at least that the painter has achieved a certain rapport with those who look at his pictures. "Communication" is the word used for it these days. And more can be said for communication than for mystification. The test lies in the means used to achieve it.

If the response is obtained by cheapness, by lowering of artistic standards, by devotion to the banal rather than to the original, there is no art. But if it is achieved with high integrity and with admirable skill, then the work is in the tradition of the great masters. Utrillo is not quite of their company, but it is fair prophecy to say that he will outlast others not without a current success in the galleries.



ROUGH ROAD TO PEACE

Let Us Go to Hastings

William T. Polk in "Southern Accent"

William T. Polk is well-known on this page. His delightful editorials from the Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News have frequently been reprinted here. A one-time room-mate of Thomas Wolfe at Harvard, he lived in a century-old house without central heating because O. Henry had once played in the tree in the front yard. One of the small sheaf of brilliantly humorous short stories from Mr. Polk's pen is included in North Carolina in the Short Story (University of North Carolina Press). His book, Southern Accent, was published in 1953 by William Morrow & Co. Formerly a lawyer, Mr. Polk had been associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News from 1942 until his death recently in Washington, where he had attended a meeting of the National Conference of Editorial Writers.

Let us look at the Old South the only way we can look at it, by visiting one of the small towns where it still lives. Let us go to Hastings. It will take some time and trouble, because Hastings is on no railroad or main traveled highway or airline. Let us drop in on the center of town, the courthouse square with its English elms and buttercups.

William T. Polk

From the courthouse portico, between the two middle columns, George Washington addressed the citizens of Hastings on his Southern tour in the late 1700s and made entry in his private journal which indicated that he was "sorry to see that Hastings is not keeping up with the march of progress." Old Miss Anabel Carewe, descendant of Col. Richard Carewe who introduced the distinguished visitor on that occasion, has a letter from Gen. Washington in the rosewood desk in the parlor of her home a couple of blocks from the square, but refuses to keep it in a safe because it is "only a bread-and-butter letter."

Time in Hastings is not a swiftly moving point but a panorama full of color and drama stretching back a long way. Time is something which the people trust and savor as it comes to them.

In Fairview cemetery just west of town is a monument to Gen. Thomas Jefferson Grayson (the one who went out to Texas, planting legislatures and elms on his way). When a life of Gen. Sam Houston was published some years ago, the people of Hastings, knowing that Houston and Grayson had fought together for Texan independence, read it avidly in expectation that Gen. Houston would have something nice to say about Gen. Grayson, but they were shocked to find that all Gen. Houston said was, "Gen. Grayson has all the qualities of a dog except that of faithfulness."

When the big North-South railroad came through this section of the state back in the old days, the people of Hastings wouldn't let it come through their town, which happened to be on the direct line, so the railroad made a detour around it, missing it by three miles. But when the people saw that the towns on the line were prospering they decided to build a railroad of their own to connect with the main line. Its first conductor, Capt. C. T. Longstreet, was an imposing figure of a man as he stood on the back platform of his train composing poetry while the wind blew his long white beard over his shoulder, disclosing the brass buttons on his blue vest.

He composed poetry only every other year. These were the odd (not even) years when his train backed into Hastings and he could get the full effect of the view and the breeze. If this is not quite clear, it should be understood that the Hastings train could not turn around on its own track. One year it went forward to the main line and "backed back" (as the folks said) into Hastings. The next year it reversed the process, after visiting the roundhouse on the main line, but Capt. Longstreet could find no inspiration while backing into the main line. He could woo the muse only while backing into Hastings.

It has always been a very informal railroad, since it was owned not by a soulless corporation but the townspeople themselves. It would stop at any place to pick up a passenger, provided Capt. Longstreet recognized him and was not mad with him at the time.

Miss Laura Hastings once wrote "A History of Hastings" in which she referred to certain of the inhabitants as "good, substantial citizens." That phrase took away their individuality. It put them outside the class of old Judge Alfred Crabtree who hated so many people that he couldn't keep them straight and so he used to sit on his porch and ask his wife, "What am I mad at that damned scoundrel for, Marina?" as his foes passed by, or Charlie Taliaferro who was so conceited that it got to be a common saying that "God Almighty's overcoat wouldn't make Charlie a vest."

In autumn cotton whitewashes the fields and pine cones roost like little turkeys. When snows come they are like guests so unsure of their welcome that they prepare to leave as soon as they arrive. But roofs are uniformly white, and chimney smoke spreads out indolently between heaven and earth like a gray thought in a gray shade.

People Who Live Near Highways

From the Bulletin of the Public Administration Clearing House

Most people who live near a heavily traveled highway think of it as a convenience instead of a nuisance.

This, says the American Society of Planning Officials, is what the Westchester County (N.Y.) Planning Department found when it went out and asked citizens how they felt about having a major highway close to their homes. The department questioned residents of four neighborhoods that border on roads used by many cars and trucks. For comparison purposes, people who live away from the roads were also interviewed. Following are some of the conclusions the department reached after studying the answers given:

1. Sixty-five per cent of those whose homes were near a highway answered that they thought of it as a convenience.

2. Nearness of a major road to a man's home will not spoil and may not even affect his attitude toward his neighborhood. Of the four areas near the highways, the one that drew the most approval from its residents was also the one where the residents objected the most to the road. Other attractions—such as social status—apparently played a greater role than the road in whether or not residents were satisfied with their neighborhood.

3. The farther away from the road a house was located, the greater was the approval of the road, although even the near residents were mostly in favor of it. All the study areas followed the pattern found in one where 68 per cent of the residents living within 100 feet of the road favored it and 23 per cent did not. But of those living 300 to 400 feet away, 83 per cent had favorable reactions, while only 8 per cent were against the road.

4. Concern for the safety of their children was a major reason that families with children gave for opposing the nearness of the road.

5. Property values were on the increase in all the areas studied, whether near or removed from the road. But the increase was found to be greater in the areas right next to a parkway type of road than in other areas. Values of property adjacent to the usual type of highways were, however, found to show no greater rise than in the areas removed from major arteries.

Brook and Faucet

From The Christian Science Monitor.

I drank the running faucetwater from my hand,
Springwater style, light sparkling on the flow;
And suddenly
Freed of walls and roof, the water ran Sunsparkled, grew leaf-edged, tasted cold as snow,
Carried me

To hill land, wide meadowed, long of field,
Where the deer and dappled fawns bounded downhill
And warily
Into ravine, where wandering brook, with rock yield,
Juniper-edged, sunglinted, gave them their fill.
While quietly

I trod meadow, pasture, woodland—looked for beauty,
Found it, found two acres unpeopled, rabbit-crossed;
And turned Everywhere to see the lovely shape of bush and tree,
But wanted more, something yearned
for, not quite lost,
Undiscerned.

Hand to mouth, crystal water tastes of sun;
Good faucet, piped cadence, bringing me
Memory and meaning,
Who, from crowded present days, people-thronged, come Water-wise, on faucet and on brook, to see
Light gleaming.

Song of the Filler

From The Chicago Daily Tribune.

I sing the ubiquitous filler,
The padder of leftover room;
To the timid newsreader, the spiller,
Of sweetness and light in the gloom:
"The palanquin, a boxlike conveyance, is popular in the province of Khartoum."

When columns are lush with elections,
With crime waves, and Communist greed,
Or statesmen with shady connections,
It heartens me greatly to read:
"Of 140 species of orchids native to the Appalachians, nearly all can be raised from seed."
So I still rate the filler a blessing
(Though it may not step up my I Q)
For it's seldom, if ever, depressing,
And it won't leave me quaking and blue:
"According to Sumerian legend, the goddess of deep waters was regarded as the daughter of Zu."

I view the H-bomb as appalling,
And loathe segregation debates;
Nor do I consider enthralling
The films' incompatible mates.
So I'm glad that: "About 8,395,053 bits of filler are used yearly by newspapers in the United States."

GEN. PHILLIPS

Montgomery Urges One Service, Not Three; Cites Overlapping, High Cost of Present Setup

British Field Marshal Also Points to Scientific Advances—His Radical Thinking Likely to Stir Wrath of Career Men in All Branches.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

FIELD MARSHAL Bernard Montgomery is in the United States again, loaded as he was on his last visit a year ago with more high explosive than his army had when it captured El Alamein.

The field marshal's explosives today are in the form of ideas. His address last year was entitled: "A Look Through the Window at World War III." In it he attempted to visualize the nature of a nuclear war in the near future and what it would require in air forces, armies and navies.

This year Montgomery will speak about the organization of the armed forces for modern war. His principal public address, to be made in Philadelphia, Nov. 14, will follow the main lines of an address he gave before the Royal United Service Institution in London Oct. 12. In addition, Montgomery will address the National War College, the Air War College and other military groups.

A Radical Thinker.

Montgomery's thinking is not only advanced, it is radical. It makes the conservative services in the United States almost froth at the mouth. He could, for example, foresee the day when control of the seas would be exercised from the air, an idea that is scorned by the Navy. He called for a bigger Air Force and smaller, more mobile armies and smaller navies.

The reaction and emotions in the Army and Navy in the United States to this sort of thing can well be imagined. Who is he to tell us what we need, they ask.

The answer is twofold. Firstly, Montgomery, from his position in SHAPE as deputy in turn to Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Matthew Ridgway and Alfred M. Gruenther, and his long military experience, is one of the world's most distinguished statesmen on military affairs. In addition to his great career as a practicing soldier, he has gained equal stature as a military thinker.

Secondly, although his ideas are put forth as his own, they have been hammered out in long discussions with Gen. Gruenther, Gen. Courtland Schuyler, his chief of staff, and Gen. Lauris Norstad, Gruenther's deputy in command of North Atlantic Treaty Organization air forces.

Visits Eisenhower.

Montgomery visited President Eisenhower this weekend in Denver and unquestionably the two old comrades in command talked over Montgomery's present ideas. The tendency in the Pentagon, outside the Air Force, at its most charitable, is to say that Montgomery may be like the late Gen. Billy Mitchell who was right about things 20 years ahead of time. The President, however, is likely to agree closely with him.

Montgomery's address this year will be entitled: "Organization for War in Modern Times." The main explosive charge this year is his recommendation for a single all-encompassing service, instead of three (or four in the United States if the Marine Corps is counted) and a minister of defense and chief of staff both with authority to decide in case of disagreements among the services.

He would have a War Department instead of four departments of the Army, Navy and Air Force and Defense. The three services would be headed by under secretaries to the minister of defense.

The field marshal's reasoning is appealing.

"The separate existence of the three services," he declared in London Oct. 12, "results, in every nation, in waste of money, waste of manpower and waste of time."

Although Montgomery did not give any example of what sort of decision would be required, from previous addresses and the context of this one, something like the following may have been in his mind:

As the range of aircraft and especially the period that they can remain in the air increases, both the Air Force and the Navy will be able to exercise substantial control of the sea from the air. Two competing organizations doing the same job would be a waste of money, manpower and time.

The Army and the Air Force are both getting guided missiles and pilotless aircraft that shortly will almost obviate the need for short-range aircraft over the battlefield. The independent development of the same function by the two services is a waste of money, manpower and time.

"The greatest fact of modern times," he said, "is that change is inevitable: Change in politics, in economics, in techniques, in fact in every field. Progress is not inevitable. Progress depends on courage to make decisions to meet the needs of the times.

"But," he continued, "the present organization of military forces is incapable of adaptation to changes, neither quickly, nor economically, nor efficiently."

Why This Is True.

Why is this statement true? "In basic matters there is continual disagreement between the three services of a nation," Montgomery declared, "and in some cases there is definite friction. There is hidden suspicion at all levels between members of the services, in varying degrees. There is wastage of personnel through the maintenance of obsolete or obsolescent functions of all kinds.

"When some function becomes obsolescent," he continued, "vested interests and emotional attachments go into action to prevent it being abolished, and service propaganda machines go into top gear.

"It is an inherent characteristic of every organization to resist change and to attempt to survive. This results from the growth of vested interests.

"But in the future," he continued, "as political, economic, and technical changes accelerate, it is a grave question whether any large military organization which is not closely integrated and gripped tightly at the top can adapt itself successfully to the required speed of modern life. If this is not done, the lack of adaptability of the organization as a whole will tend continuously to promote individual service interests over those of the nation as a whole."

Although Montgomery did not give any specific examples of clinging to obsolete military functions, nothing is more commonplace in military history. Cavalry was obviously obsolete before World War I. Nevertheless great formations of German, French and British cavalry, armed not only with carbines, but also with sabres and lances rode into the war.

The cavalry did no good, wasted manpower, used enormous quantities of transport for feed for great cavalry units standing by to make the mythical exploitations of breakthroughs that never arrived.

Gen. Peyton C. March, chief of staff of the United States Army in World War I, maintained that the Russian front collapsed primarily because so much transport was diverted to feed the Russian cavalry that the men were starving.

It took 35 years from the beginning of World War I to get rid of cavalry in the United States and British armies.

Cavalry in the armed services was almost a way of life, a sporting life which not only trained horses for war, but incidentally trained and used them for polo and hunting. The violence of feeling in the United States Cavalry of any hint that it might not be up to charging barbed wire entanglements supported by machine guns cannot be appreciated by anyone who was not involved in the long contest to replace horses with armor.

The Navy . . . and Emotions.

There is an even greater emotional involvement in the sea services. Going to sea is a way of life. The Navy will resist obvious change just as violently and as irrationally as did the cavalry.

According to Montgomery, there is an intermingling of functions in modern war.

"Ground forces support the air forces," he said. "Air forces require protection of their bases; both are served by ships. Navies at sea in war and peace are greatly dependent on flying machines of many types; in addition they can, in many parts of the world, participate directly in the land-air battle with aircraft operated from ships."

Because of this intermingling of functions it must all "be co-ordinated by joint staffs, by committees, by agreements between services. I would add that any agreements reached are always compromises, and are seldom the best and most economical solution."

Montgomery recognizes that to make a single combined service operate a new type of senior officer is required: "One who was trained completely inter-service from his earliest days."

And he recommended that the start should be made now by combining the military academies, staff colleges and other service schools.

3 Points to Back Plan.

In support of his recommendation for a single military service the field marshal makes three points:

"First: The tasks of the three services are not nearly so differentiated as they used to be.

"Second: The advance of scientific discovery has produced ideas and weapons which do not fit neatly into the picture of the three services. They tend to unify war-like operations and it is more important than ever before that objective minds should examine the application of science of war.

"Third: Our nation is going to find it difficult to maintain defense expenditures at the present level. We cannot afford the luxury of duplication, and the waste that comes from adding together the demands of the three services."

In regard to the last point, Missouri's Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), told the Post-Dispatch: "If we followed the advice of Field Marshal Montgomery in his incredible speech of last Oct. 12, I am certain we could balance our budget, reduce taxes, and at the same time have more security."

Soviet Regime Must Come to an End, Say Russian Seamen in U.S. After Forsaking Red Homeland

They Have No Regrets as They Prepare to Work in America.

By PETER LISAGOR
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5

BENEDICT EREMENKO, a short, steady-eyed young man in a turtle-neck sweater, looked at his six comrades around the table.

"We hope in 10 years, maybe, to meet again in Moscow—a free Moscow," he said in Russian. The others nodded agreement.

Michael Shishin, a curly-haired youth, chimed in:

"The Soviet regime must have an end. There will be a change of its own accord in Moscow—or there will be a revolution."

Eremenko and Shishin, both 23 years old, are two of nine Soviet seamen who chose to forsake Communist Russia and come to this country when given the chance.

They were members of the crew of the Soviet tanker Tuapse, seized by the Chinese Nationalists in June, 1954.

In an exclusive interview, their first since arriving here from Formosa on Oct. 21, seven of the young men told why they broke with Communism and blotted out the only life they have known.

Sitting at a long table in the offices of the Church World Service, a Protestant welfare agency, they could easily have passed for a seminar group at any American college.

No Regrets So Far.

They are still a trifle bewildered by New York, and they have discovered that freedom has its uncertainties. But beneath their reserve, one sensed a tough-mindedness about their future.

And thus far, at least, they have no regrets.

Before the interview, Jan Van Hoogstraten, of the church group's immigration service, explained that the Russians were being placed in jobs as quickly as possible.

"They know that the group must be broken up," he said. "They also know that once jobs are found for them, they will be on their own. They must make their own way."

They were admitted to the United States under special provisions of the Immigration Act—as escapees. Their essential needs are being paid for out of funds voted by Congress and administered by the International Co-operation Administration of the State Department.

Van Hoogstraten said the young men "have had a Communist education," yet are adjusting to American life with surprising speed.

The first Sunday here, they were told they could either stay in bed or go to the Russian Orthodox Church. Some of them had come from small Russian villages where there were no churches. All had been taught a disbelief in God.

Nine Soviet seamen, former crewmen of the tanker Tuapse, arriving in Seattle Oct. 20 after a flight from Formosa.

Yet, all went to church and the following Sunday, five went again.

Asked about their religious beliefs, Victor Ryabenko, 21, said they were taught there was no God. Their parents had remained religious despite Communist efforts to change them.

Deny Being Mistreated.

The men refuted charges by the ship's captain, Vitaly Kalinin, who chose to return to Russia with 28 others, that they had been maltreated on Formosa.

"Lies," said Eremenko.

"The Chinese were hospitable," said Shishin, "and until we decide not to go back, we lived comfortably in hotels. Then those of us who wanted to come to the United States were separated and taken to a house."

Alexander Shirin, 24, a dark, thin-faced man, thought the captain probably had been forced to make the kind of statement he did when he got back to Moscow.

Shirin explained that the captain asked to see those who chose to stay either on Formosa or come to the United States. The Chinese passed along the word, and Shirin said he volunteered to go and see the captain.

"The captain said, 'I understand you choose liberty. Well, it's your own business. I can do nothing about it. But don't forget your Russian conscience and don't fight against Russia."

Not once did the captain mention Communism, Shirin said. He made his pitch, such as it was, on the basis of patriotism for Russia.

His use of the word "liberty" didn't seem to surprise Shirin.

It remained for the ship's political commissar to make the ideological pitch.

Victor Solovyev, a 20-year-old blond lad, also wearing a turtleneck sweater, said the commissar warned them that they were going to be "provoked" to go over to the "other side." He said, "Don't let them fool you."

Had any of them ever thought they might like to come over to the free world before their capture by the Nationalists?

"No," said Victor Tatarnikov, 20, a short-haired blond who could pass for an American college halfback.

"We had been taught that America had a capitalistic system, with great inequality and many people unemployed."

Only after they had read literature provided by the Nationalists, and listened to their captors extol the virtues of the free world and America, did they make up their minds. This occurred within two months, in most cases, after their capture.

The Chinese Nationalists apparently proved to be good teachers. After they had been given some idea of what life might be like outside of Russia, Ryabenko said, they developed different political opinions from those of the Soviet regime.

"There is no freedom of thought or expression in Russia," he elaborated. "The regime has disrespect for the mass of the people. We discovered this because of our experience on Taiwan (Formosa) and seeing how other people lived."

They saw some Americans, he added, but didn't talk to any until their decision had been made.

They were afraid to let their choice be known to the others, they agreed. But they managed to inform the Chinese authorities and were then segregated from the others.

Did they believe the Geneva spirit augured a change in the Kremlin?

Eremenko laughed. "The Soviet regime is a cat playing with a mouse. Playful now, but at the last moment it will grab the mouse."

All agreed that the Soviet aim is to control the world. "It does not require a second thought," the interpreter quoted Shishin as saying.

Nine Who Chose Liberty Hope to Meet Again in a Free Moscow.

Anxious About Families.

Though reluctant to talk about their families in Russia, the men did betray an anxiety about them. "We are afraid of what will happen, but we hope for the best," said Nicholas Vaganov, 23, who was the ship's bookkeeper and who had a slightly higher education than the others.

Although as seamen most of them had put into such free ports as Buenos Aires, Singapore, Rotterdam and Gibraltar, they had little chance to find out much about those places. A ship's officer always accompanied them on brief shore leaves to see that none tried to jump ship.

They said that though they are a little uncertain and anxious they felt this would pass once they started to work.

They shy away even from tentative impressions of New York, fearful of saying the wrong thing.

But the strongest single reaction among them has to do with American women. "They smoke and drink in public," was the slightly shocked verdict.

They like American cigarettes, even though they have "too many different tastes and too much honey in them." American movies, though admittedly fictitious, are closer to reality than Russian films, whose primary purpose is to spread political propaganda.

One Already In Job.

One of the nine who came to New York, 35-year-old Michael Ivankov-Nikolov, a radio operator, already has been put in a job. Two others leave for jobs in the next few days as general handymen at a military academy in Pennsylvania, where they will concentrate on learning English.

Another, Valentine Lukashov, 24, is being treated for trachoma in one eye.

In the year they spent in Formosa and their two weeks here, they have picked up English words with alacrity, but language still is a handicap.

They live in semi-seclusion in a downtown hotel, and are free to come and go as they please.

They seem to understand they are on no gravy train—and they are eager to get at the business of reshaping their young lives in this country.

Russia Answers Obsolescence Problem the Expensive Way but The Dangerous Way for West

Turns Out Weapons in Huge Quantities, Then Sells Them in Tension Areas When Outdated — Meanwhile Its Force-in-Being Is Large.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

A DESPERATELY grave Middle Eastern crisis has been touched off by the Soviet sale of arms to Egypt and other Arab states. And behind this crisis, there is another set of facts of almost equal gravity, which is getting no attention at all.

The fact that the Kremlin has MIG-15s, T-34 tanks and other expensive weapons to sell at bargain rates speaks volumes about the way the Soviets have handled the most important single problem of modern defense planning.

This is the problem of obsolescence, which is a wholly modern problem. Lord Nelson's flagship, the "Victory," had fought in the British line of battle for something like a century on the glorious day of Trafalgar; and five senior British naval officers were still squabbling about who should have the "Victory" when the Napoleonic wars ended a good many years later.

Rapid Obsolescence.

Nowadays, however, the relentless march of science makes any weapon obsolescent before it enters full production and within five years of going into service most aircraft types, for instance, must be classed as absolutely obsolete.

This rapid obsolescence of arms of all types is combined, moreover, with another modern trend. Because of the increasing destructiveness of the terrible absolute weapons, the importance of what the war planners call "force-in-being" is also increasing by rapid leaps and bounds.

According to one expert estimate, the value of force-in-being, which is the force you have ready to fight on the outbreak of war, has gone up by 10 per cent a year compounded since 1945. Meanwhile, the value of reserve power, such as the industrial power this country has always relied on, has declined proportionately. Reserve power, in short, has ceased to be reliable, while a strong force-in-being has become decisively important.

Two Answers.

But how to maintain a continuously strong force-in-being, when its arms are continuously becoming obsolete? After a period of compromise answers to this question under President Truman, the Eisenhower defense planners firmly chose the cheaper answer, for budgetary reasons. Our system now is to leave large parts of our armed forces with obsolete arms for very long periods, while maintaining a research and development program that at least provides models of truly modern arms.

The Soviets, in contrast, have adopted the expensive answer. The extraordinary character of that answer is best illustrated by the fighter aircraft story.

At the end of World War II, the Soviet force of fighter aircraft was a mish-mash of inferior types, large in numbers, but in every other way inferior to ours. By great efforts, the Soviet air industry produced the first model of the MIG-15 in 1947. At that time the American experts thought this early MIG was a hand-made job which could not be produced in quantity.

Thousands of MIGs.

But while we were turning out our F-86s in hundreds, the Soviets were turning out their MIGs in thousands. In the end, according to the official Pentagon estimate, Soviet output of MIG-15s reached the staggering total of 15,000. In other words, the entire Soviet fighter force-in-being was equipped with MIG-15s, with a great many left over for the satellites.

Even today, a good many units of our fighters force are still equipped with types inferior to the F-86, and the F-86 is still our only fighter in wide use that is fit to meet the MIG-15 in the air.

Among our allies, the position is still more serious. With the danger in the Formosa strait rapidly increasing again, the Chinese Nationalist air force, for instance, is more than half equipped with World War II aircraft types that will be useless against the jet aircraft of the Chinese Communists.

Meanwhile, the Soviets have briskly put the MIG-15 on the obsolete list. After making the gigantic investment needed to produce 15,000 of these planes, they have written them off for their own purposes.

They are now making another, equally gigantic investment, to re-equip the Soviet air force and after it the satellite air forces with their new "Farmer" day-fighter and "Flashlight" nightfighter, which are measurably superior to any comparable planes we have in quantity production.

Dangerous War Surplus.

It is precisely this changeover, in turn, which has permitted the Soviets to start peddling MIG-15s in the places where they will make the most trouble, such as the Middle East.

The MIGs, the tanks, and all the other weapons the Soviets are selling the Egyptians, Syrians, and Saudi Arabians (and now the Afghans and even the Yemenites must be added to the list) are nothing more nor less than war surplus, created by the way the Soviets have handled the problem of obsolescence. But these Soviet arms that are junk in Russia are also good enough to turn the whole Middle Eastern balance of power completely upside down. And this is perhaps a warning to the West.

Geneva 'Balancing Act' Taxing Dulles's Abilities

led by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who wanted to use atomic weapons in an effort to save the beleaguered French fort of Dien Bien Phu in Indochina But there is no documentation for that charge.

In any event, in the new Geneva era Dulles is talking peace and reconciliation as insistently and hopefully as he once talked of condign punishment and atomic weapons scaled precisely to fit the crimes of an aggressor. The British and French feel that he went almost too far this past week in pointing out the large area of agreement with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov on a security treaty before the head of the Soviet delegation had given the slightest sign of concession on the reunification of Germany. The emergence of Dulles as an apostle of peace has been to many a startling phenomenon.

The cynical put it down to the political necessities of the 1956 campaign. The Republicans intend to make peace a magic word. They ended the Korean war and they brought about the "Summit" conference.

But this explanation may be too simple. Dulles is a complicated man who plots each move with painstaking care. As one of his friends remarked ironically of him, "You have to say of Foster that all his mistakes are carefully thought out."

In preparing a verbal trap for Molotov he takes the satisfaction of an expert craftsman. Pressing for free elections in Germany, he looked across at Molotov and held forth on what a splendid opportunity they would afford for the East Germans to put into West Germany and proclaim the social and cultural benefits of the Communist regime in the east zone. There was a slight smile on Molotov's face as he sat smoking a cigarette in the paper holder he invariably uses. Both men understood very well the game that was being played, since Molotov knows as well as Dulles how unpopular the Communist regime is. Two years ago the East Germans revolted and men hurling rocks stood up briefly against armored tanks.

One of Dulles's weaknesses may be his oversubtlety. The draft of the Western proposal on security and Germany which was largely his work seemed to say that the final stage of reuniting the two Germanys would take place only when the new reunified state had agreed to enter NATO. But Dulles, in an exchange with Molotov, denied that this was so. The Manchester Guardian, Britain's liberal newspaper, called the Western proposal hypocritical and cynical, and that paper's diplomatic correspondent referred to Dulles's denial as a blunder.

In Western Europe Dulles is distrusted. Some would date that distrust from the sharp break with Britain over Indochina in April of 1954.

One of the paradoxes of the Dulles character is that he wants to inspire trust and friendship and yet with his careful calculations, his insistence on balancing one force off against another, he often fails. He seems to many who come close to him to lack humor, impulsiveness, warmth.

With his sense of mission and his long concern over the course of foreign policy—he pointed out to Molotov that he was the only one of the four present who attended the Versailles conference and knew first hand the mistakes made with regard to Germany after World War I—there hardly is time for these lesser manifestations. The answer is work and more work, an ever greater concentration.

In his lonely task, for it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that he carries American foreign policy in his head, the Secretary has three or four devoted aids. Chief among them are Assistant Secretary Livingston Merchant for Western Europe, who has perhaps a more free relation of give and take with Dulles than anyone else; counselor of the of the department Douglas MacArthur II, and Assistant Secretary Carl McCardle for public affairs.

In addition to everything else, Dulles gives almost day-to-day direction to the negotiations that have been going on here for three months with Communist China. By telegram from the Department of State and now in person the Secretary calls the shots for American Ambassador Alexis Johnson in his weekly meetings with Red China's Ambassador Wang Ping Nan.

If work and will can bring off a successful peace, then Dulles will triumph. He must be concerned with the long-term as well as the short-term consequences of reconciliation with the Communist bloc. For the short-term peace and lower taxes may win votes. But for the long term it may give Communism an overwhelming advantage in a struggle ceaselessly waged.

CIVIL AVIATION FACING HOST OF VEXING PROBLEMS

replies it would do better if it had the money.

Fred B. Lee, CAA administrator, said recently:

"With respect to federal airways, we must move rapidly indeed to meet the combined impact of growing civil aviation and the high-performance military aircraft streaking through the skies. We have, indeed, run out of air and of airspace—we must have new tools and new techniques to control air traffic."

The only solution seen by CAA is control by radar instead of oral radio reports from pilots. The agency is working on plans for the first all-radar airway, which will be between Boston and Norfolk and which will utilize a combination of military and civil radar equipment.

Traffic controllers, Lee pointed out, will need new kinds of computers and electronic memory devices. One control aid will be an airborne radar beacon which will give the controller a clear picture of the aircraft on his scope and in addition will provide automatic and positive identification. Installation of ground beacon equipment will begin soon with production of the airborne equipment scheduled to start next year.

Jet transports are described by Charles W. Carmody of the CAA airways operations division as planes that will do everything a piston-engined plane will do, will do some things better and will do nothing worse. But a jet differs from conventional planes in a number of respects.

A majority of jet operational problems, Carmody thinks, go back to the high rate at which a jet engine consumes fuel. Consumption diminishes with altitude. Since payload is cut down by any additional fuel the aircraft must carry, no plane carries more than enough to reach its destination plus a specified amount for emergency or "holding operations."

If an airport is crowded, conventional planes can be "stacked" above or near a terminal at comparatively low altitudes and can circle until they receive a landing signal. Because of fuel and speed problems jet pilots would prefer to remain at high altitude before coming in for a landing. A jet moving 575 miles an hour at 40,000 feet would "normally" require about 20 minutes to reduce cabin pressure for a landing and in that time it would travel 191 miles. Manufacturers will try to speed up the rate of pressure reduction.

Blast from jet engines may cause difficulty at passenger loading stations at some airports. Again because of fuel consumption, jet pilots would prefer to load and then taxi to the end of the runway for an immediate takeoff, rather than line up in the conventional way to await the take-off signal. Delay in reaching cruising altitude also would result in fuel loss. Jets do not require the conventional engine run-up and check before takeoff, and this may be a factor in the ultimate solution to the problem of mixed jet and conventional plane takeoffs from crowded airports.

Certificates of airworthiness have not been given the new planes. Boeing and Douglas have applied for CAA certificates for the 707 and the DC-8 and Lockheed is expected to request a certificate for the Electra soon. CAA engineers have been working on jet problems for five or six years, but complete regulations for jet transports have not yet been formulated.

ARMY SEPARATES TWINS, THEY ARE A BOY AND GIRL

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP) — The 18-year-old Hummer twins enlisted in the Army yesterday but they will serve in separate branches of the service.

Ned will study electric motor and generator repair. His sister, Nancy, will study dental laboratory work in the Women's Army Corps.

The twins are honor graduates of suburban Downers Grove high school where they will be inducted Tuesday. The Chicago area Army recruiting office said they were the first boy-girl twins to enlist at its office.

An American Novel About Modern Business

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch

CAMERON HAWLEY

CASH McCALL, by Cameron Hawley. (Houghton Mifflin Co., 444 pgs., $3.95.)

THE dynamic business executive is certainly the representative American of our time and it is eminently appropriate that he should have become the protagonist in many of our recent novels. "Cash McCall" by Cameron Hawley is the latest of these. Mr. Hawley, author of "Executive Suite," was himself a business executive for a long time which accounts, no doubt, for his close, detailed knowledge of plant operations and financial maneuvering. By itself, of course, a rich body of knowledge does not produce an interesting piece of imaginative writing and it wouldn't have done so in this instance but for Mr. Hawley's responsiveness to the human element in business.

Oddly enough his chief character, Cash McCall himself, is the least memorable of all the main characters in his book even though Cash is the moving force in the complicated web of events that the author so painstakingly describes. The reader first hears of him as an "operator" of uncommon skill, diligence and boldness who is known to only a few people because he habitually pulls off his big deals through agents. For nearly 150 pages Cash is a man of mystery and the subject of widespread gossip, mostly unfavorable.

This long delayed and elaborately prepared entry is wholly successful in building suspense. Unfortunately, it also builds up expectations that are never requited, for Cash, as he turns out, is not sinister at all but just another Saturday Evening Post business-man hero.

CASH, it seems, has made his millions in a hurry by following a simple formula. He hears of a moderate-sized industry whose owners want to sell out either because they can't continue to operate at a profit or because they want to retire. He buys it, eliminates any bugs he can find in its plant methods and sells out at a handsome profit. Invariably either the concern that's being sold or the purchaser has a tax carry-over—caused by a loss during the previous years—which minimizes the tax liability of the merged industry.

Cash, however, is not interested in money for its own sake, or so he says. He occupies the whole floor of the Hotel Ivanhoe in Philadelphia, travels in a $200,000 private plane and trails behind him many other accoutrements of fabulous wealth, but his chief satisfaction in his career is the excitement it provides. Moreover, a self-created rule forbids him from taking advantage of anybody. He refuses to make a deal unless everybody comes out a winner.

Whether such nice scruples are consistent with the amassing of a quick fortune of monumental proportions must be left to the experts. I accept it without quibble; but when this much is known about Cash everything of importance is known. The remainder of his personality is rather nondescript.

NEVERTHELESS the story holds the reader's interest until almost the very end because of the well handled plot mechanism which deals with the preliminaries, the consummation and the aftermath of a deal involving a small plastics industry. This provides a fascinating inside view of modern business operations and brings into the foreground a genuinely plausible character in the person of Grant Austen, president of Suffolk Moulding.

Austen, too, is something of a stock character in his general outline. He has given his life to the building up of his business and he has suffered as a human being in consequence. At the same time he has individuality and the fact that there may be many like him in the United States only gives a deeper significance to the pathos of his situation. A fairly large cast of secondary characters is also treated with insight and human understanding.

Lory Austen, the object of Cash McCall's romantic interest, is not one of these. One gets the impression, in fact, that the love interest has been brought into the story only because the author considered it a necessary ingredient of a full-length novel. In any case, the misunderstanding, which keeps man and maid at arm's length for many, many pages, could easily have been cleared up in 20 minutes of reasonably frank conversation.

THERE are many references to business ethics during the working out of the narrative line but nothing conclusive transpires. At one point Cash McCall remarks that the American people seem to be plagued by a double standard in their attitude toward money-making. They make a national slogan of "Free Enterprise" and then deplore the spiritual impoverishment that pervades or is supposed to pervade our dollar culture. He raises the question merely to point out an inconsistency. As for himself he apparently agrees with Dr. Johnson's contention that the making of money is intrinsically an innocent pursuit.

Summing up: "Cash McCall" is a diverting novel but is surely not the great novel which the subject justifies. That remains to be written for not even such earlier attempts as Lewis's "Titan" quite made the grade.

BIOGRAPHY

The Complex Personality Of Jefferson Davis

JEFFERSON DAVIS: AMERICAN PATRIOT, 1808-61, by Hudson Strode. (Harcourt Brace, 460 pgs., $6.75.)

HARNETT T. KANE

OF the many Confederate leaders, Jefferson Davis has been the most curiously neglected by recent biographers. Not for some years has anyone attempted a new appraisal of him, and there has been a considerable need of such an analysis. That lack has now been remedied by Mr. Strode of the University of Alabama.

Here is an important book, which has a great deal to say on a fascinating subject, one of the most remarkable men in American history. For Jefferson Davis is not an easy or simple protagonist; he was a complex, often subtle individual, whose character had a number of contradictory elements.

During his lifetime hundreds of thousands hated him, while others considered him a truly great, misunderstood figure. He was admittedly a somewhat "difficult" person, one who seemed withdrawn, over-reserved at times, the possessor of a sharp temper, a pride that could be monumental. The author has now attempted to right the scales, to balance between varying interpretations.

Some will feel that Mr. Strode has overpraised his subject, has failed to consider certain of Davis's negative qualities, and also that he has balanced those scales a bit too heavily in the favor of the Confederacy's only President. But this is only Volume 1 of a two-volume study, and it may be a bit too early to judge the final value of the book in that regard.

Nevertheless this is an engaging, smoothly written, often absorbing work. It pictures Davis's activities in lively style; it has a fine readability, and Davis emerges above all as a breathing human being. Too often in the past those who have written of him have left him a kind of stuffed shirt, austere and pompous. This is Jefferson Davis the man.

The writer has succeeded in locating a number of new documents, previously unpublished. They deal with Jefferson Davis's youth, his training at Transylvania College, his studies at West Point and other aspects of those formative times. An important figure is his first wife, daughter of Zachary Taylor, who died tragically, and was succeeded by the vigorous, outspoken Varina Howell of Natchez, a woman who played a great role in Davis's career.

Now that Mr. Strode has established Davis's basic character, it will be interesting to see how he handles the climactic period, the years of the struggle with the North and those dimming ones that followed. For it was then that Davis the personage came forward most clearly.

Diversity of Nature in U.S.

Newfoundland sea-bird cliffs, Florida Everglades, Arizona deserts, Washington rain forests, Alaska tundras—all these and many more environments that make up the staggering diversity of American nature are described and drawn by two naturalists, Roger Tory Peterson, American ornithologist, author and artist, and his British friend, James Fisher, an authority on sea birds, in the course of a 30,000-mile grand tour of the North American continent. The above is one of approximately 150 original line drawings by Peterson which appears in their collaborated account of their tour, WILD AMERICA. (Houghton, Mifflin, 434 pgs., $5.).

INDUSTRY

Edison's Tin-Foil Baby

THE FABULOUS PHONOGRAPH, by Roland Gelatt. (Lippincott, 320 pgs., $4.95.)

Reviewed by
REED HYNDS

ART and commerce tend to be uneasy companions. Maybe that is why the phonograph developed so erratically, bumbling along through the years with very little rhyme and not much reason. For, as Roland Gelatt points out in "The Fabulous Phonograph":

"Science and business and aesthetics are inseparably commingled in the historical progression from Edison's raucous tin-foil apparatus to the high fidelity reproducers and recordings of today."

Gelatt, who is New York editor of High Fidelity magazine, has neatly kept these elements balanced in his book, which is announced as the first comprehensive history of the phonograph. It is a book loaded with nostalgia for anyone old enough to have cranked a Victrola or to have listened to the tiny emanations of Alma Gluck's "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny"—the first Red Seal to sell more than 1,000,000 copies.

Through all these vistas of remembered loveliness, however, emerges the ogre of the scared business man. At the very outset, Edison failed to realize what he had. He was determined to push his "favorite" invention as a dictating machine and discouraged those who wanted to promote it for home entertainment. The industry simply stumbled onto the path that led to profits and inventive progress.

A GREAT deal of research has gone into this book. Threading through the old company combinations and affiliations took some doing. Gelatt has mastered all this and set his story down simply and fluently. Nor has he neglected the color and glamor.

The phonograph was first exhibited as a curiosity. Later it took the form of a primitive juke-box with earphones for multiple listening. At last came the home machine with the morning glory horn, which played cylinders.

Josef Hofmann, as a 12-year-old pianist, was the first established artist to record. That was in 1888. Commercial recording began in 1890. Most of the early cylinders were such stuff as marches by Sousa, "coon shouts," monologues, sentimental ballads and ragtime.

Although the "celebrity record field" never has been the biggest money-maker, it gave the phonograph allure and prestige. Curiously, the first Red Seal or (Red Label) was tried out in Russia, which can at least claim that part of the story. But it was Caruso, in Milan in 1902, who first provided the impetus that made best-sellers of Red Seals and the Victrola "the customary adjunct of the refined American parlor."

A footnote states that Caruso's royalties from his records amounted to $2,000,000 during his lifetime, and that his estate has benefited by an equivalent amount. There is the story of the famous trademark, "His Master's Voice," and the painting showing a dog listening to the horn of a phonograph. The artist had to paint over his original phonograph. It was the wrong brand.

Emma Calve provides an example of the early entrepeneur's difficulties: "Taken to the door of the Maiden Lane building (London) in a luxurious four wheeler by Landon Ronald, she at first refused to budge from the carriage. Dismayed at the shabby appearance of the building and the sinister atmosphere of the narrow street, she cried out: 'Never in my life will I enter such a place. It is a tavern—not a manufactory. I shall be robbed there. You have brought me to a thieves' den.'

"RONALD was inured to the outbursts of prima donnas and knew well how to cope with this one; he excused himself for a moment, ran into the accountant's office, and returned bearing the company's payment for Calve's services (100 guineas for six records). This acted as a strong restorative, and soon she was upstairs—ready to perform for the gramophone."

For many years emphasis was placed on vocal records, for the simple reason that the voice best suited the "acoustic" process. Early symphonic recordings were travesties, the works chopped and the orchestra limited to the middle octaves — double basses being totally barred. As recording improved, Europe took the spotlight in orchestral works until at last Leopold Stokowski appeared on the phonograph horizon.

Surely few industries can have had so many ups and downs. The curve that started bravely upward during the early years of the century rose sharply during the dance craze following World War I, dropped sheer as radio made its inroads in 1924 and 1925, went up somewhat after electrical recording and reproduction began in the late '20s, dropped out of sight in 1932 (when only 6 per cent as many records were sold as had been in 1927), then again began creeping up with high fidelity and rose meteorically with long-playing records. According to the trade papers, 1955 will be the biggest year yet.

Is it any wonder, then, that it's always been a jittery business? Or that rumor is always as rife among record people as it is in an army replacement camp? Heaven only knows what comes next.

Atmospheric Efforts

THE WALKER AND OTHER STORIES, by Patrick O'Brian. (Harcourt Brace, 244 pgs., $3.50.)
SON OF JUSTIN, by Richard Vaughan. (E. P. Dutton, 222 pgs., $3.)

"THE WALKER" is a collection of twenty-five stories, varying in setting from the Northern mountains of Ireland and England to the Mediterranean coast of France. The author writes with passion and realizes his characters with conviction, but to me the sketches are atmospheric rather than complete or satisfying stories.

"Son of Justin" is a long and passionate Welsh novel, which continues the saga begun by the author's first novel, "Moulded in Earth."

Searchlight on Security System

Did the Oppenheimer Case Increase or Diminish Our Safety?

THE OPPENHEIMER CASE: THE TRIAL OF A SECURITY SYSTEM, by Charles P. Curtis. (Simon and Schuster, 281 pgs., $4.)

Reviewed by
JOHN RAEBURN GREEN

OF the thousands of security cases involving Government personnel, the proceedings and testimony in only one have been made public by the Government. In this, even more than in the fame and eminence of the persons involved, the importance of the Oppenheimer transcript lies. The transcript may be bought from the Government Printing Office for $3, but since it consists of 993 pages of fine print, few of us will read it.

Charles P. Curtis, the distinguished Boston lawyer and scholar, has rendered a public service by making available, in superbly readable form, its most essential passages, verbatim, with a brilliant running commentary on what happened—and why.

In 1943 J. Robert Oppenheimer was appointed director of the Los Alamos Atomic Laboratory, the most secret, and most successful of our defense efforts in World War II. It was then known by Military Intelligence and the FBI that he had been a member or sponsor of various Communist-front organizations, that his wife had been a member of the Communist party, as had her first husband, that his ex-fiancee and mistress had been a member also, that his brother and the latter's wife had been members, that Oppenheimer had over a period of time made substantial monthly contributions to the Communist party, that he had subscribed to a Communist newspaper, had attended meetings at which Communist officials spoke, and had been, in his own words, "a fellow-traveler."

ALL of this information had either been voluntarily disclosed by Oppenheimer on security questionnaires or had been freely admitted by him. The security organization, in view of these facts, recommended against Oppenheimer's clearance. But Gen. Groves, after reviewing the entire file, took a calculated risk (at which this reviewer would have hesitated), put Oppenheimer in charge, and the result was Hiroshima.

Eleven years later, Oppenheimer having in the meantime done so much to develop the atomic bomb, having since the war rendered unique and invaluable service to his country in the same field, having during all that time given away no secret, by indiscretion or otherwise, having proved his loyalty, and having been investigated and cleared, again and again, by the AEC, the Department of Defense and other agencies, was on June 29, 1954, denied by the AEC further access to restricted areas, one day before his contract as advisor to the AEC was to terminate, which termination would have ended his access to such restricted data.

THE charges were 24 in number, 18 of these being the old charges (in some cases with trivial additions) which Gen. Groves had disregarded, "revived now from the irrelevance to which a brilliant record of national service had relegated them." One dealt with the Chevalier affair, known since 1943, and thus also historical. Three were insignificant charges as to associations of Oppenheimer's brother in 1944-46. One solemnly recited that in 1949 and subsequently Oppenheimer had opposed a "crash program" for the hydrogen bomb, and had distributed reports of the General Advisory Committee to top personnel at Los Alamos in order to turn them against its development.

The board (though with some qualifications) found that most of the early charges were true, as indeed Oppenheimer had admitted many years earlier. But Mr. Curtis's review of the evidence on each shows how little weight they deserved.

He is rather charitable in attributing Oppenheimer's associations in the 1930s to youthful idealism—one thinks that an education too much concentrated in science must also have been partly responsible. It is not really necessary for a scientific genius to be quite ignorant of his country, its history and its government. But, whatever their cause, these early follies had long since been confessed and expiated.

Of the later charges the only one serious on its face was that of opposition to the H-bomb. Mr. Curtis's two chapters on this are fascinating reading. It was not only Oppenheimer, but eight of the nine members of the General Advisory Committee who reported against a crash program in 1949, and no one was in favor. Mr. Curtis considers it debatable whether this report delayed the development of the bomb, but in any event the many reasons which led all these scientists to oppose this crash program disappeared when, in 1951, it first appeared that the bomb was practicable. As Oppenheimer testified, "When I saw how to do it, it was clear to me that one had to at least make the thing."

And the board discovered that the GAC reports Oppenheimer was charged with distributing had in fact been distributed by the general manager of the AEC, whose successor now charged Oppenheimer with this crime. Mr. Curtis contents himself with the comment "Stupid!" It does seem like a poor way to run the AEC.

The board, having heard 40 witnesses, reported that it had found no evidence of Oppenheimer's disloyalty, but "had much responsible and positive evidence of his loyalty and love of country," and found that he was a "loyal citizen"; that the nation owed Oppenheimer "a great debt of gratitude for loyal and magnificent service"; and that he had shown "a high degree of discretion reflecting an unusual ability to keep to himself vital secrets."

J. ROBERT OPPENHEIMER

But they then, 2 to 1 (the dissent was most vigorous), concluded that there was a "doubt" whether his future participation would be "clearly consistent" with the best interests of security. The AEC, 4 to 1 (again with a vigorous dissent) approved this conclusion, although for different reasons (e.g., the board was disturbed by the H-bomb charge, the AEC totally rejected it).

The regulations required "an overall common sense judgment." This was it.

MR. CURTIS'S chapters on the conduct of the hearings, the decision and the individual opinions make clear the fundamental weaknesses of the security system. There is an irreconcilable conflict between "an overall common sense judgment" and the requirement that clearance must be denied if there is even the least "doubt." A presumption of guilt makes an overall common sense judgment impossible.

There is also a fatal weakness in making the proceeding inquisitorial as far as the accused is concerned, denying him the rights he would have in an adversary proceeding, yet at the same time permitting the Government to proceed on the adversary basis, seeking, not to reach the truth, but to convict the accused.

The board said that in a very real sense the Oppenheimer case put the security system of the United States on trial, both as to procedures and as to substance. Mr. Curtis develops this theme. It is difficult to read his book—or the transcript itself—without being convinced that our security, our safety against Soviet Russia, has actually been diminished by the Oppenheimer decision, rather than increased. The testimony of John J. McCloy as to this—to take only one example—seems unanswerable.

Contemplation of what befell earlier security systems—not only our own Alien and Sedition laws and the Reconstruction attainder legislation, but those of other countries—leaves little doubt as to the ultimate fate of our present one. The question is simply, how soon? Mr. Curtis's book should hasten the day. The stars in their courses do fight for his side.

URGES FARMERS BE ALLOWED TO SET UP PROGRAM

Texas Cattleman Tells Senate Group of Losing Money for the Last 3 Years.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 5 (UP)—A young Texas cattleman today urged the Senate Agriculture Committee to let farmers themselves vote on what kind of a federal farm price support program they want.

Alex Dickie Jr., president of the Texas Farmers Union, testified at a committee hearing on the farm support issue. He said he favors a "Brannan plan" support program under which all farm products would be supported at 100 per cent of the "fair income" parity level.

"But if you have any doubts as to how farmers feel on these price supports, don't ask the Farmers Union, Farm Bureau, or any farm organization. Ask the farmers.

"Put your various proposals in the form of a referendum and then let the farmers decide," he said.

Losing Fight.

Dickie, a college graduate with animal husbandry and economics degrees, operates a 1500-acre cattle and grain ranch in Denton County, Texas. He testified he had lost $21,000 in the last three years, owes $129,000, and has arranged for next year's financing "knowing full well" he cannot pay expenses at the present cattle prices.

Today's hearings wound up the second week of the Senate committee's nation-wide tour to gather "grass roots" advice on farm price supports. Committee Chairman Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, told a breakfast meeting he has found farmers sharply divided on the price support question.

Testimony during the week at Pendleton, Ore.; Fresno, Calif.; Albuquerque, N.M., and Fort Worth, indicated, however, that farmers are united in their demands for a more vigorous government export policy to dispose of farm surpluses.

Jay Boston of Hereford, Tex., offered in testimony prepared for the committee today to give Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson his 600-acre irrigated farm "if he makes it pay under his sliding scale program of price supports."

Senator's View.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem.) Mississippi, told another witness, Wilmer Smith of Wilson, Tex., the United States must use "some orthodox economics" to regain an annual cotton export market of 5,000,000 bales.

"We'll have to offer terms that Mexico and Peru can't meet," Eastland said, noting that Mexican cotton now sells for seven cents a pound less than the American fiber. One "unorthodox" approach is the current program under which the United States surpluses are sold for foreign currencies instead of dollars, he said.

With other witnesses, Boston urged the committee also to approve a "soil fertility bank" program under which 9 to 23 per cent of the nation's 354,000,000 harvested crop acres would be turned to grass to curb surplus production.

Agreement On One Issue.

Farmers who divided sharply in their views on the price-support levels were agreed on the soil bank plan.

Similar proposals, some involving payments to farmers for leaving their land idle, have been indorsed by most witnesses in eight earlier hearings on the committee's tour.

Ellender has said a plan along these lines "may" be worked out.

Boston offered to make Benson a Texas farmer after complaining about the secretary's action in reducing supports on grain sorghums from 85 per cent of the "fair income" parity level in 1954 to 70 per cent this year.

Boston and R. G. Peeler, also of Hereford, argued that grain sorghums should be classified with corn and other "basic crops" under farm law and supported on the same basis as corn. Both are animal feed grains.

Under present law, Government props for "basic" crops ranged from 82.5 to 90 per cent of parity this year and will be 75-90 per cent next year. This is the Administration's flexible or "sliding scale" program.

Benson may set supports for grain sorghums under present law at any rate between zero and 90 per cent of parity.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED TO END MAYTAG STRIKE

NEWTON, Ia., Nov. 5 (AP)—A negotiated settlement of the lengthy strike at the Maytag Co., one of the major United States home appliance manufacturers, was announced today in a joint company-union statement.

Terms of the agreement were not announced pending a union membership vote on the settlement proposal. A union meeting is scheduled here for tomorrow afternoon.

The strike began Sept. 1 when the CIO United Auto Workers, Local 997, quit work after negotiations had failed to produce a new contract. About 3000 employes, most of them in the big Maytag plants here, were affected. Also affected was a smaller plant at New Hampton, Ia. The plants have not been in production during the strike.

The company on Sept. 29 made what president Fred Maytag described as it final offer. A subsequent counter-offer was made by the union. Points on which the company and union officials previously had not been able to agree included a layoff pay plan, job classification and union shop.

Arthur Carl Belde Jr., Milwaukee, was killed yesterday on U.S. Highway 66, one mile east of Pacific, when he was thrown from the cab of a pickup truck in which he was a passenger, highway patrolmen reported. He was 17 years old.

The truck, which was pulling a trailer, went out of control and struck a bridge abutment. The trailer turned over on Belde after he was thrown from the machine. Driver was Leroy Slotke, Milwaukee.

Detective Sgts. John Enright and Harry Cohen of the Police Department's pawnshop squad were injured seriously last night when the police automobile in which they were riding collided with another car at Penrose street and Glasgow avenue.

The officers' machine, which was cruising at the time, was moving north in Glasgow, and the other vehicle was traveling east in Penrose when the accident occurred, it was reported by Glenn Pyeatt, driver of the second automobile.

After the collision, the police car struck a utility pole, said Pyeatt, who lives at 4028A Peck street. Uninjured were Pyeatt, his wife and another woman who was riding in the Pyeatt's machine. Enright, of 6541 Winona avenue, suffered head injuries. Cohen, 5916 Alpha avenue, suffered injuries of the head, face and neck.

Melvin Prichett, Negro, 28, Chicago, was killed Friday night when an automobile he was driving collided with a truck on U.S. Highway 66, four miles north of Hamel, Ill., in Madison county. Hamel is nine miles northeast of Edwardsville.

Lank Davis, Negro, Chicago, a passenger in the car, suffered serious head injuries. Philip A. Marsh, Polo, Ill., driver of the truck was uninjured.

Illinois State Police reported that Pritchett, in passing another automobile, pulled into the path of the truck.

SIRENS TO SOUND TOMORROW IN MONTHLY 'GROWL TEST'

The monthly "growl test" to check operational readiness of air-raid sirens in the city and four county municipalities will be conducted at 11 a.m. tomorrow. Each siren will be sounded long enough to give out a low growl.

Those not in proper working order will be reported by volunteer spotters near the various sirens to the St. Louis Office of Civil Defense. The test in the city will be supervised by John Hatch, superintendent of the fire and police alarm system, and co-ordinated in the county through Charles R. Skow, county director of civil defense.

University City, Brentwood, Maplewood and Ladue will participate with St. Louis in conducting the test. Last month's "growl" test was the first in which all 127 sirens were found to be in proper working condition.

CONTRIBUTIONS RECEIVED BY LIBRARY FOR THE BLIND

Contributions totaling $104 have been received by the Wolfner Memorial Library for the Blind, a branch of the Public Library, it was announced yesterday.

Gifts included a memorial contribution of $78 from friends of Mrs. Celia Hirsh and $12 for the purchase of books in Braille for children from the Mission Circle of Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church.

A total of $124 has been received by the Central Public Library for purchase of poetry recordings.

SUGGESTS GREECE AND NORWAY JOIN BRITISH NATIONS

EDINBURGH, Nov. 5 (AP)—The British Commonwealth should expand to include such nations as Greece and Norway, a Conservative member of Parliament proposed yesterday.

Patrick Maitland said in a speech to the local branch of the United Nations Association:

"If there is room for one republic (India) in the Commonwealth then there is room for monarchies. I have reason to believe that Norway is one country which would be seriously interested."

The Commonwealth is a free association of nations recognizing the British crown as its head. Members besides India are Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Ceylon, South Africa, Canada and the Central African Federation.

ARGENTINE PAPERS UNDER WATCH BUT NOT CENSORED

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 5 (UP)—Naval officers are keeping a watchful eye on material prepared for publication in La Prensa and El Lider, but there has been no attempt so far to censor the two newspapers, it was reported today.

Employes of La Prensa, a former independent newspaper seized by ex-President Juan D. Peron as a propaganda medium for his labor federation, said naval officers stop by the plant about 2 a.m. every day to read advance proofs of the two publications.

Evidence that there has been no censorship so far was provided by today's El Lider, which charged that the revolutionary government which ousted Peron in September is plotting to "deliver Argentina, bound and helpless, to her gracious (British) Majesty."

MEXICAN CABINET MEMBER, SON, 6 OTHERS DIE IN CRASH

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5 (AP)—Cabinet minister Carlos Loza, the architect who designed Mexico's $30,000,000 University City, was killed with one of his sons and five other men in a plane crash today. Seven others, including another son of Lazo, were injured seriously.

Lazo, who headed the Ministry of Communications and Public Works, was considered one of Mexico's brightest younger men. He was 41 years old.

Lazo's holidaying party from his ministry was en route to Acapulco for the weekend when engine trouble developed and the plane fell in heavy fog into Lake Texcoco, 12 miles east of Mexico City. The plane was a Communications Ministry two-engine DC-3.

FUNERAL IN WINNETKA, ILL., FOR BENJAMIN HARRIS JR.

Funeral services for Benjamin Harris Jr., an attorney and former St. Louisan, will be tomorrow in Winnetka, Ill., where he had lived snice 1935. Mr. Harris, 53 years old, died Friday of a heart ailment.

Before leaving St. Louis he was associated with the old B. Harris Wobl Co., founded by his father. He is survived by his wife, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Eiseman, live at 6463 Cecil avenue, Clayton; three children and a brother, G. L. Harris.

BAR ASSOCIATION OFFICIAL

Miss Margaret Dean, former executive secretary of the Toledo (O.) Bar Association, has been appointed executive director of the Bar Association of St. Louis, it was announced yesterday. The position was recently authorized by the association here.

Miss Dean, a graduate of the University of Toledo School of Law, served in Toledo Bar Association for four years.

POLICEMAN WINS FREEDOM FOR MAN HE HAD ACCUSED

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 5 (AP)—A policeman who filed a charge against a motorist did a turnabout in traffic court yesterday and defended the defendant.

"You make a better counsel than a defense attorney might," Judge Tom Bergin told Policeman Gilbert R. Jacobson.

The defendant, Joseph P. Murphy, St. Paul, was found not guilty of a charge that he went through traffic lights.

The lights were not working in Murphy's direction, but were working in the opposite direction. The green light was showing for a car that came through and collided with Murphy's.

Jacobson said he was reluctant to issue a tag, but felt he must to show which car was at fault in the accident.

"The other man was right but Murphy really couldn't be blamed," the policeman explained in court. "I told him to go to court and plead not guilty and I would defend him."

SENTENCED DRIVER GOT OFF BEFORE ON SIMILAR COUNTS

Hughie E. Fortner, who began serving a year and three months in City Workhouse Friday for leaving the scene of an accident and careless driving, was not prosecuted on similar charges placed against him in October and November 1954, it was learned yesterday.

In one instance, when Fortner was charged with leaving the scene of an accident after his automobile struck a pedestrian, a warrant was refused by the circuit attorney's office for insufficient evidence. The case also was nolle prossed in police court.

In October 1954, similar charges were placed against Fortner when he allegedly drove on after his machine collided with another. The case also was nolle prossed. At his trial Friday, Police Judge Robert G. Dowd fined Fortner $500 in addition to the Workhouse sentence for driving on after his automobile struck Randle Ross, a Negro, last June 6.

Judge Dowd said Ross's attorney will check with Jefferson City authorities to determine if Fortner's driver's license had been suspended under the financial responsibility act. He said to his knowledge Fortner carried no automobile insurance. Fortner, 56 years old, has appealed the Workhouse sentence.

TAX BOOSTS FOR FLOOD RECOVERY PROPOSED IN EAST

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 5—Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff outlined yesterday a proposed state tax increase program to finance the $30,000,000 flood recovery project recommended by the State Flood Recovery Committee.

The Governor told Republican and Democratic leaders of the State Legislature that he would submit the program to a special session called for next Wednesday.

Under his proposal, the state cigarette tax would be increased from 3 to 4 cents a pack for the next two years, and all other state taxes except gasoline would be raised by 10 per cent for two years.

NEW 6-MONTH RESERVE PLAN HAS ATTRACTED 1700 SO FAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Defense Department says nearly 700 more "young men" have entered the six months active duty reserve training program.

That brings the total to about 1700 of those on active duty in the second month of the training program. The training got under way Oct. 1.

NO SABOTAGE CLUES IN PLANE CRASH

Nitroglycerine Reports "Ridiculous," CAA Investigator Says.

LONGMONT, Colo., Nov. 5 (UP)—Civil Aeronautics Authority investigator Jack Parshall said today that no evidence of sabotage has been found in the wreckage of a United Air Lines plane which blew up and crashed Tuesday night, killing 44 persons.

Parshall said the only fact established in the intensive investigation at the crash scene—which covers three square miles—is that an explosion occurred on the airliner before it fell into sugar beet fields eight miles west of Longmont.

The plane crashed 11 minutes after it took off from Denver en route to Seattle, Wash.

Parshall said reports that traces of nitroglycerine had been found in the wreckage were "ridiculous rumor."

"We have found absolutely no evidence of nitroglycerine. In fact, no particular explosive is under suspicion," Parshall said.

The CAA, United and Douglas aircraft all have experts at the crash scene, studying the wreckage and questioning witnesses to the tragedy. United also brought in Charles Wilson, an explosives expert and head of the Wisconsin crime laboratory.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is conducting laboratory tests on items selected from the wreckage. The analysis is expected to be complete in about 10 days.

But Webb Burke, FBI agent in charge at Denver, said the FBI was not itself conducting an "active investigation" of the crash.

C-47 PLUNGES INTO RIVER, 4 OF 8 ON BOARD MISSING

HOLYOKE, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP)—Air Force men grappled in the swift current of the Connecticut river today for the wreckage of a twin-engine C-47 transport which plunged into the stream last night in a heavy rain.

Four of the eight men aboard swam ashore. The other four were missing and believed drowned.

Those unaccounted for:

The pilot, Capt. Wilmer L. Paulsen, father of three children, Stockton, Calif.; Airman Second Class John B. Carrigan Jr., Rutland, Vt. Pharmacists Mate Emanuel Casserly, Washington, D.C.; Airman Second Class Gerald L. Jolicoeur, Augusta, Me.

The plane, flying from Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., to its base at Westover Air Force Base, came down three miles short of its destination after reporting it was having engine trouble.

GOV. HERTER HOME, WON'T TALK ABOUT PRESIDENCY

HOBOKEN, N.J, Nov. 5 (AP)—Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, mentioned as a top possibility for the G.O.P. presidential nomination, returned by ship from a three-week pleasure tour of Europe today to reaffirm his neutrality on the issue.

Herter, 60 years old, said he did not wish to comment on the possibility of his seeking either the presidential or vice presidential nomination, nor would he say whether he might accept a draft.

The Governor indicated that President Eisenhower's heart attack had put the question of next year's Republican choice up in the air. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens to Ike," he commented.

HELICOPTERS DROP MARINES, 'AGGRESSORS' PUSHED BACK

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C., Nov. 5 (AP)—Helicopters dropped a battalion of assault Marines in the midst of "aggressor" troops at Peterfield point airfield today in the boldest maneuver thus far of Atlantic amphibious exercise 1-55.

Climaxing the third day of mock fighting after the landing on Onslow Beach, the "choppers" and their combat-equipped Marines caught the superior "aggressor" forces off balance.

After securing the airstrip, the Second Division Marines cleared a path to the banks of New river, while others in the assault force pushed the "aggressors" beyond small arms range of the airfield.

Marine R4Q "packets"—the air force calls them flying boxcars— rumbled in loaded with men and equipment. Simultaneously, Navy seaplanes sneaked up the channel of the winding Tibai river, flying low and landed more reserves on the beaches east of the airfield.

POLICE TO SEARCH TRUNK OF MAN SHOT, BURIED BY WIFE

KINGSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 5 (UP)—County Attorney Royce Johnston asked authorities in Portland, Ore., today to search a trunk which may contain clues to the past of Don Worden, who was shot and buried on the beach by his rich wife.

The wife, Mrs. Violet Canales Worden, said she shot Worden because he made her dig the grave, handed her the pistol and commanded her to shoot Maria Teresa Canales, her 5-year-old daughter by a former husband.

She said that after she killed him Oct. 22, she sent a trunk containing some of his papers and clothes to Oregon.

Johnston asked District Attorney William Langley of Portland to intercept the trunk and search it for Worden's personal papers as well as for bloody clothes. Mrs. Worden put $45,000 down on a motel in Bend, Ore., last summer.

More Than Half Persons Listed Have Applied for Tax Refunds

Checks for $40,000 Mailed Out by St. Louis Office of Internal Revenue Service — $136,000 Due.

A total of 2047 "lost", federal income taxpayers have applied in person or by mail for refunds due them on their 1953 or 1954 returns since publication of their names by the Post-Dispatch began Oct. 16, the Internal Revenue Service reported yesterday.

Applications represent well over half the 3705 names being printed. Of the applications filed, 1015 have been processed and checks mailed, for a total of about $40,000, it was stated. Refunds due the 3705 taxpayers total about $436,000.

Persons whose names appear on the lists can apply in person at the revenue service's refund office in the basement of the Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street, or by mail. In either case identification should be provided, preferably a copy of the income tax return or W-2 tax withholding form.

MAURICE UTRILLO DIES; NOTED PAINTER

Frenchman Gained Fame for Works of Montmartre.

DAX, France, Nov. 5 (AP)—Maurice Utrillo, famous French painter, died today of bronchial pneumonia. He was 71 years old. He had been in ill health for sometime but had remained active. He came here six days ago and was staying at a hotel.

Utrillo was born into a Bohemian world. His mother, Suzanne Valadon, was a famed model and later an accomplished painter herself. His father, unknown, was believed to have been a painter named Boissy.

Utrillo was already a drunkard when he took up painting at 18. A doctor urged his mother to find him some pursuit to take him away from the bottle. Utrillo got his name from the Spanish critic and writer, Miguel Utrillo, who magnanimously offered his name.

He gained fame for his work after the turn of the century and his output was prodigious. Many of his pictures were of his native Montmartre. He sometimes turned out quick scenes copied from picture postcards, but his best work ranks with the greatest of contemporary French painters and his paintings are in the world's great museums.

Wife Also Paints.

He is survived by his wife, Lucie, whom he married in 1935. She is also a respected painter.

His best known works are "La Butte Pinson," "Le Lapin Agile," "Moulin de la Galette," "Rue St. Marie," and "La Rue D'Orchamps."

In his first landscapes, Utrillo seemed to draw much inspiration from other painters. Soon, however, his own individual, slightly mystic style crept into his pictures of barracks, inns, people at prayer, people heavily touched with drinking.

After his departure from Montmartre—he moved to Montmagny, near Paris—he began painting with brighter, harsher colors, and his drawings took on more precise forms. The heavy, dark colors of his earlier years was replaced by the brighter tones of all his recent paintings.

For a period between 1912 and 1920 he was much taken to drink, and repeatedly had himself confined in institutions.

Great Energy.

He had periodic bursts of great energy in which he painted much, but in others painted little. A painting salable for thousands of dollars often would be dashed off in less than a day.

His wife was at his side when he died in the Hotel Splendide. It seemed certain that his oft-repeated wish to have his funeral in Sacre Coeur, on Montmartre, would be granted. He had painted it many times in the years since he was born, Christmas day in 1883.

City Art Museum Has Two Paintings by Utrillo.

The St. Louis City Art Museum has two paintings by Utrillo, executed in 1914 and 1933. The 1914 painting, entitled "Le Cabaret de la Belle Gabrielle," depicts a cafe and was acquired by the museum last February. The other, a Paris street scene, entitled "Montmartre," was acquired in 1940.

Battle of Hippopotamuses.

DURBAN, South Africa, Nov. 5 (AP)—Two bull hippopotamuses, fighting over a cow, flattened trees and shrubs amid bellowing that could be heard for miles. The fight ended when one hippopotamus, weighing more than two tons, died of lung wounds. His conqueror is not expected to live either.

CARTER TO ACT TO BLOCK EAST SIDE WATER RATE RISE

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter of St. Clair county said yesterday he would confer soon with city attorneys of Belleville, East St. Louis and other communities to discuss the possibility of joint legal action to block a prospective 33½ per cent increase in minimum water rates on the East Side.

The increase has been approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission and will affect the 52,000 customers of East St. Louis & Interurban Water Co. The higher rates go into effect Nov. 14.

The St. Clair County Board of Supervisors yesterday instructed Carter to investigate the possibility of appealing the commission action in circuit court, on behalf of residents of unincorporated areas of the county. The rate increase would amount to $800,000 annually.

25,500 MORE JOBS IN AREA DURING YEAR

Unemployment Off 48.7 Pct. in 12 Months, State Employment Office Reports.

An increase in employment of 25,500 jobs in the St. Louis area for a 12-month period ended last September was reported yesterday by the Missouri State Employment Service.

Paul P. Connole, St. Louis manager for the division of employment security, added that unemployment was down 48.7 per cent since September, 1954, and showed a 19.9 per cent decrease from July to last September.

The unemployment situation for the area, embracing St. Louis, St. Louis county, St. Charles county and Madison and St. Clair counties in Illinois was 59,400 or 7.1 per cent of the labor force in September 1954. Last September it was 30,500, or 3.7 per cent.

About 803,300 were employed last September in this area, 3.3 per cent more than in September 1954.

Business maintained a high level during the third quarter of this year with durable goods leading, it was reported. Increasing demands were noted for steel products, causing a rise in employment. Due to a building boom, stone, clay and glass businesses flourished.

"The local supply of labor is adequate to meet existing and anticipated needs," Connole said, "for with seasonal employment trends on the downgrade for the next four months except for the usual spurt of pre-holiday hiring, anticipated employment demands will be small."

HINTS TURKEY WILL HELP JORDAN IF IT IS ATTACKED

JERUSALEM, Jordan sector, Nov. 5 (AP) — President Celal Bayar of Turkey hinted today, in the presence of King Hussein and high-ranking Arab Legion officers, that the Turkish army might come to the aid of Jordan if it is attacked by any aggressor.

On a visit to Jerusalem with Jordan's young king, Bayar was briefed by the Jerusalem area commander on the prevailing situation along the Jordan-Israel armistice demarcation line.

"If Jordan is attacked some day do not be astonished if you see the Turkish army fighting on the side of the Arab Legion against the aggressor," Bayar said.

KARACHI, Nov. 5 (AP)—A Pakistani Foreign Office spokesman told reporters today Pakistan would support the "just demands" of Arabs against Israel.

He said "Israeli aggression against Egyptians should be condemned by all right-thinking people throughout the world." He expressed hope that United Nations efforts to bring peace "would bear fruit."

BOLLING GROUP TO OPEN FOREIGN TRADE HEARINGS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — A congressional subcommittee headed by Representative Richard Bolling (Dem.), Kansas City, will begin hearings Wednesday on the nation's foreign economic policy.

Bolling said the study would explore the relation of our foreign economic policy to the continued growth and stability of the domestic economy.

The subcommittee, a unit of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, also will "reexamine policies of the Government to test their consistency with the basic principles of international trade," he said.

The Wednesday session will open with a discussion of the importance of foreign economic policy to the American people by a representative of the Department of State.

TRICK-OR-TREAT YOUNGSTERS LIVE UP TO WOMAN'S TRUST

DUMAS, Tex., Nov. 5 (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Hastings had to be gone from home Halloween night but she hung a sign on the door saying: "Hello. Come in."

Lights were on throughout the house. A sign near a large bowl of taffy candy said: "Take two each and leave some for the other children."

Near a guest book was another sign: "I would like to have my guests sign this book. Love to all, Dorothy Hastings."

About 150 names had been scrawled in the guest book when she returned about 10 p.m.

"The house was still in good order," Mrs. Hastings said. "There was even candy left in the bowl and the children had been perfect ladies and gentlemen."

RALPH MORGAN, CAMDENTON, HEAD OF STATE PARK BOARD

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5 (AP)—Ralph Morgan of Camdenton, a Democrat, was named chairman of the bipartisan state park board yesterday. In the annual shuffle of positions on the board, Morgan succeeds Charles W. Boutin of Cape Girardeau, a Republican.

Dr. William Fuson of Trenton was named vice chairman.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (AP)—A dozen Canadian ship-building yards have been approached by the Russians on the possibilities of placing orders. The Soviets seem chiefly interested in small craft such as coastal freighters, dredges and barges.

JAPAN LEFTISTS AND POLICE CLASH AT U.S. AIR BASE

TOKYO, Nov. 5 (UP)—More than 100 persons were reported injured today in clashes between police and leftwing rioters and villagers attempting to block a survey of land needed for expansion of a United States air base.

The Kyodo news agency said that 45 demonstrators were hurt in the day-long skirmishes. Police headquarters reported 60 policemen suffered injuries, most of them minor.

Labor unionists from Tokyo led by Socialist Diet (parliament) members locked arms to form human walls in the attempt to prevent Japanese government surveyors from entering Sunakawa village on the edge of the huge United States Tachikawa air base.

Japanese police bodily lifted members of the human barricade and dumped them into a ditch to clear the way for the survey party.

The government sent in more than 1000 police after previous attempts by the survey teams were frustrated by the demonstrators.

CHEMICAL AWARD TO C. S. HAMILTON

1955 Midwest Medal Presented to Nebraska U. Chemist.

Cliff S. Hamilton, retired chairman of the University of Nebraska department of chemistry and chemical engineering, received the 1955 Midwest medal of the St. Louis Section of the American Chemical Society last night at a banquet at the Kingsway Hotel.

In an address, Dr. Hamilton appealed to industry to help make college teaching careers more attractive to graduate scientists and engineers trained for industry by universities. He said competent teachers can aid in bringing better trained scientists to industry.

About half the nation's largest manufacturers now have some type of program for aiding education, he said, but there still is much to be done if the universities are to continue furnishing industry with top quality chemists and chemical engineers.

"Along with the elementary and secondary schools, almost every college and university in the United States finds itself in a financial predicament," he said. "Conditions in some instances are so critical that some of the colleges may be forced to close down completely." He appealed for financial aid for the schools.

Dr. Hamilton cited research and teaching fellowships as ways of helping outstanding students in need of financial aid. He also praised the policy adopted by many companies of coupling a fellowship grant with a gift to the college department concerned to help meet expenses.

Financial aid to small colleges is necessary if larger universities are to continue getting well-trained men seeking graduate degrees in scientific studies, he said.

DENIES PUBLIC SCHOOLS HAVE HURT THE CHURCHES

Public schools in the United States "have not hurt the churches and are not Godless, as is sometimes charged," Jordan L. Larson, superintendent of schools at Mt. Vernon, N.Y., who will preside at the National Conference on Religion and Public Education here, said last night.

Larson, arriving with other officers of the three-day conference, which will begin today at Hotel Chase, said "public education and religion have flourished together in this country." He remarked that 98,000,000 Americans belong to religious bodies, the highest percentage of such membership in history.

Larson also is chairman of the committee on religious and public education of the National Council of Churches. The conference will be attended by about 250 invited delegates from Protestant denominational boards and other groups.

MAN KILLS SELF IN TAVERN; BARTENDER IS WOUNDED

Ted M. Mullins, an electrician, shot and killed himself yesterday in the Plaza Bar, 3231 Olive street, wounding the bartender slightly when he tired to stop Mullins.

Clarence Bryant, the bartender, said Mullins was given permission to go behind the bar where he had been allowed to keep his electrical tools. Instead of getting his tools, Mullins picked up a .38 caliber revolver owned by Jack Stein, operator of the bar, placed the barrel in his mouth and fired, Bryant said. The bullet grazed Bryant's right hand as it emerged.

Mullins had made his home at the New Plaza Hotel, 3301 Olive. H. L. Maddox, resident manager, said Mullins had been despondent for several years. He was about 50 years old.

SYRIAN PARLIAMENT OK'S MILITARY PACT WITH EGYPT

DAMASCUS, Nov. 5 (UP)—The Syrian Parliament tonight approved the Syrian-Egyptian bilateral military pact calling for joint action in the event of aggression against either nation.

The pact, which was initialed Oct. 20, will become effective within 48 hours after it is signed by President Kuwatly. Egyptian Premier Nasser has already signed it.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

COSTS, PRICES UP

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP).

BUSINESS surged ahead on nearly all fronts this week but there were signs of occasional strains and stresses. Business men riding the crest of the boom worried about material shortages, "tight" money and rising costs. Consumers were told to expect higher prices.

Price hikes were announced for a growing number of materials and products that go into many of the things you buy. They included: Steel pipe, cement, nickel, platinum, shellac, and plumbing fixtures. Price boosts were requested by producers of cane sugar and crude oil. They cited higher costs of doing business.

Professional buyers for retail stores said higher prices are coming soon for dinnerware, pots and pans, drapes, curtains, rugs, slip covers, toys, washing machines and refrigerators. Retailers, so far, were holding the line—making every effort to avoid passing higher costs on to bargain-conscious consumers.

To keep prices from getting too far out of hand, the Government's money managers have been restricting the amount of money available to the nation's banks for lending. New evidence of this "tight money" policy came from several quarters. Want to buy a car "on time"? Bank rates for consumer installment loans were jacked up this week. The trend was set when New York's First National City Bank raised its personal loan rates for the first time since 1937.

Credit Guess.

Mortgage bankers meeting in Los Angeles said credit for financing new homes is increasingly hard to come by. This year, United States builders will have to put up a total of 1,300,000 new homes. Next year the total may fall to around 1,100,000. But with credit scarce, prices may be lower.

As for credit in general, the best guess seemed to be: Credit will keep on being tight for awhile, but it won't get any tighter than it is now. The Federal Reserve will ease up at the first sign of a business slowdown.

The stock market — possibly scenting credit relief next year —came to life again this week, bounding ahead on Thursday for its biggest gain since mid-October. Immediate cause of Thursday's rise: News that directors of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) had proposed a three-for-one split of the common stock. Jersey Standard shares shot up $7.50 on the day—indicating a paper profit of nearly half a billion dollars for the big oil company's 300,000 stockholders.

Boom Signals.

Other boom signals:

The steel industry, straining at 98 per cent of capacity, reached for a weekly production total of 2,368,000 tons. The week before, with operations at 100 per cent, production hit an all-time high of 2,413,000.

The auto industry swung into the hottest production race in its history. Output for the week was scheduled at 174,000 cars, with Ford and Chevrolet each building more than 40,000.

Retail sales continued on the upbeat. Merchants stocked up for their biggest Christmas season yet as department store sales topped the high levels of a year ago by a hefty eight per cent. A thumping 10 per cent gain in October sales was reported by Sears Roebuck.

There was good news about jobs and payrolls. Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks said the Government's latest batch of employment figures (for October) will show "another sizable increase in jobs." Said Weeks: "An assuring fact is that the number of adult workers—the 'breadwinner' class, 25 years of age or over—reached an all-time record high."

Business Expansion.

Business expansion still made headlines. The New York Central Railroad said it is placing one of the biggest orders in history for new freight cars—a total of 14,750. If all are delivered, the order will come to nearly 118 million dollars.

A tip-off on what's cooking in the automobile industry was given by Ford Motor Co. Chairman Ernest R. Breech. Without citing specific figures (dollar earnings of this family-owned corporation have never been publicly reported), Breech said Ford's profits for the first nine months of 1955 were greater than those of any previous full year. Ford's competitor, Chrysler Corp., this week said its nine month-earnings soared to $70,637,012 from the $3,724,383 a year earlier.)

Record sums have been spent on expansion, Breech declared, but "we still haven't been able to produce enough cars to meet demand." The industry, he predicted, can count on an even bigger market just ahead. Said Breech: "The so-called market of the future—the big boom we have all been anticipating for the early 1960s—is no longer a distant dream."

Business Scene Briefly.

Briefly over the business scene:

Farm exports for the three months ended Sept. 30 showed a 20 per cent gain over the year-ago quarter, partly because of increased purchasing power overseas. . . . American Tobacco Co. boosted its third quarter earnings to $2.21 a share from $1.69 a year earlier. . . . The Independent Petroleum Association of America predicted that United States demand for petroleum products will climb 3.4 per cent next year. . . . Christmas Club savers will hit the jackpot this month. Checks totaling $1,135,000,000 will be mailed out—an all-time record.

COTTON TEXTILE PRICES CONTINUE TO INCH UPWARDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—Prices continued to inch upwards on numerous constructions in the cotton textile market during the past week. Some types of cloth were difficult to obtain for delivery this year. Resale transactions were more active. This was not a sign of weakness but inability to get much spot cloth from mills. Basis for the strength in the market developed in the previous week when it was revealed that one commission house had sold large quantities of print cloths and some broadcloths for second and third quarter deliveries in 1956—the first such important business that far ahead.

Towards the end of this week, however, mills noted resistance to the latest prices on the part of some converters. The popular 80 square print cloth was still available at 19¾ cents a yard on standard makes though many holders asked 20 cents a yard and more for top qualities.

HOG TOP DECLINES $1.50 TO $13.75, YEAR'S LOW

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Nov. 5 (USDA weekly review of livestock markets).

A very spotted lower market featured cattle trading in initial week of November ended Friday, steers, heifers and cows declining 25 to mostly 50c on average but frequently 75c to $1.00. Feeders as well as fat cattle were equally effected. No change occurred in bulls, vealers and calves. The week's top was $23.25 for 34-head lot of high Choice and Prime 1024-lb. steers, other than which only small lots bettered $22.50 with fewer than a dozen loads all told above $22.00. Good and Choice steers from $18.50-22 comprised the great bulk of the 250 loads of steers present which was lighter than the number the week before. A liberal percentage of steers again exceeded 1100 lbs. and these declined most. A sizeable showing of Commercial to low-Good shortfed steers ranged from $16.00-18.00; a few loads best feeders $18.25-18.75; bulks $15.-50-18.00; bulk Good and Choice heifers and mixed yearlings $17.00-21.50; a few mixed yearlings $22.50; practical top $22.25; top heifers $21.00 for a load; next best $20.50; bulk Good and Choice heifers $17.00-20.25; bulk beef cows $10.00-12.00; Utility and Commercial bulls $12.00-13.50; Prime vealers $29.00 sparingly; bulk Good and Choice $21.00-26.00; many lower grade $12.00-20.00.

Compared last Friday hogs 180-lb. up closed $1.25-1.50 lower; 170-lb. down 75c-$1.00 lower and sows mostly $1.00 lower. Top of $14.75 was scored Monday, closing top $13.75 and an equal of the low for the year. Bulk closing sales U.S. 1-2-3 grade 180-220-lb. $13.25-13.50, a few $13.60 and around 350 head U.S. No. 1 grade 190-210-lb. $13.75; U.S. 1-2-3, mainly 2-3 grade 230-250-lb. $13.00-13.25 and few 260-300-lb. $12.75-12.90; 140-170-lb. $12.75-13.50, few 165-170-lb. $13.75; sows 400-lb. down $12.50-12.75 and some over 550-lb. $11.75.

Compared last Friday wool and shorn lambs little more than steady after losing substantial early-week gains in very dull Friday trading. Bulk Good and Choice wool lambs for week $18.50-20.50, very few to $19.75 late; Cull and Utility wool lambs $10.00-15.00; Good and Choice No. 1 pelt shorn lambs largely $19.00-20.50, little above $19.00 late, while several hundred No. 1 pelt feeder lambs cleared at $17.00-17.50; load Good and Choice 85-lb. wool yearlings brought $16.50, 2 year olds $14.50.

WOOL GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP) — In wool goods this week the emphasis shifted to fall 1956 fabric lines. Several woolen mills opened their fall showings and prices in most instances were unchanged from the previous fall selling season.

Mills reported a good buyer response to their sample offerings. Some cloth buyers appeared anxious to get off to a fast start on fall clothing manufacturing considered a favorable portent for mill operations in the first quarter of next year. Meanwhile mills still received moderate re-orders for spring and summer fabrics. The Australian wool markets were steady.

DOMESTIC COPPER PRICES HOLD FIRM

Chilean Labor Difficulties Send London Fluctuating Widely.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP) — Labor unrest in Chile gave copper users in the United States a scare this week.

The potential threat to supplies in a world market plagued by shortages sent copper's price fluctuating widely in London. But American producers held firm at 43 cents a pound, and custom smelter firms, using scrap to refine, quoted 45 cents. The London price ended the week at 46 cents.

Chilean miners went on strike Monday at mines owned by Anaconda and Kennecott, protesting against a proposed new Chilean Government labor code. Many continued out on Tuesday, a religious holiday. The London price jumped two cents to 46¾c a pound.

When the miners returned to work Wednesday on promise their demands would be considered the London price fell, but was rising again at the end of the week.

Uncertainty as to final settlement of the labor trouble kept United States consumers on edge. The Chilean threat came just when consumers were hoping that supply and demand could be brought into balance in coming weeks.

Copper supplies have been short since mine shutdowns here and abroad earlier this year and last. Chile accounts for about 30 per cent of world production outside the United States and ships considerable tonnage here.

Copper demand remained high here for prompt and nearby delivery. Some producers were taking orders for December delivery. Many custom firms report being sold out for the rest of the year. But one will soon open its books for December delivery of a relative small tonnage.

Brass and wire mills were reported as not generally anxious to take on commitments beyond December, apparently hoping that a better supply situation in the new year will ease prices. This is the hope that labor unrest in Chile could blight.

Lead buying picked up this week. The price held at 15½ cents a pound. Producers reported that supplies were relatively tight for delivery in November.

Zinc's price held firm at 13 cents a pound East St. Louis. Demand for prime western grade was on the slow side, users apparently content with their unusually heavy buying of two weeks ago when some producers tried to raise the price by one half cent. Others didn't go along and after a few days the three returned to the 13 cent level.

Demand for special high grade zinc continues high and the supply was tight. All but one large zinc producer have now increased their premium price for this grade by a quarter cent and now carry it at 14¾ cents a pound delivered.

Platinum prices went up $6 an ounce this week, credited to increasing demand. The metal is now quoted at $97 an ounce for bulk quantities and $105 for small lots.

International Nickel Co. of Canada raised its price to Canadian users by one half cent a pound to 63 Canadian cents. The price to American users remained at 64½ cents. The Canadian price hike was to adjust to recent changes in foreign exchange rates.

WHY MY INCOME CLIMBED FROM $9,000 TO $14,000

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

Since I started reading The Wall Street Journal, my income has increased from $9,000 to $14,000 a year.

The Journal not only tells me how to earn more money—it also tells me how to get more value for the money I spend.

For example, an automotive article in The Journal helped me trade in my old car at the right time. An article on building supplies gave me ideas on remodeling my home and showed me how to save $700.

Articles on food and clothing point out the things to stock up on in order to save money. Articles on taxes guide me on what to do to keep my taxes down.

The Journal also gives me a better understanding of what is going on in the world. In conversation with other men I find that I know how to interpret business and government trends a little better than they do. They wonder where I get my "inside dope."

This story is typical. Because the reports in The Wall Street Journal come to you daily, you get quick warning of any new trend that may affect your income. You get the facts in time to protect your interests or seize a profit.

The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,000 to $20,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small business concerns. It can be of priceless benefit to ambitious young men.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all four big press associations. It costs $20 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $6. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $6 and mail. Or tell us to bill you. SLP 11-4

Published daily right in the Midwest to bring you vital business and Washington news immediately.

WEEK'S STOCK ADVANCE ONE OF BEST OF THE YEAR

Buying Spree Is Set Off by Standard Oil (New Jersey) Proposal to Split Shares.

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—A new surge of enthusiasm for stock splits this week sent the stock market bouncing upward in one of the best advances of the year. The specific spark that set off the buying spree was the proposal by directors of Standard Oil (N.J.) to split the common stock three shares for one. At the same time directors declared a dividend of $1.50 as against $1.25 in the three previous quarters. That did nothing to dampen buying ardor.

The market on the week was higher all around. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $3.80 and closed at $172.70. Measured by that yardstick, the markte now has regained a little more than half of the terrific loss it suffered in the major reaction that started Sept. 26 with news of the President's heart attack.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 12.50 points on the week after a loss of 3.62 in the preceding week. The final figure was 467.35, the highest level since Sept. 29. The 20 rail index gained 2.32 at 152.42 and the 15 utilities at 64.17, rose .92.)

Test of Lows.

The lowest point in the reaction was reached Oct. 11. Then the market rebounded vigorously but soon started what brokers considered a test of the old lows. That test continued through the first three days of this week with the market drifting along without apparent direction and with no enthusiasm whatever.

On Thursday, Jersey Standard directors proposed that they issue three new shares of stock for every one share now outstanding. The response of the public was instantaneous. Everyone wanted to buy. Nobody wanted to sell. Trading had to be halted temporarily on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange until enough sellers could be rounded up to fill the buying orders. It took 30 minutes to get trading underway again. The stock that day gained $7.50 and the next day it was up $6.12 to close at $145. In those two days the holders of the 65½ million outstanding shares of Standard Oil (N.J.) saw nearly $900,000,000 added to their holdings.

Why Stocks Split.

Why did Jersey split? Directors didn't say. Happy stockholders clutched their new wealth and didn't ask. There are a number of reasons why corporations usually split. The lower priced stock is more widely distributed and the number of stockholders increased. It is easier for the corporation to sell newly issued shares. Because each individual share is lower priced, trading on the Stock Exchange is more fluid And, satisfied stockholders are more apt to buy company products.

On the final two trading days this week, high priced issues that were split candidates were in heavy demand, possibly in the belief that if Jersey Standard could do it, they could do it too.

Trade Volume Up.

A lot of critical trading eyes were on Chrysler. On Thursday the stock was up two points, but Friday it fell back 62 cents at $95.87. After the close, directors declared a dividend of 75 cents and an extra of $1, making payments this year $4 as against $4.50 last year. The stock dropped sharply in trading on the Pacific Coast right after the announcement was made. Chrysler directors said nothing about a split.

The week's volume of 9,694,670 shares, was up from the preceding week's 8,991,908. Changing hands were 1397 issues of which 882 were higher, 349 lower and 166 unchanged.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were Standard Oil (N.J.) up 13¼ at 146 on 167,000 shares, Panhandle Oil up 1¼ at 12, Westinghouse Electric up 4⅝ at 58, Chrysler up 2¼ at 95⅞, and Fruehauf Trailer up 4⅜ at 51½.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were Webb & Knapp unchanged at 2½ on 74,000 shares, Hazel Bishop up 1¾ at 7⅛, Pacific Petroleums up ⅜ at 12½, Canadian Atlantic Oil up 5-16 at 6¾, and Great Sweetgrass Oil up ⅛ at 3⅞.

Butler Brothers Report.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—Butler Brothers reported nine months net income of $1,334,429, equal to $1.23 a share, compared with $251,081 or 22 cents a share in like 1954 period. Third quarter net was $924,649, equal to 85 cents a share, against $479,711 or 43 cents a share.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to classify ads under appropriate headings. The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to revise or reject advertisements or to retain answers to any box number advertisement. If this right is exercised the amount paid for the advertisement will be refunded to the advertiser.

It is agreed that the liability of the Pulitzer Publishing Company in the event of failure to publish an advertisement for any reason or in the event that errors occur in the publishing of an advertisement shall be limited to the amount paid by the advertiser. Claims concerning omissions or incorrect insertions will not be considered unless made within 30 days from date of publication.

To place a Want Ad, phone Main 1-1111 and ask for an adtaker. It is not necessary to open an account—just say "charge it." Both cash and charge ads may be placed at our Want Ad Counter, 12th and Olive.

Advertisers using box numbers please ask for "Want Ad Numbers" when inquiring about replies. (C)

AIRCRAFT ENGINEERS

Immediate Openings For:

Aerodynamicists to do original work in the field of aerodynamic design of current and advanced Navy carrier based aircraft. Present openings are for experienced engineers qualified to:

Conduct analysis of performance stability and control data. Conceive original approaches to current and future problems. Set-up and conduct research and development programs in subsonic and supersonic wind tunnels and in flight test. Develop analysis procedures and advanced designs.

Every opportunity will be afforded for original and creative thinking.

Requirements: Applicable degree and 2 to 15 years experience.

Senior Engineer, Flight Test Instrumentation, for long range planning and development of specialized flight test data processing methods and improvement to equipment. Methods will include:

Magnetic tape data recording
Telemetering installations
Digital data techniques

Requirements: BSEE (MS preferred) plus 6 to 15 years aircraft instrument experience.

Experienced Wind Tunnel Model Design Engineers for subsonic and supersonic model design in a rapidly expanding program.

Requirements: AE or ME degree plus 2 to 10 years experience.

Experienced Engineer for the design and development of wind tunnel model force and pressure instrumentation.

Requirements: ME or EE plus 2 to 10 years experience with strain gauge and pressure instrumentation design.

Dynamic Engineers to conduct analytic and experimental studies in the general field of airplane dynamics in a new and rapidly expanding group. Supporting facilities include modern digital and analog computing equipment and a Dynamic Lab facilities are available for:

Ground vibration testing
Flight vibration and flutter testing
Rocket Sled Tests
Wind Tunnel Tests

Requirements: Applicable degree plus 2 to 10 years direct experience.

Mr. W. R. Laidlaw, Group Leader Dynamics and Mr. J. G. Truitt, Engineering Personnel Representative, will interview at the Park Plaza Hotel, St. Louis, on Saturday, November 5th and Sunday, November 6th.

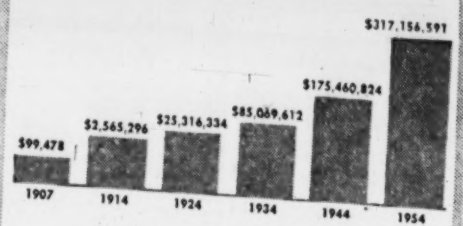
OPPORTUNITY in a dynamic growth company is offered to industrious young men by the W. T. Grant Co.



Grant store managers now earn from $5,500 to $40,000 a year . . . and more!

Young men between the ages of 21 and 29 are invited to investigate the golden OPPORTUNITY offered by one of the 10 largest non-food retail concerns in America—the W. T. Grant Co.

Grants is expanding so rapidly that hundreds of alert young men will be needed in the next several years to manage the many new Grant stores being opened from coast to coast.

SPECIAL TRAINING PROGRAM

An intensive training program which requires at least three years readies ambitious young men to assume complete charge of a variety-department store doing real six-figure volume. Men with an eye to self-improvement who are not afraid of hard work and longer hours will find promotions opening in rapid order for larger stores—some with annual volume well in excess of a million dollars. Freedom to travel to new areas is essential to capitalize on advancement opportunities.

PROMOTIONS WITHIN COMPANY

Grants is a company which seeks to provide maximum opportunities within its own ranks. Today the company president and most of the top executives and buyers are men who advanced from the store management training course. Compulsory retirement for store managers and executives at age 60 insures frequent turnover in the top jobs in the Grant organization.

The retirement program, a model for other concerns since 1942, is just one of the features of Grants advanced personnel policies. Group insurance, liberal vacation and leave plans, employee discounts, sick pay, are just some of the benefits enjoyed by Grant people. Promotion by merit in a "non-family" business is a keystone of Grant operation and growth.

A BLUE CHIP FIRM

More than 500 stores are now operated by Grants. Annual sales exceed $317,000,000. Within a few years the number of stores will pass the 800 mark. The ability to grow is a tribute to the policies inaugurated by Mr. W. T. Grant when he opened his first store in 1906. Grants has never failed to show a profit in each year the company has been in business. W. T. Grant Co. stock is listed in the "Golden Forty" of corporations that have never missed paying regular dividends to stockholders.

Any young man with at least a high school diploma who is not looking for a sinecure and who is willing to work intensively for genuine opportunity should

CIRCUIT DESIGN ENGINEERS for the FALCON GUIDED MISSILE

So accurate and deadly is the Hughes Falcon guided missile produced in Tucson, Arizona, for the U.S. Air Force, that it has knocked maneuvering drone bombers out of the air even without an explosive warhead. Although its electronic brain can outwit any enemy bomber, it is the smallest guided missile in production.

Because of this small size and consequent extreme miniaturized packaging, new production techniques have had to be conceived. This leads to production testing of individual parts, small integrated units, self-contained components, complete integrated systems and simulated environmental performance.

The development of equipment for producing and testing of such a missile provides a continuous challenge to engineers experienced in electronic circuit design including the following:

Pulse
Power Supply Translator
IF and RF
Clamping
Wave Shaping
Switching
Phase Shift
Input-Output
Modulator
Discriminator
Feedback

ANNOUNCING EXPANSION of the
ROCKET AND RAMJET SECTION OF GENERAL ELECTRIC'S AIRCRAFT GAS TURBINE DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT

The performance records of rockets and ramjets as powerplants for supersonic missiles and aircraft have led to accelerated design and development activities in the field. Engineers who wish to contribute to advances in propulsion will be interested in the following openings created by expansion at GE:

Rockets . . . Schenectady, N. Y.

—Design and develop rocket engine valves, seals and piping. Establish and maintain standards and instructions for their manufacture, test, installation and operation.
—Design, develop, construct and test rocket-engine seals and piping. Prepare standards and instructions for their manufacture test and use.
—Assemble and test rocket engines from their functional components. Design and develop supporting members needed to mount engine components.
—Design, develop, construct and test propellant pumps. Conduct performance analysis.
—Design, develop, construct and test turbines. Conduct performance analysis.

Ramjets . . . Cincinnati, Ohio

—Review and evaluate ramjet specifications for missiles and aircraft; provide information for preliminary design to specifications, including engine size, layout, cycle and estimated performance as well as components, and operating conditions.
—Create, design and analyze advanced ramjets for use in aircraft and missiles; recommend on advanced components development.

THE BITTERNESS OF POOR QUALITY KILLS THE SWEETNESS OF LOW PRICE

In this era of fancy claims about down payment and big sales, we wish to go on record and state that OUR SUCCESS is built upon the principle of treating every customer as we would want to be treated. All our cars are recondtioned and inspected by experts to assure you of a sound car mechanically and appearance-wise. The sale price of our cars is in line with the quality of the merchandise. Seldom do we ever get a complaint on the sale of one of our new-car trade-ins.

TRULY we take a personal interest in all our customers and feel by giving sincere service to everybody we make more friends. It is not unusual for a customer to bring his friends and relatives, knowing they will be treated fairly and squarely. Our business is negotiated with a feeling of true friendship.

WHEN BUYING your next car, see us, get a better used car and join our club of happy owners . . . YOU'LL never regret it.

New Record for Lane, A Month and No Trade.

THE Cardinal picture is entirely different from the one that Frank Lane found when he took over the front office of the Chicago White Sox. Any trade was a good trade for the White Sox of those forlong days, because any deal subtracted some unsatisfactory players from the Chicago roster. It was what Branch Rickey used to call improvement by substraction.

Lane didn't have any outstanding players in those days and that's why he started on a wild, if far-sighted program that set a new record for wholesale player transactions.

That Frank understands that things are different at Busch Stadium is indicated by the fact that it is almost a month since he became general manager of the Redbirds and he hasn't made a deal yet. He said when he took the job that he wouldn't trade just for the sake of trading and Redbird fans who feared he might recklessly trade away the club's assets find some reassurance in what has happened thus far.

Talent being as scarce as it is, Lane will have difficulty obtaining what the Cardinals need. He is looking for a veteran catcher, a first baseman, improved pitching and some right-handed hitting power.

It may be that spring training will find the Cardinals still hoping for the help that is so obviously needed. It may be that the club will have to look to its farm system for the help, or most of it.

Lane made an important move the other day. He named Mike Ryba, 1955 manager at Houston, as a special assignment scout. Mike's first job will be to see what's going on during the winter season in Havana, where the Cardinals will have some important young talent playing for Mike Gonzalez's team.

Mizell and Jones Could Make a Big Difference.

VINEGAR BEND MIZELL and Gordon Jones are pitching for the Havana team. They are highly important in the Redbird picture. Jones indicated in 1954 that he could pitch big league ball. Last year he was a disappointment. The story out of Cuba is that Adolfo Luque is working on Jones's curve ball. Ryba knows a lot about pitching and catching and should be able to lend an important hand.

And there's another point. All managers like to win. Mizell and Jones could be the big guys on the Havana staff. There might be an occasional tendency to lean too heavily on Mizell and Jones. But with Ryba on the job as an observer, Mizell and Jones are not likely to be overworked, just to save a few ball games.

Apparently the scouting division of the Cardinal organization is in for some changes. And for several years there have been observers who wondered if the Cardinals were finding their share of players with the major league potential. There has been no criticism of the quantity production. Down at the Class D level the Redbird scouts have done very well. But too frequently mistakes have been made about players supposedly ready for the big league test.

For instance, a few years ago the club paid a fairly stiff price for a rookie first baseman. The infielder had a fine batting average and his slugging percentage was impressive. But when he reported at spring training camp it was learned in about five minutes that he had a permanently bad ankle. He could do everything but run. There was no excuse for the scouts not knowing about that first baseman's ankle.

There were other cases, too. We never could understand about the high rating given several rookie infielders who quickly proved at St. Petersburg that they positively not only were not ready to play big league ball, but never would be big leaguers.

Undoubtedly Lane has some definite ideas about improving the efficiency of the procurement department and getting more reliable information about players who are available, in the organization, or by purchase or trade.

What Is an Amateur? Well, It All Depends.

JACK KRAMER'S recent efforts to sign the Australian Davis Cup stars, Rosewall and Hoad, to professional tennis contracts, started many arguments and much discussion about just what constitutes amateurism.

Apparently there is no satisfying answer. It depends on the sport, the place and the men who are in charge of the various activities.

Amateurism in golf is one thing, amateurism in tennis seems to be another. Golf club members can't take up a collection to send a young golfer to a tournament with-

Oklahoma	14	0	0	6	20

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 5—The opportunistic Oklahoma football powerhouse, which knows a good thing when it sees one or three, seized upon Missouri mistakes and, scoring twice within 40 seconds late in the first quarter, kept alive college football's longest current winning streak today at Memorial Stadium.

A hopeful crowd of 31,618 saw the Tigers stand up manfully to the Red Wreckers defensively most of the way—Oklahoma just isn't quite so awesome in those white road jerseys—but Ol' Mizzou couldn't mount a sustained offensive effort in a 20-0 game.

So the alert Oklahomans, bidding strongly for a National championship ahead of Maryland now that Michigan tripped over Illinois and a rugged schedule, gained their twenty-sixth straight triumph since Notre Dame topped 'em in an opening-game thriller two years ago. The Sooners have played 51 consecutive Big Seven conference contests without defeat and they've scored in 102 straight games, extending their own collegiate record.

Sooners Rush for 310 Yards.

The swift-striking Oklahoma team, making better use of split-T halfback running passes than any previous Bud Wilkinson squad, held the upper hand throughout, matching its nation-leading rushing average, 310 yards. But the Sooners had their hands full, too, as the tough Tiger interior line fought savagely in the penalty-pocked action.

It was, in fact, just about the roughest game the green turf of the sunken stadium in Little Dixie has held in many a season, requiring frequent red flags of violations as the striped-shirted officials sternly kept the teams from breaking into mass muckerism. They penalized Oklahoma nine times for 115 yards, Missouri seven for 75 and finally chased Clendon Thomas, Sooner sophomore halfback star, for throwing a punch that landed.

Penalties at times hobbled the Sooners, who had been favored from 22 to 26 points, but twice Missouri fouls gave transfusions to dying Oklahoma drives, a revitalization that led to the white-uniformed Red Wreckers' first and third touchdowns. The second TD came 40 seconds after the first, a result of a fumble recovered immediately following the kickoff.

By contrast, Missouri never came closer to scoring than the Oklahoma 27-yard line—and then not until the final minutes—but the pressbox impression concurred with Wilkinson's post-game observation.

"I thought both teams played well all the way."

Faurot Praises McDonald.

The veteran Don Faurot, too, praised the hard play of the athletes, lauding Oklahoma as worthy of representing the Big Seven in the Orange Bowl game, and described the Sooners' Tommy McDonald as "the best all-around halfback we've met this year."

The 169-pound junior halfback from Albuquerque, N.M., leading the Big Seven in ground-gaining, scored his eleventh and twelfth touchdowns of the season, ripping off 96 yards in 13 carries. In addition, taking pitchouts from Quarterback Jimmy Harris, he fired passes on the run better

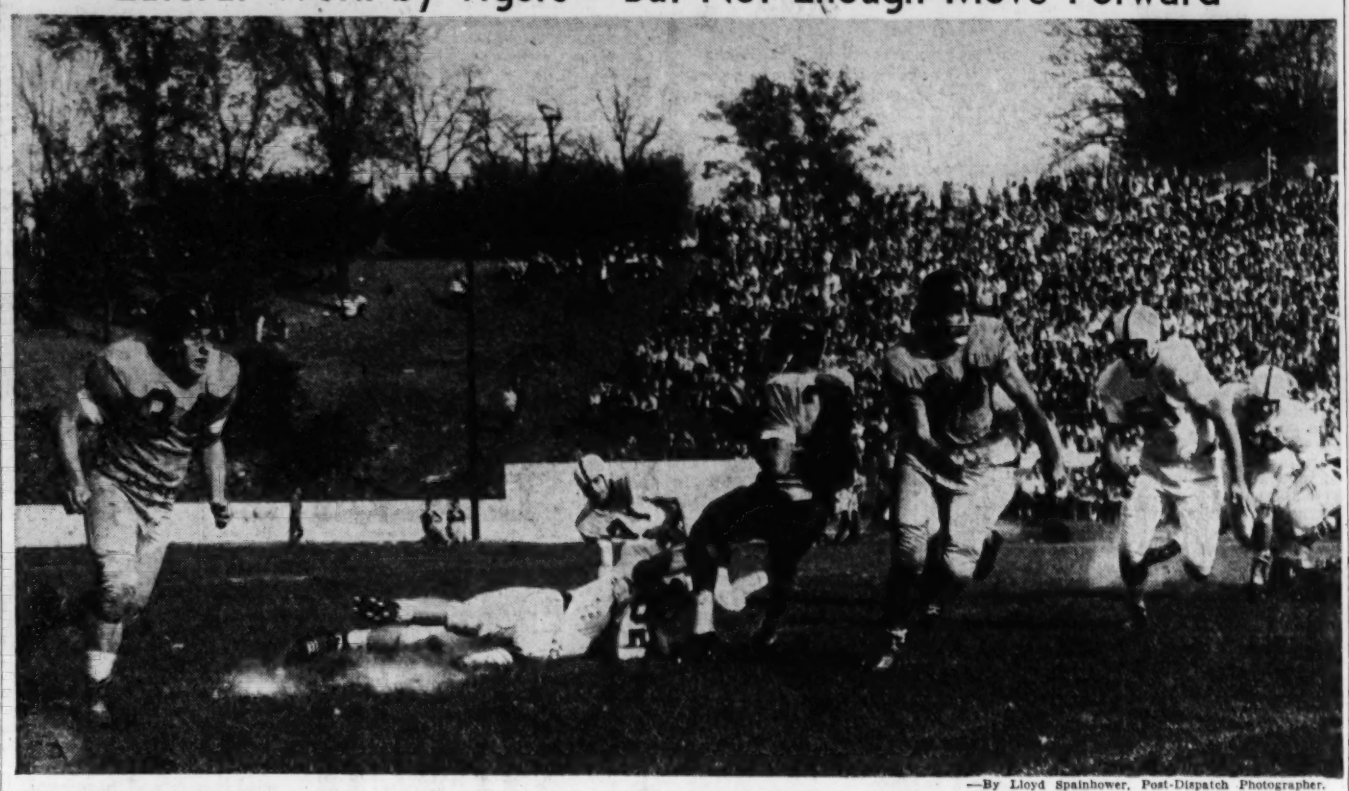
Lateral Work by Tigers --- But Not Enough Move Forward



—By Lloyd Spainhower, Post-Dispatch Photographer.

7452 Watch Hawks Beat Lakers, 101-89, In Their NBA Opener

By John J. Archibald

Pro basketball came back to St. Louis in a happy manner last night as the transplanted Hawks led the Minneapolis Lakers all the way and won, 101 to 89, in a National Basketball Association opener at Kiel Auditorium.

A crowd of 7452 persons, passive at first but gradually rising to college-like enthusiasm as the Lakers threatened in the second half, welcomed the Hawks to their new home.

Frank Selvy and Bob Pettit were the St. Louis club's leading scorers with 21 points apiece, and they complemented each other by getting hot in opposite ends of the game. Selvy was virtually the only Hawk who could hit the basket in the first quarter, as he got 18 of his team's 32 points. St. Louis led by nine after the period.

Pettit, who had been benched off and on in the first half because of his inability to connect, began to look like the league All-Star he was last season in the second half.

The Hawks led by 14 points, 54-42, at the half and 76-68 after the third period. Then 6-foot-9 Clyde Lovellette and husky Ed Kalafat made it hot for the suddenly cool Hawks.

During the first four minutes of the final period the Hawks couldn't make a field goal and a hook shot by Kalafat brought the Minneapolis team the closest it had been since the opening minutes of the game, just one point back at 78-77.

Chuck Cooper hit a pair of free throws for St. Louis but Lovellette kept his team within a point at 80-79 with a fine hook shot. Notre Dame's Jack Stephens got the Hawks' first field goal of the quarter, however, a pretty jump shot that gave St. Louis a three-point lead and that proved to be the extent of the Minneapolis threat.

The Hawks did remarkably well at controlling the boards after that, repeatedly limiting the Lakers to a single shot, as St. Louis pulled away. Pettit iced the game with three field goals in the last two minutes.

Lovellette was the night's highest scorer with 27 points, including nine field goals.

Behind Pettit and Selvy as Hawk scorers were seven-foot Charley Share, a tremendous rebounder, with 16 points, and Bob Harrison with 13.

Syracuse Captures 114-113 OT Thriller

Knicks Nip Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 5 (AP)—The New York Knickerbockers spoiled the home opening for the Rochester Royals and 6123 fans in their new $7,000,000 war memorial tonight by nipping the Royals in overtime 100-98 in a National Basketball Association game.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 5 (AP)—Touchdown runs of 71 and 55 yards by Eddie Sutton and three short scoring strikes by Buddy Sasser gave North Carolina a 32-14 victory over fumbling South Carolina today in the ninth annual Oyster Bowl football game before a sellout 25,000 at Foreman Field.

Four fumbles at key stages and a goal line pass interception thwarted the favored South Carolinians, whose scores came on a 69-yard run by Sophomore Carrol McClain and a 68-yard screen pass from Mackie Prickett to Carl Brazell.

Bears Beat S.I.U., Siegel Gets 3 TDs

W'shingt'n	7	13	6	6	32
So. Ill.	0	6	0	7	13

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 5—Washington University left Southern Illinois still wondering what it would be like to defeat a Bear team as the Washington eleven rolled to a 32-13 victory behind their one-two punch of Don Polkinghorne and Mel Siegel. Today's win, the Bears sixth over the Salukis without a loss in the series between the two schools, spoiled Southern Illinois' homecoming festivities for the largest crowd ever to see the Salukis play. More than 9400 jammed McAndrew Stadium for the game.

What the Southern fans saw was Washington tailback Mel Siegel crash over for three touchdowns and Bear fullback Don Polkinghorne hit pay dirt twice, once on an 80-yard kickoff return as the Bears quickly dispelled any ideas the Salukis had of ending the Washington jinx.

The Bears got off to a good start toward the victory, their third in a row and fourth against three defeats this season, when Siegel scored his first touchdown a two-yard plunge with 25 seconds to go in the first quarter. Just seconds before the Bears had taken over Southern's 12-yard line when a bad fourth down pass to punter Wayne Williams had kept the Salukis from punting out of danger. End Don Sauer kicked the extra point for the Bears to make the score 7-0.

The Salukis looked as if they were going to make a tussle of it when they intercepted a Siegel-thrown pass and went on to score with fleet halfback Jack Schneider going 26 yards for the touchdown early in the second quarter. Fullback Bill Spratt failed on his point conversion, but the Bears lead was a slim 7-6.

Polkinghorne Gets Going.

About this time Polkinghorne took charge and began to pile up some of the 205 yards rushing that were his when the final gun sounded. Don carried for 45 of the 65 yards the Bears marched for their second score, including 19 yards over his own left tackle for the touchdown. Southern's Jim Lynch blocked Sauer's extra point attempt to hold Washington's lead to 13-6.

A few minutes later the Bears recovered a Southern Illinois fumble on the Salukis' 40 and marched down to the 2. Quarterback Mike Bollinger elected to use his pile-driving friend Mel Siegel to ram the Saluki line, and Siegel added another six points to his team leading scoring mark. Sauer's point was good and the Bears left the field at the half with a 20-6 lead.

Washington wasn't to be denied in the second half when they added two more touchdowns to one for Southern Illinois. Again the Bears struck first and again Mel Siegel did the striking as he carried the final 4 yards of a 59-yard drive in the third quarter. Siegel's three - touchdown performance today is old stuff for him. He turned the same feat in the Bears 26-14 victory over Western Michigan three Saturdays ago.

Don Polkinghorne added the frosting on the cake for the Bears as he raced 80 yards on a kickoff return late in the fourth quarter.

The Salukis had scored their

Irish Get Scare but Win, 46-14

NOTRE DAME	7	7	13	19—	46
PENN	0	7	7	0—	14

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5 (AP)—Sophomore Frank Riepl returned the opening kickoff 108 yards for a touchdown and Pennsylvania's biggest thrill of the football season today, but only delayed things as Notre Dame rallied its forces in the second half and whipped past the Quakers, 46-14.

Steamed up by Riepl's astounding speed, the winless Quakers took the lead a second time in the opening half, 14-7, before they finally yielded to the superior power of a Notre Dame team that was ranked sixth in the nation in this week's Associated Press poll.

Notre Dame, surprised into a series of mistakes in the first half, asserted itself in the second when it scored two third period touchdowns on a pair of 69-yard drives to take command of the game, then ran away in the last period.

Even then Riepl, one of the brash young sophomores who have been developing under Steve Sebo's careful coaching while Penn was losing, refused to knuckle down to the mighty Irish. He threw a pass to Bob Barber for Penn's second touchdown, played superbly on defense and ripped off a couple of long gains while Penn was ground under in the second half.

Don Schaefer, Notre Dame's workhorse fullback, smashed through for two touchdowns in the third quarter that put Notre Dame ahead. Then Halfbacks Jim Morse and Dean Studer began ripping huge holes through the tiring Penn line for three more touchdowns in the last quarter. Paul Hornung flipped a 20-yard pass to Dick Prendergast for one, Dick Fitzgerald bucked a yard for another and Carl Hebert pitched 24 yards to George Wilson for the third.

The crowd of 45,226 thrilled more to Penn's unexpected first half performance than it did to Notre Dame's second half superiority. In spite of the score, it was Penn's finest performance of a dismal season and Penn fans ripped down the goal posts even before the last play.

Notre Dame scoring—Touchdowns: Morse (5, run); Kapish (8, pass from Hornung); Schaefer 2 (3, plunge and 12, run); Prendergast (20, pass from Hornung); Fitzgerald (1, plunge); Wilson (24, pass from Hebert). Conversions: Schaefer 4.

Penn scoring — Touchdowns: Riepl (108, runback of kickoff); Barber (9, pass from Riepl). Conversions: Riepl 2.

SOPHOMORE MITCHELL IS STAR WITH LONG RUNS

Michigan	0	6	0	0	6
Illinois	6	0	6	13	25

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 5—Bob Mitchell, 20 - year - old sophomore Negro halfback from Hot Springs, Ark., who had played second fiddle in his young football career at Illinois, strummed a rousing tune today as the Fighting Illini knocked off previously unbeaten Michigan, 25 to 6.

Em Lindbeck, a senior quarterback playing his final Memorial Stadium game before a howling mob of 59,968, was the Toscanini of the Illinois orchestration that handed Michigan its first defeat in seven games.

But the sprinter who played behind J. C. Caroline in the spring and behind top ground-gainer Harry Jefferson all this season, took over the melody with a 54-yard run and a 64-yard scoring dash that struck the spark.

J. C. Caroline himself in his day had only three better games in yardage gained than did Mitchell today, and the rookie didn't get his chance until the third quarter, when a rib injury sent Jefferson to the sidelines.

17.3-Yard Average.

Altogether Mitchell carried the ball 10 times for 173 yards, representing a brilliant 17.3 average that hit a futile Michigan team in a vital spot.

It was, however, only the most sensational part of what Ray Eliot accurately described as a team victory, obtained by a hard-charging group of 25 Illini who were fast in pursuit and tough in air defense.

Michigan, which had been ranked first or near the top in the country in the various polls, possessed two of the most agile receivers at the ends, Ron Kramer and Tom Maentz. But Kramer caught only one pass, Maentz none, and the Wolves made only 17 yards in the air.

This was partly the fault of the Michigan throwers, Jimmy Maddock primarily and others secondarily, for they were wide of their targets often and didn't complete a pass until late in the third quarter, on the twelfth of 21 attempts.

As a result Michigan totaled only 174 yards rushing and passing and was outdone by Illinois's 315 yards running and 123 yards passing for a total of 438.

The defeat thrust the Wolverines into second place in the conference race with a 4-1 mark, trailing Ohio State, whose victory over Indiana gave it a 4-0 league mark.

Still in Bowl Picture.

Nevertheless, Michigan continues to hold a chance at the Rose Bowl because Ohio is ineligible to go to Pasadena. It went last season. Michigan State, playing only a six-game schedule, has a 4-1 record with one game left. Michigan still must meet Indiana and Ohio State at home.

Illinois, now only 2-3 in league action and 4-3 overall, will have lots of fond memories, though, when New Year's rolls around. Illini fans will remember long this fifth victory in the last six years over Michigan, another upset to go into Illinois's book of great games with the Wolverines.

The in-and-out quarterbacking of Lindbeck was strictly "in" on this warm, sunny afternoon and he threw two touchdown passes, the second one on an old fake field goal setup that hadn't been used in a long time.

An early jump pass by Michigan's Lou Baldacci went straight into the hands of Illinois Center Jim Minor and the interception gave the Illini the ball on their 39. In eight plays they scored. Jefferson on a handoff got 18 at the Michigan 32 and Lindback rifled two passes to End Bob Desenfants, the first for seven yards and the second for 25 and a touchdown.

Dick Miller's conversion attempt was low and that looked important for a while.

An illegal fourth-down forward meant to be a lateral, spoiled an Illinois chance at the Michigan 28 early in the second quarter.

The Illini lost another opportunity presented by Percy Oliver's block of Maentz's punt on the Michigan 41. Desenfants immediately juggled a Lindbeck pass and Tom Hendricks snatched the ball for Michigan on its 34.

Branoff Scores for Wolves.

And, then, late in the first half, Lindberg lost the ball on a handoff fumble and Baldacci recovered on the Illinois 17. Tony Branoff went over left guard for the total distance and a touchdown. Fortunately for the home team, however, Ron Kramer, set to try the conversion place-kick, had to attempt a pass when a bad center snap spoiled the set-up and Kramer couldn't find a legal receiver.

So it was 6-6 at the half and Illinois might have remembered at this point that it hadn't made a third-period score against Big Ten foes all seaseon.

But early in the third quarter Jefferson was hurt, an injury

Colgate's Red Raiders Rout Bucknell, 35-7

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 5 (UP)—Colgate punctured Bucknell's green line for long scoring drives to defeat the Bisons today, 35-7, before a homecoming crowd of 6800 at Memorial Field.

The Red Raiders scored in every period and were forced to punt only twice in the game.

Bucknell's only score came in the third quarter when quarterback Jim Stewart took a kickoff and raced from his own 18-yard line to the Colgate 2, from where Don Koppes plunged over.

Orange and white have been the official colors for the University of Texas for 55 years.

Elis End Old Series In Glory

ARMY	—	—	0	6	0	6—12
YALE	—	—	0	7	0	7—14

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5 (AP)—An inspired Yale football team struck a blow for the Ivy League's reputation by upsetting heavily favored Army, 14 to 12, in Yale Bowl before 61,000, the East's biggest crowd of the season.

Dick Winterbauer converted after both Eli touchdowns while Ralph Chesnauskas missed both kicks for Army to spell the difference.

The Elis, spotting the Cadets a touchdown lead early in the second quarter, rallied to go in front 7-6 at the half and then scored again in the last quarter after outplaying the West Pointers.

The hard-fought battle, ending one of the most colorful football series between an Ivy League team and a major "independent," was clinched about midway in the last period when Al Ward sliced off tackle from the 4.

Pete Lash sent Army in front early in the second period with a 21-yard end run. Later Dean Loucks tossed to Paul Lopata, a 15-yard pass and run touchdown play and Winterbauer's placement put Yale in front to stay.

Just before the game ended, Army moved 86 yards in six plays, the climax of which was a 6-yard touchdown pass from Don Holleder to Art Johnson. Ralph Chesnauskas failed to kick the extra point after both touchdowns.

Texas Aggies Top SMU, 13-2, Lead in League

SOUTHERN METHODIST	0	0	2	0	2
TEXAS A. & M.	0	13	0	0	13

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Nov. 5 (AP)—The opportunists of Texas A.&M. used Southern Methodist miscues tonight to speed to a 13-2 victory and roll on at the top of a riotous Southwest Conference football race.

The Aggies recovered 5 Southern Methodist fumbles, intercepted 2 passes and partially blocked one kick.

Each Aggie touchdown was set up by an SMU error but when the Cadets miscued they fought back to overcome it. Only once did they fail—and that allowed the 2 points Southern Methodist scored. It came on a safety caused by an Aggie fumble in the end zone.

Giant Jack Pardee, the Aggie fullback who had been the big man in A&M's through-the-middle attack, was halted except for one long run over the tiring Methodists in the last minutes. But he led an Aggie defense that kept the men of SMU from inside the A&M 20. His linebacking added power to the Aggie's gritty defense.

A crowd of 36,000 watched the game.

Penn's 108-Yard Run Against Notre Dame

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Pennsylvania's back FRANK RIEPL, in center, closely flanked by teammate end BOB BARKER (84) heads for paydirt in game against Notre Dame at Philadelphia after taking the opening kickoff 8 yards behind his own goal line. Notre Dame's quarterback PAUL HORNUNG (5) who kicked off for the Irish is being taken out of play by an unidentified Penn blocker, clearing the way for Riepl to score. Penn's CHARLEY McKINNEY (22) is coming in to give Riepl additional protection. Identifiable Notre Dame players are DON SCHAEFER (9), JIM MENSE (51) and PAT BISCEGALIA (62).

Baylor Loses To Texas on Missed Kick

TEXAS	—	—	0	14	7	0—21
BAYLOR	—	—	7	0	7	6—20

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 5 (AP)—The Texas Longhorns withstood a furious finish by the Baylor Bears today to win a 21-20 victory as Baylor's final conversion attempt sailed wide.

Failure to kick the extra point came with 2:50 remaining in the game. It left Texas in strong contention for the Southwest Conference championship with a showdown coming next week against Texas Christian.

The Longhorns now have won three straight—over preseason favorites—Rice, Southern Methodist, and Baylor. Texas has lost only to Arkansas but still faces its most formidable foes, TCU and Texas A&M.

The victory margin came off the toe of halfback Walt Fondren, who kicked three consecutive extra points.

Baylor scored first on a 2-yard plunge by Del Shofner in the opening quarter. Texas urged back in the second, halfback Ed Hawkins scoring on a 25-yard sprint, and Texas went ahead to stay when fullback Larry George smashed over from the 4.

A 39-yard pass play, Fondren to end Menan Schriewer, accounted for Texas' third tally in the third quarter.

Auburn 27, Miss State 26 In Wild One

AUBURN	—	—	7	0	13	7—27
MISS. STATE	6	6	7	7—26

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 5 (AP)—Fob James flashed 61 yards to set up one touchdown and got another on a 75-yard run with an intercepted pas today as Auburn outscored Mississippi State 27-26 in a wild offensive football show.

Fullback Joe Childress provided the victory margin with three conversions in four attempts, not to mention his effective running and defensive play.

A surprisingly potent passing attack engineered by quarterback Bill Stanton and the running of halfback Art Davis kept State in the game until the end.

The outcome seriously hurt State's Southeastern Conference championship hopes but kept Auburn in the running for the title and a major bowl bid. It was State's first loss after six straight victories and gave the Maroons a 4-2 conference record. Auburn stand 3-1-1 in conference play, good for second place behind Mississippi, which has a 4-1 record.

State held leads of 6-0 and 12-7 in the first half, but James's interception of Stanton's pass shortly after halftime gave Auburn a lead the Plainsmen never relinquished.

Bears Defeat S.I.U., Siegel Gets 3 TDs, Polkinghorne Two

second and final touchdown moments before on a 74-yard drive. Al Rodger, substitute fullback, carried the ball over for Southern Illinois and Bill Spratt kicked the point for the Salukis.

Despite an injury to Dave Ladd, Bears' first-string right guard, the Washington line was outstanding in the game. Freshman Gary Groh started in place of Ladd, who did get in for some of the game. Iron men on the line for Washington were tackle Jesse Horstman and end Don Sauer who played the whole game. Southern Illinois tackle Ed Hayes went all the way also.

While Polkinghorne was ramming his way for 205 yards rushing in 26 carries, Southern's right half Jack Schneider was giving the large homecoming gathering something to cheer about with a total of 88 yards gained rushing in eight carries. Schneider, a fast, tricky runner, was the outstanding man on the field for Coach Al Kawal's Salukis who now have a 2-4-1 record.

Colorado's 5th Win A 37-7 Rout of Utah

COLORADO	—	0	25	0	12—37
UTAH	—	—	—	0	0	7	0	7

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 5. (UP) — Colorado's bruisers needed only two minutes and 34 seconds—time enough for three touchdowns—to convert its coach's many student critics into a cherring mob today and smash Utah, 37-7, before 20,500 fans.

Only last Saturday the student body chanted uncomplimentary slogans against Coach Dallas Ward and his old fashioned single wing offense while Missouri was handing Colorado its second straight defeat, 20-12.

Today's victory gave Colorado a 5-2 record and its was a Big Seven team's first win this season over a Skyline Conference foe.

Oregon Romps Past Washington State, 35-0

OREGON	14	14	0	7	35

PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 5 (UP)—Speedy Oregon, with Fullback Jack Morris and Halfback Jim Shanley leading the way, romped to an easy 35-0 victory over hapless Washington State today.

Morris, a 185-pound sophomore who runs the 100-yard dash in 9.8, teamed with Shanley to spark four touchdown drives in the first half as the slow Washington State defenders watched helplessly. Four others scored TDs and Morris went over once.

Both Miss Tries for Field Goal

DUKE	—	—	—	0	0	7	0—7
NAVY	—	—	—	0	0	7	0—7

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5 (AP)—Fullback Bryant Aldridge's running for Duke offset sensational second half passing by George Welsh of Navy today as the teams battled to a 7-7 football draw. Each missed breaking the tie with tries for field goals in the last quarter.

Duke's Jim Nelson missed a field goal from the 15 in the last 40 seconds. Navy's Ned Oldham tried one unsuccessfully just before that from the Duke 40 after the Blue Devils had knocked the Middies back from their own 11.

The teams, after trying little more than to buck each other's lines in the first half before 27,119 in Memorial Stadium, scored in the third quarter.

Welsh, completing seven straight passes after the second half opened, pitched Navy to its score on a 13-yard pass to all-America end Ron Beagle. Twice during the 84-yard drive, Welsh gambled on last down on his own 37 and Duke's 37 for first downs and substitute back Vince Monto made them good.

Duke, which stuck to the ground all the way with quarterback Sunny Jurgensen throwing only six times and completing none, got even after Welsh pulled a questionable play. The Navy quarterback made a vain stab for a bouncing punt which he couldn't hold and Bernie Blaney recovered on the Navy 35.

Aldridge, 192-pounder from Kinston, N.C., bulled the last 27 yards by himself on four hits at the Navy line and scored from the 1.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

Akins Signs for Bout in Garden.

VIRGIL AKINS, St. Louis welterweight who is ranked third among the contenders for the 147-pound championship now held by Carmen Basilio of Syracuse, N.Y., was much put out when he was passed over as an opponent for Vince Martinez in the card at The Arena, Nov. 23.

Akins, who is having a very successful year, wanted the match with Martinez very badly. He had agreed to take only a nominal fee for meeting the boy who is rated just below him in the standings but the International Boxing Club put in Chris Christensen of Denmark instead of Akins.

That caused Virgil and his handlers considerable anguish. They thought that Akins should have had that spot on the nationally telecast program and probably he should have.

Instead of that the I.B.C. signed him to meet Isaac Logart of Cuba in a return bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, on Dec. 2. Akins defeated Logart on decision when they met at St. Nicholas Arena, New York, on August 8, last.

All of this means a build-up to important matches for Akins later in the winter season.

As long ago as last June, I.B.C. officials said that Akins loomed large in their plans for the winter season, particularly with regard to matches in St. Louis and hinted rather strongly that if all went well with the St. Louis welterweight he might figure in a title match probably by next March or April at the Oakland avenue building.

The trouble with boxing is that there are not enough boxers to go around for the many television programs and on the other hand there are not enough opportunities for young boxers to work to enable them to advance to top ranking.

There are several good boys in this area who are having trouble getting enough bouts to boost them along the championship trail.

Among them is Charles "Sonny" Liston, a really good heavyweight who has had few contests. He defeated all his opponents in the professional ranks, except one, then reversed the verdict over that one in a later meeting.

But Liston is the kind of boxer who needs lots of work and he's not getting it.

The same thing is true of Jesse Bowdry and Joe Reynolds. Also equally true of many boxers in other parts of the country.

Critics believe that it will be up to the I.B.C. to subsidize smaller clubs as "farms" for their TV talent and it is reported that the I.B.C. is thinking of reopening the Ridgewood Club in New York with that purpose in view.

In the past the I.B.C. has tried the idea and always with losses, but even so these losses may be necessary to maintain the larger picture.

Demand Top Matches.

FANS who see matches on television are very particular these days and they demand top matches every time they turn on their sets.

After the recent appearance of Johnny Gonsalves on TV, one fan remarked: "They sure get some stinking matches on TV."

He forgot, of course, that there have been numerous real good ones of late and picked on the one which displeased him.

That's a natural reaction. But the Bobby Boyd-George Johnson scrap the other night should have gone far to rehabilitate the telecast fights. It was a real hot one.

Johnson came back after being almost out in the first round to put Boyd on the deck in the sixth only to have Bobby get up and batter Johnson so severely that the referee stopped the fight in the eighth to give Boyd a TKO.

The two bouts scheduled during the coming week pit Johnny Saxton, former welterweight champion of the world, against Ralph "Tiger" Jones over KTVI, channel 36 Wednesday night and Carmela Costa against Joey Lopes over KSD-TV, channel 5, Friday night.

There are other promising contests coming up during the next few weeks, among them two championship bouts.

In one of them, Basilio opposes Tony De Marco of Boston at Boston on Nov. 30 for the 147-pound crown.

Their first contest, in which Basilio won the title from De Marco, has been rated by many critics as the greatest match seen on television since telecasting of boxing became popular. It is hardly likely that the second bout can approach the first for interest, but it might.

Then on Dec. 9, Sugar Ray Robinson attempts to win back the middleweight title from Carl "Bobo" Olson at Chicago. That could be a real good one.

Central, Washington Tech Win, Remain Tied for Public Lead

Beaumont Subdues McKinley

By Harold Tuthill

With time rapidly running out in the Public High football race, Central and Washington Tech found themselves still tied for the league lead with only two weeks of play remaining.

The Redwings, their championship hopes higher than they have been in more than 30 years, notched their fourth victory by beating Soldan, 32 to 2, yesterday and Tech matched Central's performance with a 25 to 7 triumph over Vashon in the night game at the Public Schools Stadium.

Beaumont, still fighting for the title it won last year, crushed McKinley in the opener of the matinee doubleheader, 34 to 13. The Bluejackets are tied with Sumner for third place, both with 3-1, which makes an important game of the season the Nov. 19 meeting between Beaumont and Washington Tech.

Two Big Middle Quarters.

Central had two productive middle quarters, with 13 points in the second period and 19 in the third period. Charles Walters scored twice for Max Carlisle's Wings and other tallies went to George Viviano, Teddy Lee and Tom Moran.

Soldan's first points in league competition came on a safety in the fourth quarter when a 15-yard penalty pushed Central back to its five. Tom Moran then fumbled a handoff which rolled behind the goal line for the automatic two-pointer.

Tech spoted Vashon an early touchdown when Carl Granberry's Wolverines took the opening kickoff and went 67 yards, Robert Harrison scoring from two yards out. William Minnis converted with a plunge.

After that splurge, though, Otis Finley's Lions took charge, scoring in each quarter. Lloyd Anderson went over in the first and the second quarters, Jehoda Gaines tallied in the third on a 70-yard pass play started by Don Herd and Curtis Priest dashed about eight yards for the final TD.

Beaumont scored in each of the first three quarters to pile up a 34-point lead before Coach Irvin Obermark cleared the bench with a multitude of replacements against which Julius Blanke's Goldbugs tallied twice in the final period.

Leo De Vere, with two TD's and Russell Mann, Bob Dyer and Bob Brand, accounted for the Jacket six-pointers, with Dyer converting twice and Brand once for an additional three points. In the fourth quarter, McKinley traveled from its 31 to the Beaumont four where it fumbled but regained possession when the Jackets returned the compliment. This time Charles Miller went over for the Goldbugs. Later the 'Bugs moved 42 yards with Fred Walton scoring and Rich Smith adding the extra point on a rush.

Lincoln Smothers Cairo Team, 76-6

Lincoln High of East St. Louis scored two or more touchdowns in every quarter as it swamped Sumner High of Cairo, Ill., 76 to 6, last night at Parsons Field.

Douglas Hudson tallied one of the 11 Lincoln TDs on a 93-yard run. Gene Mosley scored four times and Harold Wayne three for the victors.

Mrs. Carter And Weber Lead in Bowling

Anchorman Dick Weber of the Budweisers bolstered his city match-game singles championship stock by accumulating 81.41 points to pace the men's round-robin title series in the annual tournament last night at Arway Recreation. Weber, who took over the lead after the first round, had won 13 of his 16 games and knocked down 3441 pins.

Howard (Sonny) Fitter, a Washington U. 20-year-old student, went on a spree in his fourth round match with Pat Patterson and had 78.03 points for second place. Fitter had a four-game total of 963 to Patterson's 813.

Don Carter, twice winner of the national match game singles honors, has 76.24 points, based on the Petersen system of scoring, for third place. Three other Budweiser bowlers, Patterson, Ray Bluth and Billy Welu, were next in line.

Mrs. LaVerne Carter, former W.I.B.C. all-events champion who finished first in the eliminations with a 16-game score of 3030, gathered 35.08 points in her four two-game matches to take over first place in the women's division. Mrs. Carter won six of her eight games and had a total of 1458 pins.

The defending titleholder, Miss Ann Maloney, managed to set the pace for the first two rounds on the opening program but dropped in back of Pauline Smith at end of the third round. Miss Maloney was fifth at the end of the fourth session. Two former champions, Ruth Murphy and Florence Argent, held second and third places, respectively.

Action in the tourney starts today at 2 p.m. with the position round commencing at 9:30 o'clock.

Degraaf Leads Cornell In 20-7 Win Over Brown

BROWN	0	0	0	7	7
CORNELL	7	0	13	0	20

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Nov. 5 (AP) — Favored Cornell registered its fourth football victory in seven games today, whipping Brown, winner of only one game, 20-7, on a soggy gridiron bufeted by a stiff breeze and stinging rain.

Billy Degraaf, Cornell's smooth quarterback, had a hand in all his team's scores. He scored the first touchdown on a one-yard sneak and kicked the point. He sneaked over from about the one for Cornell's second TD.

Kutis Soccer Team Defeats Mexicans, 9-0

By Dent McSkimming

Moving in their best form of the season, Kutis soccer team kept up its series of intercity game victories with a 9-0 shutout of Chicago's Necaxa team at Oakland Stadium last night.

Three smashing goals by Ruben Mendoza set the pattern for victory in the remarkably fast first half, and at the close of that 45-minute period the home team was leading, 5-0.

Although Manager Nick Jost cleared his bench of reserves, even shifting Harry Keough to center forward in the second half, the score continued to mount. In the end, Bob Rooney and Elwood (Butch) Cook each had two scores, Dick Meisemann and Jimmy Murphy one each.

Necaxa played as though the pace was a bit over its head. Each of the visitors, all Mexican-born boys, appeared a good ball handler but there was no coordinated drive among the forwards and no finishing punch.

Aided by a slight breeze from the south, Kutis was off to a flying start with five first-half scores. Each of the five was the culmination of a series of passes in which two or three forwards had a hand in the business of creating the scoring opening.

While the Chicago forwards had great difficulty keeping possession of the ball, the St. Louisans maintained a constant pressure. Only the brilliant, diving saves of Goalie Antonio Sandoval kept the score from going beyond a half dozen.

Goal No. 1 came from a nice bit of trickery by Center Forward Rooney, who foxed the opposing center half, Roberto Martinez, and drove the ball into the extreme corner of the goal from 12 yards out.

The second, third and fourth points were Mendoza's, one better than the other. His first was from a pass from Vasquez; his second an over-the-head hitch-kick shot made with his back to the goal, most spectacular score of the season at Oakland Stadium. His third was a power shot that capped a triple-pass effort.

Near the close of the half Cook's surprise shot hit the goal crossbar and a moment later a Cook pass to Meisemann was converted into a score by Meisemann with his head.

Figures Could Be Misleading in Cup Play Today.

A glance at the league records of the eight clubs concerned in the four National soccer tournament games today would lead one to expect some one-sided results. But, in each case, the teams paired against each other are affiliated with different leagues. In no case have they been playing against common foes. So, the bare figures may be misleading.

Fans generally expect closest competition and possibly the best soccer to come out of the meeting of Spanish Society team and St. Ambrose at Carondelet Park. Twelve of the Spaniards' 20 goals in league play were scored against one club, Hawks, and can be discounted. St. Ambrose, on the other hand, is in the better-balanced Cardinal Glennon league of C.Y.C. where it has lost two games and has had no breather. Over the 90-minute route that prevails in cup matches, St. Ambrose has a good chance to wear down the more stolid Spanish team. Vasco Gasperoni is the chief goal getter of St. Ambrose but half a dozen players have divided the scoring for Spanish Club.

Another game of promise is the meeting of Khoury League's Liberty Club and the Muny's Carondelet. Here, too, the goal averages may give a wrong impression. Carondelet counted 10 times against Jadran, and got nine goals in the other league games.

Here's how the clubs involved in today's national cup games have fared in their own league play:

Club.—League.	W.	L.	T.	GF.	GA.
Spanish-Muny	4	0	0	20	4
St. Ambrose-CYC	2	2	0	9	6
Liberty-Khoury	3	2	0	9	7
Carondelet-Muny	3	1	0	19	3
Jones-County	2	0	2	11	2
Amvets-Muny	1	3	0	1	24
St. Pius-CYC	3	0	1	10	4

Utah Frosh Beat Air Force

Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 5 (AP)—Halfback Lou Duffin scored on a 4-yard plunge and a 67-yard return to hoist the Utah freshmen to a 12-6 football triumph over the Air Force Academy here today.

The victory was the third straight for the undefeated Utes, who were unscored upon until today. It was the Academy's third straight consecutive setback against two early-season wins.

Maryland Downs Louisiana State, 13-0, to Stay on Unbeaten List

13th Win In Row For Terps

L. S. U.	—	0	0	0	0—0
MARYLAND	—	0	7	6	0—13

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 5 (AP) — Maryland's top-rated Terrapins scored on a shocking 32-yard pass play and a grinding 53-yard drive today to down hard-hitting Louisiana State 13-0 and remain unbeaten.

Frank Tamburello, Maryland's cocky quarterback, hit Halfback Jack Healy with a pass midway of the second quarter to break open a titantic defensive struggle and put his team ahead. Healy grabbed the ball on the 13, juggled it and went over.

The first time the Terps got the ball in the second half they put on one of their famous drives traveling 56 yards in 10 plays. Steady Ed Vereb carried the last four yards.

L. S. U. threatened in the first period, getting to the Maryland 25 on an interception and a pass, but Healy intercepted Quarterback M. C. Reynolds' next toss and ended the threat.

The Bengals got to the Maryland 18 with less than two minutes left, but Fullback Phil Perlo grabbed a pass in the end zone to twart the drive.

Otherwise, it was a hard-hitting game played by two big lines before a crowd of 28,000.

Levi Johns was the workhorse for the Tigers. His most sparkling effort was a sharp 24-yard run up the center right after Maryland had scored its second touchdown.

The victory was the eighth straight of the season for the undefeated Terrapins and gave them a string of 13 straight dating back to their loss to Miami midway of last season.

Maryland scoring — Touchdowns: Healy (32, pass-run from Tamburello) Vereb (4, run). Conversion: Laughery.

that may keep him sidelined for the next game at Wisconsin, and Mitchell came in. The first time the kid from Hot Springs got his hands on the ball he returned a punt eight yards to the Illinois 28. From there Illinois covered 72 yards in six plays, not including a couple of the many penalties that proved no handicap although they cost Illinois 65 yards compared to 20 against Michigan.

Mitchell broke through the middle for eight yards, then after Illinois lost five on a delaying penalty, Mitchell swept right end, reversed his field and finished a 54-yard dash when Ed Hickey of Michigan ran him out of bounds on the Michigan 16.

Not even a 15-yard holding penalty could stop Illinois now. Mitchell made seven to the Michigan 24. Lindbeck missed a third-down pass, and then on fourth down, with 18 yards to go for a first, Lindbeck called the fake field goal.

Screen Pass Instead.

Dick Miller assumed kicking position, Em took the center snap, then rolled back to toss a screen pass to Woodson, who covered the 24 yards for a touchdown with a sideline scamper that looked like a Dixie fox-trot.

Again Miller failed to convert and Illinois was only six points to the good with Michigan's opportunist reputation still staring the Illini in the face.

But here Illini pass defenders Mitchell and Lindbeck, as well as others, made a joke of Michigan passing and Illinois took over on its 16.

With Mitchell carrying four times for 35 yards and catching one 14-yard pass, Illinois moved to the Michigan 17 early in the fourth period but there a Miller field goal attempt was wide. A Michigan punt subsequently was fumbled by Woodson, who lost the ball to the Wolves at midfield but Illinois' great guard, Oliver, smeared further passing attempts and Illinois got the ball on a punt rolling dead at its 14.

It took only five plays this time. Ray Nitschke and Woodson got a first down at the Illinois 25. Woodson ran wide for five, Mitchell smashed for six, and then Mitchell carried on an end run that was identical to his earlier long dash and ran 64 yards for a touchdown. This time the sprint flash outran Michigan End Mike Rottuno. Dean Renn converted and Illinois really smelled victory with a 19-6 lead.

Three minutes later, with two minutes left, Illinois had scored again. Maddock's pass was intercepted by end Rod Hanson at the Michigan 19. On second down Woodson took a pitchout and cut back for 16 at the Michigan four, and Rolla McMullen went over on a pitchout to the right. Renn missed the conversion but there was little time left and Illinois's 25-6 edge stood up for a smashing triumph.

Buckeyes Beat Indiana, 20-13, Lead Big Ten

OHIO	—	—	0	14	0 6—20
INDIANA	—	—	0	6	0 7—13

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5 (AP) —Howard (Hopalong) Cassady was the big difference today as Ohio State defeated Indiana, 20-13, for the Buckeyes' fourth straight Western Conference victory.

The All-America halfback scored two touchdowns in the second period, ran sensationally throughout the contest, and kept the defending champion Bucks at the top of the current Big Ten race.

It was the fourth straight year Cassady had proved a nemesis for the hustling Hoosiers. As a freshman he scored three touchdowns against Indiana in his collegiate debut. The last two years his touchdown runs were deciding factors in Indiana defeats, and today he ran his four-year touchdown total to seven against the Hoosiers.

The speedy back has 11 touchdowns this season, 33 for his career, and with two games to go is only three points back of the Ohio scoring record of 201.

Indiana, generally given a 21-point handicap, played like a champion most of the way. A first period fumble on Indiana's 33 which Ohio converted into its first touchdown was the big break.

Right behind that touchdown, scored by Cassady on a one-yard plunge, the Hoosiers, expertly piloted by Quarterback Gene Cichowski, struck for 80 yards in 20 plays with Milt Campbell, the huge Olympic star, plunging a foot for a touchdown.

Cassady's second touchdown was a thing of beauty. He returned a kickoff 31 yards, and on third down after Jimmy Roseboro had gained five, the redhead broke around his right end for 46 yards before Campbell knocked him out of bounds on the three. Cassady plunged into the end zone on the next play, having contributed 80 yards in the 85-yard advance.

Michigan State Buries Purdue Jinx, 27 to 0

MICH. STATE		0	14	13	0—27

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 5 (AP) — Michigan State's Earl Morrall stunned Purdue with a 90-yard touchdown run and the Spartans buried the Purdue jinx today, 27-0.

The Spartans had lost to Purdue in both previous meetings since Michigan State joined the Big Ten. The razor-sharp Spartans were outgained from scrimmage but they grabbed five Purdue fumbles and intercepted four Purdue passes.

Morrall made his long dash in the second quarter after picking off an attempted lateral by Bill Murakowski, Purdue fullback. It went into the record books as a fumble recovery.

Halfback Clarence Peaks added another second-quarter touchdown on a 10-yard end run climaxing a drive started when guard Arch Matsos intercepted a Purdue pass at the Purdue 33.

The Spartans turned two more Purdue mistakes into touchdowns in the third period. Sophomore halfback Walt Kowalczyk sprinted 20 yards to score after guard Carl Nystrom had recovered a Murakowski fumble on the Michigan State 42.

Center John Masko recovered Ed Neves' fumble on the next kickoff and rambled 21 yards into the Purdue end zone. Gerald Planutis kicked three extra points.

Time ran out for Purdue in the second quarter after it had driven to the Michigan State 3. It fumbled in the first quarter on the Michigan State 11.

Purdue's Lennie Dawson passed for 185 yards, completing 12 of 25 throws, without getting a receiver loose in the Michigan State end zone. Purdue made 21 first downs to Michigan State's 16 and gained 335 yards net from scrimmage to the Spartans' 264, but Michigan State picked up 116 yards on its interceptions.

Morrall completed four of 10 passes for 77 yards. He hit End John Lewis for a 26-yard gain in the first quarter. Planutis contributed a 27-yard run in the drive that fizzled when Purdue held for downs on its one.

Morrall hit End Tony Koledziej with a 21-yard pass to set up Peaks' touchdown.

Purdue looked best in the drive stopped by the halftime clock. Halfback Jim Peters broke away for a 37-yard run to the Michigan State 47. Dawson passed 21 yards to End Leonard Zyzda, Purdue picked up five yards on a penalty and Dawson passed 16 yards to End Lamar Lundy on the Spartan 3. Purdue had already used its five timeouts and couldn't stop the clock.

out jeopardizing his amateur status. Time was when a golfer couldn't be an amateur and work for a sporting goods company, although the same golfer could be supported handsomely by a stock brokerage house, or an insurance company, just to play golf with good prospects.

As we got the story, Kramer had persuaded Rosewall and Hoad to sign "conditional contracts" to turn professional. The condition, in one case at least, was parental approval.

When the young men returned home, parental approval was not forthcoming. Furthermore, it was reported, two companies, sporting goods manufacturers, as we recall it, made very attractive counter offers to the Davis Cup players, offering to increase their salaries if they would continue to play amateur tennis.

That sounds very much like refusing to play professional tennis for money, in favor of continuing to play amateur tennis for a better offer.

It's hard to figure. Even in colleges the picture is obscure and contradictory. A football player can get room, board, spending money and occasionally automobiles, or a contract that assures him a good job after graduation and still be an amateur. On the other hand, many years ago, a young man at one of the local universities was ruled ineligible for the varsity basketball team because he was playing basketball with his company team in the National Guard.

It's too deep for us, Dodderidge.

Hapless Wildcats Lose To Wisconsin, 41-14

WISCONSIN	—	0	14	21	6—41
NORTHWEST'N		0	0	0	14—14

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 5 (AP)—Jim Miller hurled two touchdown passes and his quarterback partner, Jm Haluska, uncorked another as the Wisconsin Badgers today broke a three-game losing streak by further humiliating winless Northwestern, 41-14.

The defeat was Northwestern's seventh of the campaign. The Badgers, gaining their third Big Ten football triumph against two losses, registered their seventh straight decision over the Wildcats in a long rivalry before a crowd of 40,000.

Wisconsin turned it into a rout with two touchdowns within three minutes late in the second quarter, for a 14-0 halftime bulge.

Social Outcast Sets Record To Win Stake

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 5 (UP) —A. G. Vanderbilt's Social Outcast moved up to seventh on the all-time money-winning list today by scoring a two-length triumph in the $60,400 Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park in track record time.

Social Outcast, leading candidate for handicap honors this year, broke 10th in the field of 11 but Eric Guerin had the five-year-old gelded son of Shutout on top of the pack entering the stretch run. The Vanderbilt colorbearer then pulled away to score his seventh stakes victory of the year and earn a purse of $42,300.

Social Outcast completed the mile and one-quarter run in 2:01 flat to eclipse the old mark of 2:01 4-5 set by Palestinian on May 28, 1949. The victory boosted him past Mark-Ye-Well and Oil Capital on the money-winning list. He now has earned $616,800. Only Citation, Nashua, Stymie, Armed, Native Dancer and Assault have earned more than he has.

Castle Rock Farm's Mr. First, who ran third throughout most of the race, closed in the stretch to grab second place money, three more lengths in front of the Greentree Stable's Diving Board. Paper Tiger, Imagem, War of Roses, Sea O' Erin, Blue Choir, Marzipan, Mister Black and Smoke Screen completed the field in that order.

Social Outcast paid $6.00, $4.80 and $3.60 as the 2-to-1 favorite of the closing-day crowd of 32,849. Mr. First returned $19.80 and $10.80 as the eighth choice, while Diving Board paid $6.20 as the fifth choice.

Arkansas Hands Rice 4th Loss In Row, 10-0

Porkers' First Win In Houston

ARKANSAS	0	3	0	7	—10

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 5 — (UP) — Halfback Preston Carpenter scored a touchdown in the last two minutes of play today when Arkansas, for the first time in history, beat Rice Institute in Houston. Arkansas won, 10 to 0, before a homecoming crowd of 42,000.

Carpenter's touchdown was preceded by a field goal by Quarterback George Walker, who later kicked the extra point.

Arkansas' touchdown cost plenty of sweat and bruises. It climaxed a 42-yard drive, 27 yards of which Fullback Henry Moore gained in short smashes. Carpenter drove it over from the one against a desperate Rice stand.

Walker's 13-yard field goal, giving Arkansas a 3-to-0 advantage at the half, came after Rice Halfback Lanny Fife fumbled and Arkansas Halfback Buddy Benson fell on the ball on the Rice 31.

Arkansas Back Don Christian ran the ball on a keeper to the Rice nine. Three plays later with Rice stubbornly resisting and time running out, Walker kicked the field goal.

The shutout was Rice's fourth straight loss and its first blanking since 1944 on home ground.

The victory gave Arkansas a 2-2-1 Southwest Conference record. Rice hasn't won a conference game in three starts.

The game under threatening skies with a 17 mile-an-hour southeast wind, was played almost entirely in Rice territory. The Owls penetrated Arkansas territory only twice.

The first time Arkansas got its hands on the ball in the first period, it drove 55 yards in eight plays only to lose the ball on Walker's fumble.

Rice made eight first downs to Arkansas' 12. Arkansas, with Moore and Carpenter as the principals, gained 205 yards rushing to Rice's 110. Arkansas piled up 62 yards passing in five pass completions out of eight attempts to the Owl's 21 yards in two completions out of nine attempts.

Moore was Arkansas' leading rusher with 96 yards in 20 carries; Carpenter got 52 yards in 11 carries. Fullback Jerry Hall led the Owl rushing with 38 yards in six carries.

Rice found Arkansas punt returns a potent factor. Arkansas Halfback Don Horton returned two Owl kicks for a total of 71 yards. And Halfback Rogers Overbey returned one Rice punt 39 yards.

Lions Clip Colts For First Win

DETROIT	—	—	3	7	0 14—24
BALTIMORE			0	7	7 0—14

DETROIT, Nov. 5 (AP)—Doak Walker scored twice in the final four minutes of play tonight as the Detroit Lions finally won their first game of the season, handing the Baltimore Colts a crippling 24-14 setback before 53,874 in Briggs Stadium.

The defeat gave Baltimore a 4-3 record and prevented the Colts from taking over first place in the Western Division.

Vincent Stars As Iowa Beats Gophers, 26-0

IOWA	—	—	—	7 12	7 0—26
MINNESOTA				0 0	0 0— 0

IOWA CITY, Nov. 5 (UP)— Halfback Eddie Vincent ran for two touchdowns and passed for another before he was carried from the field on a stretcher to give Iowa a 26-0 Big Ten victory over Minnesota today.

A crowd of 52,459 and a regional television audience watched the Hawkeyes regain Floyd of Rosedale, a bronze pig and symbol of the 64-year-old rivalry.

Vincent, 181-pound speedster playing his last home game for Iowa, almost personally avenged a 22-20 defeat suffered at Minnesota a year ago. In that game, he was forced to fall on a fumble in his own end zone for what proved to be the winning margin.

Iowa took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards in 14 plays for a touchdown. The tally came on an 18-yard pass from left-handed Vincent, his first of the season, to End Jim Gibbons.

In the second period, Iowa capitalized on a Gopher fumble, one of six for the losers, to score again. Vincent skirted end for 10 yards and the tally.

With time running out in the first half, Quarterback Jerry Reichow engineered an 83-yard Iowa drive with gunshot passes to Gibbons and Vincent bowled over from the one.

Minnesota stiffened in the second half, but Vincent broke through for a 36-yard gain to the Minnesota 37-yard line and was shaken up on the play and had to be carried from the field. He was not seriously injured.

A few plays later, second-string Quarterback Kenny Ploen, back to pass on Minnesota's 25, found all his receivers covered and scooted 25 yards for Iowa's last touchdown.

The Gophers failed to show any offensive punch. Their deepest penetration was to the Iowa 17 on a pass, but they fumbled the ball away on the same play.

Guards Cal Jones and Dick Deasy played outstanding line games for Iowa. The latter threw Gopher Fullback Dick Borstad for his first loss in seven games in the third period.

Iowa now has a 2-2-1 record in conference play and Minnesota a 1-4 mark.

Stanford Upsets Southern Cal, By 28-20 Score

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA			0	6	7 7—20
STANFORD	—	—	0	14	7 7—28

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (UP) —Quarterback John Brodie's passing arm, flashing like an inspired victory symbol, led Stanford to a 28-20 upset victory over Southern California before 63,222 amazed fans in Memorial Coliseum today.

The junior quarterback for Stanford Indians passed to two touchdowns and scored one himself, after completing a 54-yard pass play to set up the score.

Southern California's John Arnett was bottled up for almost the entire game, except for one scoring thrust in the third period.

Brodie wasn't the only Stanford hero in the upset win as sophomore end, Gary Van Galder starred on defense with his pass-hawking and fumble recoveries. He scored one touchdown.

Fullback Bill Tarr reeled off the longest run of the game—55 yards to a touchdown off an intercepted pass in the third period.

N. Carolina State Hands Boston Its Fifth Defeat

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (UP) — North Carolina State dealt Boston University its fifth loss this year, 40 to 13, on rain-soaked B. U. Field before 6000 chilled fans today.

State scored in every quarter in gaining its third victory against three losses.

In the fourth quarter, Boston's Andy Thain had a moment of glory when he ran the ball 93 yards to pay dirt. But the play was called back because Boston had 12 men on the field.

Knox Has Field Day; Referee Loses the Ball

UCLA	—	—	—	7 13	7 7—34

STOCKTON, Calif., Nov. 5 (UP) — Controversial Ronnie Knox today silenced the pundits of the Knox males—Ronnie and Pappa Harvey—as he personally engineered UCLA to a 34-0 victory over a demoralized College of Pacific club.

Apparently peeved by a big banner strung up by the C.O.P. rooting section reading: "Beat Harvey" (Harvey Knox, Ronnie's much-quoted father), Ronnie had quite a day for himself. He scored one touchdown, passed for another and set up a third with a sensational 87-yard quick kick.

Some 26,000 fans sat in warm, almost summerlike, weather as UCLA rolled up a 20-0 halftime score and then watched a heretofore hard-fighting Pacific team fall apart.

One big, bad break for C.O.P. was a blooper by Referee Joe Zigna. Zigna lost the ball on the tricky ball-handling of a C.O.P. Quarterback Junior Reynosa, and whistled it dead at the line of scrimmage while Reynosa was completing a 30-yard pass to the UCLA 36. On the next play a much-ired C.O.P. team lost its running spark when ground-eating Halfback Ken Swearingen went out of the game for the day with a leg injury.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 5 (UP) — Oregon State, scoring just about as it wished and substituting freely, defeated Idaho, 33-14, for its fourth conference victory here today. It was Idaho's fourth PCC loss. The victory kept alive—mathematically at least — Oregon State's chances of making the Rose Bowl. The Beavers have lost only to leading UCLA.

The game was only a few minutes along when Dick Mason took an Idaho punt on his 20-yard-line and raced 80 yards for a touchdown.

Harvard Squeezes Past Princeton in 7-to-6 Upset

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5 (UP)—Reserve halfback Bill Crosby's perfect conversion in the third period turned the trick today as Harvard defeated favored Princeton, 7-6, in the forty-eighth meeting of the Ivy League rivals.

PRINCETON	0	0	0	6—6
HARVARD	0	0	7	0—7

An estimated 21,000 hardy fans braved rain and cold to watch the Crimson capitalize on a Princeton fumble midway through the third period and score six plays later on an eight-yard pass from Jim Joslin to Dexter Lewis.

The Tigers, two-touchdown favorites in latest handicapping, scored in the final two and a half minutes. Tom Morris passed to Frank Agnew to round out a 53-yard march in the chill gloom of Harvard Stadium.

Fullback Dick Martin tried to tie the score but his kick was several feet to the left of the upright.

It was Princeton's second loss in seven games this year. Harvard, an in-and-outer, brought its record to 3-2-1. Princeton now has 27 wins to Harvard's 16 and there have been five ties in the series that goes back to 1877.

Statistically, Princeton outplayed the hosts in a game played mostly on the ground and through the center. The Tigers made 14 first downs to Harvard's 9 and outrushed the Crimson 184 yards to 94 yards.

Harvard gained 16 yards passing, completing two out of six, while Princeton took to the air seven times, completed, one and gained seven yards.

Muny's Raiders Play at Iowa Prison Today

The Monkey Juniors (1-2) and the Goodfellow-McLaran Merchants (0-2) will meet at 2 o'clock in the only Muny Football League game today at the Forest Park drill grounds.

It's an off-day for the McCrarys, unbeaten in their three games. The Vets A.C. Raiders (1-1) will be at Fort Madison, Ia., to play the state prison team there.

In three games, including a tough 12-7 loss to the McCrarys, the Raiders' line has given up only seven first downs on the ground.

Bill DePrender and Marv Marion are at the ends, Bob Tomaw and Dalton Baker at tackles, Bob Davis and Harold Haines at guards, Glenn Buffington at center.

Bob Jones plays fullback, Bill Lackey and Tom Adams are the halves and Rich Graham is quarterback.

Last season, the prison team, at home as usual, beat the Raiders, 7-6, on the last play of the game.

Keough Nominated By Ozark A.A.U.

Soccer player Harry Keough has been selected by the Ozark A.A.U. as its candidate for the James E. Sullivan memorial award to the nation's outstanding athlete. Keough will be presented with the Ozark A.A.U. trophy tomorrow night.

Those receiving honorable mention were Dick Boushka, basketball; Jimmy Jackson, golf; Earl Buchholz Jr., tennis, and Jack Shasserre, swimming. They will receive certificates.

Cotsworth's Three TDs Help Burroughs Win

John Cotsworth scored 23 points to lead John Burroughs to a 42-12, non-league victory over Pattonville yesterday on the losers' field.

The Bomber fullback counted three touchdowns and five extra points while teammate Bill Idol scored two TDs and passed to Bill Engle for another one.

Al Whitworth and Rich Schnare had the Pattonville scores.

Cards to Play 10 'B' Games in Spring Training

A schedule of 10 games for Cardinal second-stringers has been added to the regular exhibition schedule in Florida next spring. General Manager Frank Lane said the purpose is to give every player who comes to camp a chance to make the Redbird club and moreover, to give Manager Freddie Hutchinson ample opportunity to appraise his material.

All "B" team games are to be played in the morning, Lane emphasized, so that coaches and other Cardinal officials can see the games. Several minor league players also will be in the St. Petersburg (Fla.) camp for a look-see.

"Sometimes a player 'arrives' over the winter and a minor leaguer suddenly becomes a major leaguer," Lane said. "The 'B' games will give us a chance to look at everyone who shows some promise."

Some Redbirds will be invited to training camp before the March 1 starting date. Players cannot be required to start training before that date but may accept an invitation to appear.

Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow For Cy Young

PEOLI, O., Nov. 5 (AP)—Funeral services for Denton True (Cy) Young, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame and one of the game's pitching greats, will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Peoli Methodist Church with the Rev. George Shurtz officiating. Burial will be in the Peoli cemetery.

Mr. Young, 88 years old, died of a heart attack in nearby Newcomerstown yesterday following a brief illness. His 511 victories in 22 years of major league pitching, beginning in 1890, included three no-hit, no-run games.

Two special services for Mr. Young will be held tomorrow night at the Hinds funeral home in Newcomerstown—one at 7 p.m. by the Masons and one at 8 p.m. by the Elks lodge. Young was a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of the Elks.

Honorary pallbearers Monday will include Sam Jones, former New York Yankee pitcher who now lives at Woodsfield, O.; Fred Clarke, former Pittsburgh outfielder; Ed Walsh, former Chicago White Sox pitcher; Carl Stotz of Williamsburg, Pa., founder of Little League baseball; S. S. Courtney of Canton, O., district director of Little League baseball, and Robert G. Ransom of Mount Vernon, O., Little League baseball official.

Active pallbearers will be John Marstrell of Stillwater, E. H. Hanhart of Dover, Albert Dillehay of Newcomerstown, John McMillan of Gilmore, Virgil Mathias of New Philadelphia, Lel Shoemaker of Newcomerstown, Dr. W. C. Roche of Gnadenhutten and Olo Bean of Westchester.

Mizzou Shows Stout Defense in Holding Oklahoma to 20-0

than any split-T halfback this observer ever has seen, connecting on two of four. For the season he has hit—incredibly—on 14 of 19.

If they're offering consolation prizes, Ol' Mizzou merited one for forcing point-hungry Oklahoma to keep either its first or second team on duty until the final seconds when Wilkinson shooed his third unit into action. As the Sooner coach substituted by teams—the first eleven played about 58 per cent—Thomas ran 87 yards in seven tries, thanks largely to a 58-yard gallop.

For Missouri, which had the ball 75 plays to Oklahoma's 87 and gained only an over-all 189 to the Midland Monsters' 376, Fullback Gene Roll, though committing a damaging fumble, gained 55 yards in 10 tries and Hank Burnine, the country's No. 1 pass-catching end, snared four more aerials for 53 yards.

Four O. U. Interceptions

Unfortunately, two of the sharp Oklahomans' four interceptions were at the expense of Jimmy Hunter, but the Tiger quarterback, getting a good legitimate going-over from the rock-sock Sooners, was a spunky performer for 42 minutes during which he sneaked effectively with a stubborn charge. And one interception was entirely excusable because it came during a three-minute period late in the first half, when, the dressing room reported, Hunter played in a mental fog as a result of a blow to the head.

Shortly before the nine-time conference champions surged to their first score, the teams swapped first-quarter interceptions, Oklahoma's Don Stiller picking off Jerry Curtright's running pass at the M. U. 28 and Curtright immediately thereafter latching onto Quarterback Jay O'Neal's pitch into the end zone.

The first damaging penalty came when, just as the Sooners were halted, Paul Browning, Tiger guard, drew a 15-yard assessment for throwing himself onto a ball-carrier after the whistle had blown. The violation, giving Oklahoma a reprieve and first down, kept alive a 62-yard, 11-play drive in which the key plays were two halfback running passes from McDonald to Bob Burris and one from Burris to McDonald. Burris plunged over from the one-foot line and Billy Pricer converted.

On the first play after the next kickoff, Roll fumbled, Bo Bollinger, Oklahoma's All-America guard candidate, recovering on the Tiger 24. Pricer went outside for four yards—they never did pierce the middle for much—and Quarterback Jimmy Harris, wheeling out, fed a scoring pass to McDonald in the western corner of the north goal end zone. The clock was stopped with five seconds left in the first quarter as Pricer again kicked the extra point.

58-Yard Run by Thomas.

In a scoreless second quarter Thomas fled 58 yards on a quick-opener, only to have Curtright, pursuing doggedly in a diagonal dash, catch the fleet Sooner and fling him out of bounds at the Missouri 9. Four plays later the Tigers took over on downs two yards farther upfield.

Hunter, hurt, fed a pass right into Oklahoman—check signals, make that Texan — Harris's hands late in the quarter and a 35-yard return gave Oklahoma another scoring chance, but Burris fumbled on the 13 and Guard Chuck Mehrer recovered for Missouri.

The scoreless third quarter was the rowdiest of the game, the officials assessing eight penalties, six against Oklahoma. It also was marked by a Tiger spurt from the home 36 to the visitors' 34, from where Hunter fired a long pass intercepted by O'Neal behind the enemy goal-line.

Just after a backfield-in-motion penalty nullified a Missouri first down early in the fourth quarter, Sonny Stringer punted high and short to the Oklahoma 39. The Sooners were stopped, but, as Pricer punted, Tackle Frank Czapla of the Tigers was charged with roughing the kicker, a 15-yard penalty that gave the Sooners first down on the Mizzou 40.

On the ninth play thereafter, Harris ducked inside right end at the 22 on a keeper play, reached the 12 and, tackled there, fed off a lateral to McDonald. He shook off restraining arms and danced over with the final touchdown of a game in which the better team for the tenth straight year was Oklahoma, which has had a longer reign than Rodgers and Hammerstein's famed musical show of the same name.

Field Goal Is Husker Edge Over Iowa State

IOWA STATE	0	0	0	7—7
NEBRASKA	7	0	3	0—10

AMES, Ia., Nov. 5 (UP)—Quarterback Don Erway handed off the ball for a touchdown, kicked the extra point and then booted a field goal to cinch a 10-7 Nebraska victory over Iowa State today.

Twelve thousand fans watched as Nebraska took control in the first period, marching and passing to the Iowa State 3 from their own 25-yard line in a series of 15 pass plays. The biggest gain was registered when Erway passed to right end John McWilliams for 26 yards.

Erway then handed off to halfback Willie Greenlaw, who plunged the last three yards over left tackle for the talley.

In the third, Nebraska took the ball on its own 45 and worked its way down to the Cyclone 15 before Iowa State held. On fourth down, Erway kicked a field goal to insure the Cornhusker lead.

The Iowa State team moved hard in the fourth period. Halfback Jack Hansen took a Nebraska punt on the Cornhusker 40 and moved it back to the 25. Then quarterback Mike Reeves passed to right end Jim Stuelke for 19 yards and Hansen went over from the 5 on the next play for the touchdown. Tackle Dick Callahan converted.

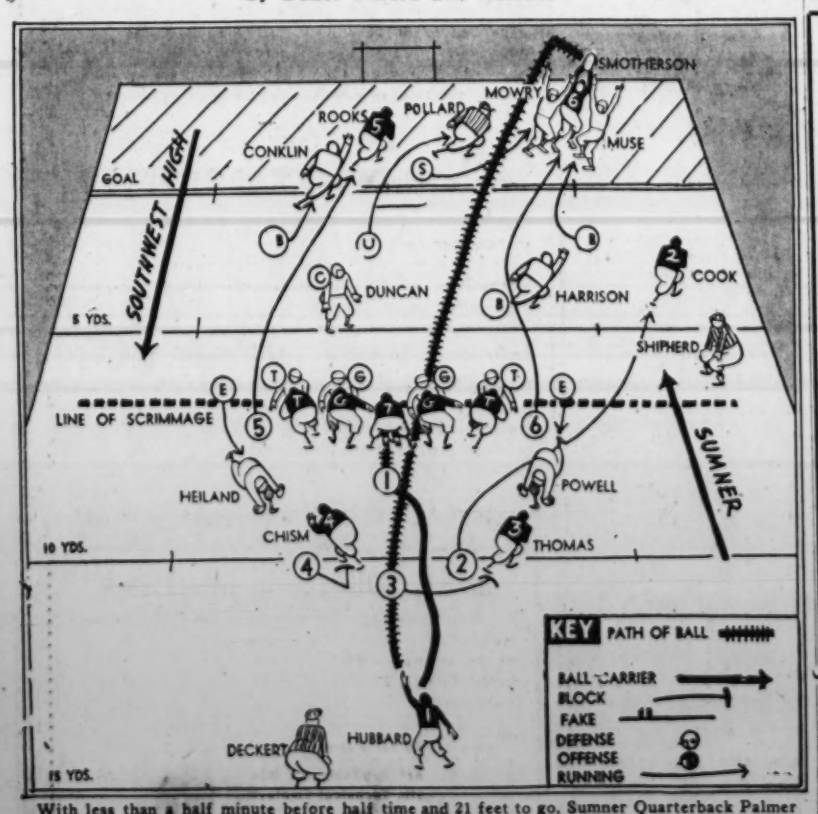
Bulldogs' Bite Too Much for Steers

By Dukes Duford and Amadee



With less than a half minute before half time and 21 feet to go, Sumner Quarterback Palmer Hubbard forward-passed to Right End Melvin Smotherson in the end zone for a 6-0 victory over Southwest in a Public School League game. Here's the play: It was Sumner's ball on the Steers' 7-yard line; Southwest used a 6-2-2-1 defense. Hubbard (1), a southpaw, took the ball from Center John Long (7), faded back to his right and, getting protection from Fullback Earl Thomas (3) and Left Halfback Wesley Chism (4) arched a high pass which Smotherson took away from the Southwest safety and left halfback.

Americans Take 3-1 Lead in Ryder Cup Play; Key Putt by Burke

Ford and Kroll 5-4 Winners

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Nov. 5 (UP)—The American Ryder Cup team, sparked by some of the finest come-through performances in golfing competition, took a 3-1 lead over the British today in the Scotch foursome matches.

Given solid victories by the teams of Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff and Ted Kroll and Doug Ford, and a narrow 1-up win by Jackie Burke and Tommy Bolt, the United States squad carried the same edge into the second day of play as they did in the 1953 matches, which they won, 6½ to 5½.

Today's results went like this:

Kroll and Ford spanked Sydney Scott and Eric Brown, 5-4.

Middlecoff and Snead whipped Capt. Dai Rees and Harry Bradshow of the British, 3-2.

Burke and Bolt came through with a 1-up triumph over Arthur Lees and Harry Weetman.

John Fallon and John Jacobs, playing on their first Ryder Cup team, gave the British their lone victory when they won 1-up, over Jerry Barber and Chandler Harper.

Singles Matches Next.

Tomorrow the teams will clash in eight singles matches, with the pairings to be announced later tonight. If today's battles were any indications of the kind of golf to be expected, tomorrow's should be the greatest.

Some of the pressure performances were just about inconceivable.

For instance, little Jerry Barber, who stands only five feet, five inches and weighs 135 pounds, tanked three chip shots from off the edge of the green—and still lost.

On the thirty-sixth hole of their match, one down, both the British and American teams were over the green on their second shots. Chandler had to chip back and hit a bad shot, ending three feet short of the green in short, heavy grass. Fallon then chipped up three feet from the green.

"Jerry already had chipped two shots into the cup and I couldn't believe that he could do it again," said Fallon later. "But there he did it—and the pressure was on to sink the putt. Luckily, I got mine down to preserve our victory."

Rees and Bradshaw had purposely set the draw to get a whack at Snead and Middlecoff—and it was Rees's conviction that they held the key to a good start in the matches. But the British duo fell behind right from the start and, although they rallied, they never could pull away. As late as the nineteenth hole, they were one hole in front—but they lost the next two and the Americans shot par golf to win.

This was the first year that the players on the team could have their choice of using the large American ball or the smaller British one—and most players on both clubs mixed them up. They used the little British pellet on the long par five holes when they needed extra distance, and the larger U. S. ball on the shorter holes when they needed accuracy.

Small Ball Goes Farther.

With the small ball, nearly all teams were getting home in two shots on 540-yard holes.

Kroll and Ford were in front all the way in their match with Brown and Scott, as they shot four-under-par 67 on the first 13 and were one under for the distance on the backside.

The Burke-Bolt vs. Lees-Weetman was the closest all day—with neither side being able to gain any appreciable advantage. They came down to the 36th with the Americans 1-up. Here again was a pressure play.

The final hole is a par-four, 440-yards long. Bolt tagged his second shot to within seven feet of the pin, and Lees put his 11 feet above the flag. That meant Weetman had to putt first, and he got a birdie three with a curling putt to the center of the cup.

Burke then had to sink his seven-footer to preserve the victory—which he did to the wild approval of the 2,000 fans in the gallery.

Weetman's Daughter Ill; He'll Fly Home

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Nov. 5 (AP)—British golfer Harry Weetman learned today that his infant daughter is seriously ill and he will fly home Monday. The remainder of the British Ryder cup team, competing here against the United States, will return by boat next week.

Pairings for tomorrow will find Rees and Snead pitted against each other in one match at 36 holes.

Other matches will be between England's Christy O'Connor and Bolt, Capt. Chick Harbert of the U. S. and Scott, Middlecoff and Jacobs, Marty Furgol and Lees, Barber and Brown, Burke and Bradshaw and Ford and Weetman.

The English were hurt when it was announced by Ken Bousfield, their PGA match play champion, will be unable to play because of a stomach disorder. He asked to be declared out, feeling that the British still have a chance to win and, because of his condition, he might endanger their chances.

Canadiens Win, 4-2.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5 (UP)—Jean Beliveau scored three goals only 44 seconds apart in the second period and added a fourth tally in the final period tonight to lead the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Bruins before a crowd of 13,799.

Florida Rallies to Nose Out Georgia With Long Runs

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 5 (UP)—Florida's smoldering backfield power exploded in runs of 36 and 52 yards today to shatter a carefully-built Georgia lead and give the 'Gators a 19-13 comeback victory before 37,000 fans.

FLORIDA	0	0	0	13	—19
GEORGIA	7	6	0	0	—13

Jim Rountree, Jackie Simpson and finally Quarterback Dick Allen turned on the speed in the second half after Georgia's own ground game, led by Quarterback Jimmy Harper, dominated the first half.

Georgia threw up a dogged third-period defense until Simpson shook up the Bulldogs with a 30-yard punt return to midfield. Florida scored in 13 plays with Rountree going over from the five in the first minute of the closing period.

Allen converted to tie the score and saved the final heroics for himself. He plucked one of Harper's few passes from the air three minutes later on the Florida 48 and headed for east sideline.

Three hungry Bulldogs grabbed at him at midfield but Allen came flying out of the crowd to go the final 40 yards untouched.

Tulane Heaps Another Defeat on Alabama

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 5 (UP)—Sophomore Al Cottrell, a Mobile boy who make good down the coast at New Orleans, scored on runs of 10 and 32 yards today in leading Tulane to a 27-7 victory over winless Alabama.

Ronny Quillian, a crunching fullback with halfback speed, also played a key role with his slams into the Alabama line as the surprising Green Wave won its third straight. Quillian also scored twice in the game watched by 17,361.

St. Mary's Play McBride for C.A.C. Lead

Thanksgiving Day meal-time plans probably will be determined for quite a few people this afternoon at Public Schools Stadium. Whether it will be St. Mary's High and its fans or the McBride crowd that will be issued special invitations to the Accident Benefit Fund Game is likely to be settled when the two Catholic Athletic Conference teams meet at 2:15.

St. Mary's and McBride are tied for the C.A.C. lead, each with 3-0 records, and with one game apiece remaining after today's contests. The C.A.C. champion will play the Public League titlist on Thanksgiving in a game usually referred to as deciding the city championship.

Between them the teams have lost but once. McBride suffered the defeat, 20-7, at the hands of C.B.C., to give Coach George Bauer's Colonnaders a 6-1 record. St. Mary's, which did not play C.B.C., has a 6-0 season mark.

Today's winner will be sure of a tie for the C.A.C. title. In next weekend's final round, St. Mary's will meet DeAndreis and McBride will play Mercy.

There will be another C.A.C. game this afternoon on Mercy Field, when DeAndreis plays Laboure.

Kansas State Buries Kansas

KANSAS STATE	26	7	6	7	—46

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 5 (UP)—Kansas State College, mired in a season of gridiron mediocrity, exploded for four first-period touchdowns and a stunning 46-0 victory over arch rival Kansas University today.

A sun-bleached crowd of 26,000 saw K-State turn what was billed as a toss-up Big Seven contest into an early route.

The Wildcats, irrepressible on offense and strong in the line, struck with only 2:18 gone when Fullback Doug Roether dashed nine yards off right tackel for a touchdown. The marker followed a Jayhawk fumble on the 11.

Kansas erred again minutes later when Quarterback Bev Buller lost the ball, again on the 11, where Ron Nery pounced on it for K-State. Left Half Ken Nesmith dashed around right end from the four to score.

Fullback Bill Carrington climaxed another wildcat drive by again skirting right end from the five. The fourth touchdown in the period came when Halfback Dick Allen intercepted a pass on his 46 and loped 54 yards to score.

In the second period, Wildcat Halfback Keith Wilson cut around left end from the two and Left End Jim Rusher's third boot of the game made it 33-0 at the half. Kansas showed a net gain of only four yards in the half.

K-State added a touchdown in the third period and another in the fourth to wrap up the scoring.

Zurweller on Spree As Mercy Triumphs

DuBOURG	0	0	0	7	—7
MERCY	0	12	6	6	—24

In a Catholic Athletic Conference game at Mercy yesterday Mercy defeated DuBourg, 24 to 7, with Bill Zurweller scoring three times. The victory gave Mercy a 2-2 league record. It was DuBourg's third conference loss.

Mercy jumped off to a 12-point half-time lead on touchdowns by Bill Zurweller and John Warmbold.

In the third period Zurweller scored on a seven-yard dash around left end after Mercy recovered a DuBourg fumble.

DuBourg scored its only touchdown in the last quarter when John Geismann capped a 60-yard drive with a 13-yard sweep around right end. Jerry Naughton converted. Later in the same quarter Bill Zurweller scored again for Mercy by intercepting a DuBourg pass on his own 25, eluding two tacklers, and racing down the left sideline for 75 yards.

Clemson Wins on Pass Play in Final Minutes

CLEMSON	7	0	7	7	—21
VA. TECH	0	7	0	9	—16

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 5 (AP)—Clemson's Tigers, fired up by a field goal that put them behind with less than five minutes left, rallied on a 60-yard pass play to defeat Virginia Tech, 21-16, today.

Substitute Quarterback Charlie Bulley threw the pass toward the left sidelines. Halfback Joel Wells caught it on the Tech 45, rolled off a would-be tackler and raced to the goal.

Tennessee Holds Georgia Tech To Tie, 7-7

GEORGIA TECH	0	0	0	7	—7
TENNESSEE	7	0	0	0	—7

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 5 (AP)—A fired up band of Tennessee Volunteers battled Georgia Tech, the nation's eighth-ranking football team, to a 7-7 draw today before an overflow throng of 50,000.

The eager young Vols, obviously at a high pitch for the game, took the opening kickoff and rambled 58 yards in nine running plays for their lone touchdown.

The Engineers, turned back repeatedly in the second and third periods, finally mounted a scoring drive midway the fourth quarter to tie the score.

TEN PIN ALLEY by Herman Wicke

Hennessey With Strohs.

THE first half of the home and home match between the Budweisers and Strohs of Detroit, to decide the national match-game championship, will be rolled at Floriss Lanes, Jan. 14 and 15. The final 12 games of the 24 games total pins to count match will be rolled on the Strohs' home alleys in Detroit, the following weekend.

In the recent team eliminations bowled in Milwaukee, the Strohs defeated the Budweisers by three pins, totaling 12,543 to 12,540. The Strohs averaged 1044.5 a game for the 12-game series and thus won the elimination tournament for the fifth consecutive season.

The Detroit quintet has won the national title nine times and in the series with the Buds will be out to make it four in a row.

A former St. Louisan, Tom Hennessey, is one of the stars of the Strohs. The other members are Buzz Fazio, captain; Tony Lindemann, Pete Carter, Lee Jouglard and Ed Lubanski. Lubanski was the team's star in the eliminations with series of 679, 674, 721 and 671 for a 228.9 average.

The Buds, in the second three games of the eliminations, hit record scores of 3390 and 1200. They opened with 960 and followed with 1020 in the final block. A 996 would have clinched first place, but the team finished with 992 to lose out by three sticks.

The team will have Don Carter, Ray Bluth, Pat Patterson, Dick Weber and Billy Welu in its lineup in the title series.

Time for Entries.

The annual championship tournament of the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association will begin Jan. 14 with entries closing Feb. 1. The five-man event will be rolled at Londoff Lanes and doubles and singles at Sports Bowl. Entries can be sent to the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association, 4925A Delmar boulevard.

In the recent match-game championships in Chicago, Stan Thaden won the title, with Les Kilbourne in second place. Others who qualified for the national title series were Joe Simonis, Lloyd Berhoff, Ed Brosius, Carmen Salvino and Joe Norris. Among the women, Georgette Hartman was first, followed by Sarah Alonzo, Olga Gloor, Leonore Simpson and Adelle Soruelle.

The Budweisers have a seven-game and 17-point lead in the traveling division of the All-Star League, while in the DuBowl group, they top the Griesedieck by five games and nine points. Griesedieck is second in the traveling circuit, with Authorized, third; Cuquet, fourth; Thurmers, fifth, and Pepsi, sixth. At DuBowl, its Pepsi, Authorized, Thurmers and Cuquets trailing the leaders.

Pat Patterson with 207 and 206, continues to be high average man in each of the two divisions. Don Carter has 205 and 203 and Dick Weber 201 and 204. Frank Mataya has 203 and 200.

This week's schedule:

Tuesday at Clayton: Budweiser vs. Griesedieck; Authorized vs. Cuquet; Thurmers vs. Pepsi.

Thursday at DuBowl: Budweiser vs. Griesedieck; Pepsi vs. Authorized; Thurmers vs. Cuquet.

Farmer-Hunter Relations Can Be Pleasant.

NEAR the town of Alton, N.H., a group of hunters from Lynn, Mass., sought permission from Lewis Proctor to hunt on his property. Proctor said "Go ahead."

Several hours later, the hunters stopped by Proctor's home, thanked him and showed him two deer they had bagged. A few days later, Proctor, to his surprise, received 12 pounds of venison from the grateful hunters.

Whether such examples of courtesy will be found in Missouri, when the hunting seasons get under full sway Thursday, remains to be seen.

The deer season ended Saturday, but quail, rabbit, squirrels, pheasant, raccoon and opossum will again become legal game, starting Thursday.

Missouri farmers have often complained that hunters have been somewhat less than courteous.

A man living near Phillipsburg, Mo., said in a letter to Outdoors:

"I average at least two or more unpleasant experiences with hunters each year, such as forest and grass fires caused by careless smoking or by smoking out squirrels; hunting in my barn lot and in front of my house, and bullet holes in my roof."

The farmer also told of "watching 'sportsmen' kill or shoot at woodpeckers, larks, cats, dogs and insulators on electric poles, having stray bullets buzz uncomfortably close to myself or family and being cursed by some drunken hunter you refuse permission to hunt."

Another farmer living in St. Peters, Mo., told of "tangling" with three young hunters who fired a shotgun so close to the house that the pellets entered and just missed an 18-month-old youngster playing on the floor.

Acts of Few, Many Suffer.

Annually there are squawks from the rural areas about hunters who shoot cows instead of deer, and let cattle out of the pasture.

Incidents like these make farmers see red when they read proposals for improving relations with the city hunters. They maintain that the best way to have good relations is for the sportsmen to stay in the city.

Unfortunately, unpleasant situations are created by a limited number of inconsiderate hunters, and, as a result, the many suffer. Little enough land is available to the ever-growing group of hunters without alienating those who own the land.

There is no use trying to sell the farmer on the idea he has a duty to open his place to hunters because wildlife belongs to everyone. He knows better.

However, the situation is far from hopeless. Many city sportsmen have found farmers willing to let them hunt.

In many cases, the friendship between farmer and sportsman has been built up over a period of years, based on a mutual give-and-take philosophy.

Iowa found the farmer-sportsman situation better than expected. In a statewide poll, only 5 per cent of the farmers queried said they would permit no hunting on their lands under any conditions. A surprisingly high 66 per cent said they would permit hunting if their permission were asked—a common courtesy.

Geese Plentiful at Refuge.

Robert Turner, manager of the Illinois state refuge for waterfowl in Union county, reports that about 20,000 Canada geese and 500 blues and snows are on hand now. He says the refuge has an abundance of feed for the birds' winter stay, including field and raffir corn, maize, rice, millet and all kinds of legumes and grasses.

A red wolf was killed by M. E. McArthur, 7465 Wise avenue, while hunting squirrels recently at Lonedell, Mo. He took it to the county clerk's office at Union to collect a $15 bounty.

McArthur said he had a few anxious moments when the wolf turned on him after his first shot failed to kill it.

Willie Hartack Rides 6 Winners On Laurel Card

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 5 (UP)—Willie Hartack turned in one of the year's greatest riding performances today at Laurel when he piloted six winners, including Rhy Dress in the $12,816 Maryland Futurity.

The nation's leading rider started his spree in the second race when he won with Sun Jeep at $3.40 for $2. He then won the next two races with Quite Fancy at $4.40 and Mountain Holly at $5.40.

Hartack also closed out the program with another string of three winners. After winning the feature, he took the seventh with Dinner Winner at $4.40 and the eighth with G-Two at $6.40.

In the Maryland Futurity, Fun Lover nosed out Rhy Dress but was disqualified to second place for bumping Rhy Dress in the stretch.

Junior Bills Meet C.B.C.

St. Louis U. High will climax its homecoming program with a football game against C. B. C. this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Oakland Stadium.

St. Louis U. High is undefeated through five games, owning three victories and two ties, including a 12-12 stalemate with mighty East St. Louis. C. B. C. won five straight games before losing a thriller to De La Salle at Kansas City, 28-27.

U. City Rally In Second Half Beats Webster

U. CITY	—	0	6	12	7—25
WEBSTER	—	0	7	0	6—13

University City, after being one point behind at halftime came back on Bill Comfort's second and third touchdowns in the third period and defeated Webster Groves, 25 to 13, in a Suburban League Big Six game at Forty Acres yesterday. Coach Stub Muhl's U. City Indians needed the victory to stay in contention for the league title, having been beaten by first-place Kirkwood in their last outing.

Comfort scored his first touchdown on a five-yard end sweep in the second quarter. The extra point try failed, and Webster's Jerry Wolff raced 64 yards for a Statesman touchdown later in the quarter. Dave Fox's extra point kick made it 7-6.

In the third quarter Comfort put U. City back in the lead with touchdown runs of 13 and 12 yards.

Marshall Whitecotton wound up a 66-yard Webster drive in the fourth period by going over from the three. University City got that TD back a little later when Rich Aberson drove over from one yard out. Bob Kovac kicked the extra point.

Clayton Beaten For First Time

Clayton High, after four consecutive shutout victories in Suburban League Little Six play, was upset by Brentwood, 7 to 6, in a league game on the Clayton field yesterday. The loss was Clayton's first of the season, having been tied twice in non-league contests.

Clayton's touchdown came in the second quarter on an 11-yard run by Bruce Woolley. Glen Ikens's kick for extra point was wide and Clayton held a 6-0 lead at the half.

Brentwood went ahead on a 15-yard touchdown play in the third quarter. Ted Huston advanced to the four, and when trapped there he lateralled to Spencer Staples who scored. Staples then kicked what proved to be the winning point.

Brentwood's only league defeat was at the hands of Ladue.

Roxana's Late Rally Beats Bethalto, 14-6

Roxana scored twice in the fourth quarter to overcome Bethalto, 14-6, in a Midwestern Conference game yesterday on losers' field.

Bethaldo scored first when Don Eaton threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Phil Grable in the third quarter.

Quarterback Bob Janssen then passed for both Roxana scores. The tosses, to Howard Heffner and Terry Durham, were good for 23 and 31 yards. Clinton Lolley kicked both Roxana conversions.

Sailor Takes $58,600 Roamer

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (UP)—The Brookmeade Stable's Sailor, finding the muddy going much to his liking, led all the way today in scoring an upset three and one-half length triumph in the $58,600 Roamer Handicap at Jamaica.

The son of Eight Thirty, with Hedley Woodhouse aboard, opened up a two-length lead entering the stretch in the mile and three-sixteenths event for three-year-olds and easily outdistanced the field.

The Clearwater Stable's Cavort started second and finished second, two length ahead of H. A. Dabson's Nance's Lad, while Clifford Mooers' Traffic Judge, winner of three straight stakes before suffering deep ankle gashes in his last start, finished fifth. Traffic Judge was the 3-to-2 choice of the crowd of 27,319.

Sailor, winner of six of 12 previous starts this year, completed the run in 1:56 flat with rewarded his backers with a $27.90, $12.30 and $8.10 payoff across the board. The effort was worth $40,500 and boosted Sailor's 1955 earnings to $98,175.

Oklahoma Aggies Lose No. 6, Quick as Glick

OKLA. A. & M.	0	7	0	6	—13
COLO. A. & M.	0	7	6	7	—20

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 5 (UP)—Colorado A. & M. Halfback Gary Glick sparked a 20-13 victory over Oklahoma A. & M. here today before 21,500 homecoming fans.

The Victory was Colorado A. & M.'s sixth straight against one loss. For the Oklahomans it was the sixth loss against only one victory this season.

Glick scored twice and converted twice and ate up much of the yardage in a key drive of 48 yards in the third period.

Why Sentinel Quality Costs Just a Little More

U.S. Adult Education Council To Hold Annual Conference Here

More Than 1000 Persons Expected to Attend Sessions Starting Friday at Hotel Jefferson.

The fifth annual conference of the Adult Education Association of the United States will be held Friday through Sunday at Hotel Jefferson. More than 1000 persons are expected to attend.

Theme of the conference, which is sponsored by the Adult Education Council of Greater St. Louis, will be "Adult Education's Role in Development of the Community."

Paul L. Essert, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, and president of the national association, will preside at an opening session Friday afternoon.

Speakers at a panel discussion on "What Are the Criteria of a Good Community," scheduled for later in the afternoon, include Leo Perlis, director of the National CIO Community Services Committee, New York.

Perlis, as well as Everett Preston, director of Adult Education, New Jersey State Department of Education, and Richard Poston, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, also will take part Friday night in a panel on obstacles affecting community development.

William Russell, deputy director of technical services, International Co-operation Administration, will address the conference at a banquet Saturday.

A specially-produced film, "St. Louis Looks Ahead," will be shown at the final session Sunday afternoon. Mrs. J. Hardin Smith Jr., vice president of the Adult Education Council here, is chairman for the conference.

U.N. UNIT PLEASED WITH RELEASE OF P.O.W.S BY REDS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP)—A special United Nations commission on prisoners of war expressed satisfaction today with progress on repatriating war prisoners and detained civilians from behind the Iron Curtain.

The report said thousands had been returned to Japan from Red China since the last report in September 1954. The Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland were reported cooperating in the prisoner release program, and all Communist countries, including North Korea and Outer Mongolia, had joined in efforts to get information about soldiers and civilians still listed as missing.

The commission credited negotiations conducted directly between the governments concerned or indirectly through Red Cross societies.

Red China has repatriated 29,061 Japanese nationals. Since 1952, the report said, the Soviet Union has repatriated a total of 1319 Japanese, 620 Austrians and 1162 Germans, with another 9000 now being repatriated. Czechoslovakia has repatriated 1069 Germans and Poland 199.

PROF. ELIOT TO ADDRESS LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The relationships between state and federal authority will be discussed by Prof. Thomas H. Eliot, chairman of the department of political science, Washington University, at a luncheon meeting of the St. Louis League for Women Voters at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the Downtown Y.M.C.A., 1528 Locust street.

A skit and a roundtable discussion of national issues including election campaign financing, presidential elections, the merit system, individual liberties, conservation, technical assistance and trade with other nations, also will be given.

Milton Bierbaum, superintendent of West Walnut Manor Schools, will speak on federal aid to education, and the political considerations involved in introducing bills to legislatures. The meeting is open to the public.

Dramatic Beauty News!

Aqua-wave

"the permanent wave that babies your hair with water"

It's a brand new method that ushers in a new era in permanent waving. Your hair is wound and wrapped in water—yes, just plain gentle water. A new patented device then caresses each strand of hair with a proteinized waving lotion that coaxes the softest, loveliest, lasting-est curl right into your hair. It's the nearest thing to permanent waving "magic." Whether your hair is normal or difficult, you've never—but never—had a lovelier wave than Aqua-Wave. Come in and see for yourself.

NAVY PUTTING EMPHASIS ON NUCLEAR POWER

Atomic Engines Planned for Aircraft Carriers, Surface Ships and Even Planes.

By PAUL R. LEACH
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—In less time than it took the United States Navy to convert from sail to steam or from coal to oil it is expecting to change over to nuclear power.

That is not just for long-range submarines, such as the Nautilus, which is proving a bigger success than hoped for, but for aircraft carriers and their surface escorts, some day for planes.

A nuclear-powered carrier is on the drawing boards. A plane engine is being designed.

There might even be submarine aircraft carriers big enough to launch fighter planes, as well as the guided missiles which two conventional submarines are now firing experimentally.

These warcraft would be independent of fueling ships and stations. Their power would be available almost indefinitely.

Rickover's Speech.

So say the Pentagon planners who recommend careful reading of a recent speech, one of his very few, by R. Adm. Hyman George Rickover, who made the Nautilus type of atomic-powered vessels a realty.

Rickover cited the two basic principles of waging naval war:

Keep the potential battlefield away from the homeland. This calls for ability to mount a sustained operation.

Keep the position of the launching point undisclosed. This requires mobility.

"Stated simply," said Rickover, "a naval vessel is a mobile platform for firing shells, for launching planes and missiles, or for sending or receiving men, munitions, fuel and intelligence.

"This platform can be on the surface or below the surface of the ocean."

"With nuclear planes we can now go where we want, when we want," he added. "It is thus clear that we can now have platforms which can move on or below the surface of the sea and which are self-sustaining in fuel."

A nuclear-powered Navy task force of the future, with its enemy detection and killer devices, could control an area of 60,000 square miles while dispersed over an ocean area as large as the state of Maine, he said.

Adm. Rickover made no mention of the old controversy between the Air Force, with fixed bases and long-range bombers, and the Navy with moving carrier bases. He did say that, "I believe a mobile sea base has a far greater chance of survival than a fixed land base."

First True Submarine.

Speaking of the Nautilus, he called it "the first true submarine. . . . designed to steam faster under water than on the surface." Congress has authorized a fleet of seven more such boats.

Since first putting to sea last Jan. 17, the Nautilus has steamed more than 23,000 miles, more than half of it submerged, Rickover said. In trials it went from New London, Conn., to San Juan, Puerto Rico, 1300 miles, in 84 hours—totally submerged all the way.

That was ten times as far as any submarine had traveled underwater before. Its average speed for the entire trip was 16 knots, the first time any submarine had kept up such a speed submerged for more than one hour.

The land-based prototype of the Nautilus atomic engine is only now being refueled for the first time after being in nearly continuous operation for two and one-half years, he said, and added, speaking of future Navy engines:

"Our aim is to design nuclear power plants which can last for an entire war without being refueled."

AIR DEFENSE FILTER CENTER HOLDS OPEN HOUSE TODAY

Open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. today at the St. Louis Air Defense Filter Center, receiving station for information from volunteer civilian members of the Ground Observer Corps, at 9011 Manchester road, Brentwood.

Col. Ward W. Harker, director of operations for the Thirty-third Air Division at Tinker Air Force Base, Okla., will speak. In proclamations signed by Mayor Raymond Tucker and Mayor Ray Parker of Brentwood, today has been designated Ground Observer Day.

Operational conditions will be simulated in the plotting room at the open house. All positions in the room will be manned by Air Force personnel and graduated volunteer members. Civilian officials and members of the detachment will be on hand to explain operation of the center and to accept volunteers in the Ground Observer Corps.

$2 RISE IN BOY SCOUT CAMP FEE APPROVED

Effective Next Summer, It Is Result of Increased Costs.

Authorization of a $2 increase in fees for Scouts to attend summer camps next year has been granted by the executive board of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, it was announced yesterday. Merle D. Shippey, camping director, said the increase was necessary because of the rising costs, particularly of food.

Shippey said boys attending Irondale and Lions Den reservations and Camp May will be required to pay a $2 registration fee and $15 for meals, program and services at least two weeks before their units are scheduled to go to camp. For the last two years the registration fee was $1 and meals, program and services cost $14.

Those who make registrations before next June 1 will be allowed a reduction of $2 instead of $1 as in the past, Shippey said. No fees will be accepted at the council office from individual boys, but should be paid through unit leaders, he added.

Members of 14 Cub packs and Boy Scout troops in the city and county will be guests of the St. Louis council at a performance of the Hollywood Ice Revue at 6:30 p.m. today at the Arena. Tickets to the show were given on the basis of the most tickets sold for the 1955 Boy Scout Circus.

Two new units have been organized in the council. They are Troop 186, sponsored by the Men's Club of Lutheran Church of the Atonement, and Pack 540, sponsored by the Goldman (Mo.) Community Volunteer Fire Association.

The troop will meet at 7:30 p.m. Fridays at the church, 1285 North Florissant road, Ferguson, and the pack at 7:30 p.m. each fourth Monday at the firehouse.

Annual recognition dinner for leaders in Keystone district will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Phyllis Wheatley branch Y.W.C.A., 2709 Locust street.

Leaders in Taum Sauk district will hold their annual dinner at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Salem (Mo.) Methodist Church.

The annual business meeting and election of officers of Suburban district will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Webster Groves City Hall.

Eagle badges will be awarded in ceremonies this week to Ronald Holtman, Charles Smith, John W. Nicholson and William G. Vasel. A Silver award, Explorer's equivalent to the Eagle badge, will be presented to Edgar Swinford. Armond Inselberg received an Eagle award at a ceremony last week.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Four girls from Missouri will be chosen to represent the state next August at the All States encampment for Girl Scouts at Shoshone National Forest, near Cody, Wyo., it was announced yesterday. Applications have been sent to Senior troops of the Greater St. Louis council.

Mrs. Otto Kaiser, camp chairman, said candidates for the 17-day encampment should have personal qualifications of leadership, experience in all types of Girl Scout activities, good health and an interest in sharing skills with others. She said they should be experienced campers 15 to 17 years old.

Courses in survival training for Girl Scout adults will be held tomorrow and Nov. 14 from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Carondelet Y.W.C.A., 4510 South Kingshighway and Thursday and Nov. 17 from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Y.M.H.A., 724 Union boulevard.

A night course also is scheduled Nov. 15 and 22 from 7 to 9:30 o'clock at Y.M.C.A. The Red Cross and Office of Civil Defense are sponsoring the courses. Registration can be made Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays by calling the Red Cross, FRanklin 1-4980.

Nor-Co district Leaders' Club will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. Louis County Library, 6814 Natural Bridge road, Normandy. The program will include nature study for Brownies and nature badgework, and an assortment of leaf collections will be displayed.

Twenty-six Scouts of Troop 837 will be accompanied by their leaders and mothers on a hayride Friday at Hillcrest Country Club. A cookout has been planned as part of the program.

A fashion school will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday by Wing Scouts of Troop 283 in Fenton School auditorium. Theme of the program will be the fashion story of a Girl Scout.

Mrs. Robert E. Hillard, 434 Clemens avenue, Kirkwood, has been appointed radio and television representative on the public relations committee. She and her staff partner, Mrs. Robert Bradley, will be responsible for contacting program directors of stations for scheduling times when Girl Scout material and personnel will be featured.

An investiture ceremony for a new troop of second-grade Brownies will be held tomorrow at Kennard School. Members of the troop will make the Brownie promise and receive pins.

Girl Scout and Brownie troop of Nottingham School received gifts for their treasuries last week from the Mothers' Club of the school. Presentation was made at a meeting of the Club.

Twenty-four members of Intermediate Troop 127 were accompanied this weekend by Mrs. W. C. Karr, licensed troop camper, and three other adults on an expedition to Gerald, Mo.

Camping next week will be 21 girls of Intermediate Troop 334 at Camp Cedarledge and 11 members of Troop 728 in Stanton, Mo.

CAT SHOW LIKELY TO DRAW 200 ENTRIES NEXT WEEKEND

About 200 cats, including entries from 14 states, are expected to be in the annual show of the Greater St. Louis Cat Club at the Kingsway Hotel Saturday and next Sunday. This is the eighteenth year of the show.

Long hair and short hair specialties will be judged by Mrs. Darrell Sample of Anoka, Minn., and the all-breed show will be judged by Mrs. Naomi Favors of Gas City, Ind.

P.-T.A. CONVENTION HERE THIS WEEK

1400 Delegates Expected at State Meeting—Program Announced.

The fortieth annual convention of the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers, scheduled for next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel Jefferson, is expected to attract about 1400 delegates, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. C. Wheeler Detjen of Webster Groves, state president.

Theme of the convention is "Participate to Achieve," with nationally known educators and state officers taking part, she said.

Mrs. T. H. Ludlow, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will make the keynote address at Tuesday morning's opening session. She will also summarize the results of the conference at the final meeting Thursday morning.

Mrs. Billie Davis, author of "I Was a Hobo Kid" which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and Readers' Digest, will address the convention Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Hubert Wheeler, commissioner of education for Missouri, will speak on "The State and the National White House Conference" at the Wednesday morning session.

Dr. Andrew D. Holt, vice president of the University of Tennessee and former National Education Association president, will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner Wednesday evening. His subject will be "What Schools Expect of Parents."

Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons will be devoted to various "circles of information" and model programs.

CHILDREN'S BOOK SHOW

A children's book show and traveling exhibit of hand bookbinding processes will be on display tomorrow through Saturday in the ninth floor gallery aisle at Stix, Baer & Fuller's downtown department store.

The exhibit will show the making of a full leather binding and a case binding in progressive steps. Besides books, the exhibit contains 22 detailed photographs, tools of the trade, samples of hand-decorated papers, bookbinding leathers and gold leaf.

NUCLEAR ENERGY LECTURE AT WASHINGTON U. TUESDAY

A lecture on nuclear energy will be given at 4 p.m. Tuesday by Arthur L. Hughes, professor emeritus and lecturer in physics at Washington University, in Rebstock Hall on the campus. It will be the second in a series on "The Frontiers of Science."

The series is sponsored by the St. Louis Public School Advisory Committee in co-operation with the university, to acquaint high school science teachers with recent developments in advanced science and encourage development of potential scientists.

Teachers in all public, parochial and private schools in St. Louis and St. Louis county are invited to attend.

LYNCH & HART, STOCKTON ADVERTISING FIRMS MERGED

Merger of Lynch & Hart Advertising Co. and Stockton & Associates, Clayton, was announced yesterday by Richard B. Stockton.

The merger, Stockton said, will offer an expanded account service department and additional art and production facilities to customers. A merchandising, marketing and research department is being established at the combined quarters, 25 South Bemiston avenue.

Richard C. Lynch is president of the new corporation, to be known as Lynch, Hart & Stockton Advertising Co. Lynch & Hart began business in February, 1954, Stockton and Associates in December 1952.

TWO WHO TOURED RUSSIA TO LECTURE, SHOW FILMS

Miss Gay Humphrey and Ted Curran, graduates of the Russian Institute of Columbia University who traveled 6000 miles through Russia last year, will lecture on "Soviet Society Today" at 8:15 p.m Tuesday at Soldan High School Auditorium, 918 Union boulevard.

The talk will be illustrated with an uncensored motion picture of the Russian people and their customs, taken on the trip. Miss Humphrey and Curran, both of New York, are now doing graduate work at Columbia University.

The lecture is the second in a series of 10 presented by the Washington University Association.

HOSPITAL BALL FASHION MODELS

Gala Event Planned for This Month

RICH, exotic materials and sophisticated styling so prevalent in this year's fashion collections will add glamor to the Doctors' Medical Foundation ball scheduled for Nov. 16 at the Chase Hotel. Not only will the women guests be gowned in entrancing new modes but they will see an array of smart styles modeled by a group of young women, many of them debutantes of this season.

Proceeds from the ball will help construct and equip a 125-bed general hospital as the first of a medical center to be built at Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard.

The list of models and cigarette girls includes Miss Audrey Wallace, the Veiled Prophet Queen; two of her special maids of honor, Miss Kate Borders and Miss Elizabeth Busch; Miss Helene Baskowitz, Miss Margaretha Belz, Miss Frances Brown, Miss Jane Brown, Miss Myrtle Boehmer, Miss Shelley Bush, Mrs. C. Calvin Christy, Miss Ann Day Collins, Mrs. Con P. Curran III, Miss Jean D'Oench, Miss Anna Lea Ellerman, Mrs. Louis Fusz, Miss Aurelia Gerhard, Miss Jane Haeussler, Miss Alice Hager, Miss Julie Hickman.

Miss Joan Chittenden Harris Is Married to Graham Spencer In Christ Church, Bronxville

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRONXVILLE, N.Y., Nov. 5.

THE marriage of Miss Joan Chittenden Harris, daughter of a former Veiled Prophet Queen, to Graham Spencer took place this afternoon at Christ Church in Bronxville. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sanford Harris (Ann Chittenden Ferriss), live in Bronxville. Among guests at the wedding were her grandfather, Henry T. Ferriss of St. Louis; her grandmother, Mrs. Donald S. Unger-Donaldson, Boston; her uncle, aunt and cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Van Buren Jenks, Grosse Pointe, Mich., and their son, Jeremiah Jr.; another aunt, Mrs. David Platt Ferriss, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cabot, Boston, and the bridegroom's grandfather, Frank Edward Spencer, Carlisle, Pa.

The former Miss Harris wore her mother's ivory satin wedding gown. Heirloom lace encircled the oval neckline in a bertha effect and a train, attached at the waist, cascaded over her gored skirt. More of the antique lace formed her veil which extended to the floor. She carried eucharist lilies and stephanotis.

Miss Jacqueline Jenks of Grosse Pointe, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Mary Lee Talley, New York, and Miss Caroline Bryant, Miss Lois Owen and Miss Lucille Spencer, sister of the bridegroom, all of Bronxville, were bridesmaids. Their ivory satin gowns were designed on princess lines. Gold satin formed the upstanding off-shoulder collars and wide sashes, and bandeaux of the gold satin were worn on their hair. Their bouquets were composed of autumn flowers.

The bridegroom, son of Mr.

FROM LEFT THEY ARE MISS MYRTLE BOEHMER, MISS ANNA LEA ELLERMAN AND MISS ALICE HAGER, ALL THIS YEAR'S DEBUTANTES.

Miss Jacqueline Welsh Married At Church to John Oliver Barr

THE marriage of Miss Jacqueline Grace Welsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert David Welsh, to John Oliver Barr of River Forest, Ill., took place yesterday afternoon at Ladue Chapel. Large arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums, accented with greenery, adorned the chancel. Yellow candles in triple candelabra, entwined with yellow pompons and greenery, marked the center aisle, which was covered with yellow canvas.

The Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell performed the ceremony. Mrs. Joseph H. Reese Jr. of Abington, Pa., sister of the bride, and Miss Susan Steinbrenner, Bay Village, O., were the matron and maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Matilda Ruby, Oneida, N.Y.; Miss Linda Jepsen, Palo Alto, Calif.; Mrs. A. D. Welsh Jr., Indianapolis; Mrs. Ronald Dietz (Judy Emmert), Wilmette, Ill., and Mrs. Leroy Kling (Ann Hemenway) and Mrs. Douglas R. Lilly (Ann Rubicam) of St. Louis.

Mrs. Reese was gowned in royal blue tulle appliqued with chantilly lace ornamented with matching pearls. A wide taffeta girdle in the same shade extended in streamers to the hemline. Miss Steinbrenner and the

Mrs. Borgman Bride At Noon Ceremony

DR. AND MRS. JOSEPH JAY GRABER, 14 Litzsinger lane, Ladue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Ann Graber Borgman, to William Carp Newcorn. The wedding took place last Sunday at noon at Hotel Kings-Way. Rabbi Samuel Thurman performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families after which Dr. and Mrs. Graber gave a breakfast at the hotel.

Baskets of pastel fall flowers and greenery decorated the improvised altar and pink roses adorned the breakfast table. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by a cousin, Mrs. Alfred Petchaft. She wore a terrace-length moss green taffeta dress and a small white satin jeweled hat. She held a spray of white orchids with mauve centers. Mrs. Petchaft was in a navy blue ballerina taffeta dress and a matching veil-trimmed halo hat. Her flowers were pink roses.

Mr. Newcorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Newcorn, 6322 South Rosebury drive, Clayton, had his brother Jerry Newcorn, as best man. After a short wedding trip he and his bride will live at 5881 Plymouth avenue.

The former Miss Graber is a graduate of the University of Missouri. She is the mother of a 5-year-old daughter, Andrea, by her first marriage.

Mrs. Bode Is Married to Howard H. Hermann At Family Service

MRS. HELEN VITT BODE and Howard Harms Hermann were married yesterday morning in the Church of St. Gabriel the Archangel. The ceremony was performed at the communion rail by Msgr. Harry E. Stitz with only the two families attending.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Vitt, who divide their time between their home at 1 Fairway drive, Sappington, and their farm in Frankfort, Mo., was attended by her sister, Mrs. Charles J. Wedemeier. The bridegroom had his brother, Russell W. Hermann, as best man. They are sons of Mrs. Florence Harms Grace, 405 Park road, Webster Groves.

A tailored brown wool flannel suit was worn by the bride, whose velvet hat was also brown, as were her accessories. She carried a brown-covered prayer book overlaid with spray orchids. Mrs. Wedemeier wore a taupe suit and accessories and carried a nosegay of small chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony a total of 20 relatives attended a family breakfast at Le Chateau. Later Mr. Hermann and his bride departed for New Orleans on their honeymoon. They will occupy the Fairway drive address.

Miss Dorothy Emert Kane Married At Church to John E. George Jr.

A BRIDE of the mid-autumn season is Miss Dorothy Emert Kane who was married yesterday morning to John Edwin George Jr. The Rev. George A. Lodes performed the ceremony at St. Roch's Church which, for the occasion, was decorated with white chrysanthemums and pompons.

Miss Margaret Ann Kane was her sister's maid of honor wearing a champagne taffeta gown designed with rounded neckline, short shirred sleeves and a full skirt distinguished by a wood brown satin hip swatch dipping severely in the back. Her crescent bouquet was of bronze and yellow spider chrysanthemums, arranged with glossy green camellia foliage. Dressed in similar fashion were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Charles S. Ryan (Joan Kane), sister of the bride; Mrs. Harold A. Hutton (Helen George), the bridegroom's sister; Miss Carolyn Cunningham and Miss Patricia O'Halloran.

Daughter of the Francis B. Kanes, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a full-length gown of egg-shell satin. The princesse dress featured a heart-shaped neckline bordered with delicate beading which extended over the shoulders. The former Miss Kane wore a madonna veil edged with Alencon lace, and carried lilies of the valley and a white orchid.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin George, 25 York drive, Brentwood, had as his best man James Louis Freimuth of Abilene, Tex. Mr. Freimuth and Miss Mary Ann Tiemeyer were married here last June. Ushers were Mr. Hutton, Thomas George, a cousin; John R. Ryan and John P. Curran.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Kane entertained guests at a reception at Glen Echo Country Club. Mrs. Kane was dressed in cocoa barathea silk with a beaded white satin collar and had a white orchid pinned to her purse. A sheer wool dress in a light brown shade was worn by Mrs. George whose bronze beaded hat and purse were complimented by a shoulder corsage of Cymbidium orchids.

Mr. George and his bride have departed on a wedding trip to Florida and will live in Fort Wayne, Ind. The bridegroom is a Chaminade graduate and a former student of Notre Dame. He is a veteran of Navy service. His wife was graduated from the Academy of the Sacred Heart and Maryville College.

Mr. Spencer and his bride will depart for Sacramento, Calif., where they will live. He is associated with Radio Station KROY there. The bridegroom attended Nichols College, Dudley, Mass.; the Loomis Windsor, Conn., and Bronxville High School. His bride, a former Vassar College student was presented to society in 1952 at the Westchester Cotillion. She is a provisional member of the Bronxville Junior League.

MISS JANE ELIZABETH WOODMAN, FIANCEE OF EDWARD THEODORE HAASE JR. THE ENGAGEMENT WAS ANNOUNCED AT A SMALL PARTY AT THE HOME OF HER PARENTS, DR. AND MRS. GLEN FULLER WOODMAN.

Miss Woodman Is Engaged to E. T. Haase Jr.

DR. AND MRS. GLEN FULLER WOODMAN, 3907 McDonald avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Elizabeth Woodman, to Edward Theodore Haase Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Haase, 34 Crestwood drive, Clayton. The news was told recently at a small party for friends of the bride-elect at her home.

Miss Woodman, an alumna of Loretto Academy, was graduated last June from Washington University where she was chosen Sweetheart of Sigma Chi and served as an honorary lieutenant colonel at the Military Ball. Her sorority is Alpha Chi Omega. Miss Woodman is a niece of Miss Margaret Tracy, dean of the California University School of Nursing.

Mr. Haase was graduated from St. Louis Country Day School and studied the next year at Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy. In January he will receive his degree in English from Washington University. A member of Sigma Chi fraternity, Mr. Haase played on the varsity tennis team and served as assistant director of Student Life. He has one sister, Miss Virginia Lane Haase, a senior at John Burroughs School. The bridegroom-elect is the grandson of Herbert Rountree, Sparta, Ga., and a nephew of Judge and Mrs. John W. Calhoun and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Haase.

Noon Meeting.

The Piano Teachers' Round Table will meet at noon Wednesday at the College Club, 5428 Delmar boulevard. After luncheon, Mrs. Dorothy Dring Smutz will speak on "Gems: From Bach to Bartok." Mrs. Smutz, St. Louis pianist and teacher, has appeared as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony, Little Symphony and Philharmonic Orchestras.

Dinner Wednesday.

St. Louis Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will have a dinner meeting at the Gatesworth Hotel Wednesday at 6:30 o'clock. Officers will be elected and installed. Alport-Abrams Fall Wedding

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Leo Frankel Abrams (Leona Hurwitz), 7575 Parkdale avenue, Clayton, to Abraham J. Alport, 84 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights. The ceremony took place at 2 o'clock last Sunday afternoon in the small chapel of Shaare Emeth Temple in the presence of the two families. Rabbi Burton E. Levinson officiated.

An informal family dinner was given afterward at the Park Plaza Hotel and Mr. and Mrs. Alport departed later for a wedding trip to California. They will occupy his Lake Forest home.

Mrs. Alport is the mother of Mrs. Marshall B. Greenman, Mrs. Max M. Barken and Mrs. Ivan J. Wolff. She is the daughter of Mrs. Morris Hurwitz, 901 South Hanley road, Richmond Heights, and the late Mr. Hurwitz.

Mr. Alport, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis I. Alport, is the father of Miss Louise Alport and Eliot M. Alport whose engagement to Miss Marilyn Reznik was announced recently.

Lois Fewell Is Married to R. G. Percival

THE wedding of Miss Lois Carolyn Fewell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Fewell, 7134 Farley avenue, Normandy, to Ralph G. Percival took place Oct. 22. The candlelight ceremony, at Mount Auburn Methodist Church, was performed by the Rev. William H. Mathae of Bellefontaine Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. William R. Foster. Afterward a reception was held in the church hall.

The bride wore a gown fashioned of white taffeta and embroidered with seed pearls and lace medallions. Her tulle veil cascaded from a crown of pearls and her crescent bouquet was composed of phalaenopsis and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jo Ann Avery of Phenix City, Ala., was maid of honor. Two cousins of the bride, Mrs. Thomas L. Tombridge, and Miss Elaine Bright, Phoenix, Ariz., and Miss Mary Ann Wix of Harrisburg, Pa., the bride's former roommate at Eastman School of Music, served as bridesmaids. Another cousin, Miss Carol Beth Clark, was junior bridesmaid and Christie Stanick was flower girl. All were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of gold and crimson iridescent taffeta with matching headpieces. They carried bird of paradise blossoms.

Mr. Percival, son of the Ralph W. Percivals, 6122 Wabada avenue, had his cousin, Chester Fritch, as best man. Ushers included a cousin, Robert Percival; John Myrick, George Miller of Sedalia, Mo., Jack Crawford, Darwin Schlag and William Voos. Curran Percival, another cousin, and Douglas Clark, the bride's cousin, were ringbearers.

The newly-married couple will live in St. Louis after the bridegroom's release from military service next September. He is currently storekeeper second class with the Coast Guard in New Orleans.

Church Wedding For Miss Jones

MISS NORMA JEAN JONES was married yesterday to Anthony H. Kolmer Jr. at St. Roch's Church by the Rev. Sylvester I. Tucker. Gold and bronze chrysanthemums adorned the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harry Young, 1343 Devline avenue, and the late Oscar L. Jones. She was given in marriage by her brother, Ralph W. Jones. Her ivory satin and tulle gown was trimmed with lace and her pillbox hat with sequins. Her veil fell to her fingertips. The former Miss Jones carried a bouquet of white spider chrysanthemums.

Miss Beverly Ann Kary served as maid of honor and Mrs. Irwin Denny, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Robert Banden, sister of the bride, as bridesmaids. Their velveteen and tulle gowns were in cinnamon color for Miss Kary and burnt-gold for the others. They carried chrysanthemums in harmonizing shades and wore headpieces matching their gowns.

Susan Denny was flower girl in a forest green frock with which she carried a nosegay of bronze and gold pompons.

After a breakfast at Stan Musial and Biggie's Restaurant and an afternoon reception at Bippen's Estate, the bride and bridegroom departed for a honeymoon in New Orleans. They will live at 11125 Valdamere drive, Affton.

Anniversary Party.

Sigma Kappa alumnae will observe the eighty-first anniversary of the sorority's founding at a meeting and buffet supper Thursday at the home of Mrs. Karl E. Sipfle, 1445 Andrew Drive, Glendale. The program will mark the beginning of a national endowment fund drive which will terminate next June at the national convention. A province meeting of the sorority will be held tomorrow and Sunday in Kansas City to which collegiate and alumnae chapter in Missouri and Kansas will send representatives.

Miss Carmody, C. J. Baker Jr. Are Married

ST. MONICA'S CHURCH in Creve Coeur was the scene yesterday of the marriage of Miss Margaret Claire Carmody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Carmody, Mosley road, Creve Coeur, and Charles James Baker Jr. The Rev. Joseph B. Winter officiated in a setting of candlelight, greenery and white flowers.

The bride wore a white velvet gown with a rounded neckline adorned with alencon lace. A sequin and pearl headpiece held her lace veil and she carried stephanotis and orchids.

Mrs. Jack J. Schumacher served as her sister's matron of honor, wearing rose velveteen. Her matching hat was studded with paillets, and her flowers, coral spider chrysanthemums, were attached to her white fur muff. Mrs. Thomas Joseph Carmody Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Claire Amend were bridesmaids and were similarly dressed.

Mr. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles James Baker, 244 Elm avenue, Glendale, had Donald LaBoube, Vincent Blum, Mr. Schumacher and Thomas J. Carmody Jr. and Marvin F. Carmody, brothers of the bride, as ushers. Best man was John Schneider.

After a breakfast at the Winston Churchill tearoom, the bride and bridegroom departed for a wedding trip to New Orleans. They will live at 7912 Kingsbury avenue, Clayton.

Miss Schmidt Bride Of Lt. L. S. Hirsh Jr. At Church Service

THE marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Schmidt to Lt. Leon S. Hirsh Jr. took place last evening at Brentwood Congregational Church. The Rev. Stephen M. Pronko performed the ceremony in a candlelighted setting of woodwardia fern and chrysanthemums. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmidt, 2649 Salem avenue, Brentwood.

—Roberts Photograph.
MRS. LEON S. HIRSH JR.

Mrs. Walter Brock Stephens of Oklahoma City served as her sister's matron of honor and Miss Nancy Murphy, Mrs. Donald Johns, Miss Karen Waldron, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Carole Ludwig were bridesmaids. Mr. Hirsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon S. Hirsh of Oklahoma City, had his father as best man. Ushers were William Gallagher, New York; Lt. Harrison Matthews, and Lt. Walter Brock Stevens, Oklahoma City; and Don Oscarson, Wichita Falls, Tex.

The former Miss Schmidt wore a peau de soie gown with back panels of lace from the neckline the length of the train. A juliet cap held her veil and her flowers were white Fuji chrysanthemums and ivy.

Her attendants were in emerald green peau de soie gowns and tiny matching hats. They carried small muffs of gold-colored chysanthemums.

The reception was given at the church. Lt. Hirsh and his bride, after a wedding trip to New Orleans, will live in Albany, Ga., where he is stationed at Turner Air Force Base.

Desert Bridge Party.

The Mothers' Club of Delta Delta Delta will have a dessert bridge party tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Louis K. Kane, 6317 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, for the benefit of the sorority's scholarship fund.

Harriett Weinberg Prospective Bride

THE engagement of Miss Harriett Weinberg to Allen Weintrop has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Weinberg, 760 Syracuse avenue, University City. The wedding is planned for March 18.

Mr. Weintrop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weintrop, 311 Rosedale avenue, is an alumnus of Soldan-Blewett High School. His fiancee was graduated last June from University City High School.

Miss Bess Dimpapas Becomes Bride of William Glastris

THE wedding of Miss Bess Dimpapas, daughter of Mrs. George Dimpapas, 5248 Winona street, and the late Mr. Dimpapas, to William Glastris, son of Mrs. Paul Glastris, 7120 Forsyth boulevard, University City, and the late Mr. Glastris, took place Oct. 30 at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church.

he bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Paul Gatzoulis of Independence, Mo. She wore a gown of white brocade satin fashioned with a square neckline and pleated torso bodice, to which a floor length full skirt was gathered. She wore a crown of orange blossoms which secured her fingertip-length veil. White stephanotis was combined with orchids for her bouquet.

Mrs. Oliver Trittler was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cynthia Glastris, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Nelson Hower, Miss Valerie Zoukis and Mrs. Andrew Heiss. Yellow rose bouquets and hair bandeaux of the same shade accented their copper tone faille gowns. Barbara and Billy Gatzoulis, the bride's niece and nephew, and Laurie Brindley, the bridegroom's nephew, served as flower girl and ring bearers, respectively.

John Glastris served his brother as best man while ushers were Dan Demmas, Theodore Anastas, Robert Franklin and Mike Fandos.

A buffet supper and reception in the Boulevard room of Hotel Jefferson followed the ceremony. After a motor trip, the newly-married couple will live here.

Miss Russo Married To Robert S. Ingerson At Church Ceremony

MISS VIRGINIA LEE RUSSO and Robert Stephen Ingerson of Battle Creek, Mich., were married yesterday morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church by Msgr. Edward A. Rogers. Masses of foliage were arranged at either side of the altar which was decorated with white chrysanthemums. The center aisle was marked by tall white candles entwined with greenery.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. John Russo, 7045 Forsyth boulevard, University City, and the late Mr. Russo, was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph Patrick Russo. She wore a Chantilly lace and nylon tulle gown over duchess satin. The all-lace bodice had a portrait neckline, and the bouffant skirt featured tiers of ruffled tulle with an overskirt of rosepoint lace. Her lace crown, which held her fingertip veil, was dotted with seed pearls. The former Miss Russo carried three white orchids clustered in lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Maid of honor was Miss Marie Russo; bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Ellen Seymour and the bride's sister, Miss Pauline Ann Russo. The young women were dressed alike in crimson velveteen and tulle, with which they wore matching hats and carried pale pink Fuji chrysanthemums.

Mr. Ingerson had Richard W. Eddinger as best man. Ushers were William Lee Ingerson, brother of the bridegroom; John T. Dailey, W. J. Briggs and John A. Macchi. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Ingerson of Battle Creek.

The wedding breakfast and reception took place afterward in the Ivory room of the Jefferson Hotel.

Mr. Ingerson and his bride have departed by plane for New Orleans.

Miss Jeanne Smith Mid-Autumn Bride Of Marvin Seidler

A BRIDE of Oct. 23 was Miss Jeanne DeVera Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Smith, 8217 Gannon avenue, University City, whose marriage to Marvin Seidler took place on the Starlight Roof of the Chase Hotel. Rabbi Jerome Grollman performed the ceremony in a setting of white chrysanthemums, rhododendron leaves and candlelight.

Mrs. Charles Steinger, sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Ralph Blumberg, Mrs. Saunders Schultz and Miss Helen Goldstein. They wore copper-colored ribbed taffeta gowns with elongated bodices, and carried cascades of white Fuji chrysanthemums. Their headpieces, matching their gowns, featured short eye veils.

The former Miss Smith wore an ivory taffeta gown, the scoop neckline edged with lace embroidered with sequins and seed pearls. Jeweled lace was appliqued on the full skirt and fashioned a cap to hold her veil. She carried a prayerbook marked with white orchids and stephanotis.

Mr. Seidler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben M. Seidler, 7508 Cromwell drive, Clayton, had Dr. Steinger as best man. Ushers were Ralph Blumberg, Mr. Schultz, Bernard Mellman, Julius M. Neuman, uncle of the bride, and Herman M. Scissors, uncle of the bridegroom.

Supper tables for the wedding guests were centered with white and silver baskets holding white autumn blossoms. The bride and bridegroom, who are spending their honeymoon in Las Vegas, Nev., will live temporarily at 4535 Lindell boulevard until their new home in Brittany Heights, University City, is completed.

Jacqueline Welsh, J. O. Barr Married

bridesmaids were in regal blue taffeta gowns with which they wore blue taffeta caps and carried yellow roses.

The bride was in white satin. French re-embroidered alencon lace was applied at the square neckline and in a lattice design down the back of the gown onto the train. The empire bodice featured long sleeves. A satin pillbox overlaid with lace secured her fingertip veil. She carried white orchids and variegated ivy.

Mr. Barr is the son of Oliver M. Barr of Chicago. Thomas M. Vincent of Baltimore was best man and ushers were A. D. Welsh Jr., William Corley, Kenneth W. Freeto and Donald P. Woulfe, River Forest, Ill.; Robert P. Charles, Western Springs, Ill., and Thomas B. Crandell, Evanston, Ill.

The reception was given at the Welsh home, 15 Pine Valley drive, St. Louis Country Club Grounds, Ladue. The receiving line stood before the fireplace in the living room in a setting of yellow chrysanthemums. White satin covered the buffet table, which was centered with yellow blossoms. Small tables arranged under a marquee were lighted by hurricane lamps encircled with yellow pompons.

Mrs. Welsh greeted her guests wearing a Wedgwood blue lace sheath distinguished by an accordion pleated flange at the skirt back. Pink camellias were pinned to her purse. The bridegroom's aunt, Miss Helen Barr, was in a gray crepe gown with a draped skirt. Her flowers, too, were pink camellias.

Mr. Barr and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Florida. They will live in Oak Park, Ill.

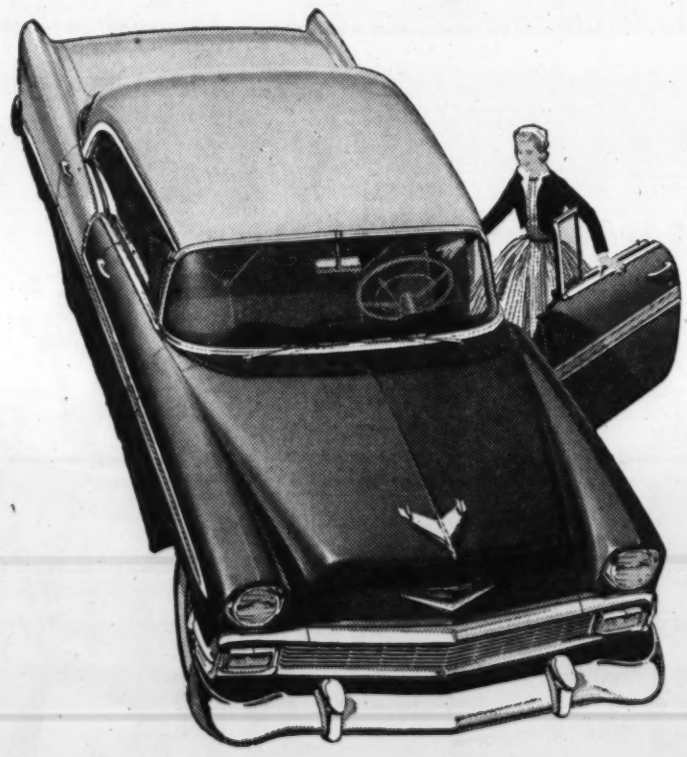
Chevrolet for '56



The "youngest" of all the new cars!

Wouldn't you say so? Chevrolet—the youngest of all the new '56 cars!

Young with Motoramic styling that's fresh in every line. Young in smooth, Turbo-Fire V8 power—the kind of youthful power that means safety because it gets you out of tight spots at the touch of your toe. This is the car that broke the Pikes Peak record, remember. It performs with the grace of a ballerina and the zest of a halfback.

And more models this year, too! Two new 4-door hardtops. Two new 9-passenger station wagons. Colors and fabrics as exciting as party dresses.

And what a youthful thing to handle! It'll match your own young ideas in every way. And it's up to us to prove it. And we're ready. There's a new '56 Chevrolet waiting for the touch of your hand . . . Come in soon, won't you?

Miss Williams Bride Of Rolf B. Nittman; To Live in Denver

MISS MARY MARGARET WILLIAMS was married last evening to Rolf Burt Nittman of Schenectady, N.Y. The marriage service, performed by the Rev. Dr. William H. Laird, took place at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in a setting of white flowers and lighted tapers.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late L. M. Williams and the late Mrs. George Moris, has been making her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Biebel, at 632 Audubon drive, Clayton, where the subsequent reception was held. She was given in marriage by her grandfather, William Clayton Edwards.

A ballerina gown of lace and tulle over satin was worn by the bride, whose illusion veil was secured to a pill box hat of lace and pleated tulle, highlighted with sequins and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride's only attendant, Mrs. James Graham of Rolla, Mo., was dressed in Nile green taffeta and held pink roses. Harry Nittman of Colorado Springs, Colo., served as best man for his brother. They are sons of Mrs. Fred R. Nittman of Schenectady and the late Mr. Nittman.

Mr. Nittman and his bride, after a wedding trip, will live in Denver. The bridegroom served for five years in the Army, part of that time in Japan, and now is a student at Denver University, where he is specializing in botany. Mrs. Nittman attended Washington University and received a B.A. degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder, with a major in sociology. She was a major in Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu honoraries.

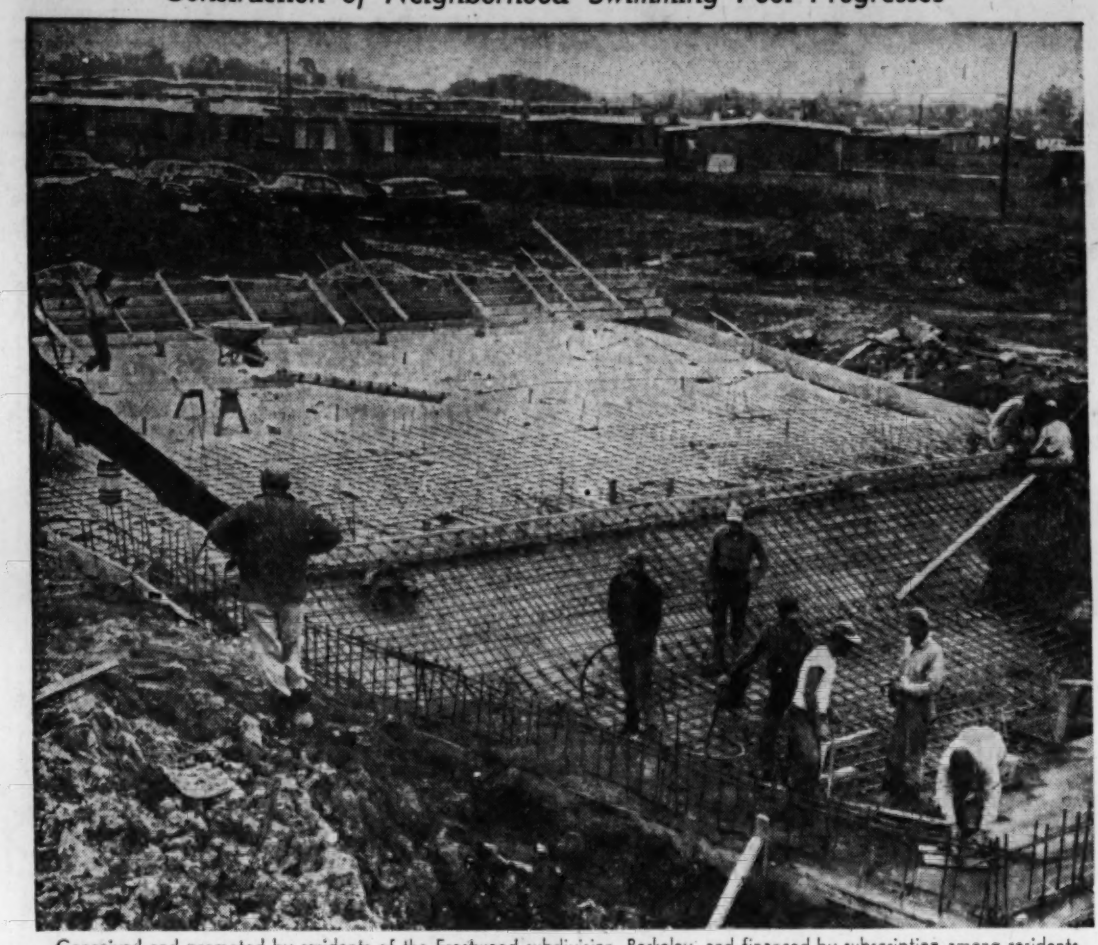
Construction of Neighborhood Swimming Pool Progresses



Conceived and promoted by residents of the Frostwood subdivision, Berkeley, and financed by subscription among residents, with assistance from the subdivision developers, Fischer & Frichtel, Inc., a neighborhood swimming pool comes into existence. Eric W. Smith Jr. was the designer; Fischer & Frichtel, Inc., donated one acre of ground in the subdivision as the pool site and is doing the building at cost.

New Ranch Home in Devondale Subdivision Purchased

This is the new home at No. 10 Devondale Lane which Dr. and Mrs. Dominic V. Costa have purchased from Higginbotham Brothers, Inc., the builders, through the real estate agency of Higginbotham & Co., Inc. On a one-acre site, sodded and landscaped, the house is of buff brick, has three bedrooms, two baths and lavette, living room, recreation room, dining room, kitchen and breakfast room, utility room, screened porch, two-car garage, full basement. Living room and recreation room, which are paneled in white oak, are divided by a raised, see-through fireplace, which is flanked either side by four folding shutter-type doors. The entire home is air conditioned.

St. Louis Hills Apartment Building Sold

The Sunshine Apartments, 6221-25 Sunshine Drive, St. Louis Hills, a 608 corporation called "Sunshine Apartments, Inc.," has been sold by stockholders to William G. and Olga Dryden in a stock transaction through which title to the property continues in the name of the corporation. The property has eight dwelling units each with five rooms (two bedrooms). The Gergs Company and the McDonough Realty Co. were agents in the transaction. Consideration wasn't reported.

New P.O. Station Opening

The Post Office Department's new building at 3415 North Kingshighway boulevard, just north of the Public Schol Stadium, will start the first full phase of its multiple operations tomorrow, Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann reports.

The station has been named after a prominent St. Louisan, Charles Nagel, who was a member of President Taft's Cabinet and served in the capacity of Secretary of Commerce and Labor from 1909 to 1913. He died in 1940.

Postmaster Dickmann pointed out that the opening tomorrow will be strictly a post office operation and that the station will not be open to the public until sometime in January. Then every post office facility will be available and in full operation for the public.

Speed Operations.

Conveyor belt facilities for handling of bulk parcel post, experimental drive-in window service, fluorescent lighting, streamlining of the lobby in the manner of modern bank construction, and air-conditioning are some of the features that will be provided. A back platform, 250 feet long, will accommodate 30 trucks at one time. Parking facilities for patrons will be available on the entire Kingshighway front when the building is opened to the public next year.

With the establishment of this station another step has been taken in the over-all decentralization plan set up by the Post Office Department. This will eventually take much of the work load away from the Main Office and distribute it to outlying areas. Incoming parcel post and collections will be the only manhandling operations that will take place at this station until after the first of the year. The parcel post will be separated within the station to an initial 38 parcel post routes, representing one-third of all parcel post incoming mail handled in all St. Louis postal districts. The mail collected on 22 truck collection routes from street letter boxes will be transhipped on one truck to the Main Office for processing.

Save Travel Time.

Eventually there will be 84 trucks that will be garaged and based permanently on a large parking auxiliary garage area adjacent to the station proper. Over 600 miles per day travel time will be saved by moving these trucks from their present post office garage at Eighteenth street and Clark avenue. Some 60 hours per day in driver time will be saved by the drivers of these trucks which will enable them to use that much more time at delivering mail, Dickmann said. Apart from the parcel post trucks that will be garaged there, trucks for mounted routes and collection trucks will make this their home base.

The new "Charles Nagel Station" was constructed for the Lex-Way Corporation, the lessor, by the Brockmeyer Construction Company. The architect was F. C. Sternberg. The superintendent of construction was Edward A. Magel. The station proper covers 48,420 square feet and the auxiliary garage and enclosed truck parking area covers 62,130 square feet. In addition there is an enclosed 5100 square foot lubrication and service type garage.

Sometime after Jan. 1 the foot carrier and financial operations of the present Wade Station and Natural Bridge Station will be merged and operated out of the "Charles Nagel Station." The public will be notified when this takes place and at that time formal dedication will be held.

Chambers Corner Is Shops Site

A tract of 11½ acres at the southeast corner of Chambers and West Florissant avenue has been chosen by Sydney Jacobs, Clayton realtor, as the site of a proposed $2,600,000 shopping development to be called Northtown. The site is about a mile north of the huge new Northland at West Florissant and Lucas and Hunt, where operation of many large stores already has been started.

For Northtown, Jacobs has projected a building of modified "U" shape 500 feet long, with parking for 950 cars, mostly in front of the stores, and with a service drive to the rear. Continued residential growth in the north and porthwest parts of the county, Jacobs said, demand continued expansion of shopping and service facilities. Some 15,000 more homes are projected in the area within the next few years, he said, and purchasing potential, already estimated at $900,000,000 from 570,000 persons within a 25-minute driving range of the Chambers-West Florissant corner, may be expected to increase.

Contemporary Styling.

Architects for the Jacobs building, Joe G. Harms and Gerhardt Kramer, say that the building, containing an approximate area of 110,400 square feet will be contemporary in design. It will be built of steel frame with brick, stone and glass facing.

Air-conditioned shops will be arranged on both floors. Ceilings will be acoustically treated and all floors covered with asphalt tile. Interior areas will be well lighted and exterior facades decoratively lighted. On the second floor there will be an area of about 12,000 square feet for business and professional offices.

Jacobs said, "Our plans for a shopping center in north county is evidence of our complete confidence in the continuing growth in this part of the county. Since 1940 the north county population has doubled and assessed valuations have risen tremendously.

Leasing In Progress.

Jacobs added, "A great asset in this type of center is the easy accessibility from the parking lot to the stores with a minimum of walking distance for the convenience of customers.

"Preliminary announcements of Northtown," he said, "brought inquiries from all parts of the country. We have been asked to write a lease for one of the largest supermarkets in the United States. Leasing discussions are now under way with Junior Department Stores, variety shops, a retail shoe chain and a large drug chain."

Jacobs did not say when he expected construction to get under way.

Northwood Ranch House Sold

This brick ranch style home at 6804 Duckworth in Northwoods was built by Joseph N. Matthews, financed and sold by the Dougherty Real Estate Co. to Ervin A. and Ruth S. Miemeier.

Dedication Here This Morning

Sketch from Architect Kenneth E. Wischmeyer of Webster Groves Evangelical and Reformed Church and new educational building, at Plant and Lockwood avenues. The educational building, designed by Wischmeyer and built by the George Moeller Construction Co. is to be dedicated at 10:30 a.m. today.

Educational Unit to Be Dedicated

The Webster Groves Evangelical and Reformed Church, Plant and Lockwood avenues, will dedicate its new $181,000 educational building at 10:30 a.m. today.

Dr. O. Walter Wagner, executive secretary of the Metropolitan Church Federation, will speak. The Rev. Paul H. Rahmeier, president of the Missouri Valley Synod, and Mayor William F. Guffey of Webster Groves, will convey greetings. Immediately following the service the building will be open for inspection.

The new building is joined to the existing church structure and will provide two additional floors for Sunday school, youth activities and meeting rooms for other organizations of the church. These facilities will include church parlor, fellowship room, Sunday school class rooms, nursery, sewing room, church offices, pastor's study, new kitchen and additional boiler room and toilet facilities.

The church parlor and fellowship room each will have a large fireplace, and a kitchen unit adjoining for serving light refreshments. A feature of the design includes an interior ramp from the east entrance, providing easy access to both levels. The east entrance opens onto a large parking lot.

The building is of fireproof construction, having a light steel frame, exterior masonry walls, plastered interior, acoustical ceiling, asphalt tile floors, plastic folding doors separating units to provide for smaller classrooms. The structure is designed for a future third floor which will be added when expansion is necessary.

Artificial lighting, plumbing and heating are all of the latest design and incorporate modern standards for classroom lighting. The new kitchen equipment is of stainless steel and will provide for large social gatherings in the renovated downstairs parish hall located in the present church structure.

The Rev. Thomas R. Marshall is pastor of the church and Charles K. Kreichelt is chairman of the building committee. Kenneth E. Wischmeyer was the architect and the George Moeller Construction Co. the general contractor.

Cates Apartment For Three Sold

A three-family apartment building at 6309 Cates avenue has been sold for Florence Ebitz to Mrs. Anna M. Haller in a transaction negotiated by the Irving Selzer Realty Co., Inc., and the Federal Realty Co. Consideration was not reported.

Building Put Up in 24 Hours

Responding to an urgent request for immediate construction of a building to house manufacturing facilities for the A. O. Smith Corporation, Fruin-Colnon Contracting Company designed and put under roof a new 104x30 ft. clear span structure in approximately 24 working hours last week. Siding will go on tomorrow.

Construction is structural steel framework with corregated metal siding and roof. The building was erected on an existing conrete slab. A special tool was used to fire anchor bolts into the concrete to hold columns in place.

The building will be in full operation tomorrow morning, and will be used for the manufacture of frames for Chevrolet convertible automobiles. In the center of the clear span will be located a mono-rail hoist which will handle frames on a production line basis.

The project was initiated last Wednesday at 3 p.m. Fruin-Colnon's engineering department designed the building in a matter of minutes from stock sizes.

Contacted at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Stupp Bros. Bridge and Iron Company fabricated and delivered the structural steel by 10:45 the next morning. Granite City Steel Company supplied corregated roofing and siding immediately. Approximately 236 man hours have been spent on the job.

The under-roof part of the project was complete Saturday afternoon, and the siding will be erected by nightfall tomorrow. Erection of siding will not interfere with Smith's manufacturing process.

Smith's Granite City plant where the building was put up is on Highway 67 north of Granite City, Ill., where approximately 40 per cent of the annual passenger frame requirements of the Chevrolet division are produced. Fruin-Colnon built Smith's original facilities there.

Savings Firm Adds New Vice President

Charles F. Dillon, for 17 years an examiner with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and before that an accountant with Price, Waterhouse & Co., has been named a director and vice-president of the Community Federal Savings & Loan Association, 8944 St. Charles road.

Dillon is moving to the St. Louis area from Joliet, Ill., reports John H. Armbruster, executive vice president of the Association. Armbruster said continued growth of the Association, which now has assets of more than $72,000,000, required expansion of the staff at executive level.

Real Estate Boards Name '56 Officers

Both the St. Louis City and St. Louis County Real Estate Boards held their annual elections last Wednesday.

Officers elected by the city board are Joseph A. Goeke Sr., president-treasurer of Joseph A. Goeke & Co., president of the board; Harold G. Simon, president-treasurer of Harold C. Simon & Co., vice-president of the board; directors: George C. Doering, president of George C. Doering, Inc.; William J. Dougherty, partner in Dougherty Real Estate Co.; Walter F. Faerber, executive vice-president of John H. Armbruster & Co., Inc.; Alphonse Rengel, vice president and treasurer of Jos. C. Rengel Realty Co.; Ancel A. Skaggs, president of Archoefer & Skaggs Real Estate Co.; Louis Steinbaum, president of Louis Steinbaum Realty Co., and Clara Hempelmann, owner of the Clara Hempelmann Realty Co.

Mrs. Hempelman, who will serve for one year of the unexpired two-year term of Simon, due to his elevation to the vice-presidency, is the first woman ever to be named a director of the St. Louis board.

In the county, Harry C. Herring, president of Harry Herring & Co., was elected president of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board. Gladys Manion, who heads up her own real estate brokerage and management agency, was first vice-president of the board, and Ray Schrader of the Schrader Realty & Building Co. was elected second vice-president. David P. Leahy, who heads up his own company, was elected the board's treasurer, and Arthur W. Spangler was re-elected secretary. Directors named are Paul Collopy, Jean Mason, D. D. Blackwell, Lawrence Baygents, Eleanor Blase, John Feldwisch.

Both the city and the county board will have installation dinners later. The city board's installation is to be the night of Jan. 12 in the Jefferson Hotel, with Robert P. Gerholz, Flint, Mich., developer, builder and real estate dealer, speaking on "The Ten Golden Years Ahead."

Institute Elects

Adolph Soell has been elected president of the Institute of Real Estate Management, St. Louis Chapter No. 11, V.C. McKenzie, retiring secretary reports. Other officers named for 1956 are Sam Michelson, vice-president; Paul H. Lewis, secretary-treasurer. The institute is one of the subsidiary organizations of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

LEAVES From a Gardener's NOTEBOOK

By Eleanor B. McClure

One transplanted New Englander maintains that he really likes Missouri weather. "We do have perfectly awful summers," he reports to his eastern friends, "but our winters aren't bad as a rule. Then we have long and very beautiful springs, and long magnificent autumns."

This year's autumn has brought us a succession of crisp golden days and such brilliant displays of foliage that trips through the country have been sheer pleasure.

Recently I had an extra dividend of such enjoyment on a sort of busman's holiday, a horticultural trip to Cape Girardeau in the good company of Hazel Knapp and Dr. Edgar Anderson, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden. We took a roundabout route in order to see more of the bright tapestry of the Ozark hillsides — rich amber-to-crimson of the oaks, shining gold of hickories, elms and maples, orange-to-gold

Gocke Farm In Overland Subdivided

The original farm home property of Edward A. Gocke, who established the Edward A. Gocke R. E. Co., in what now is Overland back in 1904, has been subdivided. Formal opening of the tract of new homes is scheduled for today. The area, some 50 acres, (an eight-acre section with the old home, was sold earlier) has been given two names, Gocke Terrace and Gocke Place.

The ground lies between Baltimore avenue on the north and Thorpe avenue on the south, with Chauser avenue being next street east, though not adjoining the tract. Poe avenue runs into the tract, north and south, and is being extended so it will run from Baltimore to Thorpe.

One group of homes is to be built on a "private place," an oblong street with a single entrance at one end, off Thorpe avenue. Other streets are to be named West Wise and Lesmer, and Carlyle street is to be continued through the tract.

Development has been in progress a year and the Gocke company, which is doing some building and permitting some other builders to build in the area too, will have its display homes, called "expandable" designs, ready today.

Bond Issues Get Support Of Builders

The Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis has voted to lend its support to all phases of the St. Louis County bond issue campaign, Builders' President Gene L. Vescovo has informed E. E. Pershall, general chairman of the Citizens Bond Issue Committee of the county.

The association indorsed all items in the $39,712,000,000 St. Louis County bond issue and promised campaign support by voluntary contributions from the membership at a special board meeting of the Home Builders last week.

John M. Dogdanor of the Home Builders executive committee will act as co-ordinator of the builders' assistance in the campaign.

Vescovo said "we as home builders fully realize the necessity of project planning for community welfare. Specifically, we are aware of the need for improved and expanded community facilities and essential services, particularly as covered in the expressways, supplemental roads, bridges and grade crossings, playgrounds, small park-picnic areas, and inner belt highway. We are at a point today where we must all think about making the county a better place to live and work, and these considerations, we are convinced, have been realistically evaluated in the proposed bond issue."

Vescovo pointed out that the emphasis of the National Association of Home Builders in bettering communities.

"The National Association of Home Builders of the United States of which we are a local affiliate has a staff of experts who are working on the various programs and formulae to provide technical advice and service to local communities and to home builders which will enable them to plan and provide adequate community facilities, A.C.T.I.O.N. the American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods, a nonprofit association is one of these," Vescovo added.

"The Home Builders Association is an organization of 188 builders representing the majority of all new home construction in the area, plus 253 supply and service firms in the building line and these members have a vital interest in the future of St. Louis County and want it to continue to grow and prosper. We believe the forthcoming bond issue election will furnish us with the tools to go forward," he concluded.

Newest Store of Schnuck Chain to Be Opened on Chambers Rd. Corner

This is a sketch from Architect Cay G. Weinel of the Schnuck market which has just been built by the A. H. Haeseler Contracting Co. at the corner of Chambers road and West Florissant avenue, and which is to be opened for business next Wednesday morning. With more than 16,000 square feet of floor space, property also has parking area for 180 cars. Market is sixth in Schnuck chain, has newest styled fixtures, pastel decor, a large meat department with service counters, the chain being exponent of personalized rather than self-service operation.

U.S. Goal Market on Even Keel

LOS ANGELES—The Federal Government means to prevent the balloon of business from being inflated to the point where a "bust" is imminent and the brakes which Government has applied are just now beginning to take hold, Wallace Moir, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, told members here at the opening session of the organization's 42nd annual convention at Hotel Statler. Thus, alluding to the most significant fact occupying the attention of mortgage lenders and investors from all over the nation here for the convention—that is, the tight money conditions which have been developing this year—Moir declared that the Government's policy of "active ease" in the money markets prevented a business recession in 1953-54.

"The increase in general business activity toward the end of 1954 led to a policy of just 'ease' and, as business continued to forge ahead in early 1955, the tendency was to impose more and more restrictions—and they were and are being imposed. Every citizen must agree, Moir said, with the goal which the government has set, even though all may not agree entirely with the method of reaching it."

"The Eisenhower Administration has done a magnificent job in the field of monetary regulation and its counterpart in the business realm, well-regulated business activity."

In Separate Sessions.

Moir spoke at a session of the convention being attended by more than 2700 mortgage, mutual savings and commercial bankers, life insurance and title and trust company executives and representatives from all kinds of lending and investing institutions. Every state was represented as well as Canada, Puerto Rico, Latin America and Hawaii. The convention is the first for the association in Los Angeles and Southern California and the second time in this state. Moir is the first Californian to head the organization. Several St. Louisans were in attendance.

An unique feature of the meeting is that it ran through Nov. 3 in Los Angeles, then officially adjourned until next Thursday when it will re-convene in Honolulu for another four-days schelude of meetings. More than 200 are expected to go on to Hawaii for the Adjourned Session.

Continuing, Moir declared that:

"From past experence we can except a reversal of method by the Federal Reserve and Treasury Department when inflationary tendencies have been curbed and boom times return to their customary or traditional level. How hard mortgage credit will become is not quite clear, for there appears to be a reluctance on the part of government, and properly so, to curb construction. When mortgage money actually becomes hard, it may be a signal to take off the brake. At any rate, mortgage bankers will do well to follow carefully the activity of the Federal Reserve and Treasury. We can all hope that the good job these facilities have already done will continue to produce good business with the least amount of inflation."

How Far Government?

Turning to Government participation in the mortgage banking field, Moir recalled for the members how far it has gone as of now.

"Up to 1929 there were only four acts that had ever been introduced in the Congress with respect to the mortgage business, the building business, or the real estate business. During the '30s, 10 additional acts were passed. During the '40s 63 acts were passed. During the '50s the number will be substantially increased.

"How far is this activity of government to go? Let us see how much mortgage credit inflation we have had. In 1935 we were making, on the average, 50 per cent loans on residences. We have gone to 100 per cent loans on the top side in the year 1955. The loan-to-value ratio has gone up 5 per cent per annum for 20 consecutive years. Housing costs have contributed to mortgage credit inflation. Let us see how much.

A $7500 house in 1940 costs $18,750 today. Costs are up 16 per cent per annum for 15 consecutive years. The impact of these two figures is startling. The mortgage debt is up 300 per cent over 1940. Think of it, 20 per cent per annum increase for 15 consecutive years! Can this continue year after year? Probably not in the residential-loan field. Now how much more mortgage credit inflation is coming? Let us simplify the answer and go right to the heart of the situation—as much inflation as is needed to keep business moving ahead. If the 100 per cent residential loan is the limit in that area, where will credit inflation be applied to even approach 20 per cent per annum? It must come in other areas of the economy. Pending legislation points to these areas: medical facilities, schools and colleges, trailer parks, housing for old people, etc. Why not add industrial, hotel, motel, commercial, etc., for they will all come in for more credit inflation if it is thought to be necessary."

Turning to the problems of veterans' housing — a subject which also occupied convention time, Moir said.

"Are veterans getting a good deal? They have a right to a home and a good one. Such a good home sells at the present time for $18,750. That same home sold for $7500 fifteen years ago. From $7500 to $18,750 is quite a rise. It is certainly important that the veteran get a good home at this higher price. This brings up the question of how we can give veterans and others a better home for their money, a home that will bring more enduring happiness to its owner and his community. Tied to this subject is another closely akin—how we can remove slums from our cities—for if the trend to outlying communities is speeded by the G.I. loan, and it is conceivable that the slum areas in cities could take care of themselves, that is, the inhabitants move to more attractive quarters voluntarily. Then slum areas could be torn down for parks, automobile parking facilities, playgrounds, etc."

One of the things that is being done that is decidedly not in the interest of veterans is building thousands and thousands of homes for them too close together on small plots.

Packing Makes Slums.

"Such packing is said to be necessary because of the high price of land or because we are running out of land. Both reasons are fallacious. The amount of financing available determines the price of land, rather than the price of land determining what shall be built on it. A few subdivisions will have two homes to the acre. This spacious development makes a delightful community and one that will never become a slum. A cottage over 100 years old on a half-acre or more never becomes a slum. But when houses are packed together and you can hear your neighbors' plumbing, a potential slum has been built. If we want to do something for the veteran and the home buyer, and best of all for the community, why not require that there be not more than two home sites per acre."

"The only facility that could give the veteran a real break and the community a real lift is the government, through the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration, by requiring that no subdivisions shall have more than two homesites per acre if federally insured loans are desired."

Forms New Firm.

A new real estate agency called Kay & Company has been formed as a partnership of Ross P. Easton, Alva Ottinger, Thomas Todd and Buddy Kay, former employes of another real estate company. The new firm has taken office space at 5007 South Kingshighway, will do a general brokerage and service business.

New 15-Acre Shopping Center for Florissant Planned

This is a sketch from Architect Arthur B. Rathert of shopping buildings to be erected at the intersection of U.S. Highway 140 and Lindsay lane in Florissant for Jones Enterprises, Inc. Preliminary grading of the 15-acre site has been started. Buildings, to be built by R. K. & A. Jones, Inc., contractors, are to house 25 air-conditioned stores. There will be parking area for 1300 cars. Tenants signed in advance include National Food Stores, Gasen Drug Co., Ozark Paint & Hardware stores, a Ben Franklin variety store, an Excelsior-Leader Laundry and Dry Cleaning store, a baby shop. Opening early in the summer of 1956 is contemplated.

Work Resumed on Big Store

Extra-heavy beam swings across excavation for addition to Bly-Moss West, 10301 Clayton road, as workmen from Ben Hur Construction Co., structural steel sub-contractors, unload long-awaited shipment from U.S. Steel. The steel was unloaded and completely erected in three days. Spokesman for E. C. Mikkelsen Construction Co., general contractor, said this unit of Bly-Moss' $350,000 expansion program would be completed about Feb. 1, 1956, instead of Dec. 1, 1955, as originally planned. Project had been held up since July 31, 1955 awaiting the steel.

Property on St. Charles Road

This property at 8119 St. Charles Rock road has been sold for Edward J. Fitzgerald, the builder, to Dr. Harold Dilbertson, chiropractor, who will occupy it as an office. The Robert J. Sargent agency negotiated the transaction.

Big Beams Arrive for Store Job

Construction of the $350,000 addition to the Bly-Moss Furniture Co. store, 10301 Clayton road, was resumed last week after a three-month stalemate. The job was continued after 12 extra-heavy steel beams, rolled especially for the building by the U. S. Steel Corporation in Gary, Ind., arrived in the yards of Superior Structural Steel Co., 5100 Farlin ave., for fabrication.

"The white terrazzo floor in this building will weigh about 500 tons more than conventional flooring," said Al C. Enzmann, job superintendent for E. C. Mikkelsen Construction Co., general contractor.

"Therefore," he added, "each of the key beams had to be 24 inches thick. They weigh exactly one ton each."

The building, originally scheduled to be completed Dec. 1, 1955, will now open officially about Feb. 1, 1956, with one month of the 90-day delay while waiting for the steel being made up by the general contractor.

Men Gardners To Have Fall Meet at Shaw's

The Men's Garden Clubs of Greater St. Louis will hold a quarterly meeting in the Musuem building of the Missouri Botanical Garden Saturday, Nov. 12, at 2 p.m. Representatives of the St. Louis, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Glendale, Overland and Richmond Heights clubs are expected to attend.

Clarence Barbre, national director of the Men's Garden Clubs of America, will announce the details of a contest. Rolbert L. Waln will report on Mayor Tucker's Dutch bulb contest, and Dan O'Gorman will report on the Greater St. Louis Harvest Show. Phil Conrath, Earl Caldwell and Frank McMath will discuss plans for the St. Louis convention of the Men's Garden Clubs of America.

The meeting will be open to all men who are interested in gardening.

Home Factory Honors Local Developers

Dale J. Notestine, president of the St. Louis Construction Co., was honored last week when James R. Price, president of National Homes Corp., presented him with three awards for: Completion of 100 National Homes, the best year around advertising program, and good land planning in subdivision development.

St. Louis Construction has built several developments in St. Louis county, including Granidale Heights, Ferguson; Connie-lee Acres, Manchester; Westridge Acres, Ballwin. Other developments include Westwood Manor, Columbia, Mo., South School Subdivision, Fulton, Mo., and Mary Crest, Joliet, Ill.

Notestine said that many of the new '56 model homes shown in Chicago last weekend will be built in section four of Westridge Acres. Masonry exteriors, brand-name equipment, individualized design which will permit a buyer to add carport or garage, or other space where needed are incorporated into 1956 designs.

Re-Painting Radiators.

Radiators which are grease-free and rust-free may be painted with a flat wall paint of the same tint as the walls or with enamel. The former practice of using a metallic paint is seldom followed these days because it has been established that these retard the radiation of heat. Such metallic coatings are used instead on pipes and storage tanks where it is important to keep heat in.

Leaves

clumps of sassafras, brilliant vermillion, garnet and maroon of native sumac, euonymus, dogwoods and sour gum, the tupelo tree.

At sunset the hills and valleys were washed with an ethereal golden light, which prompted Dr. Anderson to remark, "I feel as though I were traveling through an old Italian painting. The landscape has that same unearthly glow."

New Rose Garden.

It was dark when we reached Cape Girardeau, but next morning our hostesses, Mrs. C. E. Stivers and Mrs. T. G. Harris (past president of the Missouri Federation of Garden Clubs) took us on a tour of the city and countryside. First of all, we visited the new community rose garden, planned, planted and maintained by the Allied Garden Clubs of Cape Girardeau, with the co-operation of various civic groups.

Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Stivers, co-chairmen for this project, were beaming with justifiable pride. The roses have surely responded to the meticulous care and grooming given by the garden clubs. (One club is responsible for this work each week.) Remarkable sturdy bushes had lustrous green leaves and were studded with huge, richly-colored blooms.

Incidentally, this brand-new planting has been designated by the American Rose Society as an official rose test garden—a recognition that deservedly made front page headlines in the Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian.

This strong combination of civic-minded garden clubs, supported by a beauty-conscious newspaper, has made Cape Girardeau into a veritable gardened city. As a matter of fact, Cape Girardeau's flowers extend far beyond the city limits, along the "Ten Mile Garden" that has won nationwide acclaim.

Thousands of bush roses and climbing roses border the roadsides between Cape Girardeau and Jackson. This planting grows in beauty through the years, for groupings of shrubs and evergreens have been added for year-round effect.

"We could use more roses, hundreds of them," said Fred Naeter, one of the publishers of the Southeast Missourian. "People take such pride in this planting that many home owners maintain adjacent roadsides, cutting the grass with their own mowers and trimming around shrubs and roses."

The Naeters enjoy a panoramic view of the Ten Mile Garden from their country home, Bouldercrest. On the rugged hillsides of this estate the natural beauty of native shrubs and trees has been preserved, but exotic plants grow in their gardens.

It is always interesting to see the wide variety of trees and shrubs in Cape Girardeau. There are fine specimens of evergreen magnolias and Chinese hollies, plants that are sometimes a bit unhappy in the St. Louis area. The beautiful Euonymus japonica and evergreen privet also seem to flourish.

Mums Big Show.

In the garden at the home of Mrs. Harris's daughter, Mrs. Burton Gerhardt, fig "bushes" were loaded with fruit. Of course the plants freeze to the ground in severe winters, but they grow very quickly, and their tropical foliage gives a bold, dramatic effect.

I always enjoy visiting this garden, for Mrs. Gerhardt is a fine horticulturist. Her roses are wonderfully floriferous; for example, that shy bloomer, The Doctor, had almost as many blooms as a floribunda. We admired some late-blooming hemerocallis (repeaters, which were sending up flower scapes in late October). The big show, however, was the gayest possible display of chrysanthemums, with vivid blooms in gold, amethyst, red, maroon and white, cascading over a low stone wall.

Later, when we attended the luncheon meeting of the Allied Garden Clubs, I decided that Cape Girardeau is a city of chrysanthemums, as well as roses. The luncheon tables had beautiful arrangements of chrysanthemums, and there were little corsages for the visitors. Almost all of these flowers had been grown by members in their own gardens.

North Bank Adding Wing On South

The North St. Louis Trust Company at Grand boulevard and West Florissant is adding a contemporary-styled wing on the south side of its present building to expand its general service area and add auto drive-up windows that can be reached by way of an alley from Florissant avenue.

The new building, designed by Architect Lester O. Roth, with Burton-Wirth Co. & Associates as engineers, is to be built by the A. H. Haeseler Building and Contracting Co., general contractors, with Sodeman Heat & Power Co., W. L. Clucas & Co. and the Wendt Electric Co. as principal subcontractors.

Construction is expected to require six months. Work got under way last week.

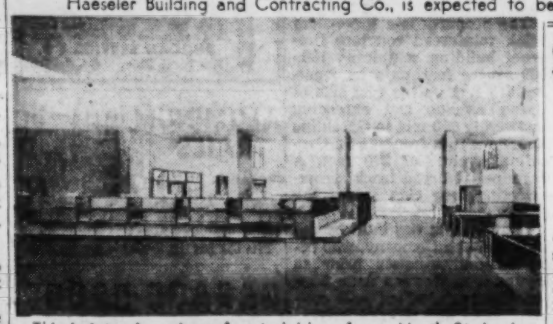
The new building will have receiving and paying departments, real estate department, officers' quarters, additional bookkeeping space. The present building will be remodeled, in connection with the expansion, to house savings department, safe deposit department and loan department.

North St. Louis Trust Co., incorporated in 1909, began business at Grand and Hebert streets, moved in 1933 to the present location in connection with merger with the Water Tower Bank. Combined resources now are $17,200,000.

Officers of the company are Walter H. Hill, president and treasurer; Fred H. Kruse, vice president and secretary; H. H. Oberschelp, vice president and counsel; Joseph Hauss, vice president; Roy A. Kruer, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer; Herbert R. Meckfessel, assistant secretary; Frank L. Stein, assistant treasurer; A. J. Green, manager real estate department.

Sketch From Architect of New North Bank

This is a sketch from Architect Lester O. Roth of addition being made to North St. Louis Trust Co.'s building, Grand and West Florissant. Work was started last week by A. H. Haeseler Building and Contracting Co., is expected to be finished in six months.



This is interview view of main lobby of new North St. Louis Trust Co. building on which work was begun last week.

One Mauller Firm Moves, One Stays

One Mauller company moved and one didn't, but when a public relations agency reported to the Post-Dispatch on the one that did move, the addresses of two firms were confused and the report had the mover quitting the wrong address.

The company that did move is Mauller Air Conditioning, Inc., now in all new quarters at 2337 South Hanley road. The company went there from 3729 Palm street. The Mauller company that didn't move (and which, incidentally, also is in the air conditioning business) is at 3507 North Twenty-Fifth street. It's still there and it's name is "G. A. Mauller, Company, Inc." The Mauller of the company that did move also has one initial G., which made matters all the more confusing.

Sales Firm Buys Corner, To Remodel

Richard H. Proctor, president of the Proctor Sales Co., wholesalers of household merchandise and sporting goods, has purchased the property at the Southeast corner of the Gasconade, Piedmont and Broadway intersection.

The tract contains approximately 118,000 square feet with a frontage of 350 feet on Piedmont avenue and 269 feet on Gasconade, which is to be blacktopped and used for the display rental and sale of new automobiles and trucks for the General Rent A Car Co., of which Proctor is also president. The car company will be moved from 6428 Chippewa street.

A three-story building on the corner of the tract purchased, formerly occupied by Laclede Gas Co., is to be modernized for general office and sales purposes and eventually will be used as a Branch for the Proctor Sales Co. Proctor's general office now is at 110 South Fourth street.

The newly acquired lot is one of the largest commercial tracts in South St. Louis. The entire property is cyclone fenced.

The property was sold for the account of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schiffman and Mrs. Tillie Kugman by the Henry R. Weisels Co.

Booklets Explain Buying and Sale Of Home and Lot

Two informative booklets on buying and selling homes have been developed by the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co. and are available to the public.

"How to Sell Your Home Profitably" explains the preparations of home and grounds before placing it on the market, the value of selling seasons and the usual wants and reactions of prospective buyers.

"Things You Should Know Before Buying a Home" tells how to choose a house and lot that will satisfy family needs, facts a buyer should know about contracts and other legal considerations and methods of financing.

New Builders' Leader Names Policy Group

President Gene L. Vescovo of the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis, reports selecting 1956 members of his Clarence T. Wilson, head of Wilson Homes, Inc., and other enterprises; Richard C. Higginbotham, president of Higginbotham Brothers, Inc.; Clinton R. Schattgen, president of the Schattgen Co. and Julius A. Seidel of Julius A. Seidel Lumber Co. This committee has the power to formulate association policies.

Wood Insulates.

Wood has long been recognized as a superior insulating material, but many persons are not sure exactly why it is superior. The reason, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, is that the structure of wood is comprised of myriad cells containing dead air spaces which retard passage of heat and cold.

Accountant Wins a New Auto

Gilbert C. Twellman, an accountant with the Oberjuerge Rubber Co. receives from George A. Pappas, South Kingshighway Dodge dealer, title to 1956 Dodge Lancer Hardtop awarded to him in first of four weekly contests being sponsored in St. Louis area by National Food Center Stores and the Dodge Division of the Chrysler Corporation. At left is Carl Mefford, sales manager for National Food Center Stores, then Pappas, Twellman, Mrs. Twellman and their five-year-old daughter, Debbie. The Twellmans, who live at 3637 Jamieson avenue, had no car, were saving up to buy a used one, still have to learn to drive, which isn't too difficult today with Dodge push-button shifting.

Chevrolet Performance 'Upped'

Improved performance and freshness in styling throughout the three series of passenger cars are claimed in 1956 Chevrolets. Two nine-passenger station wagons and two four-door sport sedans are new comers among 19 models which make up the broadest market coverage in company history. Front ends are made more rugged appearing in a re-design of grille and forward sheet metal. Models have a lower, longer look. New colors, two-toning and tasteful interiors give each of the series distinction. Engine choices include V8s and a more powerful six-cylinder. The Two-Ten (pictured) affords a good illustration of one of Chevrolet's two-tone styling treatments for 1956. The top and body area below the side molding are of one color with a contrasting color "sandwiched" between.

Roadmaster Grace, Beauty

The grace and beauty of Buick styling for 1956 are epitomized in the custom-built Roadmaster series which is Buick's top car in the luxury field. In addition to new front end styling, the Roadmaster has bombsights mounted on each headlight, distinctive rear end styling and a modified sweep-spear molding tailored exclusively for this series. Interiors fashioned in nylon brocade and cordaveen are standard on the Roadmaster, along with the new variable pitch Dynaflow, power steering and a 255-horsepower V-8 engine. The full rear wheel cutouts are a hallmark on all 1956 Buicks.

Holiday Sedan for 1956

Long flowing lines of the 1956 Oldsmobile "98" De Luxe Holiday sedan with Starfire styling are complemented by the new flair-away fenders, the airfoil grille and two-tone color effect obtained through sweeping side moulding that extends nearly the length of the car. The Holiday body with unlimited side vision is enhanced on the interior with rich new fabrics and trim set off by a redesigned instrument panel. The "Holiday" designation is in chrome block letters on the front fender panel. The 1956 Oldsmobile features a brand-new front end. The engine has been boosted to 240 horsepower, and is coupled with a brand-new development in automatic transmissions called Jetaway Hydra-Matic.

Three Power Train Options

The Thunderbird '56, called the most successful "personal car" in American automotive history, has a new "Continental" spare tire carrier, flipper windows and cowl vents. Besides retaining its classic design, the new Thunderbird has three power train options—a 225 horsepower engine with Fordomatic transmission, a 215 horsepower engine with overdrive and a 202-horsepower engine with standard transmission. Standard safety equipment includes a concave safety steering wheel, safety door latches and a shatter resistant rear view mirror. Optional safety equipment includes seat belts and shock absorbent cushioning for the instrument panel and sun visors.

Rust Challenges

Heat acts as an accelerator to corrosion. In consequence, protecting the surfaces of metals which mush operate under high temperatures is a challenge to manufacturers of coatings and finishes.

Jet-engine cowlings, for instance, require coatings which will not only stand up under heat, but will also withstand abrasion and impact from incidental handling. Manufacturers of industrial chemical coatings, members of the paint, varnish and lacquer industry, have provided one answer by formulating coatings based on resins which resist high temperatures and can be modified in the final formulation to provide other desirable characteristics of toughness and flexibility.

Paint Sound Traps

Acoustical tile or blocks are made of various materials and there are several different types. They have one thing in common—all are highly porous, for the purpose of absorbing sound waves instead of causing them to "rebound."

Accordingly, painting them requires special care in order not to destroy this sound-absorbing property. Be sure to check with your dealer or painting contractor regarding the type of paint to use before recoating acoustical surfaces.

Before painting, incidentally, they should be thoroughly cleaned—preferably with suction from a vacuum-cleaner attachment. If previously painted, they may be washed with soap and water, followed by a rinsing with clear water.

New Plymouth Man Like the Weather Here

H. I. Patterson

H. I. (Pat) Patterson, who has come from Bethesda, Md., where he lived, and Washington, D.C., where he had his office as regional sales manager for the Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corp., likes St. Louis weather. "After years around Washington," he said, "you certainly won't hear me complaining about St. Louis; I like it here." Patterson is the newly assigned regional sales manager here for Plymouth, and looks forward to an even stronger penetration of the market here in 1956 by the Plymouth division.

Patterson has had a varied career, including 10 years as football coach and business manager of private boys' schools; coach in Navy Air Corps during World War II; president of Bethesda Chamber of Commerce for two years; founder and first vice president of Montgomery County Commerce Association, consisting of 25 local chambers of commerce, boards of trade, etc.; member board of directors of Maryland State Chamber of Commerce; served as national councillor on United States Chamber of Commerce, and has been active in civic clubs and organizations, including Scouts and various luncheon clubs. Among his many hobbies are public speaking and the collecting of marine prints. He married Betsy Davidson of Lexington, Va., and they have two boys, John, 8, and Hunter, 5.

Gopher Wood Cypress?

The Bible reports that Noah's ark was constructed of gopher wood. Most translators have taken gopher to mean cypress, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

Investors Acquire Big Warehouse

An office and warehouse building at 4116 North Union Avenue occupied 18 years by the Western Auto Supply Co. with office, warehouse and distributing center for this area, has been sold by the Frazier-Davis Construction Company to Mr. and Mrs. Oswald W. Klingsick. The Carl G. Stifel Realty Company and the Metropolitan St. Louis Company were agents.

The property is a three-story brick reinforced concrete fireproof building containing 130,000 square feet, on a lot fronting 270 feet on the east side of Union Avenue and extending eastwardly 600 feet to Geraldine Avenue with a frontage on Geraldine Avenue of 270 feet. A Terminal Railroad track accommodating four cars serves the property.

The building was built by the Garrett Wine Company, who occupied the premises prior to leasing it to Western Auto Supply Company, which will continue to occupy the property.

Old and New Brick Walls Are Contrast

A demolished wall of an old brewery on Gravios avenue was compared with a wall being erected at a new public housing project last week to show how modern building methods have changed the bricklayer's job.

The comparison was made by Robert W. Conradi, secretary of the Unit Masonry Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, to "clear up a misunderstanding about the nature of the work being done by present-day bricklayers."

The old brewery had brick walls 27 inches thick that were built to carry the weight of the building. Comparatively little finish work was required in erecting these walls, since most of the bricks used were not exposed to view.

"The interior bricks could be almost literally thrown into the wall," Conradi said, "because there was no need for precision. Naturally, a bricklayer was able to install a tremendous number of bricks in a day."

Using the Joseph M. Darst Apartments project at Twelfth street and Lafayette avenue as an example of modern construction, he pointed out that the masonry walls are "curtain walls" enclosing a reinforced concrete skeleton. This skeleton carries the weight of the building.

In erecting a curtain wall, the bricklayer lays only two courses. One of these is of face brick. The other course is a "back-up" of concrete block or structural tile. Both courses, Conradi remarked, are exposed to view and must be laid with great care and precision.

"The work of the bricklayer today," he said, "is almost entirely finish work. This means that he cannot handle as many pieces per day as he did in the days of massive, load-bearing walls.

"However, because walls are thinner and larger units are used for back-up, masonry walls go up much faster today than in the old days. In fact, a bricklayer today produces many more square feet of wall area in any given period than a bricklayer working 50 years ago would have thought possible."

Masonry work in the Darst project is being done by Stephen Gorman Bricklaying. The brewery site at Compton and Gravois avenues is being cleared by Samuel Kraus & Co.

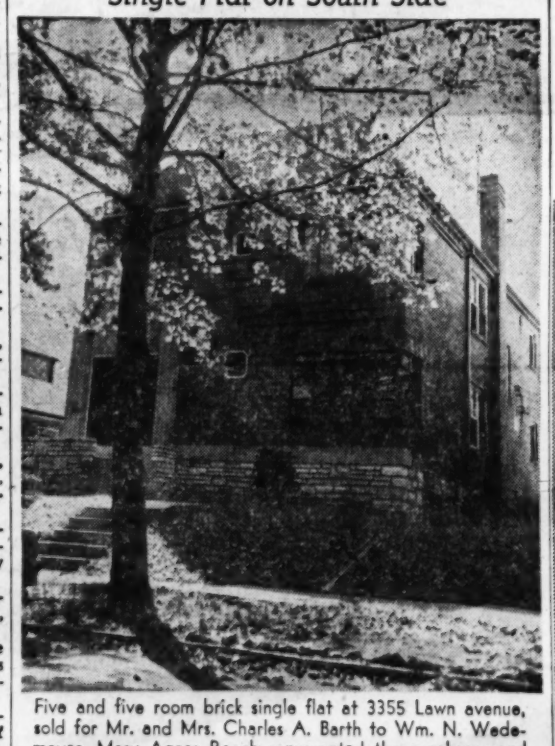
Construction, New and Old

Robert W. Conradi, secretary of the Unit Masonry Association of Metropolitan St. Lous, measures across an ancient load-bearing masonry wall 27 inches thick, in an old brewery being demolished here. Fill between the outer surfaces was far from a precision or finished operation.

Here is a modern masonry wall. Called a "curtain wall" it is non-load bearing, weight being carried, rather by steel or concrete beam and post framing. This photo was taken at a current public housing project.

Single Flat on South Side



Five and five room brick single flat at 3355 Lawn avenue, sold for Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Barth to Wm. N. Wedemeyer. Mary Agnes Roach represented the purchaser and the Gabbert Realty Company represented the sellers.

ADDITIONAL BARRIERS

Damp basements, porus foundation walls and floors, as well as crawl spaces, may all be substantial sources of water vapor which finds its way into exterior house walls or into living quarters.

In finding its way to the outside, the moisture-laden air of the basement takes the path of least resistance. Sometimes this may lead into the stud spaces of exposed walls and may continue its course—even though the water vapor has to pass through wooden sill construction and fire stops.

Since the vapor enters from the bottom of the stud space, the conventional vapor barrier used in new construction when installed on the interior surfaces of exposed walls will do nothing toward preventing the passage of this moisture into the wall areas. Additional vapor barrier protection must be employed to prevent vapor from entering the stud spaces.

Putty Renewal Wise.

It pays to inspect the putty on window sash at regular intervals. Replacing portions that show signs of separating from the glass is good economy. Not only does it forestall complete replacement, but it is good insurance against rot in wood sash and rust on metal sash. Be sure to use a priming coat on all areas that are to be reputtied. New putty requires several days drying time before painting.

Truss Inexpensive.

The wood-trussed rafter system of construction is an inexpensive type of roof framing.

GOLF TEST FOR FINISH

Golf clubs are subjected to a wider variety of punishment than many other types of sporting equipment. This creates special problems when it comes to protecting and beautifying the surface of the clubs. In addition to withstanding bending stresses and abrasion, the finish must also permit frequent soakings in water as clubs are often cleaned in this manner. The paint, varnish and lacquer industry manufactures industrial chemical coatings that are specifically designed for such treatment. These are usually synthetic resins or lacquers.

The golf ball also furnishes a rough proving ground for industrial chemical coatings. As a ball is driven, it changes for a split second from a round to an oval shape, requiring that the finish be flexible. It must also be tough enough to withstapd the impact of a club head, water, clay and abrasive sand—a real test for any finish.

Wood For Decor.

Wood, long acclaimed for its beauty, dignity and versatility, has been chosen to play a leading role in the interior design of future federal courthouses, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. Standards developed by the General Services Administration's Public Building Service provide for the use of wood for courtroom and chamber paneling and for other court appointments, including the judge's bench, spectators benches, jury box and clerk's desk.

Glimpse of Cow Country Farm of 316 Acres

Mr. and Mrs. Orville DeBord of St. Louis have purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. LeHouiller a 316-acre farm a half mile west of Highway 19, 13 miles south of Owensville, Crawford county, Missouri, for about $100 an acre. The sellers, Hereford breeders, have dispersed all but their foundation herd (about three carloads of cattle) which they plan to ship to a new location in Florida, according to the agent. Norris Fridley of Gerald, Franklin county, the agent, said he understood the St. Louisans would use the farm for a dairy herd, beginning in the spring. Property has eight-room home with tiled bath, gas central heating, full basement, huge rock fireplace. There are a spring-fed creek, 14 small lakes and ponds, numerous outbuildings.

Three Bathrooms Will Be Average Soon, Indication

Look for the three-bathroom house in less than five years!

It's a new fast-growing trend right now and if present economic conditions continue it's likely to develop still faster. Builders and manufacturers of building materials alike look forward to the day of the moderate priced three-bathroom home with real confidence.

They say it will be an important added stimulus to new-home buying in the years ahead. No sooner has the two-bathroom trend been fulfilled when builders, manufacturers and consumers, too, have set their sights on the practical three-bathroom plan.

Statistics show the new trend is not just artificially stimulated. With bigger families enjoying a more active home life, the need is apparent. With incomes continuing to increase, the ability to meet this new need in improved living standards is evident, too.

Experts affirm there will be no let-up in convenience or quality in the new baths. Time-tested materials such as waterproof ceramic tile for floor, walls and countertops will still be used in creative ways. The baths will be bigger, have more storage, and be equipped with quality fixtures.

Manufacturers of ceramic tile say wainscots will be higher and that there will be freer use of the 200 different colors available in real tile. One innovation they expect will catch on fast—perhaps in higher priced homes at first—is the all-tiled tub sunk level with the floor.

In most homes this is how the baths will be located: the master bath near the parents' bedroom; a children's bath in the children's wing; and a guest bath, or powder room, located so that it can also service the family recreation room.

Double Glazing.

Insulating glass is available in more than 90 standard sizes and is used in all types of sash including double-hung, casement and awning ventilators.

33 Per Cent Of Houses Now Brick

Thirty-three per cent of the single-family houses being built today are brick houses, according to Dr. Robinson Newcomb, Structural Clay Products Institute Market Analyst. This represents a rise of 14 per cent over last year's figure of 29 per cent, Dr. Newcomb told the Structural Clay Products Institute Convention at the Greenbrier Hotel in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last week.

Quoting from a United States Bureau of Labor Statistics survey just completed, Dr. Newcomb reported that this significant increase in the use of brick in the residential market in the past year is related to an unprecedented amount of home construction which will reach $16,600,000,000 by the end of 1955. Seventy per cent of the brick industry's production now goes into the housing market. The Bureau of Labor Statistics survey was sponsored by SCPI and two other construction industry groups.

Incomes Rising.

Newcomb told the brick and tile manufacturers that the movement of families into higher income brackets continues at a good pace with the $7000 to $10,000 income group the most rapidly growing one today. The $7000 to $10,000 group is THE market for brick construction in the coming year, he said. It is in this fastest growing group that the most potential home buyers are found. With their increased income, these families now find they can buy better houses than they had previously been able to afford.

Market research shows that the average household income, after Federal taxes, is now over $5250. Five years ago, it was about $4900. Signs point to the average income reaching over $6000 by 1965.

In looking at the use of brick in home building by sale price class, Dr. Newcomb found that more brick is used in the medium price ($12,000 to $20,000) and the high price (over $20,000) ranges than in the lowest range (under $12,000).

Geared to Expansion.

Dr. Newcomb predicted that all building, both residential and non-residential, will reach a new high of $29.4 billion in 1956 as compared with an estimated $28.5 billion in 1955. He explained that residential construction will continue at about its all-time high in 1956 and will account for $16.6 billion, the same as in 1955. He sees a rise in non-residential construction to $12.8 billion in 1956, compared with $11.9 billion in 1955.

Douglas Whitlock, SCPI Chairman of the Board, announced earlier this year that the nation's brick and tile manufacturers are gearing their expanded production to a residential market of over a million new homes annually for at least the next five years. Dr. Newcomb estimates that nearly 1.3 million homes will be started in 1955 alone.

The Structural Clay Products Institute, which is holding its annual convention at The Greenbrier, is a national association of brick, tile and terra cotta manufacturers, including several St. Louis area companies.

USE NATURAL COLOR

Take advantage of the natural color tones of wood when planning interior decoration, advises the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. Woods in light to medium colors include: Ponderosa pine, Southern pine, Douglas fir, Idaho pine, sugar pine, Engelmann spruce, West Coast hemlock, Sitka spruce, white ash, birch, black gum, hackberry, hickory, pecan, magnolia, soft maple, hard maple, red oak, white oak and yellow poplar. Woods in medium to dark colors include: Western red cedar, Southern cypress, California redwood, larch, brown ash, butternut, cherry, red gum, American walnut and mahogany.

Slum Jobs Gathering Speed Now

By ROBERT F. MORISON

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Federal Government's slum clearance programs are gathering speed.

Officials report that since the 1954 Housing Act took affect a year ago, 69 cities have had workable programs for the elimination and prevention of slum and blight areas approved by the housing and home finance agency. Another 82 are being processed.

A workable program is necessary in order to make a community eligible for a variety of federal grants and loans.

These workable programs must first include a municipal organization to direct a plan for the orderly development of the city, setting aside areas for residential dwellings, factories, commercial establishments and providing for enforcement of these boundaries.

One of the chief causes of slums, experts point out, is the encroachment on a residential area by industrial or commercial districts.

Program More Rigid.

Before passage of the 1954 Housing Act, no workable programs were required. Slum clearance, both local and federally-financed, went on "piecemeal," an official said. With the adoption of a workable program, it was explained, "a city has committed itself to eliminating slums."

The current program is more rigid, but officials say it is also "more comprehensive." It not only aims at wiping out slum areas, but also, through enforcement of building and zoning codes included in the workable program, checks the development of slums.

HHFA reports that 203 slum clearance projects across the country, covering 7400 acres with 101,000 dwellings to house 94,000 families either have been finished or put in the planning stages since slum clearance got underway on a large scale in 1949.

This means better housing for some 337,000 persons, roughly the population in 1950 of Rochester, N.Y.

Slum clearance programs, starting with approval of workable programs, begin when a city acquires a blighted area and its buildings, tears them down and prepares the land for private development. The land is then sold to private developers and either new homes, apartments, commercial buildings or factories are built on the site. This depends upon what the city, with HHFA approval, decides should be done with the land.

Cole's Pet Project.

Public housing, paid for by the federal government, may be put up to house persons displaced by such slum clearance programs. Those details are worked out beforehand, but high priority is given former slum dwellers under the current public housing program.

Cities ranging from the size of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago down to Eufaula, Ala. and Calexico, Calif., have adopted workable programs. The program was approved Nov. 1, 1954.

Officials said slum clearance is a "pet project" of Albert M. Cole, HHFA administrator.

Not only do cities, individuals and developers become eligible for FHA insured loans, depending on who does the actual building, but cities are reimbursed for two-thirds of the actual cost of acquiring land, clearing it and preparing it for development by private industry.

The HHFA and the urban renewal administration keep close tabs on slum clearance.

"We don't let cities come in and put up anything," an official said. "If we did, it would defeat their plans by putting up something that isn't in line with their (city) planning."

HHFA got another $500,000,000 from Congress in the last session to keep its program rolling. Officials indicated they are pleased with progress so far and believe the battle against slums is progressing "just fine."

Home In Cedar Crest Area Of Ladue Bought

This property at No. 8 Cedar Crest, Ladue (near Dielman road), has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Josephus M. Todd Jr. from Mr. and Mrs. Merle W. Stampfer in transaction negotiated by Bayer-Rickhoff, Inc. It is seven-room home with bath and lavett, basement two-car garage on seven-teaths of an acre.

Bay Window Overlooks Yard

This ranch house, in which a bay window in the rathskeller overlooks the rear yard, has been sold for Levret S. and Doris R. Putnam to Frank F. and Lilly Taterka in transaction negotiated by the P. D. Hufford Realty Co. It is at 1102 East Parkedge, University City, has six rooms, two baths.

MORTGAGE MONEY

Last year Americans borrowed 23 billion dollars to buy houses. The biggest source of money came from saving and loan associations—36 per cent. Mortgage firms themselves were second with 19 per cent. Commercial banks accounted for 18 per cent while 13 per cent of the loans were made by individuals and 8 per cent was loaned by insurance companies. Mutual savings banks did 6 per cent of the mortgage loan business.—Changing Times.

FLEXIBLE ROOMS

Today's homes are better in livability because the rooms, or living areas, are planned for flexibility. That is, the same area may be used, with few easy changes, for a multitude of purposes. For instance, kitchens now also serve as laundries, nurseries, dining centers. The living room, if properly surfaced, can be changed into a game room for the family and its guests. What makes today's multiple function possible is the wise and ingenious use of basic yet versatile materials which can withstand any family wear and still keep its beauty forever. Because of tile's tremendous variety in shapes, sizes, colors and textures, virtually any room design can receive its complement in tile.

4,000,000 Cars Scrapped.

Two out of every three passenger cars produced and three out of every four trucks produced in 1954 were sold as replacements for vehicles scrapped. An estimated total of 4,000,000 vehicles were scrapped in 1954.

Everything is under control . . .

because gas appliances are keeping pace with the automatic age

By Dorothy Brainerd

Of course Mrs. Smart is taking it easy — why shouldn't she? Her conscience is perfectly clear. She isn't neglecting her household duties; she just has everything under control.

Bright girl that she is, she knows that there is no reason to watch the boiling pot or peek in the oven door. Not in this automatic age, when mechanical know-how takes over the tedious chores and leaves her time for fun and family.

She learned as a child to trust the reliable gas appliances in her mother's kitchen. And she realizes that, just as she changes her coiffure and her wardrobe to keep abreast of the times, so do the gas appliances in her home keep up-to-date.

She knows that her new gas dryer will now dry clothes in half the time. Thanks to automatic controls, her incinerator needs no supervision as it goes about its task of constructive destruction; the water which comes out of the faucets is the exact temperature she prefers; her gas refrigerator makes and stores ice crescents in quantities to meet her requirements.

And her gas range? Ah, her range is the darling of her heart. Because now controls have made it fully automatic. In addition to the oven regulators which have helped make her the good cook she is, thermostatically controlled top burners may now be set for the precise degree required for perfection and will vary not one iota.

No wonder Mrs. Smart can relax, confident in the knowledge that everything in her homemaking world is under control.

SAME APPLIANCE FEATURES PLEASE WOMEN EVERYWHERE

Homemakers the country over want the same features in their gas appliances, dealers' reports indicate.

In every section of the United States women are especially intrigued by thermostat-controlled top-of-the-range cooking; the "hypodermic needle" pilot; the "heat-jacketed" oven; and the "luminous flame" broiler. These have various trade names, but are features incorporated by most gas range manufacturers in their new lines.

The top-burner temperature control, popularly known as the "potwatcher," eliminates the need for separate automatic deep-fat fryers, controlled-heat frying pans, food warmers, griddles and sandwich toasters. Once the potwatcher takes over, automatic cooking performance of uniform quality is assured.

The single pilot has been replaced by a series of hypodermic needle pilots, each of which looks like a burning needle tip. Every top burner has its own pilot, encased in a protective shield to withstand drafts and spillovers. Despite its tiny flame, the hypodermic needle pilot ignites a burner instantly, yet consumes very little gas.

The heat-jacketed oven provides super-baking performance, as it bakes just as evenly in the corners as in the center. It pre-heats faster, yet can be kept at a temperature as low as 190 degrees.

The luminous flame starts to broil the instant the burner is turned on and gives a uniform, glowing heat over its entire surface.

Both the boiler and the oven have burners which operate on a new principle, so that though smaller, they yield intense heat but can be reduced to a record low when desired. These new burners reduce by a third the amount of heat normally released to the kitchen.

Open Flame.

Over an open gas flame it is possible to singe poultry and heat tomatoes and similar foods for skinning.

Playtime Companions Get a Bath

Many Automatic Controls On New Gas Appliances

Robots Relieve Homemakers of Irksome Chores; Provide More Comfort, Convenience and Safety.

REMEMBER the enchanting Irish stories of the "wee ones"—little folk who go about doing all manner of good deeds? Today's homemaker may well feel that her home is filled with such tiny, invisible helpers.

Modern thermostats may not be as picturesque as the leprechauns of Erin's folklore, but they are truly "good fairies" who take over many of the housewife's chores and grant her wish for more leisure.

Behind the handsome exteriors of today's gas appliances are many miracles of precision engineering, with dozens of robots working constantly to provide more convenience, comfort and safety.

These automatic controls play major roles in the performance of every appliance. In the gas water heater, controls guarantee that hot water will maintain the exact temperature for which it is set, and that a safety cut-off will stop the flow of gas to the burner should the pilot go out.

Duo-temperature control of water heaters, used for many years in the commercial field but only recently in homes, makes it possible to pre-determine the temperature of water desired at faucets in various parts of the home. For example, the same heater may (by pre-determined setting) deliver water of 180 degrees in the laundry where high temperatures are required, and 125 degrees in kitchen and bath.

GAS incinerators, which will take care of all garbage and trash with the exception of bottles and cans, are equipped with automatic timing devices. Others are of the de-hydration type, which ignite the trash after the moisture has evaporated into the air.

New dryers will dry clothes in half the time previously required, and without subjecting clothing to excessive heat. Larger burners and intake provide greater circulation, with no increase of internal temperature.

Switches that turn off when the dryer door is opened, heat regulator controls, bells that ring gaily when the dryer has finished its task, built-in sun lamps—these are only a few of the features made possible by these friendly little robots.

The combination washer and gas clothes dryer must function flawlessly in order to take soiled laundry and turn it into sweet-smelling wash, all ready to be ironed or stored away. And, thanks to our little friends, the operation is completely automatic.

In late-model gas refrigerators automatic controls make possible the icemaker that manufactures half-circlets of ice and drops them into a basket; the constant cold in the freezer compartment and the optimum temperature in the refrigerator.

BUT it is in the gas range that the robots really come into their own. For years now women have enjoyed the convenience of a range which was automatic in that it needed no match to light oven, broiler or top burners. They knew, too, the convenience of the automatic timer, with the wee folk switching the gas on and off according to the way the clock was set, and they took as a matter of course the automatic heat control that assured a steady, even heat determined by the setting of the regulator.

However, it is only within recent months that the introduction of thermostatically controlled burners has made the modern range completely automatic.

Most experts agree that thermostatic top burner control is one of the most important developments in the gas appliance field since the institution of automatic oven regulators. Ranges are now available with from one to four top burners controlled in this manner.

AND why is this development so important? Because it means that the homemaker is assured that the precise heat she may choose, from very low to very high, will not vary one degree throughout the cooking period. She can select the right temperature for a particular job—and know that it will hold that way.

She knows that her foods will be cooked at just the temperature they require for maximum quality. Fried eggs won't have lacy borders, bacon won't be burned in some spots, underdone in others. French-fried shrimp, potatoes, onion rings and other delicacies will be neither too brown nor soaked with grease. Breaded meats won't stick to the bottom of the pan because the temperature was too high, nor be pale and pasty because the temperature was too low.

To the inexperienced or timid cook, these exact controls may open a whole new field of cookery. Many women who have been afraid to attempt fruit and vegetable fritters, deep-fat fried shrimp, fish and meat croquettes may now do so with confidence.

To the "fancy" cook, the top burner control means that the extremely low temperatures required for delicate sauces will be maintained exactly.

Thermostatic controls have one other advantage. They eliminate the need for expensive, space-consuming extra equipment, since any pot, pan or griddle becomes automatic when used on the thermostatically controlled burner.

Surveys indicate that 80 per cent of today's cooking is done on the top of the range. And the introduction of thermostatically controlled burners means that surface cookery is now as automatic as oven cookery.

All the homemaker needs to do is to set the controls, and let the magic "wee ones" take over.

FIRE LOSSES REDUCED BY HOME INCINERATORS

Home incinerators are reducing the number of fires caused by accumulated trash, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn. finds.

Instead of sticking odds and ends that are no longer useful in the basement to get them out of the way, the home owner now dumps them into the gas incinerator for immediate disposal, automatically ridding his home of a major fire hazard.

But primarily, homeowners buy gas incinerators for the convenience of getting rid of food waste any hour of the day or night, simply by pressing a button, and discover "plus" values as they go along.

For example, an incinerator eliminates the strain of carrying heavy cans to the curb and in the case of middle-aged or older persons may actually prevent serious injury. Homemakers also report that they have fewer colds in the winter, as they no longer have to run out in freezing weather to bring in the empty garbage cans.

DINING OUT

Each year Americans spend more than 15 billion dollars on meals cooked outside the home.

Of 70,000,000 meals served daily across public dining tables, about nine-tenths are cooked by gas flaming silently under tens of thousands of urns, ovens, cauldrons and steam-jacked kettles.

No Stored Heat.

With a gas range, when the cooking process is finished and the top burners are turned off, there is no stored heat that must be dissipated into the room.

GAY DECEIVER

Paint is a gay deceiver that can work miracles in a tiny kitchen. The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association recommends a very light gray or off-white shade for the walls and woodwork in an unbroken line, from ceiling to floor.

Your gas range and refrigerator will blend right into this cool, light background and contribute to the total effect of more space.

See the Heat.

Seeing the heat where it is used is a basic gas range advantage. The homemaker sees it—at the burner head and under the vessel. This eliminates guess work as to how high or low a burner valve should be turned.

NEW SHOPPING CENTERS INSTALL

Janitrol DUAL FUEL GAS HEATING SYSTEMS

The designers, builders and operators of these new Shopping Centers have set new high standards in their requirements for heating service.

Proper temperatures for the comfort of the customers and personnel must be maintained at all times throughout the shopping and service areas of each store and department in the center.

The operation must be completely automatic in every way. The fuel must be gas with an adequate and dependable standby fuel supply to meet Laclede Gas Company service regulations for gas heating.

All this plus low installation and operating costs and a minimum of maintenance are provided by the Janitrol Dual Fuel all-gas heating systems in these new Shopping Centers.

ADVICE ON HOW TO TAKE PROPER CARE OF RANGE

The sparkling new appearance of your gas range can last for years with proper care. Cleaning the range is easy if you begin by following a few simple suggestions for correct use.

For example, flat-bottom pans will not tip as easily as others, therefore avoiding upsets and spillovers. (They utilize heat more efficiently as well.) Warped pans tip frequently and also cause uneven cooking. Pans that are too small for the contents will cause boilovers. So will too high temperatures. As soon as liquid comes to the boil reduce flame to simmer, both for cleanliness and economy of fuel and food.

Should an accidental spill occur, wipe the smudge at once with a dry paper towel or cloth. Many food liquids have an acid reaction with heat and will dull the finish of your range if not removed. When the enamel has cooled after use, wipe with a damp, soapy cloth, rinse and dry. Discolored ovens are also the results of too small pans and too high a temperature. Spilled food will scorch, as will splattering fat from roasts cooked in too hot an oven, which smoke and bake onto the oven lining.

Many ovens have linings which may be removed in sections for easy cleaning. Wash them as you would a plate. This should be done each time you use the oven. Of course, once grease has baked on, the job is not so simple.

To soften this coating and make it easier to remove, place a saucer of household ammonia in the oven and leave it overnight. Next morning wash oven linings with warm, soap water, wipe with a cloth moistened in clear water, then dry.

A creamy substance generally available in grocery or housewares stores is recommended by home economist and engineers as doing an excellent cleaning job without affecting the enamel finish of your range.

The broiling pan can also be kept clean easily if you remember not to tuck it back into the hot broiler compartment after use. Let it cool while you serve the meal, then let it soak in hot, soapy water while you eat, and the washing should be no chore at all.

Take Your Choice.

It is possible to get either four or six burner gas ranges of the same design. The only difference is that the griddle replaces two burners in the four burner range.

Broiler Meal Is All Ready

This gas broiler meal is easy to prepare with chicken, vegetables and potatoes all placed on the rack so that they are ready to serve at the same time. There is an added dividend from gas broiling, too—it cuts calories in foods while conserving vitamins and minerals.

Proof of the Pudding

Proof of the pudding is in the eating, agrees this diminutive chef as she samples the results of her first cooking lesson—a smooth, creamy butterscotch pudding. To insure the success of your child's initial efforts at the gas range, see that she understands the easy adjustment of the flame and that she uses the right type of cooking equipment. Thermostatic control of the top burners is, of course, a great boon to the novice cook.

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN BUYING RANGE

Every family shopping for a new gas range this year has a wealth of choice among sizes, convenience features and price tags.

Consumer surveys reveal that four factors exert greatest influence on the final choice of a range—style, equipment, reputation of the maker and cost. How can a family select the best buy for their needs?

Design experts for a St. Louis manufacturer of gas ranges suggest that the approach should be very much the same as is used in the purchase of a car. First a determination of the size, then a decision on the group of convenience features (accessories in automobile language) which will do the best job for a particular family.

In this line, which has been redesigned and the model groups simplified for the convenience of both homemakers and retailers, a basic group of half a dozen models is produced. Within each group there are basic models, and models to which groups of extra convenience features have been added.

These accessories include such conveniences as clock timers, automatic oven and broiler lighting, griddles, the new and highly useful roast thermometer, which registers on the range panel, an oven-ready light, and, of course, the completely automatic range which can be pre-set to start and stop cooking by itself.

If space is at a premium, the compact 20 inch or 30 inch groups should be seen first. A homemaker's individual preference, and her own way of running her home dictate the accessories which she will find most useful.

The average small family will look first at the next size of range—36 inches wide. Family size and family food tastes should dictate whether a 16-inch oven or a wide, 30-inch oven will be most useful.

The larger, 39 inch range with separate oven and broiler appeals to the family where more cooking is done, and where the homemaker may wish to use oven and broiler at the same time.

A big family, or a family which does a good deal of entertaining, will find a range with six burners, two ovens and two broilers a real convenience.

Investment in extra conveniences should be balanced against both time and effort required of the homemaker if she does not have them.

Any family with small children will benefit from automatic cooking features which free the homemaker from food watching even a single hour a day.

The cost of a built-in griddle will be repaid quickly in fun and convenience for the family with teen-age children who like to have the crowd in for hamburger parties.

The young homemaker can offset her inexperience by features which take the guessing out of cooking. Among these are an oven-ready light, which goes on when the oven is properly pre-heated, and the roast meat indicator, which is the absolutely sure way to know when the roast is done.

Perfect Control

Newest addition to gas ranges is the thermostatic control for top burners. This homemaker points to sensing unit which controls heat of cooking food. Overcooking and burning are virtually impossible with new device. Once set, the cooking temperatures remain constant.

PROBLEM MATS

At a loss to know what to do with a badly soiled cotton bath mat which you usually wash with colored clothes?

Soak it for a few hours in a large pan in a strong solution of soapsuds to which you've added a half cup of ammonia. Change the water and soapsuds until most of the embedded grit is out, before placing in your washer with other things.

Many Graduations.

Many graduations of heat, in between those indicated on burner valves, are obtainable when cooking with gas.

SOME EXTRA-CURRICULAR USES FOR INCINERATORS

If you're the average owner of a home gas incinerator, you pride yourself on the many uses you make of it, day and night.

Primarily, of course, you bought it to dispose of garbage instead of depositing it in garbage cans.

Next you operate it as a trash burner. You toss everything burnable into the incinerator—old mail-order catalogs, newspapers, magazines, vacuum cleaner lint, rags, discarded wrappings and trimmings, paper boxes, heavy cardboard containers, etc.

These are standard uses; but many people haven't yet discovered that they can "incinerate" old shoes and clothing that is too worn to be of use to anyone. For example, old trousers and sweaters that are not worth giving away will be consumed without smoke or odor in your disposal unit.

Your incinerator also is a good place to destroy any confidential material you've been hoarding for sentimental reasons but would hate to have fall into the hands of other persons.

KITCHEN WORK LOAD CUT BY AUTOMATIC CONTROLS

The average American housewife may not realize it, but her work load has been cut in half in the past 10 years, principally because automatic controls have doubled the efficiency of most household appliances.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association points out that thermostats, regulators, timers and other controls now considered integral parts of gas appliances have taken the guesswork out of home management, especially in the kitchen, the home laundry and heating plant.

The use of thermostatic controls on gas ranges alone has increased 80 per cent during the past decade while built-in controls on low-cost space heating units, which formerly more than doubled the cost, now add only a fraction to the retail price.

Furthermore, the trade group states, if it were not for recent advancements in controls development, thousands of homemakers would be deprived of the time-saving benefits of the automatic gas clothes dryer and gas incinerator, two postwar appliances which would have been impossible to operate manually.

HOME LAUNDRY TIP

Here's a tip from the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association on how to make your washday work easier; don't overload your washing machine, because free circulation of hot soap suds and rinse water is essential for maximum soil removal.

It pays to run an extra load if necessary, to avoid crowding the washer.

Prevent Contagion.

Wash towels, washcloths, pajamas or nightgowns, and bed linens separately if anyone has an infectious illness. As an added precaution, set the temperature control of your gas water heater at 160 degrees, and run the clothes through the complete cycle of your automatic washer.

Look, Mommy—I Can Do It, Too

Daughter is not only helping Mother—she is learning that homemaking is something to be enjoyed, not dreaded. With a modern laundry conveniently located next to the kitchen, the Mother-Daughter team can make short, pleasant work of the family laundry. An automatic gas water heater with a dial adjustment of proper water temperatures for special fabrics and a modern gas clothes dryer that will damp-dry or fluff-dry linens makes the task an easy one.

Safety Measure.

Painting the last step to the cellar bright orange saves many a misstep.

Top burner with flame-resistant glass cover. So delicate is the temperature control that the flame can be adjusted to such a low setting that the baby's bottle can be placed directly on the glass without being placed in a pan of water.

Rotisserie for indoor barbecuing, which may be used for all of the good things you barbecued outside during the summer. The rotisserie is placed in the broiler compartment; meat is clamped on a rod and cooked at a low temperature.

Wider range of pre-selected cooking temperatures on top burners.

Time controls (not thermostatic) which turn off top burner when desired.

Ranges in copper or colors.

Constant trend toward larger ovens, without any sacrifice of baking efficiency.

Choice of side-opening or drop-down doors.

Dryers.

Colored formica tops, which furnish additional working surface.

Dryers which dry clothes in half the time previously required.

Water Heaters.

Duo-temperature controls which make possible the use of water of different pre-determined temperatures at various faucets in the house. (Very hot water in laundry, moderately hot in bath and kitchen, for example.

Trend toward glass-lined tanks, copper, aluminum and other non-ferrous metals which increase the life of the tank. Improvements in tank construction also have added to tank life. Swifter recovery, which permits the use of a smaller heater.

New shapes, with a marked trend toward compactness.

CLOTHES SAVER

Not only will your clothes last longer, but you won't need as many (and you can get along with fewer towels and less bedding as well) if you have your own washing machine and automatic gas clothes dryer.

It's easy to accumulate clean clothes faster than soiled ones with this thrifty combination. All you do is wash one load of soiled clothes each day. Use plenty of hot water and an all-purpose soap or detergent with bluing.

IS IT COLORFAST?

Test for colorfastness before you wash something new. Snip a small piece from a hem or seam and squeeze suds into the fabric. Rinse in lukewarm water and dry between two layers of white cloth.

Sudsy water tinted, or white cloths stained? That's your cue to wash these garments separately—and to test again before the second laundering. Even if colors do run, you can help keep them bright by the constant use of bluing in every wash water.

Junior Size.

A gas range with an electric roaster-size oven, built flush into the cooking top, is now available. This small oven, in addition to the regular size oven, is suitable for baking, roasting, casserole dishes, and for heating leftovers.

LAUNDRY INSTALLED IN VARIOUS SPOTS

Like Goosey, Goosey Gander of Mother Goose fame, the laundry nowadays is wandering upstairs, downstairs and in milady's chamber—or right next to it. One thing is sure: there's hard-and-fast rule about its location.

Some women prefer to have it adjacent to the bathing and sleeping area of the house, where they can deposit soiled bedding, bathtowels, pajamas, underwear, shirts and handkerchiefs right in the washer, instead of lugging them downstairs. Advocates of the second-floor-laundry idea point out that it saves time and effort to have the washer and clothes dryer located at the major source of the family wash. A built-in ironing board usually completes the equipment for "on-the-spot" laundry service.

However, the vast majority of home makers, according to a survey by the Gas Appliance Manufactures Association, prefer a main floor laundry. The living room type of kitchen found in most of the new homes today features a laundry area containing the washer, gas clothes dryer, and sometimes an ironer, depending upon the space and budget. The automatic gas water heater is enclosed in a closet in this part of the room so that the homemaker can adjust the temperature control for the different uses of hot water all day long, without making extra trips down to the basement.

In older homes, owners are converting back porches, pantries and even breakfast rooms to laundries. With ample space, they can add to the laundry equipment such conveniences as stationary washtubs for hand-laundering, wall cupboards for laundry supplies and a comfortable chair for "sit-down" work.

Where the layout of the house does not permit such conversions, the laundry is installed in the basement. Many homemakers insist this plan affords the greatest convenience of all, as the children can play under their watchful eyes while they are busy with the family wash. There usually is plenty of room for all the laundry appliances, plus a work table, built-in ironing board and wall cupboards, and perhaps, a television set. The stationary washtubs are already there, so it is an easy matter to design the laundry all around them.

Furthermore, since most homemakers install their old gas range downstairs when they buy a new one, they can heat a cup of coffee or a can of soup for lunch without climbing stairs. In the summer time, especially, they find this a great advantage, as the basement usually is the coolest spot in the house.

INCINERATOR A NATURAL FOR DO-IT-YOURSELFER

If the man of the house is a member of the do-it-yourself movement, a gas incinerator is almost a "must." Incidentally, it might delight him as a Christmas gift.

Whether he is making a pair of book ends or a new cocktail table, he is almost sure to leave behind enough debris to fill several trashcans which must be cleaned up, carted up from the basement and out the back door.

A gas incinerator installed in or near the home workshop will make the disposal question an easy one. Just dump the debris into an insulated cabinet and press a button; the incinerator automatically does the rest.

Of course the modern gas incinerator also consumes damp garbage, bones, cardboard cartons and other household leftovers.

There are now nearly 30 different types of gas incinerators available in various styles, sizes and methods of operation, all of which can be quickly and easily installed.

For Outdoor Use.

There is a gas incinerator that has been developed for outdoor use with a two-bushel capacity, advises the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association. Masonry chimneys (in case the owner wants to extend the flue) may be used in this completely automatic model.

LAUNDRY HINT

Avoid overdrying in your gas clothes dryer. It may cause deep-set wrinkles that are hard to iron out. Overdrying may also damage the fabric, so remember to remove clothes that require ironing at the proper stage of dampness.

Remove those that do not need to be ironed while there is still a trace of steam in the gas dryer.

Supply Always Meets Demand

Rosemary Tink, a member of the Home Service department of Laclede Gas Co., smiles happily as she removes an ice crescent from the automatically replenished supply in the gas refrigerator.

'BORROWED' SPACE

Don't hesitate to borrow a few inches of space from a room if it means that you can give youself more storage space.

Built-in cabinets, shelves, bookcases, bars and desks often eliminate difficult storage problems in bathroom, living or dining rooms or kitchens at the sacrifice of only 12 to 24 inches.

PASSING UP A BET

Statistics prove that one out of every four gas ranges is more than 15 years old, and one out of every two gas ranges is more than 10 years old.

This means that millions of women are using matches a dozen times a day to light their old gas ranges when they could turn the gas cock to light the burners. They are standing over an old gas range watching pots, when they could set an automatic clock and get out of the kitchen.

Ends Forever Your Need for Garbage Cans!

HOT WATER AN AID TO HOMEMAKER

Ever stop to think of the number of jobs around the house only hot water can do effectively?

The best example, of course, is its use in the laundry. Every homemaker knows that the hotter the water, the whiter the clothes. With the temperature control of your automatic gas water heater pushed up to 160 degrees, your washing machine can really do a job on soiled clothes. It's the modern substitute for boiling clothes in a copper boiler, says the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, and much more convenient.

Dishwashing is another chore that demands hot water to cut the grease, but even if your hands can't tolerate much heat, you can always rinse the dishes clean in scalding water without even moistening your fingertips. Stack the dishes in the drainer, place the drainer in the sink and let the hot water play over every dish. By the time the water is drained off, the dishes will be dry without a streak.

Cleaning your gas range is a cinch when there's plenty of hot water flowing from the tap. Take apart the top burners and stick them and the grates in a dishpanful of very hot water in which a cup of washing soda has been dissolved. Let everything soak until the water is cool enough to work with, by which time you'll find your job is half done.

Of course for personal grooming hot water is a "must." It gets the grease out of your hair as nothing else can — and is equally effective in cleansing your brushes and combs after your shampoo.

In cooking, too, hot water can be a real help. The baking time of potatoes can be cut almost in half by soaking them in hot water for five minutes before placing them in your oven—another economy aid.

Cake baking, too, can be expedited with hot water. Run hot water over your mixer blades before creaming cold shortening and you won't be troubled with clogged blades, a nuisance with which every homemaker is familiar.

These are only a few of the 140 uses of hot water you never think about, although studies have proved conclusively that 80 per cent of all the water used in the average home is hot water. Surprising as this may seem, the percentage is increasing yearly, now that an increasing number of two-bathroom homes are being built.

It is important to equip homes with properly sized, thermostatically controlled gas water heaters to insure having enough water for every household and personal need. The size should be related to the present and future demands of the family and the bathing, laundering and other facilities in the home. A family of four using one bathroom, a sink for dishwashing and a non-automatic laundry might require 45 gallons of hot water per hour over a period of two or more consecutive hours per day, calling for a gas water heater of at least 40-gallon capacity.

Right Temperature for Task

Dialing is the scientific way to get the cleanest wash, as the homemaker above knows. She is adjusting the thermostat on her automatic gas water heater for the exact temperature she needs for her household tasks. Proper temperatures range all the way from 95 degrees for a bath to 150 degrees for general house cleaning.

Clean-up Chore Made Easy

A jiffy may not be a scientifically recognized measure of time, but it takes just that long for the homemaker to get rid of trash and garbage if she has a gas-fired incinerator. One of the reasons for the sky-rocketing popularity of this latest addition to the family of gas appliances is its ability to banish unsavory, over-flowing garbage cans from the premises of the average household.

GAS REFRIGERATOR COOLED BY HEAT

The modern gas refrigerator, cooled by energy from a tiny blue flame, answers one of man's oldest problems—the safe and convenient storage of food.

In little more than three decades, the development of new features of the gas refrigerator has made it an important member of the domestic gas appliance family.

Back in the early 1920's one manufacturer first engineered a refrigerator that would operate with gas. Until that time gas was used only as a heating fuel, and the idea of getting frost out of a flame was entirely new.

However, the process of getting gas to chill a refrigerator turned out to be a fairly simple matter, as engineers found that a tiny jet of gas could be used to heat refrigerating chemicals.

The same principle is used today. The gas heats the refrigerant until it becomes a vapor and rises to the top of the cycle. At the top it condenses as it absorbs the heat and causes quick cold. Gravity draws the liquid back to the flame, where the cycle begins again.

Designed for economy as well as comfort and convenience, the modern attractively-styled gas refrigerator has a spacious freezing compartment, varied low temperature zones, and the famous "ice-maker."

An unlimited supply of sparkling ice cubes flows from the futuristic ice-maker without benefit of ice cube trays. As one ice cube is removed from the ice basket another is produced automatically to replace it. And the ice cubes, which in reality are frosty half-discs, will not stick together.

The large freezing locker in the modern gas refrigerator has helped to bring about a new way of life in the American home—the more extensive use of frozen foods in the family's menu. Frozen out-of-season foods may be stored in the big freezing compartment to add interest to winter meals.

The freezing section holds up to one and one-half bushels of frozen meats, vegetables, fruits, ice cream and desserts. In its crackling dry cold, frozen foods retain their flavor and texture for months.

In the semi-moist zone of the gas refrigerator fresh meats, dairy products, ready-to-serve dishes, leftovers and opened containers of food are protected from drying out, and fresh fruits and vegetables are kept crisp and moist, full of vitamins for days, in the fresheners.

Bound to Happen

Sickness is bound to happen in every household, especially the one with small children. An automatic home laundry can be a real blessing at such a time. Nightclothing and bedding can be quickly laundered and ready for service again with an automatic washer and gas dryer. The temperatures at which clothes are dried also help eliminate many kinds of bacteria. Some dryers are equipped with ultra-violet germicidal lamps; rays from these lamps play on the clothes while they are being tumbled dry, giving them a fresh, sunshiny odor.

COMMON SENSE A MAJOR FACTOR IN LAUNDERING

Make Sure That You Use Right Temperature, Sort Wash, Check Instructions.

A good washing machine, plenty of hot water and the right accessories might seem enough to produce satisfactory laundering results, but common sense is equally important and, in fact, indispensable to successful home laundering.

It's common sense to sort the laundry and separate it into piles: hand-washable, white and colored. White wash responds best to very hot water; in fact, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association recommends that you push the temperature control of your automatic gas water heater up to the top for 160- or 180-degree water.

On the other hand, fast-colored cottons, linens and nylons do better if washed in 110-degree water, so it is best to wash them separately. Then the articles that require the same temperature of hot water, the same washing time and the same amount of bluing or bleach, will be washed together.

Obviously, it's wrong to wash white things and colored articles together, yet many homemakers blithely empty the contents of the hamper into the washer, removing only socks and handwashables.

Before washing any new colored garment, check the manufacturer's tag for washing instructions, as it may warn against machine washing. Home economists advise identifying all tags before detaching from clothes so that a glance will tell you which offers the proper instructions for washing Susie's Bermuda shorts or Peter's plaid shirt.

Common sense also dictates that you empty all the pockets and treat stains before putting garments into your washer. Clippings from torn magazines with colored illustrations and absent-mindedly stuck in an apron pocket can work havoc with your wash, while hot water and soapsuds will "set" untreated stains, making them almost impossible to remove.

To wash white cottons and linens effectively by hand, the water should be as hot as your hands can bear—approximately 120 degrees. Only 10 degrees less, which feels comfortable to the touch, is just right for fast-colored cottons, linens and nylons. As for rayons, lukewarm water (100 degrees) is best, while silks and woolens require about the same temperature—95 to 100 degrees.

One of the problems homemakers frequently complain about is the yellowing of nylon lingerie and men's shirts, but even this can be overcome in most cases.

Wash the garment, and when thoroughly clean, soak in a gallon of 160-degree water with a package of color remover. The water will be too hot to run your hands through, so be careful. After 15 minutes, add more scalding water,, as the treatment is effective only if the solution is at least 160 degrees. Stir with a clean stick during the soaking period. Then rinse in warm (110-degree) water in which you have placed some bluing, and let drip dry.

WANT TO SAVE MONEY? THEN WATCH YOUR BTU'S

You may not know enough about magic to pull a rabbit out of a hat, but without any slight-of-hand at all you can extract a new bonnet from your gas range.

It's simply a matter of making the most of your BTU's. (BTU stands for British Thermal Unit, or the amount of heat it takes to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree.)

Take oven cooking, for example. Today's budget-conscious housewife would think twice before using her oven to prepare only one dish of the family dinner. When she bakes a meat loaf, she's more likely to put in the potatoes to bake at the same time and often another vegetable dish or a desert. At the last minute she places a few slices of foil-wrapped buttered bread in the hot oven to freshen.

If it's a stew or roast she's planning, you won't see the modern homemaker put it into her oven for a three-hour cooking period. Why waste all those BTU'S when a good Dutch oven over the low heat of a top burner will bring quicker results?

GARBAGE DISPOSAL NO PROBLEM NOW

There's one meteorological phenomenon the weatherman never has explained successfully: why is it that an otherwise nice evening suddenly turns cold or rainy when it is time to put out the garbage.

Whether it really rains more at that time than any other would be hard to say, but it is a fact that the trip outside, rainy or not, isn't necessary at all.

Not only does the installation of a gas incinerator save countless steps, but it also makes families independent of inadequate or expensive collection service.

Other advantages are:

1) Easy and economical to install since gas is the cooking fuel in more than 30 million homes, and to install a gas incinerator in any of these homes only a simple flue connection is required.

2) With no moving parts to get out of order, a gas incinerator is always ready for instant use, regardless of weather or type of garbage.

3) It eliminates health hazards, such as rodents and insects, and bad odors.

Today's modern gas incinerators range in capacity from one to four bushels and are easily installed in utility rooms, basements or garages. Some models have an automatic timer that makes it possible to set the burner in operation for a predetermined time, after which it automatically turns itself off.

'DREAM KITCHEN' CAN BE REALITY WITH FINANCING

Tired of waiting for your dream kitchen?

You don't have to wait another day says the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assoc., provided your credit rating is good. And if you haven't had occasion to borrow money from a bank in many years, you'll be surprised at the alternative plans that have been evolved for the convenience of homeowners.

The bank you do business with regularly is your best bet for a straight loan against collateral and if you are able to repay the money within a year, you'll find this the cheapest plan in the long run. However, if you would rather extend the term of the loan and have smaller monthly payments, even if it costs you more, GAMA suggests that you ask your banker about an FHA Title 1 Property Improvement Loan.

Of course you also can buy all your kitchen appliances and equipment on the instalment plan, the same as furniture, radios and television sets. Your gas company, appliance or equipment dealer will be glad to arrange for time payments to suit your convenience. As is customary in all credit purchasing, you will have to make a down payment, which usually is 10 per cent, and agree to pay the balance in monthly instalments for one, two or three years.

Naturally, you pay for the use of the money borrowed from a bank and for credit purchasing; but many people would rather pay the interest than draw money from the savings bank, considering this method of buying forced savings.

When you have arranged for the installation of your dream kitchen under one of these plans, GAMA recommends that you hang on to the equipment you are replacing, instead of discarding it. Your old cupboards will come in handy in the garage or basement for housing odds-and-ends, while your gas range will take on a new lease of life installed in the basement where it will prove useful at canning time, for peak load cooking or baking, or as the nucleus of a second kitchen downstairs.

SMALL RANGE

A manufacturer of de luxe 40" gas ranges has just presented thrifty new 30" ranges styled to match the larger size models. Featuring most of the equipment of the larger ranges, the new 36-inches are designed for use in smaller kitchens.

They are available with or without an electric lamp kitchen clock, four-hour timer, appliance outlet, chrome handles and trim and recessed front base.

GAS HEAT IS NOW AVAILABLE

ON A DUAL-FUEL BASIS

To get the complete comfort and economy of Gas Heat, investigate the dual fuel combination today.

You can now get this gas combination that will give you the very finest heat available. No mess in the basement, no furnace fires to go out . . . just even, steady comfort all winter long.

Now is the time to convert your present heating plant or install in new building, heat that is safe, healthful and comfortable for winter-long enjoyment.

MODERN KITCHEN AN EFFICIENT, COLORFUL ROOM

Right Appliances Plus Careful Planning and Decorating Assure Success.

The correct kitchen design, the proper equipment and the judicious use of color add up to an efficient, warm and attractive room, no matter what the size. And that's why today's kitchens are rated by experts as the most satisfactory in many decades.

While the trend is toward all-purpose kitchens in the medium-size and more expensive homes now being built, the new "corridor-plan" kitchen is usually found in small homes. This makes use of every inch of space, yet manages to achieve an air of spaciousness by the placement of its equipment, and by leaving the end wall bare except for a few decorative touches.

In this new idea in kitchens the gas range, flanked by work counters, is usually installed on the window wall while the refrigerator and sink are on the opposite wall, with ample counter space to serve each. As a result the homemaker works with minimum time-loss as everything is where it logically belongs to save footsteps. The food is taken from the refrigerator and set on the work counter next to the sink, where it is made ready for the gas range, directly opposite. From there it is placed on the adjoining counter for last-minute garnishes before serving.

For medium-size rooms, the U-shaped kitchen is still the favorite. This is much the same as the corridor design except that the rear wall is utilized for wall and floor cabinets, instead of being left clear.

Forty per cent of the kitchens in new and remodeled homes are "livinettes"—that is, large, all-purpose rooms for family living. Partitions between the food preparation and dining areas are low enough to permit a sense of "togetherness" while the homemaker prepares dinner or cleans up after.

Homemakers today have a wide choice in selecting a color scheme, as both kitchen-unit and appliance manufacturers are producing a wide range of colors. Steel cabinets in two-tone wood shades are used with white appliances, tied in with copper - tone cupboards by matching trim or with contrasting colored gas ranges and refrigerators.

The rule-of-the-thumb seems to be: colored cabinets, woodwork, counter tops and walls combine best with white appliances; colored appliances, sink, woodwork and walls combine best with white cupboards. In other words, despite the craze for high color in the kitchen, it is recognized that there can be too much of a good thing when everything in the kitchen is colored.

Dual Fuel Gas Burners May Solve Heating Problem

Dual fuel gas burners are solving the heating problem in homes, apartments, commercial and industrial establishments which cannot be supplied with firm gas due to present restrictions. These burners are also solving many processing applications in commercial and industrial installations where the demand is greater than allowed by the current restrictions.

These units, when used for heating purposes, are designed to supply gas heat for the greater part of the heating season, switching over automatically to another fuel when the outside temperature becomes severe and automatically switching back to gas when the weather moderates. The other fuel may be either oil or liquified petroleum gas, generally referred to as "bottle gas."

In this particular locale, it has been noted that gas is available for use in these duel fuel units for approximately 75 per cent of the heating season, the other fuel being used approximately 25 per cent of the time. When firm gas becomes available for heating, the other fuel is turned off and the dual fuel burner operates as a straight gas burner.

The outdoor temperature control at the present time is being set at 25 degrees, which means that the switch-over point to the alternate fuel is automatically made when the temperature goes below 25 degrees Fahrenheit, and automatically switches back to straight gas when the temperature rises over 25 degrees.

The combination dual fuel burners are approved by the Underwriters Laboratory.

The sales department at Laclede Gas Co. is able at any time to survey a particular installation and make recommendations regarding dual fuel.

STEADY HEAT ASSURED IN A MODERN RANGE

Too hot or too cold are complaints that the housewife is most likely to level against the household hot water system—but many a time she applies them to her range, too.

The reason is no mystery. It probably happens when she's using one of the more than 10,000,000 ranges in the country that were built 12 years or more ago and are not equipped with heat controls.

In the old days even the most experienced cook occasionally found herself playing the role of an innocent bystander in the case of the cake that failed. From such experiences the housewife learned to tell from a glance at the final product what was wrong with the temperature.

For example, if the crust "set" before the cake or pastry had finished rising it was a sign that the heat was too high. If, on the other hand, the crust on a layer cake was wet and sticky, it meant that the temperature was too low.

Things like this don't happen to the housewife today because temperature controls are built into the modern, automatic gas range. These regulators take the guesswork out of baking by maintaining a constant, even heat.

HERE IS HOW TO ROAST TURKEY IN ROTISSERIE

If your gas range has a rotisserie, here is how to use it to cook that Thanksgiving turkey to perfection.

A turkey weighing about 10 pounds unstuffed is a size that will turn easily on a rotisserie. Thaw frozen turkey and stuff it if desired. Truss into shape. Insert spit through turkey to balance weight for even turning. Fasten wings and legs with skewers or cord. Turkey may be brushed with butter but it is not necessary.

If a barbecue meat thermometer is used insert it inside the thigh next to the body, making sure turkey can still rotate. Place bird in broiler compartment and turn flame to medium.

A stuffed eight to 12-pound turkey requires four to five hours. Unstuffed ones require about five minutes less time per pound. When done, temperature on thermometer should read 190 degrees and meat will feel very soft when the thickest part of the drum stick is pressed between the fingers protected with cloth or paper.

Turkey will be easier to carve if it is allowed to cool about 30 minutes.

Have a New Baby?

Are you lucky enough to have a new baby in the house? If so, an automatic home laundry will lighten the work and give you more time to enjoy him. It is easy to maintain a constant supply of soft, sweet - smelling diapers when they are tossed into a gas dryer after washing. Nighties, shirts, blankets, crib sheets and other items heap Baby's wash basket high—a lot of washing, but not a lot of work with proper equipment. An automatic washer and gas dryer also make it possible to save money on Baby's clothes, since fewer changes are needed if garments can be put back into service quickly.

BAKING CENTER IN THE KITCHEN SPEEDS TASK

The creation of a "baking center" in the kitchen is a must for the homemaker who bakes frequently.

The ideal "center," according to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, has a pastry board for rolling out pies. It's built right into a clay tile work counter. Clay tile is recommended because it is stainproof, heatproof and easy to keep clean.

The cupboard above the pastry board houses all the staples needed in baking, such as cake flour, baking powder, flavoring extracts, cocoa, vegetable dyes, etc. Directly beneath the cupboard on a swing-out shelf is the mixer, while attractive canisters kept permenently on the clay tile counter contain sugar and all-purpose flour. Below is the floor cabinet with a drawer for measuring cups and spoons, rolling pin and miscellaneous paraphernalia, while the bottom section holds baking pans, bowls and flour sifter.

In short, all your baking ec[illegible]s in a

DON'T BE STINGY

It's just plain silly to be stingy with hot water on wash day. Clothes won't get clean in dirty water—the soil will be driven right back into the fabric. So for the sake of really clean clothes, do use freshly prepared water for each load of clothes.

With hot water, an all-purpose soap or syndet, and bead bluing, you'll hear words of praise for your laundering techniques.

Over Low Flame.

Meat recipes which require long cooking over a low flame, such as pot roast and braised beef with vegetables, are greatly improved by the addition of one or two tablespoons of wine vinegar.

Even your nose tells you Whirlpool-dried clothes are better than sun-dried

There's a special kind of freshness about Whirlpool-dried clothes that you just can't get with sun-drying. The difference is one your nose can tell better than any words. Make the test and you'll see what we mean.

Bring one of your line-dried towels into our store and make a "sniff" comparison with a towel dried in a new Whirlpool. Your nose will tell you that with Whirlpool's ultra-violet lamp, Whirlpool-dried clothes are better than sun-dried.

And, with a choice of 4 different drying temperatures, Whirlpool safely and gently dries everything washable—from heavy rugs to nylon negligees.

Most important is how work-free a Whirlpool dryer makes all your washdays. No more lifting and lugging baskets of heavy, wet clothes. No more worry about the weather. Anytime, day or night, is perfect drying time with a Whirlpool. All you do is load it, set timer dial and forget it. All the work is done automatically.

Come in . . . see the new fully-automatic Whirlpool (gas or electric) dryer and matching washer.

For Regular Clothes

Whirlpool gives you a selection of 3 faster drying temperatures. HOT is for woolens and rugs . . . MED is for cottons and whites . . . WARM, for nylons and silks. All you do is set the indicator—colored light will show the temperature you selected.

For Delicate Fabrics

there's a special drying temperature to dry your modern, "miracle" materials safely and gently. You merely set the indicator at "Delicate" and then set the dial for drying time desired. Whirlpool will do the rest . . . all automatically.

International Geophysical Year Now Entering Its Second Phase

First U.S. Contingent Leaves for Antarctic in Quest of Scientific Knowledge —40 Nations Included.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP) —Three sturdy, gray ice breakers blinked greetings to each other off Norfolk, Va., a few days ago, and set a southward course for the bottom of the world.

All over the globe, scientists of 40 nations noted their departure from three United States ports — Boston, Norfolk, Va., and Davisville, R.I.—with quiet satisfaction.

After a solid year of planning, phase two of preparations for the 1957-58 International Geophysical year — really two years—was moving out of the paper work stage. Phase one was the exploratory voyage of the U.S.S. Atka to the Antarctic last year.

These two years, Jan. 1, 1957, to Dec. 31, 1958, will witness mankind's greatest single coordinated quest for knowledge about the world in which we live.

Pooling of Talent.

In all 5000 scientists will pool talents, knowledge and equipment to explore more fully the atmospheric blanket which wraps the world; to search the face of the sun for the whys and wherefores of the sudden bursts of electrical discharges which black out radio communications and affect the weather.

The plan to fire a man-made satellite into space to orbit around the globe 200 to 600 miles up as a laboratory will be man's first step toward actual inter-stellar travel.

The scientists will seek answers to the size and shape of the world itself and how weather is generated and where. They will sound the oceans, seek the birthplace of earthquakes and try to determine whether the water level of the oceans is rising or falling and whether the world is growing warmer.

Before the two years are out men will have built and lived in a station at the South Pole. In fact, the whole Antarctic region will be populated as never before. This great, white germless land of the penguin and whale will become a sort of little United Nations.

Hugh Odishaw, executive secretary of the National Academy of Sciences, said of this vast search for knowledge, "It is inconceivable that some startling discovery will not be made."

While the I.G.Y. is man's greatest concerted scientific effort, it is not the first. International co-operation began in 1882 with what was known as the first international polar year. This was followed by a second polar year in 1932-33. Again many nations participated.

Scientific Planning.

The current effort originated with a discussion in 1950 at the joint commission on the inosphere at Brussels. The proposal for the I.G.Y. was presented next to the International Council of Scientific Unions, and in 1951 the scientific planning began.

The huge cost of the various expeditions and part of the scientific costs are being met in large measure by the governments of the nations which have joined the effort. However, millions of dollars in private funds are being expended also.

National committees were set up in the 40 nations, including the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Russia, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Norway. Chairman of the United States committee is Dr. Joseph Kaplan, dean of science at the University of California.

While the assembling of data will go on all over the world, the most dramatic of the quests, outside of establishing the satellite, is the South Pole expedition.

Those three ice breakers, the Edisto, the Glacier and the East Wind, are the first departures of a seven-ship American task force. They are bound for the Ross sea to set up two bases, one at Little America and another at McMurdo sound. Eventually the United States alone will have six bases on the Antarctic continent.

For the 120 men out of the 2200-man task force who will stay over the winter as base caretakers, it will be a harsh and weird world—a land of perilous "whiteouts" and almost unbelievable cold.

The cold becomes so intense —100 degrees below freezing— that even in a dead calm a man who walks rapidly at 100 below can generate enough breeze to crack the bones of his face and nose.

A standard rule of the expedition will be that no man moves outside at temperatures lower than 45 below. Beyond that, a man may frost his lungs.

4 U.S. Lives Lost.

The "white-out" cost four of the five American lives lost in this grim land on past expeditions.

In a "white-out" the sun's rays slant through snow clouds to create a great white void. The horizon disappears, men become dizzy and have difficulty standing. It is as if they were suspended inside a bale of cotton.

This is the greatest expedition ever sent into the Antarctic and the amount of activity planned borders on the astounding. A special Navy construction battalion—the Seabees of World War II fame—has been formed at Davisville, R.I., to do the actual construction. An airfield will be built at McMurdo sound, capable of handling the largest aircraft.

It is anticipated that a construction party will land about 200 miles from the south pole and then walk in. Its equipment will be parachuted.

Sled trains pulled by 195-horsepower, 71-000-pound tractors will struggle 600 land miles over the ice to establish a weather station and scientific observatory at the junction of Marie Byrd Land and the Ellsworth Highland.

AMVETS' 'WHITE CLOVER' DRIVE STARTS THURSDAY

The "White Clover" fund drive, sponsored by Amvets, to raise $10,000 for service to disabled war veterans and widows and orphans of service men and for welfare activities and emergency relief, will be held Thursday through next Sunday, it was announced yesterday.

Edward R. West, 6820 Vermont avenue, is president of the service foundation representing the Amvets in the drive. Organization headquarters during the fund campaign will be in Soldiers Memorial, Thirteenth and Chestnut streets.

'SAFE' DRIVER ANALYZED: HE IS MATURE, SOCIABLE

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 — Science has a pretty good notion of the personality makeup of an "accident prone" driver, but what is the "safe" driver like?

Lt. Fredrick L. McGuire, Navy psychologist, told the American College of Surgeons convention that personality stories indicate the safe driver is:

A mature individual who is not quick to blame others or cry over spilt milk, and is willing to accept responsibility and make decisions.

Sociable, friendly, easy to speak to, sympathetic to the unfortunate; a product of a happy childhood.

Stable, not inclined to pick fights, lose his temper or become easily upset; conservative in his viewpoints; religious; academic-minded, intelligent, enjoys working with ideas.

Anchor Overboard.

HASTINGS, Nebr. (UP)—An enthusiastic boatman bought a new anchor, attached it to a heavy rope when he got out into the deep part of the Harland County dam, then threw the anchor overboard. Then he discovered he had neglected to tie the rope to his boat.

CHRISTIAN, JEWISH GROUP TO HEAR ARTHUR COMPTON

Arthur H. Compton, distinguished service professor of natural philosophy at Washington University and executive director of educational television station KETC (Channel 9), will speak Friday at a luncheon meeting of the National Conference of Christians and Jews in New York.

The luncheon will conclude a ceremony commemorating the dedication of the Building for Brotherhood, new headquarters of the national conference. It also will be held as part of the three-day annual meeting of the organization.

Compton is co-chairman of World Brotherhood, the international organization which has extended the work of the National Conference of Christians and Jews overseas. Several other St. Louisans will attend the meeting.

RECORD 7094 ENROLLMENT AT UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

The night school of Washington University, University College, has a record 7094 enrollment in regular courses this fall, Acting Dean Earnest S. Brandenburg announced yesterday.

This figure marks an increase of 13.4 per cent more than last year, when 6146 students were enrolled, and an 11 per cent increase over the largest previous enrollment of 6363 in 1949.

Total Washington University enrollment now is 12,767, an 11.99 per cent increase over last year's 11,400.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Young, 7538 Canton avenue, University City, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday at their home with family and friends.

Both are 72 years old. They were married at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, 9733 Olive Street road, Olivette. They have a son, Arthur Young.

JAP ECONOMY BOOMS, EXPORT TRADE SOARS

Nippon Most Prosperous, Stable Country in Asia — Food at High Levels.

By KEYES BEECH

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

TOKYO, Nov. 5—Japan is booming. The new prosperity is reflected in the contented faces of business men who ride to work in expensive, chauffeur-driven foreign automobiles with white sidewall tires; in the smartly-clad young women who have learned to wear Western dress with assurance; in the tall buildings that are rising all over town; in the brilliantly lighted neon jungle that is Tokyo's main stem after dark; in the huge, well-stocked department stores; in the sale of television sets and washing machines.

Scarcely 10 years after crushing defeat, Japan is the most prosperous, economically stable country in Asia. The average Japanese is better fed and better clothed than at any time in history.

The source of all this well-being is the phenomenal growth of Japan's export trade. Japan's exports have climbed from $1,200,000,000 in 1954 to an estimated $1,900,000,000 in 1956.

For the first time in the post-war period Japan's trade balance is in the black. Some Japanese economists insist that it can stay in the black even without United States armed forces' procurement which has been an artificial prop to the Japanese economy. United States spending, which amounted to $785,000,000 two years ago, is expected to drop to $500,000,000 in the next year.

Foreign Exchange Rise.

Instead of losing foreign exchange Japan is accumulating it at an astonishing rate. Its foreign exchange holdings at the end of last month were estimated at more than $1,300,000,000.

Japan is, in fact, suffering an embarrassment of riches. In negotiations with the Philippines on reparations, Japan has pleaded that it is a poor country. In reply Filipino spokesmen have observed that Japan's foreign exchange reserve are three times more than West Germany's.

Japan accumulated so much sterling that both Japan and Britain considered it unhealthy. The two countries recently signed an agreement whereby Japan will drain off its surplus sterling by buying more from Britain.

Japan's trade boom is spread over a wide variety of exports —from pajamas and oil tankers to cameras and fertilizer. Japanese camera-makers are challenging Germany in the production of high-grade precision lenses. In binoculars, telescopes and microscopes Japan has outstripped all rivals.

Shipbuilding yards are booming. In a recent six-month period Japan's shipbuilding industry contracted to export 74 ships totaling more than 1,000,000 gross tons

This was more than double the original export estimate for the entire year. The industry recently launched what its builders say is one biggest tanker in the world—60,000 tons. Local shipyards also have contracted for 16 warships for the Japanese navy or, as it is called, the maritime self-defense force.

Textile Boom.

Textiles, however, are Japan's biggest money-maker. In this field the United States is Japan's best customer. The American demand for Japanese textiles—shirts, shorts, cotton blouses—has exceeded the wildest dreams of Japanese manufacturers. In fact, it is more than the industry can meet. Even so, Japan this year will ship more than 100,000,000 yards of cotton goods to America.

Business is so good the Japanese are scared. Exporters show an almost frantic concern over protests from the American textile industry. They talk about "gradual" or "controlled" increases in exports.

Japan is America's best market for raw cotton, a surplus item. It is also the biggest buyer of other surplus crops—wheat, barley, rice, soybeans. The value of the raw cotton Japan buys from the United States is five to 10 times more than the cotton goods Japan ships back.

In addition, all items considered, Japan still buys twice as much from the United States as it sells. Up to this year the ratio was three to one in favor of the United States.

Japan's prosperity is largely due to a world-wide improvement in economic conditions, in part to the lifting of trade restrictions on Japanese goods, and in part to the efforts of the Japanese themselves.

Two years ago, after piddling away most of its huge Korean war profits, Japan was frightened by a $313,000,000 drop in its foreign exchange holdings.

Budget Balanced.

To counter this the government did three things—balanced the budget, tightened up on credit, and got tough on allocation of foreign exchange for imports.

These moves checked a budding inflation. The country then was able to move in on an expanding world market.

Nature has also pitched in to help the Japanese. This year, according to estimates, Japan will harvest the biggest rice crop in its history. This means Japan, which must import about 20 per cent of its food, will not have to spend so much for rice imports.

Despite the current boom, there are some danger spots. Because of its dependence on foreign markets and foreign sources for raw materials, Japan is extremely sensitive to world trends.

RAID WARNING CHIEF GETS ULCER JUST WAITING

Harry E. Roderick Knows System Must Work First Time and Well.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP)—An electrical engineer is spending almost every waking hour fashioning an intricate alarm system he hopes will be used.

But should the moment arrive when the system is needed, the future of the United States may depend on how well it operates.

The man is Harry E. Roderick, 42 years old, director of the attack warning division at Federal Civil Defense Administration headquarters here. The system is a nationwide network to warn America's civilian population of approaching enemy planes.

Like a parachute, the warning net must be one that will work the first time. Atomic warfare offers no margin of error.

Roderick believes it will work. But the gnawing realization that any slip could mean thousands of deaths has added a gray tinge to his brown hair, given him an ulcer, and keeps him near a telephone 24 hours a day.

Specific Responsibility.

By law, Federal Civil Defense has the specific responsibility of the "dissemination of warning to the civilian population" in the event of an enemy attack. The Air Force has its own warning system for the military. But so far as the average citizen is concerned, the alert, if it comes, will be sounded by FCDA.

Naturally, Roderick and his crew of hand-picked attack warning officers work in close co-operation and consultation with the Air Force.

Roderick's men are stationed at each of the 12 (soon to be 16) air defense divisions and the three Air Defense Force headquarters in the United States. His officers at divisional headquarters have at their fingertips telephone circuits that tie them directly to 200 key points throughout the nation. These key points are located in such places as state police and sheriff headquarters —offices that have communications personnel on duty around the clock.

From there the system fans out to 3700 sub-keypoints at such locations as local police stations and state police posts. It is from these points that an alert would be spread to local residents.

In addition, a national network ties the FCDA officers at air defense divisions with FCDA headquarters and the agency's seven regional offices.

The system throughout the 200 keypoints is tested daily on a routine schedule. Two or three times a week surprise tests are held.

Weakness in System.

But the weakness in the system—and Roderick is the first to admit it—is that regular tests are not held all the way down to the 3700 sub-keypoints. Some states, notably California, hold daily tests; others hold them less frequently but on a regular basis; some rarely conduct tests.

The weakness may be traced to the basic philosophy behind the original Federal Civil Defense Act which placed the defense agency in an advisory capacity in its relationships with state and local governments, giving the agency much of the responsibility for civil defense but no command authority.

Roderick and his staff constantly urge local units to participate in tests, and he feels such efforts are showing results. But he can never be sure.

The FCDA warning system is geared to go into operation the moment the Air Force sounds an alert. By actual test Roderick knows that a "yellow alert" (attack probable) may be transmitted to all the 200 keypoints and confirmation of receipt relayed back in eight minutes.

The FCDA attack warning officers have no authority to issue orders. Their job is to pass out the alert and information concerning it. Their responsibilities hold certain important discretions, however. Should the Air Force sound "red alert" (attack imminent), for example, the FCDA officers would pass out the alert and could send along with it the information that some cities can expect attack in 30 minutes while others have three hours to get ready. They have the job of translating a military red alert to a civilian red alert.

Yellow Alert Used Once.

A red alert never has been sounded in the United States; a yellow alert just once—last May 5 when a temporarily unidentified flight of Air Force B-47s caused the alarm to be sounded in 11 western states.

Roderick remembers the day well. He was eating lunch a block from FCDA headquarters when one of his men phoned. "Better get over here," came the crisp message. "The Air Force is on the alert on the West Coast."

This was nothing completely new to Roderick. The Air Force, by the nature of its task, frequently is on an alert condition. Sometimes — perhaps three or four times a year—the situation is such that Roderick and his staff go on standby alert. Thus he is accustomed to being called out of bed at night.

But now he had no sooner entered the FCDA operations room than the yellow alert was flashed.

"For years we have worked on our warning system," Roderick said as he recalled his feelings. "We prepare daily to do the job. We live with the responsibility. But when that yellow alert came over, there was a sinking feeling in my stomach—a 'this is it" sort of thing."

Actually, the alert lasted only four minutes. "But it was a long four minutes," Roderick recalls.

A native of Evansville, Wis., Roderick's experience in attack warning operations dates back to pre-Pearl Harbor days. In 1938, three years after his graduation from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in electrical engineering, he took a special Army Signal Corps course. When he was called to active Army duty in 1940 (with a lieutenant's commission from college ROTC) he was assigned to assist in setting up an air defense and attack warning system for the United States. At that time the Army had only the experience of Great Britain to guide it in establishing a warning network. Roderick traveled throughout the nation on the job. He left the service with the rank of lieutenant colonel, and now is a full colonel in the Air Force Reserve.

The ground-breaking job with the military was to stand Roderick in good stead when he joined FCDA in 1951, only a few months after the agency was established, and begun the work of setting up the civilian attack warning system.

At that time the Air Force was operating the system, but on July 1, 1952, the Air Force turned the job over to FCDA. The agency has since redesigned and added to the system to meet civilian needs.

In the early days of the system Roderick flew more than 7,000 miles in 10 days to interview 200 applicants for the backbone of the net—the corps of attack warning officers to be stationed with the Air Force. The 12 top officers he selected are still on the job, and FCDA in now adding more warning officers.

There isn't a typical day for Roderick. When he goes to work he may have to delve into the question of whether to place an attack warning officer in Alaska, discuss mutual attack warning measures with Canadian officals, locate an identification card for one of his officers in the field, approve the relocation of communications equipment — or operate the FCDA headquarters warning net in a "yellow alert."

Off duty, he leads a quiet life, seldom attending social functions and always checking in with headquarters when away from home. His wife and three children have accustomed themselves to his always-on-call habits.

He's just an average American to his neighbors. He paints his house, fixes the screens when they need it, reads a little, sometimes plays with the kids.

But a ring on the two telephone lines in his home can send him into instant action. Some day this action and that of Roderick's fellow atomic age Paul Reveres may hold the key to the nation's survival.

OPEN HOUSE AT NURSERY

St. Elizabeth's Nursery, 1833 South Eighth street, will celebrate its fortieth anniversary at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. today. The public is invited.

The nursery, sponsored by the Catholic Central Verein and conducted by the School Sisters of Notre Dame, provides care for children whose parents work away from home.

EXHIBIT WILL DEPICT LIFE IN U.S. 20 YEARS IN FUTURE

An exhibit depicting life in the United States 20 years from now will open Tuesday for three days in the Empire room of the Kingsway Hotel under the sponsorship of the National Association of Manufacturers. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

The mobile exposition, entitled Americade, will include exhibits of future homes, clothing and transportation methods. Visitors will be able to operate a mock space ship and get a simulated space ride.

They will see themselves on a closed circuit television broadcast and observe a device which keeps a constant count of the population, recording births and deaths as they occur and counting the number of immigrants as they enter the country. Admission to the exhibit is free.

ARTISTS JACKSON, CHESNEY WIN PRINT PURCHASE PRIZES

Billy M. Jackson, St. Louis artist who teaches at the University of Illinois, has won a purchase prize in the First Graphic National Exhibition of Texas Western College, El Paso, Tex., the college announced yesterday.

Jackson's winning print is entitled "Street Spawn, Mexico." It was chosen for last year's St. Louis Metropolitan Church Federation religious display, in which Jackson won a major award, and was also in Jackson's one-man show at the People's Art Center.

Another purchase prize winner in the Texas competition was Lee Chesney, University of Illinois graphic arts teacher, currently exhibiting his work here in the Washington University International Invitational Print Show. The Texas display will close Nov. 30.

WASHINGTON U. PRESENTED WITH FOUNDER'S PORTRAIT

A portrait of the Rev. William Greenleaf Eliot, founder and third chancellor of Washington University, by the Nineteenth Century portrait painter Chester Harding, has been given to the university, Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley announced yesterday.

The gift is from the will of Miss Eunice C. Smith, Alton. The 24 by 36 inch portrait, which shows Eliot in middle age, is considered one of the best of the portraits of university officials. It is hung in the chancellor's office.

Harding, born in 1792, is well known for his portrait of Daniel Webster. At one time Harding lived in St. Louis, and later in London, where he painted a portrait of the royal family. He was elected to the American National Academy of Art in 1828 and died in 1866.

WASHINGTON U. LAW ALUMNI CHAIRMEN NAMED

Appointment of seven committee chairmen for the Washington University Law Alumni Association was announced yesterday by H. Jackson Daniel, association president. The association has a membership of more than 1800, of whom 1000 practice law in the St. Louis area.

Chairmen and co-chairmen are: Arthur J. Freund, Tyrrell Williams, memorial committee; David L. Millar, liaison; Ralph R. Neuhoff Jr., law school directory; Norman S. London, annual meeting; John H. Lashly, student enrollment; John J. Cole, placement, and Rexford H. Caruthers and Dave L. Cornfeld, alumni scholarship.

From Possum Trot

Overnight Camping Trip to Deep Ozarks

By Leonard Hall

IT seems as though, during the fine weather of the past weeks, never a day passes but what several cars pull in the road to Possum Trot Farm. Their owners tell us they are out to enjoy the beauty of the Ozark countryside on our recommendation and, oftener than not, produce a dog-eared Possum Trot column of by-gone days which suggests a visit to the land of the big springs. Many of these visitors are fellow Missourians, but others come from farther away—from Illinois and Iowa, Kansas and Indiana, Ohio and Nebraska and the Dakotas and even, now and then, from California.

All this playing of hookey by our readers finally got the best of us. So one day last week when the last patch of wheat was finished and the big jobs caught up for the moment, we decided to steal a day for a trip of our own. Ginnie packed the food baskets and ice box and cook kit while I got together the bedroll and tent and cameras and binoculars. When it was all piled in the yard beside the car we were, as we've been for years, amazed that it could take so much gear to go camping for a couple of nights in the woods. Finally, so there'd be plenty of room in the back seat of the car for Mike and Tiger, I hooked up the little one-wheeled trailer.

It was nearly 3 o'clock when everything was stored away in its place, including Ginnie's reading matter which she always takes along and never has time to read, and we'd made the inevitable false start and come back for a pair of forgotten spectacles. But the sun was bright and the air warm as mid-summer and this was a holiday, so we didn't mind and refused to hurry. Our destination was Possum Holler, down in the back country of Carter county.

With the sun slanting swiftly westward and an hour of real hill country driving still ahead, we didn't dare stop to visit friends in Van Buren on the way for fear darkness would overtake us on the road. And indeed, when we dropped down into the last hollow and forded the last creek, twilight had set in; for in this part of the Ozarks the valleys are narrow and night comes quickly. But we pushed up the creek at the best speed we could make with the car dragging bottom every few yards—and soon came to the clearing beside the spring.

● THERE WAS a bit more daylight here where the hollow broadened out and we set to work swiftly to make camp. Mike and Tiger took over the task of chasing the "open range" hogs and cattle off the campsite while we unpacked the car. Fortunately there was a wealth of wood ready at hand for the campfire, so we built two; one for cooking and one for heat and light. Then I got up the tent while Ginnie put on the coffee pot and set the steaks to broil. Afterward I pulled in a great stump for the fire, the dogs curled up beside us and we leaned back to watch the constellations circle slowly overhead.

There's a stillness about an autumn night, when you're away back in the wilderness, which you'll find at no other time of year. To the west of our camp, perhaps a mile away, lay the 25,000-acre Peck Ranch Wildlife Refuge. To the north and south the timber stretched unbroken for many miles. Only toward the east a couple of miles away, down near Current river, were a few scattered farms.

● AT LAST I LOOKED AT MY WATCH and discovered—and again, this is a thing which always surprises us when we're camping—that it was only 8 o'clock. I'd have bet on at least an hour later than that. But we'd been up since daylight, I'd ridden the tractor for five hours before starting out and Ginnie had worked hard pulling the camp gear together, so we decided it was bedtime. It didn't take long to blow up the air mattresses, spread the blankets in the tent, put a canvas beside the door for the dogs—they took turns coming inside to curl up on our feet—and turn in.

It is always easy to imagine that you haven't slept well, the first night in camp. You lie awake listening to the infinitesimal sounds which break the silence; dig deeper under the elderdown as the chill drops down; poke your head out once to see the moon just dipping behind the mountain and frost crystals glistening everywhere in its slanting rays. Then suddenly you wake up and realize it is morning and that you've been tucked in for nine hours or more. This is always enough to turn me out, frost or no frost. In a few minutes I have both fires going again; one a regular bonfire for warmth. The dogs circle the clearing and come in for their breakfast. I measure the coffee into the pot—using the old camp recipe of making it strong enough to float the ax. Soon bacon is sizzling in the pan and toast is browning, and I'm telling Ginnie that if she wants a hot breakfast, she'll have to hurry.

We spent a wonderful day in Possum Holler, exploring more of its 1200 acres than we've ever had a chance to tramp out before. We noted the areas of young pine and the north slopes where white and scarlet oak is making a good growth. Everywhere the color was magnificent. Deer sign was scarce; but this is a matter difficult to determine in an area carrying a heavy load of half-starved dogs and cattle, even though these stick mostly to the creek valley and old deserted fields. At 4 o'clock when we came back to camp a wind rose in the east and there were clouds on the horizon. So we cooked supper and broke camp, deciding against another night, and headed home for Possum Trot. There was a ring around the moon when we arrived—and next morning a cold rain was falling. But we'd had our holiday in the Ozarks.

Religious Retreat For Teen-Age Boys

"Out Here," Says One of Them, "You Get Away From City Life and All It Means, and You Can Think Things Out"—Run by Christian Brothers College

By Dickson Terry

I SAT on a hilltop and talked to a 16-year-old boy who tried to tell me what goes on in the troubled mind of a teen-ager.

The setting was conducive to soul searching and revelation. It was a beautiful autumn day and the surrounding hills were a symphony of color—the brown and gold of the oak trees, the deep green of the cedars and now and then a maple which seemed to have burst into flame. The sky was blue and a gentle breeze stirred the tall grass on the hillside.

The only sound which broke the stillness came from a group of other teen-age boys who were playing football on a field at the bottom of the hill. On the other side of the hill was a small, still lake where two boys in a boat were trying with quiet patience to catch a fish.

The 16-year-old was nearing the close of a three-day retreat, during which he had had, for the first time in his life, the time, the atmosphere and the encouragement to meditate, with some perspective, on the relationship of a teen-ager to himself, his family and to society in general.

"I don't know whether teen-agers have as many fears and tensions as people think they do," he was saying, "but they have plenty of them. Some of the boys worry about moral problems, you know, about what's right and wrong when they have dates, and others worry about the future, I guess what you'd call facing the grown-up world.

"But out here you get away from the city life and all it means, and you can think things out. And if you get stuck, you've got the priest and the brothers to talk to, and they know more about us than we know ourselves. I think it's been a good experience, and I know the other guys think so, too."

FOR three days this boy and 33 other teen-agers from Christian Brothers College had been at Vaugirard, a secluded spot in Jefferson county some 34 miles from St. Louis, and far off the highway, where they had spent their time in prayer, meditation and counseling, with some recreation to work off their nervous energy.

Vaugirard gets its name after a small town near Paris, France, where the first Christian Brothers Retreat House was located in the middle of the 17th century. The name is very appropriate, because this Vaugirard is the first retreat, so far as the Christian Brothers know—and their order has been dedicated to educating boys for 300 years—designed solely for boys in their teens.

The idea grew from a dream of the late Brother Damian, who was head of Christian Brothers College here from 1938 to 1944. He felt that boys as well as adults—or perhaps even more than adults — needed closed retreats to foster a positive spirituality.

"Out of Brother Damian's ideas," says Brother I. Conrad, present head of the college, "we all came to believe that if teen-agers were given the chance, under right conditions and sympathetic guidance, they would figure out a lot of things on their own and would learn the value of independent thinking, something they've never had the chance to do.

"We feel that teen-agers who are getting so much criticism, some of it deserved and some undeserved, if given a chance for real constructive thinking, will be able to find themselves and benefit immeasurably."

Brother Damian's dream began to come true two years ago when the estate of the late Tom English, a wealthy real estate broker, became available. English, when he was ready to retire, built a home with 16 bedrooms, two living rooms, sun parlors and so on, on a remote 320-acre tract, three miles off Highway 30, in the area known as Cedar Hills. He dammed a spring to make a small lake, built a half dozen sheds and other small buildings, and was going to spend his declining years raising chickens. But six months after the place was finished, in 1950, he was killed in an automobile accident.

His son, Thomas English Jr., had graduated from C.B.C., and in the settlement of the estate, he offered it for sale to the school at much less than its actual value. The school had no funds with which to purchase it, but a committee of alumni was organized, and it, with the aid of the Mothers' Club and the Fathers' Club, raised a fund of around $100,000.

Then the fathers and the students undertook the job of remodeling the estate into a retreat. The house itself was ideally suited to the purpose. Made of brick and concrete, it seemed to have been built for the purpose, with all its bedrooms, and seven baths. A storeroom was made into a kitchen, and partitions were torn out to make the old kitchen and nearby space into a dining hall. A large sun room on the main floor is now a chapel.

FATHERS and boys spent Saturdays and holidays for nearly two years digging ditches to lay water pipes, bulldozing a large area to make a flat athletic field, turning one of the out-buildings into an attractive five-room cottage for the caretaker and his wife, and planting trees around the place.

With the help of the Mothers' Club they redecorated the interior, hung attractive draperies and furnished it throughout. There are two lounges, or drawing rooms, one on each floor, handsomely furnished with easy chairs and sofas. The bedrooms contain bunk beds, sometimes as many as four to a room, which makes for crowded living, but no one complains. And too, the boys are in their rooms only from 10 p.m. until 7 a.m., when the day begins.

This is the second year of retreats at Vaugirard. Last year some 600 boys from the school made the retreat, and the school, the parents and also the boys pronounce it an unqualified success. The boys look forward to their turn, and almost without exception they enter into the spirit and make the most of it. Of the 600 boys who were there last year, only four caused trouble. They were promptly bundled up and taken home.

Only juniors and seniors at the school are eligible for the retreat. They go a classroom at a time, accompanied by their home room teacher. In the group when I was there were 34 boys, all seniors.

They arrive usually in late afternoon, and the first thing they do is get acquainted with schedule and procedures. Each boy finds himself assigned to a task. The list is on the wall, headed "Retreat Job Assignments," and it includes bell ringer, prayer reader, mass servers, dusting and arranging chapel, dusting parlors, sweeping and dusting the lounges, sweeping the stairs, carrying out trash barrels, dust-mopping under beds, cleaning wash basins and closing windows and putting out lights. Opposite each task is the name of one or more boys, and all share in the work.

EACH boy is given a mimeographed sheet of Retreat Directions, which points out at the very beginning that a retreat is a time for thinking and praying and getting close to God, so no cards, radios and so forth.

Forbidden are cookies, candies and chewing gum. It is pointed out that it is hardly courteous to our Lord to chew gum in chapel. Smoking is allowed only at certain times of the day, and only in the lounges.

Out of bounds are the kitchen, the refrigerator room, and bedrooms except during sleeping hours and when changing clothes for recreation. The boys are reminded to take their shoes off before climbing into upper bunks, and that towels are not bathmats. They are also reminded there is no retreat without silence and that talking must be restricted to talking periods and even then should be subdued.

The day begins at 7 o'clock when the morning bell rings. Morning prayers are at 7:30, and Mass and Holy Communion at 7:45. Breakfast is at 8:15, after which each boy makes his bed, then all do the chores assigned to them. At 9:15 they listen to a brief talk in the chapel, followed by a reading period. There are plenty of books on the shelves, all of a religious nature: "The Life of Christ," "Lives of the Saints," "The Imitation of Christ," "Peace of Soul" and other books of an inspirational type.

STUDENT IN WARM AUTUMN AFTERNOON SUN READING "PEACE OF SOUL", BY BISHOP FULTON SHEEN, WHILE FOUR OTHERS, DOWN NEAR THE LAKE, TALK WITH BROTHER I. CONRAD, HEAD OF CHRISTIAN BROTHERS COLLEGE, AT RETREAT FOR C.B.C. JUNIORS AND SENIORS AT AN ESTATE CALLED VAUGIRARD, IN NEAR-BY JEFFERSON COUNTY.

Rosary is at 10 a.m. and at 10:30 they listen to an instructional talk by one of the brothers. The talks are aimed right at the problems of teen-agers, and couched in the kind of language teen-agers understand. Brother Laurence Matthias, F.S.C., who was in charge of this retreat, was giving a morning talk:

"Learn to look squarely at your own character defects," he was telling the boys. "Are you a hard person to live with, at home or at school? What are the things that make you a hard person to live with? When you find out what they are, make up your mind you are going to work against them. If you hold a grudge against someone, stop and analyze it and see if it is really his fault or yours. Then make it a point to say something pleasant to that person every day.

"Another difficulty teen-agers have—some individuals get too big for their britches. They want the privileges of an adult, but not the responsibility that goes with it. You say, 'why can't I have a car, everyone else has one,' and 'why can't I stay out late at night, everyone else gets to,' which, if you will admit it, is just a lot of ballyhoo."

FROM 11:30 to 12, the boys can read, walk around the grounds, sit on the bank of the lake, or whatever else they would like to do as long as it is quiet and reflective.

Lunch is at 12:30 and the food is one of the things the boys brag about. Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jenkins of St. Louis are caretakers and cooks, and they serve up dishes such as beef stew, fried chicken with potatoes and gravy and plenty of milk. Jenkins, who used to be a chef at a St. Louis hotel, is still amazed at the amount of food a gang of teen-age boys can put away.

"One group of 28 boys," he said in tones of wonder and admiration, "drank 58 gallons of milk in eight meals. They hold the record. For milk, that is. The food record is held by a group of 21 boys who ate 14 pounds of sausage at one sitting."

The boys eat at six tables, five and six to a table, and while they are eating they maintain silence while one of the boys reads aloud. Vocal silence, that is. The reader has a hard time making himself heard against the natural noises which arise when 34 hungry boys are eating.

After lunch they have an hour and a half of relaxation, which to most of the boys means a game of football. The star of the game that day was their priest, the Rev. David Walsh, who shed his vestments for a sport shirt and an old pair of trousers and showed the boys how to make an end run.

The afternoon is devoted to more reading and talks by the brothers. After the evening meal, they make the Stations of the Cross and have what is officially listed as a "discussion period," but which is known to the boys as a bull session.

"We just talk about everything," one of the boys said, "like what's right and wrong when you have dates, and how a guy should behave at home to his parents, and just everything you would talk about at a bull session."

After Holy Hour and Benediction, everyone gets a bedtime snack which has been laid out by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, usually plenty of milk and cookies. Then night prayers and bed at 9:30.

"Man," one of the boys told me, "the sleep is wonderful. You get so much more of it than you do at home, mainly, I guess, because here there's no one to argue with about when to go to bed. You go to bed, and that's that."

WHICH, as a matter of fact, bears out the attitude of the Christian Brothers toward handling teen-agers.

"There have been many schools of thought," says Brother Conrad, "about what might be called child psychology. It swings far in one direction, and then far in another. In our order, and we have devoted ourselves to the mental and spiritual welfare of boys for several centuries, we have never deviated. We've always been tough.

"I don't mean tough in the sense of being mean or cruel. But you talk to any teen-ager and you will find that he respects and admires and realizes the value of firm teaching. The easy-going, popular type of teacher who wants to be one of the boys is respected for what he is worth, and nothing more. The same applies to parents. Although they are the last in the world to admit it, teen-agers like to be told what to do.

"Out here the supervision is nominal. Nobody bawls anybody out. But if a boy doesn't enter into the spirit and idea of the place, he is sent home. It hardly ever happens."

Since the retreat started, Brother Conrad has had inquiries about it from Catholic boys' schools all over the country, and he has been asked to make a talk at the Next National Catholic Youth Council on retreats for high school students.

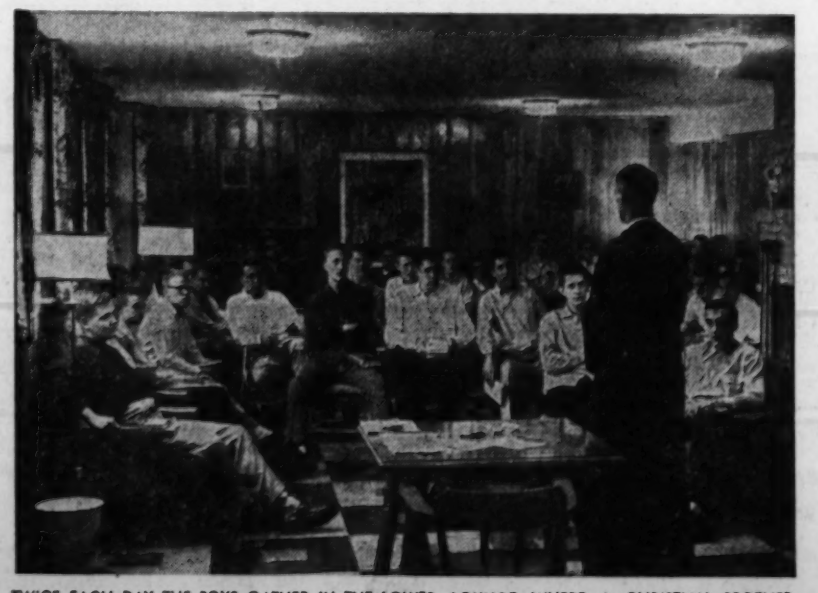
"The main thing is," the 16-year-old on the hilltop was saying, "you get a chance to get straightened out. The idea of a retreat is to find the answers to some questions, like, Who am I? Where am I going? What are my relations to God and my fellow men? What are my obligations to others and to myself?

They encourage you to look back over your life and see your mistakes, and you can see a lot of them in three days."



TWICE EACH DAY THE BOYS GATHER IN THE LOWER LOUNGE WHERE A CHRISTIAN BROTHER TALKS TO THEM ON TEEN-AGE SUBJECTS AND PROBLEMS. THE SPEAKER AT THIS SESSION IS BROTHER LAURANCE MATTHIAS OF C.B.C.

VAUGIRARD, BUILT AS A PLACE OF RETIREMENT BY THE LATE TOM ENGLISH, ST. LOUIS REAL ESTATE BROKER, HAS 16 BEDROOMS, SEVEN BATHS, TWO LIVING ROOMS.

Wilbur Comments on Meg-Peter Romance

By Hal Boyle

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP)—Nov. 5

WILBUR PEEBLE, America's most average husband, came home, sat down on the sofa, and pulled off his shoes.

He wiggled his stockinged toes, groaned cavernously as he stared at them with the intent look men give their feet when they hurt.

CAPT. PETER TOWNSEND... "HE COULD CLEAN UP."

"Boy, am I glad this day is over," he said loudly.

His wife, Trellis Mae, looked up from the desk where she had been scribbling busily.

"Oh, you startled me," she said. "Are you home?"

"I don't know whether this is home," replied her husband with heavy irony. "But it's where I hang up my coat at night."

Trellis Mae let the remark pass, and Wilbur wondered vaguely if she were ill.

"Wilbur, I'm writing a petition, and I need your help."

"Now what's the P.-T.A. done wrong?" he asked.

"This isn't about school. It's about Meg and Peter."

"You mean those new neighbors that moved in upstairs? Are they making noise already?"

"No, stupid, I mean Princess Margaret Rose and Capt. Peter Townsend. He wanted to marry her but she told him no on account of she has to put duty ahead of love on account of he's divorced and she is a member of royalty and she can't marry him because his first wife is still alive."

"So what?" yawned Wilbur.

"So it sounds pretty flimsy to me. She keeps him dangling for two years, then tells him it's no go. Mighty fishy. Old King Henry VIII, when he wanted to marry a new wife, didn't worry about divorce. He just lopped off the head of his old wife.

"Not a bad idea," murmured Wilbur.

"What did you say?"

"I said—what a batty idea," backtracked Wilbur quickly. "But what's all this about a petition?"

● "WELL, THE GIRLS of our club met this afternoon and voted unanimously to inform the British Ambassador that we thought Margaret Rose's attitude was strictly un-American. I'm supposed to draw up the petition."

"You mean that the British government not only has to deal with the Mau Maus but also face the problem of handling the Minerva Literary and Gin Rummy Society?" said Wilbur. "I'll have nothing to do with the petition. Britain has enough woes."

"But poor, poor Capt. Peter Townsend—my heart bleeds for him," cried Trellis Mae.

"Mine doesn't," said Wilbur. "In a way he's better off. If she'd said yes, there'd always be gossip that he was merely a poor fly boy who stole the key to a woman's favor and fortune.

"Now he's free to make a million dollars on his own. He could get at least a half million writing his memoirs. A quarter million starring in a Hollywood movie of his life, and another quarter million lecturing to women's clubs and turning out magazine articles."

● "OH, PETER TOWNSEND would never stoop to such things," objected Trellis Mae. "After all, he's royal, too, in his own way. He was a hero in the Royal Air Force."

"Well, I'd stoop to 'em," said Wilbur. "Nobody'd give me the run-around and get away with it."

Trellis Mae looked at him curiously.

"Supposing I was a princess and you wanted to marry me but there were rules against it and I said I couldn't marry you—well, what would you do?"

"I'd do like I did before," said Wilbur, "like I did when your old man said I wasn't making enough money to support us both, and your mother said she couldn't bear to see you leave home, and you said maybe we'd better put if off a while, and I told you that people can't just go on through life putting off love, and I dragged you out of the house and married you."

Trellis Mae's eyes misted. She tore up the petition to the British government, came over and sat in her husband's lap, rumpled his hair and kissed him.

"Wilbur, sometimes you act like a gruff old bear," she said, "and bears get hungry. What would you really like for dinner?"

"Dinner," said Wilbur, a king at home with his queen in his castle.

Hardly the Orthodox Movie Queen

Barbara Rush, Who Became Overnight Star in One Film, Is Unusual in Several Ways

By Edward A. Harris

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

(SECOND OF A SERIES)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—THE studio biographies said there was nothing "offbeat" about this tall, hazel-eyed beauty named Barbara Rush.

"She had a normal growing-up period, went to school, had her early dramatic experience at the famed Pasadena Playhouse, through that acquired a few movie roles, then was promptly signed by Universal-International," the biogs said. They annbounced also that "there has never been any heart-break" in her life.

It's true that Barbara early won recognition for her acting ability, and went straight into the movies without wearing her heels down pavement pounding. It's strictly on the level that after a number of adventure pictures she became an overnight star in "Magnificent Obsession," in which she played the step-daughter and close companion of Jane Wyman. That film also made a star of Rack Hudson.

But Barbara's life so far—she's 28—and her personality and opinions aren't quite as orthodox as the studio publicists think.

She's extraordinary in several ways. Any Hollywood actress is highly unusual who can inteligently debate the issue, "We Resolve to Deplore the Influence of Freud in the Theater." Incidentally, she took the negative side (and won) in a panel headed by her friend, Professor David Sievers, former St. Louisan who now heads the drama department at Long Beach State College. Sievers has recently published an able book on the subject.

What about ambitions? She's different on this score too.

WE were having lunch when I asked her whether she wanted to be a great actress. She stopped eating for a moment. Thoughtfully she replied:

"You know, you've asked me something that I've asked myself a good many times lately. I don't want to be a great actress at the cost of personal stability and happiness. I don't even want to WANT it so much that I would go around feeling frustrated and unhappy. You see what I mean?"

She shook her black hair impetuously and tried again.

"You can get awfully involved in a great personal drive toward such a goal. Many people say you even have to suffer greatly in order to achieve acting greatness. I simply don't subscribe to that school of thought. I like to think that the more normal a person is, the more understanding that person can bring to the stage. The point is that I don't want to be a great actress if it means a sacrifice of one's peace of mind."

As a child, Barbara had little chance to grow roots in any one place. Her father was a corporation lawyer for a large mining company, a job that kept the family almost constantly on the move between mining towns. Barbara was born in Denver. Her mother was a registered nurse who met Barbara's father at a Kansas City, Mo., hospital to which he was confined during World War I.

Eventually the family settled in Santa Barbara, Calif. There Barbara's mother became a participant in Little Theater plans and a sponsor of them. At 10 Barbara first tasted acting as the eldest dryad in "Golden Ball," a children's fantasy. She liked the taste.

When she was 16, her father died. "He was a kind and sweet man, and we had been very close," Barbara said. His death affected her deeply. For a long time after that, she found herself comparing other men, particularly her suitors, to the idolized image of her father—a habit she forced herself to discard as unfair.

CLOSE UP OF BARBARA RUSH, AT TOP, AND SUNNING HERSELF ON A MOVIE STUDIO LOT.

Two years after her father died, her brother, Douglas, was killed in a California automobile accident shortly after returning unscathed from World War II, in which he served many dangerous missions as an aviation navigator. He was 22 at the time.

A sister, Ramona, 21, graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles this summer, majoring in sociology.

AFTER her father died, Barbara decided to earn some money on her own. She took a job as "legman" for the Santa Barbara News-Press, acting as a court reporter on newsworthy marriages, divorces and trials. When she entered the University of Santa Barbara she arranged to take her classes in the afternoon so that she could continue working mornings.

She also modeled in photography. Barbara loves clothes and knows how to dress. As a model she particularly needed to be well-dressed. So she and a girl friend worked out a deal with a top teen-age shop in Santa Barbara, in which they became campus representatives for the store.

Each evening she and her friend, Barbara Marvel, would make a trip to the shop to get their clothes for the following day at school. They undoubtedly were the best-dressed students in town. Many college girls selected their spring, fall and winter wardrobes by keeping a close eye each day on the two glamorous Barbaras.

Their tie-in with the store was no campus secret. They gave two campus fashion shows annually and wrote a fashion column in the campus newspaper.

"I'll never forget the first fashion show we gave," recalled Barbara. "Everything was ready, even the punch and sandwiches. We were excited and expectant. But no one came, not a soul. We wanted to cry, standing there all dressed up. We thought no one was interested."

It turned out, however, that the wrong date had been printed in the college paper. The event actually was given the following night, as scheduled in the paper, and was an overwhelming success, jammed to the rafters.

During these campus days Barbara also tried her dainty hand at various other jobs, including secretarial work in a real estate office and bookkeeper for a lumber company. From the latter she was unceremoniously bounced.

"I could never balance those crazy books," she laughed.

When her boss discharged her, he told her with deep disappointment in his voice that he was afraid she would never make the grade as a good bookkeeper. Barbara was quite torn up about it.

He also told her he was amazed that anyone could talk on the telephone as often and as long as she. At this, he conceded, she had no peer. Barbara explained that she was in the college drama group and had to phone her colleagues for rehearsal arrangements and other details, but the stubborn man wouldn't listen.

ABOUT this time Barbara ran away from home.

Again the play was the thing. More than anything else, Barbara wanted to devote every spare minute to acting or talking about acting. While her mother also was an impassioned devotee of the theater, she also took the practical view that dishes had to be washed and household chores performed. In a rebellious fit against such parental nonsense, Barbara fled to an apartment with a friend named Jane.

"Most of the time Jane and I fought—about everything, including dishwashing," Barbara said. "Eight days of that was all I could stand, and then I went home—to mother. Home looked great to me then." She got along wondrously well after that with Mother.

While at college she won the award of Best Actress of the Year among the University Players for her characterization of "Birdie" in "The Little Foxes." She also won a scholarship to the Pasadena Playhouse Theater Arts College, which she attended for two years.

She explained that she got every juicy female lead role while at the Playhouse because she was the only girl in her class of 17 students. In one play she set something of a record by playing five female parts. She also played in stock companies around the country, and she said, with a tinkling little laugh, that some of her "best moments" of acting were before a lot of empty seats.

BARBARA was first signed by Paramount, made her movie debut in "The First Legion" on a loanout to Lee Productions, was then borrowed by Universal for several films and finally placed under contract by that studio. After her success in "Magnificent Obsession," she was starred in "The Black Shield of Falworth," "Captain Lightfoot," "Kiss of Fire," scheduled for release this autumn, and "World in My Corner." The last-named will not be released until next year but Barbara is excited about it. It's a vehicle that gives her a chance, at last, to show some real dramatic fireworks.

"I've got 'em all in that picture," she said with enthusiasm. "I'm the wealthy girl who hates what money does to people; I'm the only child who hates her father with a vengeance; I've even the love-starved gal who is desperately afraid of falling in love. I'm just a wonderful, exciting, thorough mess."

She's convinced that a large part of winning recognition—and she believes the public is the best judge of real talent—lies in getting the right parts. She likes roles with dramatic range, and she'd also like to do comedies and musicals. Her father was a soloist in a church choir for many years and Barbara herself can sing and dance, but has never been given a singing-dancing movie role.

BARBARA didn't look like she was in a singing-dancing mood when we first met for lunch. She was red-eyed. In fact, she had been crying.

"I've just been rehearsing a real tear-jerker," she explained. She dabbed at her eyes. The tears made no streak because Barbara scarcely, wears any makeup—in fact she advises women to use great restraint in powder and rouge if they want to look their best.

There were, however, real tears in her eyes not so long ago. For four years she was married to Jeffrey Hunter of Twentieth-Century Fox Studios, a marriage that headed relentlessly toward the rocks.

"I've always fought failure," said Barbara. "But the marriage was a failure. We were unhappy living together, so we finally got a divorce." They have a son, Christopher Merrill, three years old.

Now that it's all over, Barbara doesn't let herself indulge in self-pity or wearying regrets. Her attitude toward life in general is cheerful and friendly.

"My first instinct is to like anyone, not dislike," she explained.

When she does tend to get a bit unhappy or depressed, she takes a very matter-of-fact, matronly attitude toward herself. "First thing I do is ask myself what I ate that day," she said. "Usually I find I've been eating things I shouldn't, and that's why I'm out of sorts. When I'm in condition, when I've had enough sleep and eaten the right food, all of a sudden my problems don't seem so insurmountable anymore."

We had a simple but nourishing lunch. When we walked out Barbara looked like she loved the whole world, even bosses of bookkeepers.

NEXT SUNDAY—Mitzi Gaynor.

Marriage

Selfish, Grasping Children

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

CHILDREN who do not learn, in their own homes, the balance between privileges and responsibilities, are likely to grow up self-centered and lacking in some of the qualities necessary to a self-governing people. Children in the United States too often concern themselves with their rights rather than their duties, and citizenship suffers.

This feeling of indifference to the common welfare has been strikingly illustrated in the past by studies of high school graduates. Two Harvard psychologists now emphasize it in a comparison of young people from 10 different cultures including such widely differing ones as the Egyptians, Japanese, Mexicans, and the Negro Bantu of Africa. College students in the U.S.A. make the worst showing of all, in active altruism.

Asked, for example, "If you should get a large sum of money five years from now, what would you do with it?" only 2 per cent of Americans gave any such answer as "use part of it to alleviate social misery." Asked, "What two things could you conceivably accomplish during your lifetime that you would be most proud of?" only 3 per cent gave any answer that involved serving the nation.

BY CONTRAST 20 per cent of Egyptians and 25 per cent of Mexicans looked forward to good citizenship and making their country a better place to live in. One American wrote, "I shall be a doctor, so I don't care what happens to the world; there will always be work for me." One statement after another concerned itself only with private, worldly success.

What is the matter with the schools which "educated" these young people? What kind of religion do they think they have? What have their own parents done to make them anything except selfish, grasping, spoiled children? The psychologists (James M. Gillespie and Gordon W. Allport) put at least part of the blame on family life, which did such a feeble job of teaching social obligations and responsibilities.

PARENTS can at least start by developing an acceptance of duties and a willingness to share, in their own households. Family council, teamwork, distribution of chores, will all help. Write me for free reprint,

"Family Teamwork," by Mrs. Alma H. Jones, one of the child guidance experts at the American Institute of Family Relations. Read the whole study that I have quoted, in "Youth's Outlook on the Future," published by Doubleday & Co., Garden City, N.Y., at 85 cents.

Answers to Questions.

Q. My son objects to taking his sister, a year younger than himself, to dances and parties. Isn't it entirely proper to expect him to do so?

A. Yes, if they are mere children. But if they are in their teens, it's desirable that he should be taking some other boy's sister. Perhaps you can arrange with a friend who has a daughter and son, to assort the young people a little better.

Q. We're trying to teach our children to be peaceful and civilized, but they get into fights with neighboring children occasionally.

A. Don't worry. They may get a valuable education in that way. One way for a child to lose his self-respect is to have his parents always interfere when he is standing up for his rights.

Q. WOULD IT ENDANGER the success of our marriage if I relieved my husband of all responsibility for the family finances?

A. Probably so. If a husband has no feeling of responsibility for finances he may have no feeling of responsibility for anything else connected with the marriage.

Q. I hear husbands continually complaining about the extravagance of their wives. Do wives complain to you equally about the extravagance of their husbands?

A. No. They complain more frequently that their husbands are tightwads. Much trouble may be avoided by intelligent planning.

Little Boy and His After-Midnight Social Call

By F. A. Behymer

LEBANON, Ill., Nov. 5.

AT a half hour past midnight the door-chime sounded at the house of Bill Pfeffer in the edge of the woods adjoining the Country Club, out on the short-cut road that leads from Lebanon to Route 50 at Wright's crossing.

Pfeffer and his wife, Anne, were awakened. Who could it be? It was lonesome out there. There were no lights on the short-cut. Nobody came there after midnight unless it was a motorist in trouble. Or maybe a drunk.

Pfeffer went to the window above the front door and called down: "Who are you and what do you want?" There was no answer. He called again, louder. Still no answer. It was strange. He took his Colt's 45 and went softly to the front door and looked through the windows at the side of the door. Nobody was there. He went out through a side door with the weapon in his hand and looked around. Nothing there.

By that time Mrs. Pfeffer was up. She looked out into the front yard and saw something small and white moving around but couldn't tell what it was. It went around the corner of the house. She went to the back porch but the thing, whatever it was, didn't come back there. Their daughter, Ruzha, awakened by the commotion, said she heard "it" heading back into the front yard. Mrs. Pfeffer looked out of the west window. There it was. She still couldn't tell what it was. But the Pfeffer dog, Coots, and Sally, the Airedale, were sniffing about it, apparently not at all terrified.

DOWN AT the William Lambeths at a little after midnight, little William Lambeth, nicknamed Geezer, two and a half years old, had awakened. The moon was shining through the window of his room. It might have been morning and time to get up. There was something on his mind. He should have gone the day before to visit Little Bill Pfeffer, a piece up the road. His Mommy had promised to take him but something had come up and she had promised to take him next day. Well, this was next day but Mommy, it seemed like, was not up yet, so he would go by himself.

He climbed out of bed and went to the front door. It opened at his touch and he stepped out into the front yard of the ranch-style house. He knew where Little Billy lived. You couldn't see the big Pfeffer house through the trees but it was right up the road there, up the hill and around the curve.

The Lambeth front yard was inclosed by a wire fence. He could climb it if he had to, but maybe the gate wasn't latched. Sure enough it wasn't. He pushed it open and in his pajamas and barefooted went out the driveway to the road. His Airedale, Sally, went along. He had been warned to watch out for cars which came fast around the curves, one above and one below. There weren't any in sight, so he took off up the hill in the middle of the road. If one came along, as he afterward explained in his childish way, he was going to hide in the ditch. He wasn't one to take too much of a risk.

"LITTLE GEEZER"... OTHERWISE YOUNG WILLIAM LAMBETH.

He knew how to get in at the Pfeffers. There was a button on the door. You pushed it and the chimes sounded inside and somebody came and opened the door. It was really quite simple.

THE BUTTON had worked all right, but Geezer didn't quite like the way that Mr. Pfeffer had called down and asked who was there. He wouldn't tell the big stiff. He had his rights. He had hidden in the recess at the door and then had gone out in the yard. Maybe Little Bill would wake up and come out. Sally was a little too friendly. She might have been anxious. She muzzled him. "Oh, Sally, quit," he scolded.

Ruzha, who had come to the window, heard that.

"Why, it's Geezer," she cried.

"No, it couldn't be," said Mrs. Pfeffer.

"Stay where you are, Geezer," called Pfeffer, "I'm coming to get you."

Without his gun he went out into the yard and scooped Geezer up into his arms.

"I want to see Little Bill," said Geezer.

"Wait a minute," said Pfeffer. He was at the telephone. Mrs. Lambeth had awakened at 12:30 but it was quiet in Geezer's room and she hadn't, as was her custom, looked into his room. Now Pfeffer was talking. "Geezer's up here," he said.

"Oh no, Bill," she said, "that can't be. He's asleep in his room."

"Well, he's here all right. "I'll bring him home. You and Bill meet me at the gate."

"I want to see Little Bill," said Geezer.

He was taken into Little Bill's room. Little Bill had not awakened. Geezer kissed him and was content.

Bill Lambeth was awake by that time. "What'll we do to him?" he asked his wife.

"Nothing," she said. No, of course not.

Bill Pfeffer came down the road and into the driveway, carrying Geezer. His Daddy and Mommy received him into their arms.

"I wanted to see Little Bill," he said. He was sorry now, remembering that they had told him never to go out of the yard by himself. He had gone away in the night and they had been worried.

They put him to bed. "Hold my hand, Mommy," he said. For an hour he laid there wide-eyed, holding tight to his mother's hand. Then he went to sleep.

Celebs About Town, Sallies in Our Alley

Getting Home Early

By Christopher Billopp

WHEN a man leaves for the office in the morning his wife may ask the simple question, "Will you be home early?" She wants to know when to put the dinner on to cook. She does not wish to spoil it by overcooking. She also knows how upset he gets if he is kept waiting for it.

The man no doubt would like to give her a direct answer. But there are a number of unknown quantities involved over which he has no control. He may get to the office and find that most of his colleagues are out with a virus infection. Since has has escaped it thus far he must do their jobs as well as his own.

He may hold a humble position in the organization. But, thanks to the virus, he will find himself in command of the works. He will face grave responsibilities which are more important than getting home early to a dinner that is not overcooked or for which he does not have to wait. He cannot slip out as he might otherwise do.

EVEN IF there is no virus trouble he cannot be certain that his employer will not get a bright idea a few minutes before the regular time for him to leave for home.

It will then be his duty to listen patiently to the idea as well as to help work out the details. It would not be to his advantage to show impatience. He cannot tell his employer his wife is counting on his early return.

THESE ARE only a sample of the many circumstances, unforeseen in the morning, that may crop up in the course of the day to slow him up and make his return home problematical.

Yet his wife will consider him obstinate and uncooperative if, ignoring all these disturbing possibilities, he does not answer directly "Yes" or "No."

MODELS--Billion-Dollar Dolls

Figure May Be a Bit Excessive, But They Do Earn Up to $50,000 A Year Leading the Kind of Life That Many Women Dream About

(Their faces are known to millions; minks, sables and the latest fashion creations are draped on their svelte figures and they earn as much as $50,000 a year leading the kind of life many women dream about. They are America's top models—billion-dollar dolls. The following article is the first in a series by a veteran reporter who has traveled through the world of fashion, face, figure and fortune. He tells what models have to do to reach the top and the sort of private lives they lead.)

MAKE-UP TIME FOR JEAN PACHETT, PERHAPS NEW YORK'S NO. 1 FASHION MODEL, AS SHE PREPARES TO GO BEFORE CAMERA.

By James L. Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

THE No. 1 salesman in America today is a woman. She is the professional girl model—in that select group of good-looking and photogenic young women who glamorize feminine wearing apparel in the newspapers and magazines and who, by virtue of their specialized talents, can sell practically any product from cigarettes to motor cars.

These svelte beauties exert a terrific impact on the country's economy. Fashion, which happens to be their specialty, is the third largest industry in the United States—if you consider every aspect involved: clothes, fashion textiles, shoes, cosmetics, millinery and accessories.

They also "sell' all kinds of other commodities—by means of photographic persuasion. The old-time song has it that "a pretty girl is like a melody," and you find big business and advertising executives utilizing the talented models to sell toothpaste, diamond necklaces, perfume, nail polish, beverages, typewriters, sewing machines, home appliances and even heavier goods such as pianos, motor boats and automobiles.

Their "sales appeal" accounts for billions of dollars in business income annually. They are saleswomen de luxe.

I have interviewed many of the most successful of these beautiful girls. I have taxied from studio to studio with them on their appointments, watched them make up in their dressing rooms, obtained their own personal stories of their trials and triumphs and learned, first hand, what makes them click.

They are almost without exception nice girls, not unlike "the girl next door" in any given community in America. In fact, most of the models now working in New York—the "style center of the world," Paris notwithstanding — are from other cities and towns all over the country.

I HAVE in mind the top fashion models such as the sleek Jean Pachett, whose first job was in a grocery store in Preston, Md.; the brunette beauty Nancy Berg, who hails from Kenosha, Wis.; the photogenic Suzy Parker, a dimpled Texas-born glamor girl; the slim, well-groomed Garboish-looking Joan Pederson of Morristown, N.J., who now lives on a farm near there and commutes, and TV-model actress Roxanne, who used to be Dolores Rosedale of Minneapolis.

The City of New York, with its fast pulse beat, draws ambitious young models like a magnet. It is estimated that New York has 300 models gainfully employed at salaries ranging from $100 a week to $50,000 a year.

Fashion centers in Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas, Miami and elsewhere also have their share of modeling beauties.

Fabulous salaries are earned in Manhattan by the cream of the crop—the ten or twenty top fashion models. Their rates run as high as $40 to $60 an hour. Some of them reject a higher rate because that would put them in a higher tax bracket. Most of the top notchers make more money than senators or bank presidents.

They are self-sufficient, fresh-faced, clean-living, ranging in age from 18 to 30. They are "typical American girls" who resent the implication in some quarters that models, per se, must lead wild, adventurous lives, frequent night clubs and get their names in the Broadway columns.

The private lives of New York's top models can stand favorable comparison with the lives of other career girls—those in business, on the stage or in the movies. The fortunate models who have achieved real success are a close-knit group and quite normal. Many of them are married, have a child or two and in their off hours enjoy cooking and sewing as much as any woman.

Occasionally some of the models in the lower brackets "date up" out-of-town buyers and whoop it up a bit. But they are not going anywhere. The stars of the modeling profession have no truck with such frivolity.

The best models are forward-looking and tremendously ambitious. Many of them have their eyes on TV. They recognize television as a potential gold mine for girls with their looks, talent and ability.

THEY have in their mind's eye the examples set by one-time models such as the famed Betty Furness and Jinx Falkenberg, who have made good on TV and radio in a big way. Some of them dream of having a TV program of their own, or of becoming another Arlene Francis or Dorothy Kilgallen, the well-known TV panelists. Model Nancy Berg now has her own TV program.

A few of the ambitious young models long for Hollywood or the Broadway stage. They realize, for example, that Grace Kelly, the Philadelphia socialite who won an Academy award in the movies, was once a photographic model, and that blonde, blue-eyed Joan Caulfield went from modeling to fame and fortune on the stage and screen.

Modeling is an exciting career full of concealed disappointments and not without its pitfalls—its ups and downs, its tragedies as well as triumphs. Some career girls are touched by the magic wand of success and others sink into oblivion as a result of hard luck, bad publicity or other factors.

Now and then stories appear in the press in which women who fall into the hands of the police list themselves as "model" or "former model." In more cases than not, such women aren't and never were legitimate models.

Today's top models are smart, ultra-modern and know the score. They have their heads set levelly on their shapely shoulders. They work and study for the goals they have in sight. They also have an "indefinable something." It isn't just beauty.

A lot of them are definitely not the "pin-up" type. Ninety-five per cent of the male population size them up as "too thin." Movie producers don't "flip" over them. But women love the way these ultra-slim girls look in the newspaper and slick magazine advertisements, wearing next season's styles or sitting nonchalantly at the wheel of a motor car. Many women, forgetting their own poundage visualize themselves looking as glamorous.

In real life the high fashion models often are somewhat on the skinny side. ("Get fat and you're dead in front of the camera, which puts on 10 pounds anyway," one of them told me.)

WHAT they do have, however, is "sales appeal" and a certain class that enhances their particular style of beauty.

They are photogenic, they have good facial bone structure, and all the good ones have camera technique. They are adept at striking any variety of poses. One minute they are aloof and langorous, the next animated and vitally interested. At a moment's notice they can flash the toothpaste smile of a college girl or look as solemn and regal as a queen.

Even the skinniest models wear "waist pinchers." Beautiful, ash-blonde "Sunny" Harnett showed me her waist pincher while she was "making up" in her studio dressing room.

This belt-like contraption is designed to make the wasp-waisted models look even thinner. Then, chances are, the photographer also retouches the picture and takes a couple of inches off the waist. This is to exaggerate the silhouette in a year when waistlines are important.

Most models diet all the time. I know one who never has more than a hard-boiled egg for lunch, a cup of coffee during the afternoon. Then she has a regular dinner—but no potatoes, desserts or bread.

There's a difference between model-beauty and movie-star beauty. A dress is made for a movie star like Elizabeth Taylor or Maureen O'Hara. It has to be her type, "do something" for her.

A top-grade fashion model like Jean Pachett or Dovima has to "do something" for the dress—whether it is a $10.98 Henry Rosenberg or a $1500 Mainbocher. Everything has to be her type.

Models say the hardest part of their job is not posing for the camera but in organizing themselves so they can keep four or five appointments a day in different parts of town.

They taxi from one studio or "location" to another carrying a big bag or a hat box which contains their make-up and other accessories. They must always appear relaxed and untired when posing. That's why they can't afford to dissipate or stay out late at night. They are expected to look as fresh at their last appointment as their first.

Jean Patchett is probably the "No. 1 model" in town, although there are several others who might dispute this envied distinction. She makes $50 an hour posing for fashion advertisements and is in such demand she could step her rate up to $60 an hour if she wanted to.

She is slim, 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 117 pounds in her stocking feet. She has blonde hair and dark brown eyes.

Virtually every magazine on the nation's newstands carries advertisements which are glamorized by the face and form of the stunning-looking Jean. She has "what it takes" to show off an expensive mink stole, a Paris-inspired gown, an opera coat or a pair of spike-heeled sandals. She looks classy in a limousine, too, or at the wheel of a motor boat.

JEAN is as versatile as she is photogenic. She seems to have the ability to assume a dozen different personalities in an incredibly short space of time.

I had an 11:45 a.m. appointment to interview Miss Patchett at Somoroff's photographic studio in Manhattan, where she was due to pose before the camera for a variety of fashion pictures at noon. She showed up right on time.

"I'm always on time," she said, in her brisk, business-like way. "It's an insult to be late for an appointment."

As she deftly applied her make-up before a mirror in her dressing room, Miss Patchett reeled off some facts about herself and her job. She said she is 29 years old and happily married. Her husband is Louis Auer, a New York banker. They were married four years ago in the Church of the Ascension in Manhattan. They have no children—as yet.

In response to questions, Miss Patchett said:

"I love modeling. Every day is different in this business. It's rather exciting. Of course, there's a bit of tension in it at times.

"But it enables you to make your own life. Now that I'm doing well in the profession, and am in demand, I don't have to work when I don't want to. I can write my own ticket, pick my own spots.

"Modeling has its alluring angles. It has paid me well and enabled me to see all kinds of interesting places. In my modeling for the fashion magazines I've had trips to Paris, to Spain, Mexico, Peru, Nassau, Bermuda, Canada and elsewhere."

JEAN'S life story to date is that of a small-town girl who made good in the big-time. She was born in Preston, Md., population 395, the daughter of J. Frank Patchett, a plumbing contractor. She has two sisters and a brother, all married, with children.

"This sounds like a tape recorder," she quipped, as she reeled off the facts.

Her first job was in a grocery store in Preston. Bue she was pretty and she dreamed of bigger and better things. At the age of 16, she went to a secretarial school in Baltimore.

She worked as a secretary for a year and a half but knew this was not what she wanted. She then went to Goucher's College in Baltimore, a girl's school, for three years. After this educational stint she returned to Preston.

But she was "quite unhappy" in the home town and decided to strike out for New York. She was smart, good-looking, practical and ambitious. She borrowed money from her dad and headed for the big town.

SHE tried for a modeling job. For three months she couldn't get any work so she changed agencies. She joined up with the important Ford Model Agency, run by Eileen Ford, a former model, and her husband, Gerard.

Jean began to click at once and she has been going great ever since. The first month with Ford—March 1948—she earned $600. She promptly paid back the money she borrowed from her father.

Jean and her husband lead "quite normal" lives. They go to the movies a great deal and rarely visit night clubs. They eat home five nights a week. Jean says she can cook "pretty good — considering the little time I have to devote to it."

Her hobby is golf. The best score she ever shot, however, was 106. She and her husband golf together in West Hampton, L.I., where they have what Jean describes as "a little house."

Asked what is her ambition, now that she has done so well as a model, she replied:

"Only to have a family. . . . I have no ambition to go into the movies, or anything like that. I have been asked to go into the movies about twelve times but I turned the offers down."

She said that she doesn't have time to answer fan mail. As she put it:

"I hardly have time to write my own mother."

JOAN PEDERSON . . . SPENDS HER TIME AT A FARM NEAR MORRISTOWN, N. J., WHEN SHE'S NOT MODELING CLOTHES FOR BUYERS IN NEW YORK. SPECIAL QUALITIES ARE ALOOFNESS AND ALLURE.

"I AM YOUNG, AND I WANT TO LIVE MY YOUTH GRANDLY," SAYS NANCY BERG, ONE OF AMERICA'S TOP MODELS. SHE EARNS MORE THAN $40,000 A YEAR, HAS HER OWN TV PROGRAM.

Fables Of the Famous

By E. E. Edgar

PRESSURE: Nebraska Senator George W. Norris, who consulted only his conscience before voting in the Senate, was somewhat amused by the antics of colleagues who were more sensitive to party pressure.

At one time, a fellow Senator was being pressed by party leaders to change his stand on an issue. After a few days, he yielded. The party leader came up to him on the Senate floor and congratulated him.

"I'm glad you finally saw the light," he said.

"He didn't see the light," cracked Norris. "He felt the heat."

Contented: A friend of Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the United States, suggested that instead of her signature, her picture should be placed on paper money to improve its appearance.

Mrs. Priest was flattered but unimpressed.

"We women aren't concerned about getting our pictures on money," she laughed, as long as we can get our hands on it."

DANGER: As a young married man, department store head Bernard Gimbel frequently accompanied his wife to the opera. Gimbel, a sports enthusiast who enjoyed more rugged pursuits, was bored by the proceedings. He attended, however, to please his bride and because he could not think of a good excuse to get out of it.

One night, when the two were at the Metropolitan Opera House, Gimbel was dozing, as usual. Suddenly there was a scream and a crash, and he awoke with a start.

A man in the balcony had dropped his binoculars over the railing. It landed like a bomb on the young merchant's foot.

Despite his pain, Gimbel realized at once that the accident could be used to advantage. Turning to his wife, he muttered:

"No more opera for me. You could get killed here."

And that was the last performance he attended.

When Henry Ford began building his museum of Americana, he tried to arouse the interest of his friend Thomas Edison in the project.

Edison, however, did not share Ford's interest in things past or his enthusiasm for antiques.

"I have no time to think of what's gone," he told the motor magnate. "I'm too busy experimenting with what's new!"

SIZE: Vermont Senator Ralph Flanders is an ardent fisherman. One day, he was describing to a friend, who was inclined to tell some whoppers, the size of a trout that got away. Like every dyed in the wool angler, he exaggerated a bit.

The friend found it difficult to swallow the story.

"Are you sure it was really that big?" he said.

"I can't be positive," replied Flanders, 'but I know one thing. It was at least an inch longer than the biggest one that ever got away from you."

REMINDER: Theatrical manager Oscar Hammerstein was in Montreal to see the "Passion Play." After the performance, he and a friend went for a stroll around the city. They crossed St. James street, walked up St. Peter street, then went down St. Paul street until they reached St. Gabriel street.

Hammerstein stopped on the last named street and exclaimed:

"By St. John, if it weren't for these tight shoes, I'd think I was in heaven!"

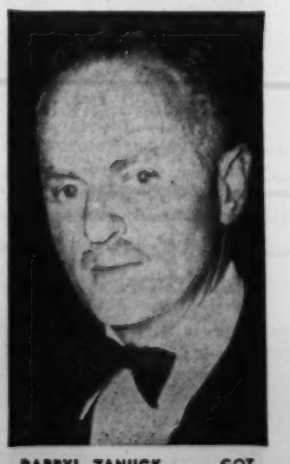
CLARIFICATION: Movie mogul Darryl Zanuck fills his subordinates with awe. One morning, when he was away from his office, his secretary sent a telegram to an Eastern executive, ordering him to make certain changes in picture publicity. The secretary signed



DARRYL ZANUCK . . . GOT QUICK ANSWER.

Zanuck's name to the telegram.

Back by return wire came the answer. "Yes."

When Zanuck arrived at his office in the afternoon, he found the reply on his desk. Puzzled by this cryptic message, he sent another telegram to the executive.

"Yes, what?" he demanded.

Promptly the executive replied:

"Yes, sir."

Opera 'Griffelkin' On KSD-TV Today

THE world premiere of "Griffelkin," a new opera by Lukas Foss with a libretto by Alastair Reid, will be presented on the NBC Opera Theater at 3 this afternoon on KSD-TV. The opera tells the story of a 10-year-old devil who comes to earth with a vial of magic liquid—and with instructions to be as bad as possible. Soprano Adelaide Bishop will play the title role, supported by a large cast including Mary Kreste, Rose Geringer and Oliver Andes.

ADELAIDE BISHOP . . . TO STAR IN NBC OPERA TODAY ON KSD-TV.

The first full-length color movie to be presented on television before its release to American theaters, "The Constant Husband," will be seen on KSD-TV at 6:30 this evening as part of the NBC "color spread" series. The film stars Rex Harrison as an amnesia victim who is shocked to learn that he has married seven women, each of whom adores him.

Lillian Roth, singer, actress and author of the best-selling book "I'll Cry Tomorrow," will make her television dramatic debut in "Outcast" at 9 Wednesday night on KWK-TV. The story deals with a once-successful Hollywood writer who tries to make a comeback after falling victim to alcoholism.

The full film dramatization of George Bernard Shaw's classic stage play "Caesar and Cleopatra" is to be presented on KTVI in two parts, with the first segment scheduled for 6:30 this evening. Claude Rains and Vivien Leigh are starred.

The famous Obernkirchen Children's Choir from Germany will be featured on tonight's Musical Showcase at 9:30 on KSD-TV.

Poet, critic and educator John Crowe Ransom will discuss "The Critic's Job" with Joe Leonard on the KETC Poet in Person program at 7:30 tomorrow night.

Studio One Anniversary

Studio One will mark its seventh anniversary with the presentation of a suspense-filled sea story, "Shakedown Cruise," at 9 tomorrow night on KWK-TV. Richard Kiley is cast as the commanding officer of a submarine trapped on the bottom of the ocean.

An original play by a native of St. Louis will be seen on the Television Theater at 8 Wednesday night on KSD-TV. The play is "The Ticket and the Tempest," by Frank Kulla. Kulla is a graduate of St. Louis University and wrote material for several local programs on KSD-TV before going to New York four years ago.

REV. DR. W. SHERMAN SKINNER . . . NEW SPEAKER ON KSD-TV PROTESTANT HOUR.

City and county authorities will discuss the St. Louis traffic problem on the League of Women Voters program at 1:30 this afternoon on KWK-TV.

The Rev. Dr. W. Sherman Skinner will be the speaker on the Protestant Hour on KSD-TV and KSD starting with this morning's program at 9 o'clock.

Dennis O'Keefe and Marilyn Erskine will star in the Climax color production of "Scheme to Defraud" on KWK-TV at 7:30 Thursday night. The story deals with an insurance man who tries to cheat his company out of $70,000.

"Snow Job," an original teleplay about a teen-age boy who is a potential juvenile delinquent, will be seen on Playwrights '56 at 8:30 Tuesday night on KSD-TV. James Gregory and Joan Blondell have starring roles.

Week's Color Programs

Color programs on KSD-TV this week include "The Constant Husband" at 6:30 this evening, the Milton Berle show at 7 Tuesday night, segments of the Today and Home shows on Wednesday, Matinee Theater on Thursday and Friday afternoons at 2, and Howdy Doody at 4:30 in the afternoon Monday through Friday. KWK-TV colorcasts will include the Red Skelton show at 8:30 Tuesday night and "Scheme to Defraud" at 7:30 Thursday night.

Radio Highlights

NBC 'Weekday' Program To Be Carried by KSD

A NEW NBC radio service, Weekday, will begin on KSD tomorrow on a Monday-through-Friday basis. Weekday will follow a pattern somewhat similar to that of the popular NBC Monitor program that is presented on Saturdays and Sundays, but there will be more emphasis on features of interest to women. Margaret Truman and Mike Wallace will conduct the new series, alternating with Martha Scott and Walter Kiernan. Programs for the first week will include dramatizations of best-selling novels, visits to the homes of celebrities, interviews, and talks on homemaking topics such as family health, cooking and fashions. KSD will carry Weekday from 9:15 in the morning until 2:30 in the afternoon, with occasional breaks for local news broadcasts and other KSD features.

MARGARET TRUMAN . . . TO BE 'WEEKDAY' HOSTESS ON KSD.

The Wake Up St. Louis program on KXOK at 7:05 Saturday night will be devoted to a discussion of St. Louis University's plans for future expansion.

The Radio Theater presentation on KSD at 8:05 Tuesday night will be John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," starring Burgess Meredith and Anthony Quinn.

Dr. Gordon Mackenzie of Columbia University will be guest on Make Up Your Mind at 10:30 tomorrow morning on KMOX. Guests for other days this week will be singer Joan Edwards on Tuesday, commentator Lowell Thomas on Wednesday, actress Lois Smith on Thursday, and war hero Harold Russell on Friday.

Clifton Fadiman's Conversation program on KSD moves this week from Wednesday night to Thursday night at 8:30. Thursday's discussion topic for Fadiman and his guests will be "The Egghead and I."

Rise of the Singing Barber

Mama Como Admits Perry Earns a Good Living

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

SEVERAL years ago, at a gathering of the Como clan in Canonsburg, Pa., Perry Como's brothers and sisters tried to explain to his mother the successes that her son had attained.

Lucia Como listened patiently as one brother after another told her of the huge record sales and television successes achieved by Perry. She nodded and then said precisely: "Any man who makes $75 a week steady—that man makes a good living."

Perry, born to Pietro and Lucia Como in Canonsburg, May 18, 1912, was making more than mother Lucia's idea of a good living when he left Canonsburg in 1933 to become a singer.

At the age of 15, he had his own after-school barber shop, providing everything from shave and a haircut to a song between razor strokes. With two assistants, his guitar and his voice, he was making a net profit of $125 a week in the small coal-mining town.

On a two-week vacation in Cleveland, Perry auditioned for Freddy Carlone's band, a well-known Ohio group. He did it more as a concession to the urgings of his friends than a desire to get into show business and was surprised when, a few weeks later, Carlone wired Canonsburg, requesting that Perry join the band immediately. Perry thought of the depression which had gripped the nation, the uncertainty of the music business and the security of his barber shop. But his parents convinced him that he could always return to the shop if the singing business failed, and so Perry Como became a singer at $28 a week.

HE LEARNED his music the hard way, on dozens of dance floors in the Cleveland area. After two years with Carlone, Perry joined Ted Weems's band, then moving up to the top alongside the Dorseys, Glenn Miller and Benny Goodman, at a salary of $50 a week.

PERRY COMO . . . STILL HANDY WITH A RAZOR.

But in 1942 the Weems band broke up, and Perry, weary of traveling, was ready to go back to the security of a barber shop. His hometown sweetheart, Roselle Bellini, whom he had married back in 1933, had borne him a son, Ronnie, in 1940 and Roselle had stayed behind in Canonsburg with the child.

After refusing requests from booking agents, managers and bandleaders, Perry was negotiating a lease for a new store when General Artists made him a promising offer—his own radio show at $100 a week and an RCA Victor recording contract.

IT WORKED OUT. Perry stopped the show nightly at New York's Versailles and Copacabana, and caused traffic jams in Times Square when he played the Paramount. His records began clicking. In 1945 he put out his first hit record, "Till the End of Time," one of nine Como discs which were to top the million sales mark.

* * *

AT HOME with Roselle and his three children, Ronnie (15), David (9) and Terri (8) in their Sands Point, Long Island, N.Y., house, Perry is a devoted family man. He shows home movies, cooks on an outdoor grill and takes his youngsters boating on Long Island Sound. Golf is his favorite hobby. He's toured most of the courses on Long Island, now shoots in the seventies. Although he's pretty sure he'll never have to open a barber shop again, Perry still uses an old-fashioned straight razor. He's carried it since his Canonsburg days.

Television Letter Box

I WAS about to turn the TV set off the other afternoon when what I thought was a soap opera had begun. Something stayed my hand, and I put my household worries aside for an hour and watched an engrossing play. Later I learned it was one of the first productions of "NBC Matinee Theater." Now I'm a daily NBC playgoer, and my thanks go to a network which will turn its back on the drippy tripe which started on radio and carried over to TV.

MRS. MARY NICKELS.

I wish to protest the dropping of the KSD-TV pro football telecasts on Sunday afternoons. It might seem like a small part of your week's programming and an unimportant detail, but my own reaction has been one of anger.

DR. J. B. TAYLOR.

(The Sunday afternoon football games are on the ABC network. Last year KSD-TV was in a position to carry football both Saturday and Sunday afternoons. However, this year the station cannot carry the Sunday games without canceling such interesting NBC features as Wide Wide World and the Maurice Evans production of "Alice in Wonderland." Inasmuch as the Saturday afternoon time on KSD-TV is devoted to football, the station management is inclined to believe that it should telecast the NBC "spectaculars" and other programs on Sunday afternoon. The Sunday football games are telecast in St. Louis over KTVI, Channel 36.—Editor.

We certainly are glad that Liberace is on KSD-TV Friday nights, but an earlier hour would be appreciated by some. Sunday evening was an ideal time for his program, leaving something nice to take back with you to the workaday world on Monday.

As Crosby Sees It

Dangerous Precedent Set by New TV Show

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

I SEE that the producers of "Highway Patrol" starring Broderick Crawford, a new series designed to make heroes of the cops of the highways, have issued a strict rule that actors assigned to the show must have no major traffic violations against their records.

Well, it seems a shame to reshoot all that footage but the fact is that Broderick Crawford, the main guy in this series who is trying to keep our highways free from carnage, was arrested in November, 1952, for a traffic violation and paid a $250 fine in Los Angeles municipal court.

FRANKLY, I think it a dangerous precedent to demand that actors in their private lives exemplify the characters they play. I mean the next time a script calls for a priest, where would they find one? Humility? Chastity? Poverty? In Hollywood? Suppose some actor who has just finished a 39-week stint in "Highway Patrol" goes out on a spree to celebrate—and lands in the hoosegow with a drunken driving rap. Do they scrap the film?

It seems to me entirely wrong to demand of an actor any other virtue than the fact that he can act. And, in this business, sometimes even that is asking too much.

A NEW YORK radio station, WMGM, has just launched a new feature that I devoutly hope will take hold. Says a disk jockey: "Is there a popular rock and roll record that hurts your ears? A standard you've heard so many times that you can't stand it? A vocalist whose voice you detest? You won't hear them on 'Negative Request.' Just drop a postcard to 'Negative Request,' listing as many as five records you don't want to hear. Then settle back to an hour of melody undisturbed by your pet musical hates. Well, there's been no negative request for . . ." And he plays it.

I like this idea, not only for its intrinsic merit, but because it's — well — negative. There seems to be a small trend in that direction. Already there's a book out called "The Power of Negative Thinking" (for people who just want to lie down).

LILLIAN ROTH . . . TO STAR IN 'OUTCAST' ON KWK-TV WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of magnificently negative thinking was the selection of Tedi Thurman, a redhead with a terribly sexy voice, to do the weather reports on NBC's "Monitor." This, I can't help but think, was negative genius. Miss Thurman is the one who throatily intones in a voice that seems to be asking you to come up and see her some time: "Paris . . . seventy-two . . . cloudy." Practically all the material she breathes at us—scattered showers in Omaha, for instance — is magnificently irrelevant in New Haven. But to give information of no particular moment in a voice so sexy that you can't remember whether she promised hail or typhoons in Dubuque—well, sir, you don't find negative thinking like that every day.

Suburb Study To Be Heard On Monitor

A REPORT on Air Force maneuvers in Arizona and a study of life in the suburbs are among the features scheduled for today's NBC Monitor service on KSD. The Arizona visit is scheduled for 1:30 this afternoon, and the discussion of suburbanites by Dr. Leonard Duhl will be heard at 2 o'clock. Monitor will attend a party for sports celebrities at 6 this evening, and at 8:30 there will be an interview with a woman who lives 60 feet underground in Arizona in order to escape the rays of the sun.

JOHN LUND will star in the Family Theater presentation of "Turn On the Lights" at 9:30 tonight on KWK. Lund will play the part of a Navy medical officer who recounts his own war experiences in order to help a young veteran overcome a psychological block.

Singer Rosemary Clooney and band leader Ray McKinley will be featured on What's New in Music at 1 this afternoon on KMOX. Miss Clooney will sing "Why Fight the Feeling" and "My Ideal," and Percy Faith and the orchestra will offer "Begin the Beguine."

HOLLYWOOD STAR Dane Clark will be featured in the science-fiction story "Destination Mars" on Your Radio Theater at 4:05 this afternoon on KSD. Les Tremayne, Jean Howell and Jack Edwards have supporting roles.

Highlights of the Grand National Livestock Exposition in San Francisco will be reported on the National Farm and Home Hour at noon Saturday on KSD. There also will be news from the Mid-Atlantic Farm Show at Sea Isle, N. J.

Storage of Clothing for The Winter

By Dorothy Brainerd

SO timely is the advice in a bulletin which came in this week's mail that it seems well worth quoting.

"Cool days are bringing out woolens, and that means that many a homemaker will be putting away summer clothing," points out Miss Irene Cowan, Missouri University clothing specialist.

"Be sure the clothes are clean before you store them," she warns. "Stains and soil which are easy to remove now may set in the fabric if left there all winter. It is wise to remove pins or metal ornaments for they may leave marks.

"As for clothes that you allow to hang during the winter, use sturdy wooden or plastic hangers—wire ones may leave rust marks. When you pack away summer clothes of the family, write down what you packed and where you put them. Then you can review what clothes you have without getting at them and can find them at a moment's notice when spring comes."

So read and heed, homemakers. Some bright, warm day next April you will be glad that you did.

WRITES MRS. E.G.: "Recently we moved into a furnished apartment which has three couches in the living room; each made of a different fabric. They are badly soiled and stained and I would like to clean them. However, I hesitate because I don't want to ruin them and I am afraid to use these cleaning fluids in the apartment. What can you suggest?"

It is possible to shampoo many fabrics used in upholstered furniture. There are a number of commercial products on the market for this purpose or you may use thick, dry suds, working on a small area at a time. Work in circles, overlapping each time, rinse immediately and turn on the fan to dry quickly. Be careful, of course, not to get the fabric any wetter than is absolutely necessary.

Of course I cannot guarantee that any of these methods will be completely satisfactory if the furniture is so badly soiled, nor can I guarantee that your landlady will be entirely pleased with the results.

If I were in your position, I think I would be inclined to slipcover them with inexpensive material. You need not do too careful a job since I assume this is a temporary set-up, but the new fabric would at least make the room look bright and fresh.

WASHDAY NEWS: A soap-detergent developed to meet the specific requirements of automatic washers (but equally efficient in all wringer types) which is claimed not to take the elasticity out of foundation garments, the stiffness out of crinoline, nor the backing out of rubberized rugs. The manufacturers also recommend it for washing cashmere sweaters in cold water. Smaller amounts of the soap-detergent are required than of most other cleansing agents: one-fourth cup for the tumbler-type automatic washer; one-half cup for the top-loading agitator type and wringer type.

MRS. R.K. raises two questions—one of which we are happy to answer, the other of which does not come within the jurisdiction of this column. The latter deals with growing philodendron in copper planters, and we again repeat that questions regarding flowers or gardening are not covered here. The function of this column is to deal exclusively with problems of homemaking.

We quote Mrs. K's. other question: "I had the misfortune to destroy the enamel surface on the top of the bath tub in several places while using salt and lemon to remove spots from some clothing. Is there anything I can do?"

Yes, you can go to a paint store and buy one of the several excellent commercial products made for touching up enamel surfaces.

OUR APARTMENT is heated by coal, and a great deal of dirt comes up from the furnace," writes 'Edna.' "I am told there is some sort of cover which can be placed over the register to keep the dirt out; also have heard of a piece of cheese cloth placed over the register to keep the dirt out. Do you know anything about either of these?"

There are adjustable metal covers which may be placed on the wall over the register to keep the wall from becoming soiled. There also is a sort of filter which may be installed, but the register must be removed to do so. Both may be seen in the larger hardware stores. I do not know whether either one would affect heating efficiency.

* * *

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Music And Music Makers

Local Control of Local Music

By Thomas B. Sherman

ANTI-TRUST SUITS against the Columbia Artists Management and the National Concerts and Artists Corporation were settled recently in a New York District Federal Court when fines were levied against the two defendants and their associated concert organizations. The cases never went to trial. The agencies pleaded "nolo contendere"—or no contest—to criminal charges and accepted a consent decree in a civil action.

Frederick Schang of Columbia said that the practices complained of had been abandoned seven years ago and the Federal Government, being convinced that this was true, was willing to forego any further action.

As the specifications supporting the charges against NCAC and Columbia were never made public it is difficult to determine at this time whether any public benefits will accrue from the outcome of this case. It is possible that the independent managers, no longer restricted by the "monopolistic" operations of the Big Two, will attract a larger number of artists and get them a larger share of engagements. Looking at it from the outside, however, it is hard to see how the basic situation can be greatly changed.

THE POWER that the two big agencies exercised — and presumably abused — derived from the fact they controlled a huge number of outlets. This came about through their organization of concert series in many American communities. As of now the Community Concerts (Columbia) and the Civic Music League (NCAC) are promoting concerts in some 1200 communities distributed through 48 states. This enabled them to attract as many artists as they needed because they could offer solidly booked seasons. As a consequence they could restrict their list of clients to a number they could handle conveniently and profitably. They can still do so.

The net effect of this situation in the past has excluded a number of young artists, of demonstrable talent, from practicing their professions. They could sign up with independent managers who in turn could fish for engagements in such places as were not already organized. But the big market, to use the appropriate trade term, was closed off.

SO, MANY qualified young artists had no work. They couldn't begin their careers. And those that were permitted to do were encouraged—if not ordered — to downgrade their programs on the assumption that music lovers in the sticks were not ready for a substantial musical fare. For impresarios who follow this line of reasoning the hinterland is never ready for a sound musical culture. Widening the audience and satisfying the least discriminating listeners is always a paramount consideration.

It is reasonable to say then that American managerial practices have been detrimental to the growth of a vital musical culture. It has limited too severely the opportunities for beginning artists and it has placed a premium on low taste. Nor is there any reason to believe, as I have said, that the situation will be appreciably altered by the recent court action. The Justice Department cannot compel a dedication to artistic ideals. Only the public can do so by demanding the best.

THE MECHANISMS for doing so already exist in the local organizations that raise the money for the concerts given in these 1200 Civic and Community towns. There are no reasons why the local committees cannot decide what artists they want and what programs they want them to play and deal directly with the booking managers. The employment of reasonably well informed local manager, acting with a local committee and upon the advice of the community's best musicians, would be necessary for the carrying out of an enterprising policy. The cost, however, would be no greater than that of the service fees now paid out for functions that could be locally performed.

The ideal here envisaged is maximum local responsibility and autonomy as in the control of symphony orchestras. Local committees are responsive to criticism that New York managers disregard. If such control did not produce an immediate betterment of the community musical life it would at least set up a mechanism for doing so.

Pianist Pietro Scarpini At Principia Friday

Pietro Scarpini, pianist, will make his first St. Louis appearance at Howard Hall, 5539 Page boulevard, at 8:15 p.m. Friday as part of the Principia concert course. The concert will be repeated on the Elsah, Ill., campus Saturday night.

Scarpini today was scheduled to be the first piano soloist of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra's season. His program will consist of the Vivaldi Concerto in G Major, Brahms's Variations on a Theme by Handel, four Scarlatti sonatas, and Haydn's sonata in E Flat Major.

THE CELEBRATED "STEAM HEAT" NUMBER FROM "THE PAJAMA GAME," GOING INTO ITS THIRD AND FINAL WEEK AT THE AMERICAN TONIGHT. THE PEOPLE ARE DON LURIO, PAT STANLEY AND BEN VARGAS.

ROBERT TAYLOR AND KAY KENDALL, ENGLISH BEAUTY, ARE STARRED IN "QUENTIN DURWARD," PICTURIZATION OF THE WALTER SCOTT NOVEL WHICH WILL BE NEXT AT LOEW'S STATE.

Symphony to Play Two New Works, Rachmaninoff's 2nd

THE ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA will offer two works never before performed by it in its next concerts at 2 p.m. Friday and 8:40 p.m. Saturday in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Vladimir Golschmann will conduct.

The new pieces are Paul Creston's "Dance Overture," and Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde." The orchestra also will play Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 2 in E Minor and Respighi's symphonic poem, "The Fountains of Rome."

Creston is a New Yorker who has been a teacher, lecturer, pianist, and conductor. His First Symphony won the New York Music Critics' Circle Award in 1943 as best orchestral work of the season. The "Dance Overture" was given its world premiere in Miami last April. Milhaud's ballet was given its first performance by the Swedish Ballet in Paris in 1923 with Golschmann conducting. Golschmann calls it "the first truly symphonic jazz composition ever written."

The orchestra will offer an "all-family pop concert" at the opera house at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 12. An entire family will be admitted for a total of $1.50. Harry Farbman will conduct. Soloists will be violinist Melvin Ritter, who will do the first movement of Tschaikowsky's concert in D Major, and mezzo-soprano Maria Russo, who will sing the Seguidilla from "Carmen," "Vienna Dreams" and "Granda." The orchestral numbers will be headed by two movements from Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique" symphony.

* * *

Andre Kostelanetz will direct the orchestra in a special concert in the Opera House at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 27. The program will include two works new to St. Louis, Grofe's "Hudson River Suite," and "Cambodian Suite" by Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

QUEEN BEE—Joan Crawford as the smiling poisonous mistress of a wealthy Southern menage weaves a web of dominance that culminates in drunkenness, heartache, suicide and murder. Unrelieved, but with a forceful performance by Miss Crawford, and a strong and literate drama from Director-Writer Ranald MacDougall. With Barry Sullivan, John Ireland, Betsy Palmer. LOEW'S STATE.

REBEL WITHOUT CAUSE—A California high school in a well-to-do neighborhood seems to be chock full of disturbed kids, who indulge in all sorts of wild outbreaks within 24 hours, culminating in tragedy. The parents are the villains. With the late James Dean giving another jittery, eccentric performance, and with other youths imitating Marlon Brando like mad. The theme has been sensationalized and exaggerated out of all perspective. FOX.

ULYSSES—Kirk Douglas is heroic as Homer's wandering boy, Silvana Mangano is voluptuous as both Penelope and Circe, and there is lots of action and sex in this Italian production for Paramount. But seven screenwriters haven't been able to come up with anything nearly approximating the sweep and poetry of the "Odyssey." English has been dubbed in for the Italian actors. ST. LOUIS.

MY SISTER EILEEN—This remake of the famous comedy, in CinemaScope and in songs, is still highly amusing in its account of how two Ohio sisters brave the perils of Greenwich Village. Some pleasant songs by Jule Style and Leo Robin. Janet Leigh, Betty Garrett, Jack Lemmon, Kurt Kasznar and others are all nicely cast. ORPHEUM.

I AM A CAMERA—An incandescent performance by Julie Harris in her stage role of van Druten's well-bred English trollop in Bohemian Berlin in 1930. It is still a graceful, humorous slice of life. Laurence Harvey is Isherwood. PAGEANT and RICHMOND.

THE BED—Four anecdotes, two in English and two in French, involving beds. One, about a paratrooper delivering a baby of a Frenchwoman with whom he is billeted, is simple and tender, and another is gay and rather charming in its risque approach. The other two are so broad or in poor taste as to be almost smutty. With Martine Carol, Vittorio De Sica, Dawn Addams. SHADY OAK.

CINERAMA HOLIDAY—Tourist eye view of Switzerland, Paris and some American spots in the spectacular depth process. AMBASSADOR.

CAMERON MITCHELL, DANA WYNTER AND RICHARD EGAN IN THE FILM VERSION OF JOHN P. MARQUAND'S NOVEL, "THE VIEW FROM POMPEY'S HEAD." IT IS SLATED NEXT AT THE ST. LOUIS.

Special Benefit Show Tonight of 'The Pajama Game'

"THE PAJAMA GAME," the hit musical comedy about a pajama factory in Iowa, with songs by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, and book by Director George Abbott and Richard Bissell, who wrote the novel, "7½ Cents" from which it was adapted, goes into its final week at the American Theater with a special performance at 7 o'clock tonight for benefit of the Actor's Fund of America.

The entire net proceeds of the performance will be donated to the fund, which was established 73 years ago to assist actors who had grown old in the profession or were in need. The fund maintains two homes for aged, sick and financially distressed actors.

Other performances will be at 8:30 p.m., except Friday and Saturday evenings, when they will be at 6 and 9:20 p.m. Featured are Fran Warren, Larry Douglas, Buster West and Pat Stanley. Following the final performance Saturday night the musical goes to Chicago for an extended run.

The next attraction at the American will be a revival of the comedy, "This Thing Called Love," starring Magda Gabor, of the famous Gabor sisters, which opens Monday, Nov. 14 for a week.

The comedy, by Edwin Burke, was a Broadway success in 1928, with Violet Heming and Minor Watson as leads, and ran a full season in London. It was made into a movie in 1929, with Constance Bennett and Edmund Lowe, and was remade in 1941 to star Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas. Miss Gabor played it in summer stock during the past year, and, under the direction of Donald Cook, the actor, a production was shaped this fall which will open its tour Thursday in Buffalo. It is concerned with a fashion designer who separates from her husband, and, disillusioned, agrees to serve as housekeeper for a millionaire who wants to marry her. Even trying to keep love out of it, she and the millionaire are afflicted by suspicion and jealousy within a few weeks and conclude that true love always involves a rough side. Charles G. Martin will be the leading man.

Cole Porter's long-run musical comedy, "Can-Can," which ran 895 performances on Broadway, will be presented for the two weeks beginning Monday, Nov. 21. Abe Burrows, humorist who authored "Guys and Dolls" and "Silk Stockings," did the book. Rita Dimitri, John Tyers, George S. Irving and Ronnie Cunningham are featured.

After that, the American is negotiating for "Anastasia," which may or may not go into its Chicago run before it gets here, and "Anniversary Waltz," if it tours. William Inge's hit comedy, "Bus Stop," is definitely scheduled for the week of Dec. 26, and the musical, "Plain and Fancy" for two weeks beginning Jan. 10.

Art and Artists

What Is the Value of Verbalizing?

By Howard Derrickson

THE LANGUAGE of painting, asserts the 1955 Carnegie International catalogue, "is not translatable; one must read it directly from the pictures."

Here is a valid conclusion which, broadened to include sculpture, may be drawn as well from artists' statements in two admirably edited book-size catalogues of current or future interest to St. Louis museum goers.

The books: "The New Decade: 22 European Painters and Sculptors," edited by Andrew Carnduff Ritchie (Museum of Modern Art, 111 pp., 107 plates, $1.75 paper bound, $3 clothbound), and "The New Decade: 35 American Painters and Sculptors," edited by John I. H. Baur (Macmillan Co. for the Whitney Museum of American Art, 96 pp., 94 plates, $3.75).

Ritchie's book contains statements by four exhibitors whose artistic language may be read directly from their works on view for just eight more days in the City Art Museum's big Italian show. Three of the four, at least, have written helpful essays on their aims.

Only Alberto Burri, author of the St. Louis show's controversial burlap collages, achieves the finality of emphasis of the Carnegie catalogue. Burri writes:

"Words are no help to me when I speak about my painting. It is an irreducible presence that refuses to be converted into any other form of expression. . . . My painting is a reality which is part of myself, a reality that I cannot reveal in words."

LESS ADAMANT are Giuseppe Capogrossi and the brothers Basaldella—Mirko the sculptor, Afro the painter. A doctor of laws and once a realist, Capogrossi feels his conversion to abstraction has not substantially changed but has clarified his painting. He writes graciously if guardedly.

Mirko, insisting the plastic idiom has its own roots in man's consciousness, draws an interesting philosophical analogy between the plastic and verbal expression of a country or age. He attempts no translation of his sculpture into literature, but he does not slam his studio door in the face of the man whose conscious approach is primarily verbal.

Most stimulating is Afro, who asks: "Can a pictorial FORM also have value as an APPARITION? Can the rigorously formal organization of a painting contain the lightness, the living breath of an evocation, the leap or shudder of memory?"

HIS REMARKS, poetic and provocative, develop these questions in a passage 10 times their above length, and without essaying an answer. But that answer, in an emphatic affirmative, has been read from Afro's paintings themselves by many here whose taste is contemporary.

Such a statement as Afro's serves somewhat as an enlightened sideshow barker's spiel. It avoids overstatement and consequent disappointment, yet entices the customer inside by arousing interest in the act itself without trying to serve as a substitute for that act.

Is there any higher or more appropriate value than this for verbalizing about modern art? Surely the presumptuous effort to judge it or rate it against rigid standards had better be deferred until distance lends perspective and relief from clamor.

Gems like both Basaldellas' verbal contributions must compensate readers (and the hard-working catalogue editors, too) for the preponderance of negative replies, such as Burri's.

INCLUSION OF THESE statements of aims, and of the same artists' work in their own mediums, is justified, of course, on the principle of allotment of display space commensurate with recognition. And if an artist assumes the role of a "character," a stereotype of the inarticulate genius, certainly the editor is entitled to exploit the situation. He can report, deadpan-fashion, just what the man said.

Baur's book is the catalogue to an exhibit scheduled to open here April 7. Like Ritchie's, it is organized on the naive popular assumption that the artist will know what he is doing and can best explain it.

Baur's contributors belabor the fact they don't, can't or don't care to. Attilio Salemme plainly resents being asked what he is doing. "No one really expects Hemingway to articulate the finer points of 'The Old Man and the Sea' with a clarinet," he says.

"If I were a writer, provided I did not have to be Salemme, I would say that his painting is certainly good, and it does seem to leave some lasting impression; but, as matters are, I'm not a writer and I'm certainly sorry I can't play the piano, too."

With similar emphatic refusals, William Congdon, Alton Pickens, Robert Motherwell and others enliven the show. For the most part, the tone of their writing is just as serious as that of the Basaldellas.

Perhaps verbalizing or declining to do so may, in the last analysis, serve equally well the good purpose of getting people and pictures together.

Obernkirchen Children Choir Here Tuesday

The Obernkirchen Children's Choir, 30 girls and six boys from the town of Obernkirchen near Hanover in West Germany, will make its first appearance in St. Louis at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Kiel Auditorium Opera House in a concert under auspices of Entertainment Enterprises.

The choir, called "Angels in Pigtails" by its press agent, was organized and is conducted by Edith Moeller, a social worker. It won the Llangollen Eisteddfod contest in Wales over 25 other choral groups from all over Europe in 1953, and then toured England and, in the fall of 1954, the United States.

Its program will range from Schubert's "The Linden Tree," Brahms's "Silent Night," and Schumann's "Dewey Rose," to a Welsh folk song, "I Left My Darling Lying There," and di Lasso's "The Soldier's Serenade."

Lonely Woman

Happily Married for Years, Now Deserted

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

WOULD you be so kind as to make a suggestion for activities for one who has been left alone by a husband who betrayed me for another woman? We were married for many beautiful and happy years. It has been over a year since he deserted me. I don't like to go places alone and I'm so lonesome.

BROKEN HEARTED.

It isn't easy, I know, to make the best of a situation of this kind. Naturally, you're hurt and humiliated and have no desire to go out with other people. But you are faced with two alternatives: to pick up the pieces of your life and refuse to be conquered by this, or to sit at home and permit yourself to brood. The second is by far the easier, but by no means the wiser. Are you a member of a church? Be there every Sunday morning for the strength that your religious faith can give you. Take part in weekday activities with other church members whom you respect and like. Invite a friend or two over for lunch or dinner but talk about pleasant matters, refusing to let yourself discuss your own heartbreak with them. If you enjoy art, go frequently to the City Art Museum or take a class in sketching. If you like music, attend the symphony. Keep yourself occupied with worth-while activities and although you can't forget what you've been through, you can rise above it and become a happier individual.

Dear Martha:

● JUST AFTER I came out of service I met a friend of my sister's and really fell for her hard. She wouldn't even look at me though and in fact was pretty rude. Finally, though, she gave me a date and found she liked me pretty well so we went steady for a couple of years and she agreed to marry me. Then all of a sudden, out of a clear sky, she sent word to my sister that she had married another fellow. She didn't write or call me. I felt so bad that I didn't even want to look at another girl but a year ago I started going out again and now I know I've found a girl I love and who loves me. But this first girl now is back in town. She is separated from her husband, says she's getting a divorce, and wants to see me. I guess I still like her a lot, but I don't think it would be fair to the girl I'm dating now. I've told her about it and she understands. Do you think I should see the first one again? PETE.

I know it's easy enough to say what would be the smart thing to do, Pete, but that's reckoning with a brain, not a heart. So I think you'll have to decide whether to let yourself get interested again in someone who kicked you in the teeth—and probably could do it again. If you don't love the present girl enough to forget the first, you'd be doing her no favor to go through with the marriage. But I honestly can't see much chance for happiness with the first after the way she's treated you. Anyway, you haven't any right to be talking marriage to her as long as she is legally married to someone else. Wait until she's free before you make your decision—but even then, go slowly.

Dear Martha:

● I'VE BEEN GOING the past five months with a man who is divorced and has an 8-year-old daughter. A month after we started dating, he asked me to go steady and I agreed. Then, after another month, every time we would go anywhere and I would introduce him to a friend, he would always remark, "Boy, is SHE pretty! I'd like to take HER out." When I say anything about this, he says I'm just being jealous. One weekend he went out of town and although he told me he hadn't dated anyone there, I discovered later he had gone out with a girl. He says people who go steady are entitled to go out with others. He dates me just a couple of times a week and makes excuses whenever I want him to go somewhere. Now I've discovered that he is corresponding with my former roommate who now lives in California. I want to quit seeing him and his mother tells me I am just being foolish. DESPERATE.

What does she have to say about it? It's your decision to make so don't let her influence you one way or the other. He apparently has a far different idea of what going steady means than I have or he wouldn't try to argue that he has the right to go with someone else. If he does date others, he isn't going steady with you. It's as simple as that. Why not call off the agreement officially, date him when—and if—you wish, and meanwhile go with other fellows?

Dear Martha:

● SOME MONTHS AGO my husband and I met another couple and we liked each other immediately. Several days later, I called the wife and asked her to meet me for lunch. We became rather good friends and met each other frequently. One day, however, during a discussion, she disagreed with something I said, so I of course dropped the subject. But somehow I felt that she was cool to me after that. I called a week or so later and invited her and her husband to have dinner with us and she accepted but the day before the dinner, she had her husband's secretary call and break the date, saying she had been called out of town. Well, that is the last I have heard from them. She has never called or written to apologize or to make another date. I don't know if I have offended her or not. Do you think I should make the first move to get in touch with her?

WORRIED.

I can't understand why she should want to break off a friendship just because of one small difference of opinion. However, if she doesn't seem to care to be with you and your husband any more, you certainly don't want to keep inviting her. You might drop her a note, saying you had missed seeing her and would like to get together soon. If she doesn't respond, then make no further overtures. If she does, and you have another opportunity to talk with her, perhaps you could tactfully bring up the subject and offer your apology if you have hurt her feelings. But try not to create an awkward situation. If she wants to discuss it and you can clear the air, fine. If not, it would be better to stop calling her and let her make the next move to continue your association.

● IN ANSWER TO L.A.C.: Under the circumstances, since this girl no longer wants to go steady with you, I can't see why she should be hurt if you dated her best friend. After all, if she had wanted you for her exclusive property she wouldn't have suggested that you both start dating others. Maybe if the friend knows you are going with several girls in addition to your ex-steady, she will realize that she wouldn't be disloyal if she also accepted a date.

Martha Carr is glad to answer your questions. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She cannot answer questions of a medical or legal nature.

Individuality of Accessories Is Important

Even a Scarf or Pair of Gloves Can Contribute Much Toward Arresting Qualities of Winter Costume

NEW FUR-LIKE FABRIC THAT DRAPES EASILY IS USED FOR THIS JOSEF BAG. MATCHED BY HAT BY MR. JOHN.

A WHITE BEAVER FELT CUFFED PILLBOX WITH A CLUSTER OF ERMINE TAILS AS TRIMMING STRESSES THE ROMANTIC FASHIONS THAT ARE POPULAR NOW. HAT IS A SALLY VICTOR DESIGN.

ELONGATED BAG BY JOSEF IS COVERED WITH RHINESTONES. CHOKER AND EARRINGS ALSO MATCH.

A LEATHER BAG IMPORTED FROM ITALY IS AN IMPRESSIVE ACCENT FOR LEOPARD COAT AND MATCHING BERET. THE BAG HAS A SINGLE WIDE HANDLE FOR CONVENIENCE IN SHOPPING AND TRAVELING.

By Sylvia Stiles

TO provide the glamour that a winter costume needs to be fashionable, an impressive hat or an unusual handbag may be the important investment. Even a scarf or a pair of gloves, carefully chosen, contributes much toward the arresting qualities of a costume.

This is a season when handsome materials, dramatic color schemes, and individuality of accessories are important to the wardrobe. Add a bright blue velvet Ascot tie to the neckline of a charcoal gray coat, and the effect becomes flattering. Carry an enormous handbag made of plaid wool blanketing with a simple suit to give the ensemble a dashing emphasis. A furry white hat may be the "pick up" that a dark silk dress needs to relieve monotony.

As the season advances, the relationship of accessories to the success of a costume becomes more pronounced. Whether a skirt is slim or flaring, and whether a coat is long or short, isn't nearly so important as how the various parts of the costume go together. An inexpensive dress or last year's suit looks new and interesting because of the careful attention to its complements.

Because hats and handbags have gotten bigger and are attracting more than their usual share of attention, they are the wardrobe items featured most as accents. Frequently the two are co-ordinated, especially if those popular fake furs or genuine furs are used. Bags that are bulky but gracefully designed look especially smart with the big berets and jaunty turbans that have become so fashionable during the last few months. It's encouraging, too, for those who want to match their bags and their millinery to find that the designers of both have gotton their heads together to be certain there is complete co-ordination.

SALLY VICTOR TRAILS COCO BROWN OSTRICH FEATHERS AT THE SIDE OF A BLACK VELVET ROLLED BRIM HAT THAT ALSO HAS A SINGLE PALE ROSE AS TRIMMING.

Good news, too, for the women who are clever with the needle, is the co-operation of the pattern and the fabric manufacturers in making it possible for home seamstresses to create their own matching accessories. Patterns for hats, bags, scarfs and capes are numerous while the fabric and trimming counters supply not only fake furs in abundance but some genuine skins on which to work.

In choosing the accents for a glamorous winter costume, white and champagne shade are leading the fashion parade. White angora and beaver felt look especially festive for hats. There is a revival of interest, also, in white ermine for berets and collars on velvet coats. The champagne shades are featured for matching hats and bags of lapin or the imitation furs. New synthetic fabrics resembling real fur are moderately priced and used extensively for cold-weather accessories.

Following a vogue of romantic fashions several milliners are launching hats adorned with feathers as well as utilizing the ermine idea to advantage. Sally Victor has a new collection of hats reminiscent of the romantic themes of the early 1900s. These were inspired by the film, "The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing." In addition to close-fitting hats with ostrich or fur trimming, Mrs. Victor includes some wide-brimmed evening hats. Most striking of the group is a black tulle model, the brim made in soft layers. A black ostrich plume droops over one eye. A midseason collection of Emme hats features the white trend. Hats of panne velvet or satin are matched by handsome stoles of the same material. Lilly Dache also uses satin extensively for hats and gloves, her featured shades including a pale beige and mink brown. Closely fitting draped hats are noteworthy.

Rhinestone studded evening bags are on display in the stores to match dog-collar rhinestone necklaces and earrings. Gold mesh and gold brocade are other glittering bag materials, each to be co-ordinated with gloves, hat or jewelry. Sashes that are placed at a lowered waistline and have huge poufs or bouffant bows at the back are made of embroidered satin and matched to bag or gloves. Long scarfs of satin to be used either at the neckline or the waistline are among the glamorous accents used to enhance a late-day or dinner dress.

Embroidered capes that glitter with sequins or jet beads are shown with little caps similarly decorated. White or pastel kid gloves are effective to repeat the white or pale tint of a hat. Capeskin gloves in the lighter tones of brown match a calf bag and pumps in contrast to the deep brown or bronze-green of a daytime suit. Slate blue is another accent shade for leather accessories.

THE REDHEAD FROM TEXAS

Molly Calls Matt on Long Distance, Gets Him to Come to New York

By Anne Allison

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

IT was early when Molly returned to her hotel room. Irritated by the purring drone of the air conditioning she turned off the switch, opened the window and sat quietly staring down at the noisy city below.

Hot air fanned her cheeks as she watched the wavering black line of traffic. Noise, lights, crowds and confusion wrapped in a blanket of August heat presented a dreary and offensive picture.

Her thoughts drifted back to Texas and the ranch. It was hot there, too, but the air on the plains would be fresh and unpolluted, the sky an unbroken blue curtain stretching into the horizon. There would be the peaceful quiet of acres rolling into mile after mile of Braden land. She longed to hurry back to El Rancho, but as long as Debra was in New York she must stay and try to think of a way to prevent her from ruining H.J.'s life. And there was one person who could help her. Molly's spirits rase at the thought. She closed the window, went to the telephone and put in a long distance call for Matthew Brady.

"I need you, Matt!" she said simply. "If H.J. is getting along all right will you come tomorrow?"

"I'll be there for dinner," he promised without hesitation and Molly feeling the weight of responsibility lifted from her heart went to bed and slept soundly.

THE following evening she and Matt dined together in the cold formality of the hotel's Empire room.

"At least this room is impersonal," Matt remarked.

Molly smiled. "I'm not in the mood anyway. I've broken my engagement to Walter. That's one thing I wanted to tell you."

He did not seem surprised. "I'm delighted to hear it, but surely you didn't bring me all the way from Texas to tell me that."

"No, Matt, but I've found out that H.J. is married. He's paying his wife to keep away from the ranch, among other reasons so I won't find out."

His dark eyes were sympathetic. "Yes, I was afraid it was something like that."

Molly turned away for a moment, watching the well dressed, well bred crowd in the Empire room. An orchestra played muted, conservative music. Waiters hovered, quietly solicitous. Her own mind, seething with its emotional problems found comfort in the simple fact that life went on in its ordinary pattern regardless of anyone's personal crisis.

"H.J. is married to Debra Symington," she blurted out.

Matt looked astounded. "Walter's sister? Are you sure about this?"

"Positive. Walter found out through a detective agency and I discovered Debra charging clothes to H.J. in a Fifth Avenue shop. I talked to her about it."

Matt lit a cigarette. "What did she say?"

"She hopes the newspapers will get the story. She knows the shock might kill H.J. and she expects to inherit the ranch and everything else belonging to the Bradens."

"Nice gal," Matt commented briefly. "What are you going to do?"

"What can I do? She's going to South America in a few days. I offered her money but it didn't phase her."

"Everyone has a weak point," Matt insisted, "and Debra is no exception. Have you ever thought of hiring a detective to follow her?"

"I don't think it would do any good. She's too clever to be involved in anything that might ruin her chances of getting H.J.'s money."

"Horsefeathers," Matt declared cheerfully. "She's not clever at all. She's a revengeful, maladjusted woman and somewhere in her life there must be a situation she would rather conceal."

* * *

MOLLY would have smiled had she not been so upset. "Are you suggesting we get something on Debra as a sort of counter blackmail?"

"You know I'm not. You can't call any of this blackmail. H.J. is a husband giving money to his wife. If we could force her to divorce him that couldn't be considered blackmail either."

"I can't imagine forcing Debra to do anything," Molly said thoughtfully. "But perhaps you're right."

They walked out into the lobby and the ever present group of dowagers who lived at the hotel noted their entrance with approval—the tall, deeply tanned young man and the lovely auburn haired girl at his side.

When a page boy called Molly's name there was a new ripple of interest.

She went to the desk where a middle-aged bald-headed man waited. "Are you Molly Braden?" he asked quietly.

"Yes." She glanced at the police badge he held before her. "What's wrong?"

"Lt. Gordon of Homicide, Miss Braden. Debra Symington has been murdered."

SHE GLANCED AT THE POLICE BADGE BEFORE HER. "WHAT'S WRONG?"

Marilyn Monroe to Do 'Bus Stop', Probably

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5 (UP)—With Marilyn Monroe's personal life apparently straightened out, Hollywood's favorite blonde finally has served notice she's ready to return to movies, it was revealed today.

It's nearly a year since the world-famous calendar girl packed her tight dresses and took off to turn over a new leaf in New York. Last Monday her divorce from Joe DiMaggio became final, ending what friends think was a period of soul-searching and development.

Studio sources reveal that for a year Marilyn and her studio have not spoken. Only last week—near the year's anniversary of her divorce action and flight from movietown—did the sweater girl, through her agent, begin contract talks with the studio.

Unless the reconciliation is bogged down in contract squabbling, Marilyn's comeback picture will be "Bus Stop," from the Broadway hit play, to go before the cameras early next year.

"It's probable she'll do it," a close source to studio chief Darryl Zanuck said. "Now that her personal problems are settled, she wants to come back.

"She wants 'Bus Stop.' In fact, she's going crazy, she wants the role so badly. It's up to the studio to decide about her contract demands."

Marilyn, according to studio sources, is asking for "the moon." The studio has courted her by dangling Director Josh Logan and writer George ("Seven Year Itch") Axelrod in front of her turned-up nose for "Bus Stop."

Gallery Notes

NINE objects owned by City Art Museum are reproduced in the current issue of Craft Horizons, the museum announced yesterday. Each is accompanied by a one-paragraph description by William N. Eisendrath Jr., assistant to the director. Included are Chinese, Persian and Mycenaean vessels, a mosaic from ancient Antioch and an Egyptian tapestry.

In the same issue of the magazine, former City Art Museum Director Meyric R. Rogers, now decorative arts curator at Chicago Art Institute, discusses museum assistance to the contemporary craftsman. He cites the success of the "Italy at Work" exhibition which visited St. Louis after being organized by City Art Museum Director Charles Nagel, New York architect Charles Dorwin Teague and himself. Rogers writes:

"Following the United States museum showings of this exhibition, the strength of this medium of publicity was clearly demonstrated when the importation of contemporary Italian crafts rose some tenfold due directly to interest engendered at the museum."

Alfred Deller Trio At Washington U.

The Alfred Deller Trio will present a concert of Elizabethan music at Washington University Graham Memorial Chapel at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday as the second in the university's series of eight recitals.

Deller, English singer, is said to be largely responsible for the revival of the counter-tenor voice for which Bach and Purcell composed many works. He will be accompanied by Desmond Dupre, lute and viola da gamba player, and Robert Conant, harpsichordist.

Zachary Scott Signed

HOLLYWOOD—Zachary Scott has been signed for a co-starring role in "Bandido," CinemaScope Eastman color adventure film starring Robert Mitchum. The picture will be produced by Robert L. Jacks for United Artists release. Filming will be done in Mexico.

Sinatra on Own

HOLLYWOOD—Frank Sinatra has organized his own independent company, Kent Productions, Inc., to produce six motion pictures for United Artists release. Sinatra's first production will be "Johnny Concho!"

Suit Trimmings

Fur, both fake and real, is used to trim many of the winter suits. Some of the suit jackets are lined with fur. Others have fur collar and cuffs that usually are detachable. Capelets and jackets made of lapin and American broadtail also are sold separately to be co-ordinated with sheer wool dresses.

Webster College Plays

The Webster College dramatic group, the Loretto Players, opened their fortieth season yesterday, with three plays in the college auditorium, 470 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves. The trio, Fry's "A Phoenix Too Frequent," Synge's "Riders to the Sea," and Chekhov's "The Boor," will be repeated at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Hollywood Ice Revue Continues at the Arena

The Hollywood Ice Revue, 1956 edition of the Arthur M. Wirtz skating extravaganza which opened its tour Friday night at the Arena, will continue there through next Sunday night. There will be no performances tomorrow and Tuesday nights. There will be performances at 2 and 6:30 p.m. today and next Sunday.

Lundi Busch, German girl who won the Olympic figure skating championship before joining the show last season, is featured, along with the veteran comedian, Freddie Trenkler, Andra McLaughlin, Margie Lee, Jimmy Grogan, Ria Baran and Paul Faulk, and The Three Bruises. The biggest production number is "Cinderella," featuring Miss Busch. Others are "Paris in Pink," "The Pirate Ship," "The Roarin' Twenties," "Golden Dreams" and "Carnival in Venice."

'The Last Notch'

HOLLYWOOD — M-G-M's "The Last Notch" will be produced by Clarence Greene and Russell Rouse. The picture, a screen adaptation of a television play written by Frank Gilroy, will star Glenn Ford portraying a brooding Westerner whose reputation as a gun slinger compels him to defend himself against potential glory-seekers.

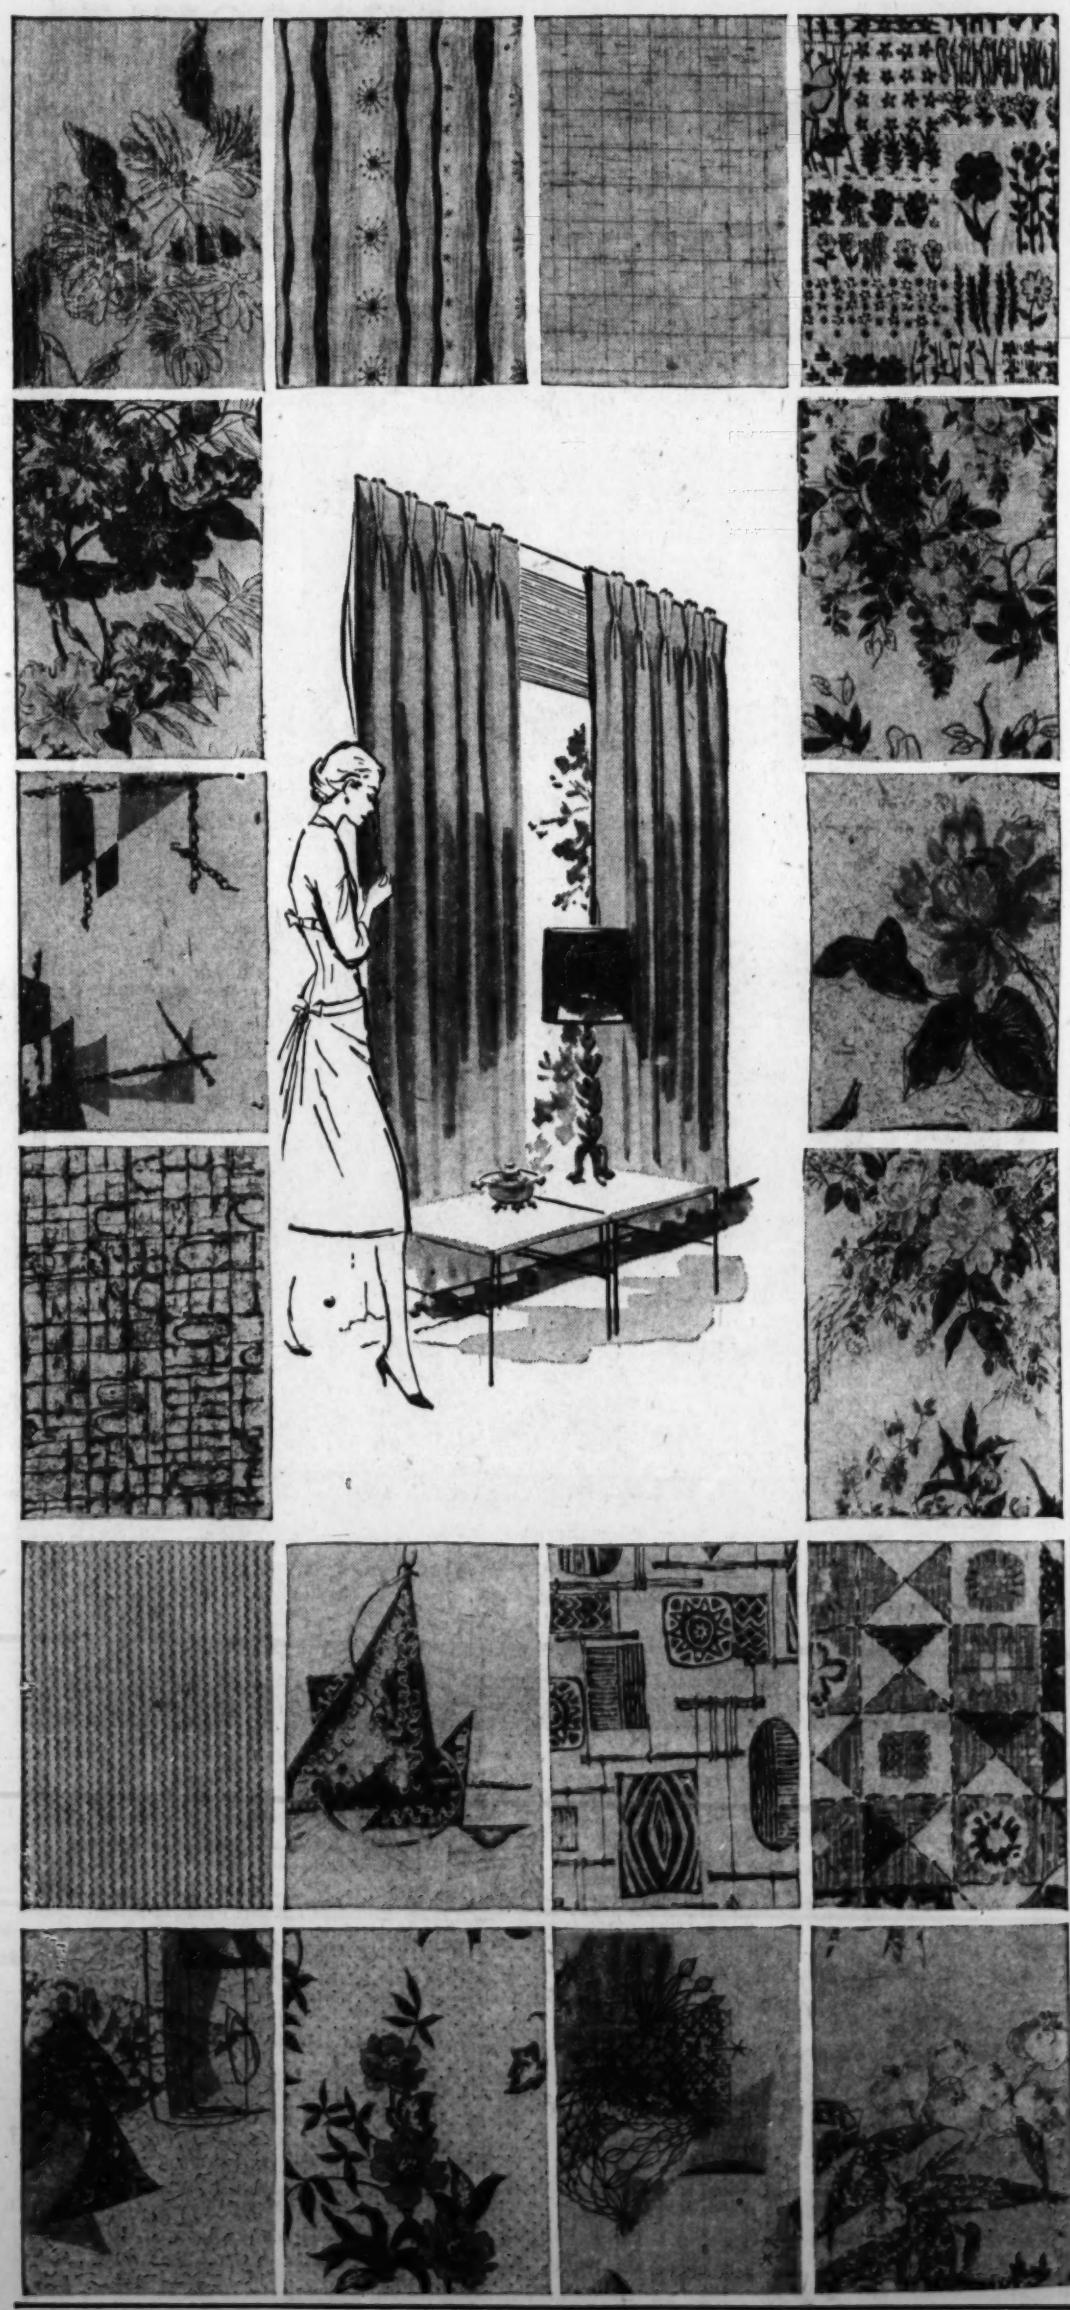
Our greatest custom-made drapery sale in years!

Astounding savings on fabrics and workmanship!

Bring in your window measurements tomorrow!

Sale of custom-made draperies!



Fabrics alone, reg. $2.50 to $3.50 yard, excluding workmanship!

$1.87 yard

Price includes workmanship!

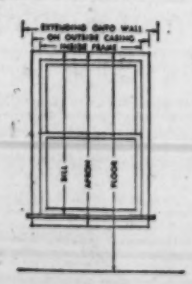
Think of it! Beautiful unlined draperies custom-made for any window in your home at less than the usual price of fabric alone! And our fabric selection includes nearly all types of weaves, patterns, colors in plain or prints . . . you can pick novelty textures, antique satins, golden overlays and many, many more! Look at these savings: the average window 2½ yards long requires about 5 2/3 yards; normally you pay from $18.67 to $24.34 for this quality material including workmanship . . . now you pay only $10.60 for the same drapery! Bring in your window measurements tomorrow and see what you save! Lined draperies including workmanship, yard $2.87; fabric without workmanship, yard $1.62

Expert custom workmanship

Every pair is expertly finished . . . no short cuts! You get de luxe pinch pleating, skillful pattern matching and careful inspection!

Please allow 3 to 4 weeks for delivery.

How to measure correctly:



Use yardstick for accuracy! For apron length, measure casing top to apron bottom. For floor length, measure casing top to floor. Be sure to give us the finished length and width desired.

Look at these typical savings!

	2½ yards long	Regularly	Sale
Average window	unlined	$18.67-$24.34	$10.60
	lined	$26.34-$30.84	$16.27

ENGLISH LORDS FIND HEAT OFF, ACT RICH AGAIN

Aristocracy Emerging in Rolls Royces Now That Socialists Are Out of Power.

By ERNIE HILL

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

LONDON, Nov. 5—The English aristocracy, the only true aristocracy left in the world, has not only survived socialism, land taxes and death duties but is flourishing in the process.

There are dukes, earls and barons galore on the continent, but a good proportion of them are phony. Their titles are meaningless.

They have no political or social status as has the British aristocracy. Here peers are automatically members of the House of Lords. Queen Elizabeth gives them social validity through the Court of St. James.

During the years of socialist government (1945-51), much of the real aristocracy went "underground."

It was unhealthy to show great wealth and demonstrate the power of position and family. The socialists were out to make everybody equal, so it paid to ride the bus and wear a soiled frayed shirt.

But in the last four years of Tory rule, the first families have begun to emerge from their bombshelters in Rolls Royces to give coming out parties and weekend jamborees reminiscent of another century.

Wealthy Acted Poor.

"It has been fashionable to pretend poverty," says Wedgwood Benn, young Labor member of Parliament who has been trying unsuccessfully to renounce the hereditary title as Viscount of Stansgate before his father dies and he is stuck with it. "Some of the wealthiest have been acting the poorest.

"But this is no longer necessary. The heat is off for the time being.

"There are some very rich families in business and industry.

"And this is the strength of the British aristocracy. Many of them will be made peers in days ahead because of their wealth. The aristocracy is being diluted with prosperous middle-class business families.

"But the old families generally are still strong and in control of the shaping of the country's destiny."

The aristocracy is still jumpy about its position.

Yet stories filter through about some of the more elaborate parties held at country estates. Food and entertainment are not too different from the "good old" Eighteenth Century days.

Five Women At Top.

Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the Queen Mother, the Duchess of Kent and the Princess Royal are at the summit in the ladder of aristocracy. On the male side it runs like this:

Four peers of the royal blood—including the Queen's son, Prince Charles who will be 7 on Nov. 14; her two uncles, former King Edward VIII, now Duke of Windsor, and the Duke of Glouscester, her father's younger brother, and the young Duke of Kent, her cousin.

Two archbishops—Canterbury and York.

Dukes — 21, including the Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the Duke of Norfolk whose dukedom dates back to 1483.

Marquesses—27.

Earls—133, including such old families as the Earl of Derby.

Viscounts—103.

Barons—538.

All of the earls, viscounts and barons are called "Lord."

Next come the knights. There are thousands of them and they do not really belong to the aristocracy. They are called "Sir." Knights continue to serve in the House of Commons while those peers above the Knights are ineligible and must go to the House of Lords.

Churchill a Knight.

Among the best known Knights are Sir Winston Churchill, Sir Anthony Eden, Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Gordon Richards, the jockey who is now a trainer.

Some sections of the aristocracy, it is true, have fallen on hard times.

They have been educated to take a dim view of work. Their abilities are limited. So they live out their lives in their country places barely making ends meet but being very haughty about it. They identify themselves by serving on local committees and taking the lead in sponsoring local charities.

Three lords have become bookmakers. One is at the track almost every day taking bets and calling "five to one, the field. Ten to one, Jenny Lind."

One of the reasons why English aristocracy is authentic while European aristocracy is phony is this: On the continent, every son of a baron calls himself baron. Every son of a duke is called duke.

But in Britain, only the eldest sons inherit titles. The title passes down to the eldest son in each case. Younger sons are given some education and cut loose while the eldest son becomes a peer and is entrusted with trying to keep the family inheritance intact.

Most European countries have no monarch and no House of Lords.

Nancy Mitford Explains.

Nancy Mitford, England's funniest satirist on the aristocracy, recently wrote an article in the magazine Encounter. She is a daughter of Lord Redesdale and was brought up among the smart set.

In the article Miss Mitford explains why the British peerage is so hesitant to admit that it still has great wealth. She states:

"The English lord has been nurtured on the land and is conversant with the cunning ways of the animal kingdom. He has often seen the grouse settle into the heather to rise and be shot at no more.

"He has noticed that enormous riches are not well looked on in the modern world and that in most countries his genus is extinct. It may be that he who for a thousand years has weathered so many storms, religious, dynastic and political, is taking cover in order to weather yet one more. It may be that he will succeed. He must, of course, be careful not to overdo the protective coloring.

"The English lord is a wily old bird who seldom overdoes anything. It is his enormous strength."

BROTHERS, SISTER, ALL WED IN 1905, TO HOLD REUNION

Two brothers and a sister will get together today for a family turkey dinner to mark the most unusual year of their lives. For all three, it is the year of their fiftieth wedding anniversaries—all were married in 1905.

The dinner will be at the home of Albert J. Mueller, 916 Wild Cherry lane, University City. Mueller, a retired steel worker, and his wife Katherine will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Nov. 29.

Among the guests will be brother Joseph Mueller and his wife Bertha, of 3233 Oregon avenue. They will celebrate their anniversary Nov. 14. And the Muellers' sister, Caroline, now Mrs. Henry Bloemke, and her husband will be here from Gerald, Mo. The Bloemkes' fiftieth wedding celebration was June 21.

Albert Mueller is 77 years old, Joseph 75 and Caroline 72.

TESTS IN ILLINOIS NOV. 14 FOR SERVICE ACADEMIES

United States Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, has asked the United States Civil Service Commission to conduct an examination Nov. 14 for Illinois youths interested in appointment to United States Military, Naval and Air Force academies, it was announced yesterday.

Young men who will be 17 years old by July 1, 1956, or who will not be more than 22 on that date, are eligible. Those interested should write Senator Douglas for authorization to take the examination and for further information regarding appointments. The examination will be held in all cities in Illinois where federal civil service examinations are usually held.

Christmas Is in the Air Again at Downtown Department Store Toylands

Small boy watching with Christmas wonder as Donald Duck tries out space suit in one of the scenes of "Disneyland," at Famous-Barr Co.

Figures in Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney window cleaning the kitchen in preparation for St. Nick as eager admirers watch from the street outside.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Selecting the right doll from the many displayed at Stix, Baer & Fuller proving problem for NADINE PULTMAN, 3 years old, 987 Warder avenue, University City.

Santa Comes to 3 Big Stores, Christmas Displays in Windows

Toy Centers Keep Children Enthralled—Goldilocks, Bears and Snowman Add to Holiday Spirit.

Santa Claus came to St. Louis's three large downtown department stores last week. To the youngsters who greeted him — some shyly, others with a friendly, "Hi, Santa" — he brought candy, stuffed animals, dolls, toys, and expectations beyond all measure.

Familiar Mother Goose characters appeared with Santa in the Famous-Barr Co. windows at Seventh and Locust streets. On display was an animated tableau which shows Saint Nick reading a book of Mother Goose stories. The lady in question, a dazzling white goose, flaps her large wings at his elbow.

Other nursery rhyme figures cavort to familiar tunes in the windows. A handsome cat plays the fiddle while a cow revolves around the moon in a fast and regular orbit. In another scene, endless children scoot in and out of a giant shoe, and the old woman who lives there—the one who had so many children—solves the problem with one of them by spanking him firmly.

3 Little Pigs.

Also on display are the three little pigs, who seem to be celebrating a birthday party, the three blind mice, and Goldilocks and three bears. The bears jump up and down with a fine show of anger as they discover Goldilocks beneath their brightly-colored counterpane. Goldilocks sits up from time to time, opens her eyes long enough to view the bears, and falls back again on the bed.

From the eighth floor inside the store, the children and their parents enter "Disneyland," and walk through a winding maze of bright and attractive scenes featuring Walt Disney's familiar characters.

Over at Seventh street and Washington avenue, Santa Claus has shed his coat in Stix, Baer & Fuller's window display, which shows "Santa's Corner Store."

Santa, as the genial storekeeper, waves his hand merrily at youngsters peering in at his choice selection of merchandise: a toy tank, a football helmet, a steamroller, and a train for the boys; dolls and stuffed animals for the girls and the younger children; and so on.

In one corner of the window, a small stuffed bear is seriously reading about himself. The book spread open on his lap is called, "A Little Brown Bear and his Friends."

Inside the store, an elevator has been cleverly disguised with the trappings of a huge fireplace to make it worthy of its new name, "The Chimney Express."

At its destination on the fifth floor, Santa himself presides, in an attractive living room setting, in front of a mantel loaded with toys, dolls, and blocks. Besides chatting with him, the youngsters can be seen trying out every toy in sight in the store's "Toyworld"—until their mothers drag them back to reality.

Display at Scruggs.

Five Christmas songs provide the theme, and the background music, for the animated window displays at Scruggs Vandervoort Barney, Tenth and Olive streets.

The songs are: "Frosty the Snowman," "Jingle Bells," "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," "Silver Bells," and "He'll Be Coming Down the Chimney As He Never Did Before."

Frosty the Snowman, wearing a topcoat and smoking a pipe, skates happily back and forth in one direction, while in another display a little boy and little girl, under a snug lap robe, leave for a winter sleigh ride to the tune of "Jingle Bells."

But the most ingenious of the displays illustrate "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." Seven little boys and girls busily prepare for Santa's arrival, washing the dishes, scrubbing the floor, dusting the furniture, wielding a broom. As they go happily about these tasks, each proudly wears a wire halo—while their mother grins with pleased surprise.

FUND AGENCY AIDS BLIND GIRL TO A CAREER

Blindness is a terrible affliction for a child to suffer, and the parents of 9-year-old Cathy were shocked when their doctor told them scarlet fever had blinded their daughter.

Cathy received education from public schools, earning a high school degree. She was unable to find employment until a friend told her about the Lighthouse for the Blind, a United Fund agency.

For two years she worked in the sewing department there, and was glad to be doing useful work. Now she has become a secretary at the Lighthouse, a job for which her education had trained her.

Without the aid of the Lighthouse for the Blind, Cathy would never have been able to make best use of the education she had been given to overcome her handicap. The United Fund, which sponsors the Lighthouse, is now conducting its annual fund-raising campaign.

DR. JOHN R. SMITH ELECTED HEART ASSOCIATION HEAD

Dr. John R. Smith, associate professor at the Washington University school of medicine and director of medical service at Homer G. Phillips Hospital, has been elected president of the St. Louis Heart Association, it was announced yesterday.

Re-elected were: William Charles, chairman of the board; William Gregory, vice-president; Edgar H. McCulloch, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Patty Palmer, executive director. Dr. Smith has been a member of the association's board since 1949.

WASHINGTON U. BLOOD DRIVE

A goal of 500 pints of blood has been set for Washington University's campus blood collection campaign Thursday and Friday. Blood will be collected from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. both days at the Student Center.

The drive is sponsored by the Interfraternity Council as one of its annual charitable projects, and by the campus Red Cross unit.

500 ADDITIONAL CHRISTMAS CAROLING GROUPS NEEDED

An appeal for singing groups to participate in the forty-fourth annual Christmas Eve caroling program in this area was made yesterday by Mrs. Albert H. Toma, executive secretary of the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association.

Mrs. Toma said at least 500 additional bands of carolers will be needed this year to adequately cover the city and county. Last year about 2000 neighborhood goups made a house-to-house singing canvass, she said.

Caroling groups interested in singing this year have been asked to contact the association, 513 Olive street, CHestnut 1-3302. Voluntary contributions received by carolers are distributed to 70 local institutions serving underprivileged and handicapped children.

Capone's Men Acquire Finesse And Keep on Reaping Millions

Syndicate Kingpin Accardo Reports 'Improving Mind With Good Books' — Others Deny Rackets Boom.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (INS) — Former underlings of the late racketeer Al Capone are still operating in Chicago today, but they have exchanged bullet-proof cars for executive suites.

With a finesse which would have astounded prohibition day overlords, former gunmen are reaping millions of dollars from gambling, extortion, prostitution and narcotics. Despite the vigorous "young blood" in the trade, United States Attorney Robert Tieken of Chicago says: "The top 25 per cent of such revenue around here goes to the syndicate!"

By "syndicate," he means a handful of veterans prospering nearly a quarter-century after Scarface Al went to Alcatraz for income tax cheating. After parole, Capone died in 1947. But his legacy went to such men as:

Tony Accardo, 50 years old, Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, 60, Jake (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, 71, Frank La Porte, 50, Joey Glimco, 54, Sam Mooney Giancanna, 47, Joe Aiuppa, 48, Tony (Mops) Volpe, 64, Eddie Vogel, 60, Sam (Golf Bag) Hunt, 54, Murray (The Camel) Humphreys, 55, Claude Maddox, 55, Joe Fusco, 53, and until deported, Nick Circella Dean, 57.

Many Are 'Retired.'

How have they prospered? United States Attorney Tieken and State's Attorney John Gutknecht are trying to break down their denials that they are prospering.

Accardo, repuated kingpin of the syndicate, says he is "retired, living off investments, improving my mind with good books."

He and La Porte, said to be his second in command and also "retired," are embroiled in a federal income tax suit. It involves revenue from the now-defunct Owl Club. A Government attorney said it raked in handbook bets of $1,800,000 in 1948 and $1,600,000 in 1949, plus another $300,000 a year from dice and roulette.

Ricca, paroled from a 1941 million dollar movie shakedown conviction, is "retired, taking it easy" on a 1000-acre farm.

Guzik, Capone's favorite brothel-keeper, recently refused to tell an investigating committee any more than his address. Asked if he considered himself retired, he barked, "retired from what?"

His attorneys stood ready to challenge anyone to prove Guzik "runs loop gambling."

Ousted From Race Track.

Guzik also is involved in a court fight with Arlington Park race track. The track, claiming "hoodlums are trying to muscle in," evicted him on grounds that he is "undesirable."

Glimco has no visible means of support, either. He sports a title of "executive director" of Chicago's Taxi Drivers' Union. He was convicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to bleed heavy payoffs in exchange for letting poultry dealers continue business in Chicago's Fulton street market.

Giancanna also is suspected of terroristic extortion and policy operating. Neither the Cook county nor the federal grand juries could locate him for subpena all summer.

Aiuppa and Maddox are under federal indictment on charges of shipping gambling devices across the state line. Aiuppa previously was linked with gambling dens in Capone's old stomping grounds of Cicero.

Maddox was another "retired gentleman," known under the name of John Moore, operator of the Pat-Kay horse farm at Barrington.

Gets Liquor License.

Joe Fusco, a bona fide rum runner of the old days, is now a legitimate liquor wholesaler. He was granted a state license —because no criminal record could be found.

Volpe, Vogel, Hunt and Humphreys have been comparatively "quiet" since the 1952 Senate investigation headed by Senator Estes Kefauver. United States Attorney Tieken; Virgil Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, and Police Capt. William Balswick, commander of Chicago's "Scotland Yard" intelligence unit, concur that these men are "conspicuous by their absence."

Word in underworld circles says Vogel, once bossing a slot machine empire across two counties, was badly hurt when sheriff raids "busted up much of his merchandise." He is considered "pensioned" and his post added to La Porte's duties.

Humphreys is rumored to be suffering from an eye ailment and "gone south or west," generally interpreted as meaning Miami or Las Vegas.

Mobile Operations.

Yet investigators say that if the dollar bills handed to bookies, prostitutes, policy slip runners and narcotics peddlers were made radioactive, a man following with a geiger counter would meet the same old faces.

The big difference in today's "action"—in gambling—is mobility. The 62-year-old Capt. Balswick said: "There no such thing as a 'room' in Chicago any more. It's all 'walking.'"

The policy game is "floating." Slips often are sold from the back of a truck. Brothels are sparse; "girls" are dated by phone. To the suburbs is the trend for fancy gambling layouts—such as Accardo's club which was located in a nightlife belt south of Chicago called Calumet City.

The loot is still heavy, though. Accardo lives in the high-toned suburb of River Forest in a mansion of 22 rooms with bowling alley and swimming pool.

And champagne bubbled from silver spigots last summer when hairy-legged torpedoes dating back to the tommygun era sauntered about in Bermuda shorts, helping Tony celebrate the Fourth of July.

GOLDEN WEDDING RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Schulte, 8431 Skyline drive, Affton, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary today with a 6 p.m. reception at Bippen's Estate, Sappington.

The pair, who are both 75, have six children and 16 grandchildren. Schulte is a poultry farmer.

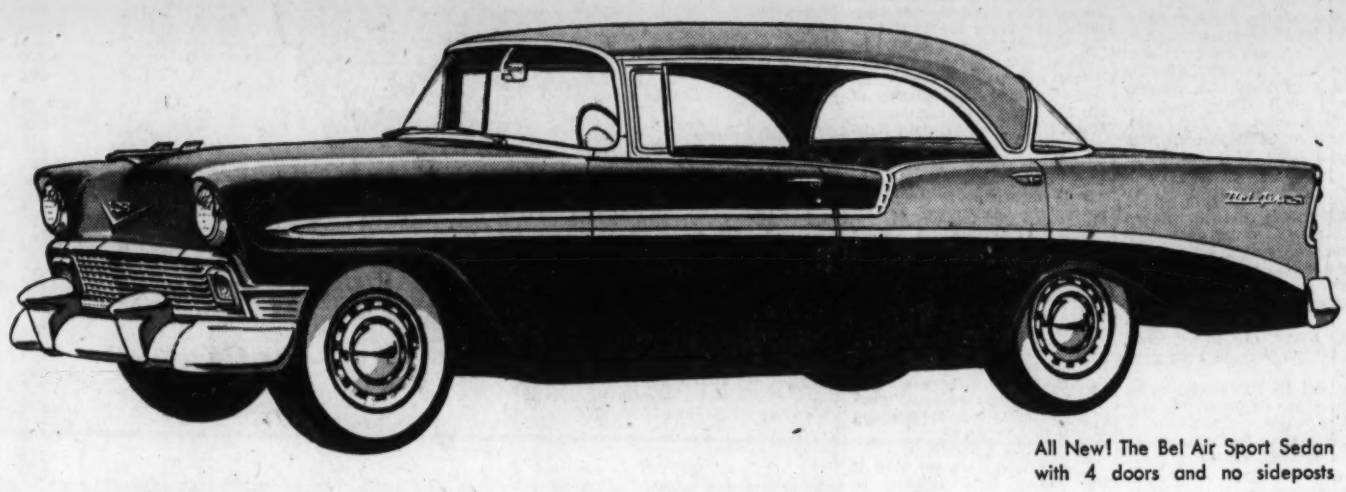
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH WANT ADS

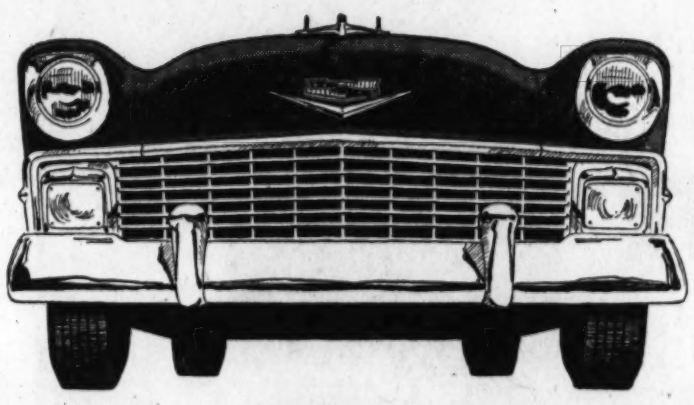
The hottest features for '56

are in the new Chevrolet

Chevrolet never had it so good for you before...and no other car in its field even comes close. See if Chevrolet doesn't feature everything you want for '56.



All New! The Bel Air Sport Sedan with 4 doors and no sideposts



Bold, new Motoramic Styling

Just look it over—the lower, longer hood . . . the wider grille that spans the full front end . . . the big bold parking lights. From the side, you see the sweeping new speedline chrome styling and high-set taillights. Colorful new contemporary interiors add the final touch! Body by Fisher, of course.

V8 Horsepower Zooms to 205

That's the power the new "Super Turbo-Fire V8" pours out (an extra-cost option). The new "Turbo-Fire V8" delivers 170 h.p. when teamed with Powerglide (optional at extra cost). The hot one's even hotter!

Hideaway Gas Cap

Chevrolet's left-side taillight holds a stylish secret. It's hinged at the bottom . . . swings down to uncover the gas cap. Closed up, the cap's concealed—and there's nothing in sight but the high-fashion taillight!

Everything in Automatic Power Features

Power Steering, Power Brakes, power-positioned front seat, power controls for front and rear windows—everything you could wish for in power servants! All are available as extra-cost options.

Steering made easy

Ball bearings do you a good turn in Chevrolet's Ball-Race steering. They greatly reduce friction and steering effort. Feels almost like Power Steering!

Anti-Dive braking

No "nose-dive" stops in a Chevrolet! Anti-Dive braking, an exclusive Chevrolet development, means more level stopping – even when you hit the brakes hard!

12-volt Electrical System

Packs twice the punch of ordinary 6-volt systems . . . spins the engine up to one-third faster when you turn the key. You get surer starting in all weather. And you have a greater electrical reserve supply for operating accessories.

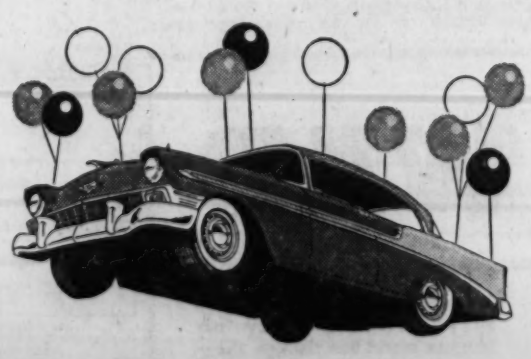
A new 6 with 140 H.P.

The new "Blue-Flame" 6 brings you this higher horsepower plus a higher compression ratio (8 to 1) and oil-hushed hydraulic valve lifters.

THE HOT ONE'S EVEN HOTTER

It's the Pikes Peak Record Breaker!

The '56 Chevrolet proved its championship road-action . . . its surer, safer driving control by breaking the record for the Pikes Peak run!



Floats over the bumps

At least it feels that way. Roads seem newly paved with Chevrolet's Glide-Ride front suspension and long outrigger rear springs soaking up the jolts. And Chevy's cat-footed on curves—holds the road like it loves it! Chevrolet performance puts your safety first!

WINTER WANDERLUST

By Dorothy Brainerd, Post-Dispatch Travel Editor.

Winter vacations are as popular today as was the old-fashioned trip to Grandmother's for Thanksgiving. Americans now take off for their favorite sun spots or cruise ports quite as casually as they used to journey back to the farm.

Travel experts attribute the growing popularity of winter holidays to many factors, in addition to the desire to escape slush and snow. Carriers and hotels are not as crowded, which means that space is more easily available and service is better. Sightseers can really see the sights, instead of throngs of other vacationers.

Thrifty travelers may find that vacation dollars buy more. In some instances hotel, train or bus rates are reduced after the summer rush. Costs may be cut on European travel during the annual "thrift season," and new trans-Atlantic family plans on airlines make possible additional savings.

Whatever their diverse reasons may be, Americans are no longer crowding their vacations into June, July and August. One travel agency estimates that one out of every four now vacations between October 1 and December 31; others prefer the midwinter months.

Travel to the Caribbean area shows a steady increase, with the winter season expected to break all past records. These picturesque lands are humming with construction of new accommodations to keep pace with the flow of traffic.

Mexico continues to attract those who want a colorful vacation with a foreign flavor. Hawaii rates high on the list of prospective vacation spots, with one travel expert predicting that escorted trips to the Islands will jump 100 per cent during 1956.

The outlook also is bright for domestic travel with California, the sun country of the Southwest and, of course, Florida ready to welcome their expected guests.

Sleek cruise ships soon will be plying their sunshine routes to exotic ports. Some 25,000 passengers are expected to sail the blue waters of the Caribbean between December and April. Other steamship lines have scheduled voyages to South America, Hawaii, the Mediterranean and around-the-world.

It would be a confirmed stay-at-home indeed who could read these itineraries without succumbing to a severe attack of wanderlust.

VALLEY OF THE SUN A WINTER FUN AREA

PHOENIX, Ariz.—A winter vacation in the resort area of Phoenix and the Valley of the Sun means fun, things to see and do, excellent accommodations and fine weather.

The Phoenix region, according to unbiased United States Weather Bureau reports, has an average of 154 clear days between now and April.

More than $8,000,000 have been spent this year to give vacationists new and better sports facilities and accommodations. Some 20,000 guests a night now can be accommodated in the Valley of the Sun. And the range of accommodations runs all the way from ultra-modern motor hotels at $6 up per day, double room, to American plan resorts and dude ranches posting rates of around $24 up, double, per day.

Special events, more than 100 major ones during the winter season, give tourists a wide choice of activities. They may watch horse, dog or auto races, go on gold treks or pan for gold, see bronc busting rodeos, attend concerts, plays and lectures, or watch four major league baseball teams in action.

Regular pastimes include swimming in clean, heated, luxurious pools, riding on well-kept bridle paths or unbroken desert trails, playing golf on green fairways all winter long, fishing and boating at dam-formed lakes, desert barbecues or picnics, hiking and rockhunting.

This Is the Life in Arizona

ANNUAL REUNION DINNER PLANNED BY TRAVEL AGENCY

The annual reunion dinner given by the Kirkland DeLuxe Travel Service for former tour members will be held Nov. 10 at the Chase Club of Hotel Chase, according to an announcement by J. Herndon Kirkland.

This year's dinner will be the tenth one given by the travel agency for the purpose of bringing together tour members to renew friendships and share travel experiences. More than 900 persons are expected to attend, including guests from Kansas City, Memphis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Louisville, Detroit and outlying areas of Missouri and Illinois.

Music for a revue and dancing will be provided by Carl Hohengarten. The evening's program will be conducted by Jack Herbert as master of ceremonies.

Enormous Bay.

TOP ATTRACTIONS IN LOS ANGELES

By DAVE PHILLIPS

LOS ANGELES — Probably nowhere is the sightseer's paradox more apparent than in this spreading city of Southern California: the average visitor sees more here in a few days than the native does in a lifetime.

Unless he's playing host, chances are the Angeleno has never seen the marble showmanship of Forest Lawn Cemetery, wondered at the Griffith Park Observatory star shows, breathed the quaint Old Mexico atmosphere of Olvera street, been bewildered by the busy inside of a television studio, savored the varied foods at Farmers' Market. He is not amazed at a geranium-covered lawn or an orange tree in his back yard, and wouldn't walk across the street to see a movie star.

There's no satisfactory explanation for his gross disinterest in his home town and it doesn't do any good to lure him with the honest statement that he's missing out on the fun. With tourists it's a different story.

According to Don Thomas of the Southern California All-Year Club, visitors are mainly interested in two things: the ocean and movie (more lately television) stars. Man-made attractions are all fascinating and should be seen on a Southern California vacation, but by and large run second.

The yen for a taste of real salt water is strong in the guest and whether he wants to explore the undersides of the great rollers or just take off his shoes and wade at the broad Pacific's edge, miles of ocean sands are easily reached.

Every seaside sight and activity extends from Malibu's movie star beach houses, Santa Monica's "muscle beach" and deep-sea fishing, Ocean Park's amusement pier, Hermosa Beach's aquarium, Redondo Beach's moonstones, Palos Verdes skin diving, San Pedro's view of the busy harbor to Long Beach's Rainbow Pier and Alamito Bay's seal herds. Offshore, 26 miles by steamer, lies mountainous Catalina island with its village, Avalon, and its famous glass-bottomed boat for viewing marine life.

The magic name by far, however, is "Hollywood" and its breath of glamour. Even the hardest-bitten can't deny a little thrill when he picks a movie star out of a crowd.

Unfortunately, it isn't easy to get into those exciting places, the studios, where you'll see them at work unless, you know someone who knows someone. There is one bus tour that runs through one of the lots, but passengers must stay aboard.

Radio and television stations, on the other hand, never remove the welcome mat, and big-name stars are appearing daily. It's a good idea, though, to write the stations well ahead of time for free tickets.

You can see the stars at play at night spots on the Sunset boulevard "Strip," but it will cost; try dropping into the Brown Derby for a sandwich, or better yet, a malt at lunch counters near the radio and TV studios where personalities go for a coffee break.

There are various tours for movie stars' homes out Beverly Hills way, but the best bet is to write to the All-Year Club of Southern California, 629 South Hill street, Los Angeles, for its excellent free map, which not only locates some 70 stars' dwellings but also points out all the other fascinating places in the locale.

There is no one season for seeing Los Angeles—things are buzzing the year around and the weather co-operates 90 per cent of the time.

Gift to Cleopatra.

Ascalon, popular vacation resort on the Mediterranean in the south of Israel, is the city Anthony presented as a gift to Cleopatra. Samson and Delilah are known to have stayed there.

Rio Landmark

—Braniff International Airways.

One of Rio's most beautiful man-made landmarks is the 130-foot Statue of Christ towering on Corcovado, one of the highest peaks in Rio at an altitude of 2326 feet. The statue was built with funds collected by public subscription and dedicated on Columbus day in 1931.

WEATHER IS FINE DOWN MEXICO WAY

Weather, always a subject of concern, is of prime importance to the vacationer who wants to be certain that his holiday activities will not be hampered by bleak rains or cutting winds.

Those contemplating a winter visit to Mexico can put aside such worries. Because the sun shines daily throughout the winter months the days are seldom cold, although the atmosphere is brisk and invigorating.

In the highlands the nights are chilly, however, and one will need a good warm overcoat. Even during the nights of midwinter the temperature rarely ever drops to the freezing point; when it does, it is such news that newspapers carry banner headlines.

In the sub-tropics the winter climate is agreeably warm, seldom calling for an overcoat.

Places like Mexico City, Puebla, Saltillo, Morelia, Patzcuaro and Guadalajara are noted for their fine climate; it would be hard to find more pleasant weather than that in Cuernavaca and Taxco.

The rainy season in Mexico is limited almost entirely to the pleasantly warm months of summer. The rains generally begin around the first of June and continue intermittently to the end of September, with occasional showers during May and October. In Mexico the rains usually fall in the late afternoon as heavy showers of short duration, preceded and succeded by sunshine. Morning showers, or continuous rain over a period of several hours, are unusual.

In short, the best time to visit Mexico is entirely a matter of personal choice. Many visitors prefer the dry winter months; others prefer the equally dry but slightly warmer months of spring. The summer months, with daily showers which freshen the air, are thoroughly delightful; the months of autumn are dry and pleasant, with an occasional shower to brighten the colors of the Mexican landscape.

CHILD'S FAIRYLAND

Copenhagen is a child's wonderland. The land oif fairy tales with its old castles, thatch-topped cottages and chimney storks considers children one of its most important commodities and treats them accordingly.

Copenhagen has dovens of attractions to amuse youngsters including a circus, a zoo(animal farm, toy theater, marionette show, aquarium, roller coasters, fun houses, boat rides and a shooting gallery.

No Snakes, No Spiders.

There are no snakes of any kind in mid-Atlantic Bermuda. There are no poisonous spiders in the colony either.

—MEXICO—

SIGHTSEEING BY LAND OR SEA IN BERMUDA

How do you like your sightseeing? By day or by moonlight? Underground, underwater, in the air, on water or on land? By carriage, motor-assisted bicycle, boat, sailboat, bus or car? Bermuda has them all, plus one or two extras for the individualists in the crowd. And no matter what the choice, the final result will be an unforgettable experience.

From the air, verdant Bermuda rides the crest of a turquoise and foam-white ocean. White-roofed homes glimmer in the sun, dotting the countryside like cotton mushrooms. Sunlight reflects from a cloud and combines with the scenery below — colored now with palm trees, now with the lush green of royal poincianas, now with the grey of the rocks along the shore, now with pastel houses.

On land, the countryside unfolds at a more leisurely pace. Here an oleander hedge lines the road. There is a clump of scarlet hibiscus. Everywhere the air is perfumed by thousands of flowers. You follow a road that winds, bends and dips through the Colony. Now you have come to Gibbs Hill and the lighthouse. In front is the Great Sound, as different in color and mood as the sky overhead. Over your shoulder, the white lighthouse towers above the Colony, overlooking the South Shore and the ocean. Or you are in the 300-year-old town of St. George, as picturesque as a historical novel come true, steeped in the lore of three centuries. Fort St. Catherine; Gates Fort; St. Peter's Church with its silver communion service presented to the church by William III in 1684; Gunpowder Cavern; and a host of picturesque lanes and alleys are all nearby.

For the individualists, there are water-skiing tours of Hamilton Harbor, The Great Sound and the water around Somerset or a thrilling sail in a Sailfish.

Underground tours take place in Bermuda's fascinating, centuries-old calcite caves — a never-to-be-forgotten tour of a wonderland of beautiful limestone formations.

FERN FORESTS

The road from the park to Hilo, chief city on Hawaii Island, passes through 20-foot tall fern forests, small farms and sugar cane lands.

Nearby are wold-famous black sand beaches, Warm Springs, Green Lake and lava trees, as well as countless scenes of tropical luxuriance.

NAMED FOR WATERS

HOT SPRINGS NATIONAL PARK, Ark., is named for its famous thermal springs, which flow from the west base of Hot Springs Mountain. There are 47 springs, from which pour 1,000,000 gallons of water daily at an average temperature of 143 degrees Fahrenheit.

The springs supply approximately 500 tubs and three underwater pools in a score of immaculate and modern hydrotherapy institutions.

Vantage Spot.

Bahia-Mar yachting center, largest in the south, features a waterfront dining room. Patrons watching a passing parade of boats cruising in the Intracoastal Waterway.

CRUISE PROSPECTS BRIGHT, TRAVEL AGENCY REPORTS

So bright are the prospects for the West Indies and Caribbean cruise season that the flagship of the Greek line, usually employed in trans-Atlantic service, is scheduled to make three southern cruises this season, according to Al Stewart of Adventure Tours.

The schedule includes a seven-day New Year's cruise, a 17-day cruise in February, and a 12-day voyage in March. The February cruise offers a notable "extra." While maintaining eight ports-of-call, the ship also will put in at Charleston, South Carolina, for a 10-hour period so that cruise passengers may have an opportunity to visit the city and view the ante-bellum homes and flowering gardens for which the city is famous.

In order to insure passenger comfort aboard ship the carrying capacity will be reduced by approximately one-half, and the size of the cruise staff increased over that on the usual trans-Atlantic run.

BASS HEADQUARTERS

Orlando, Fla., is famous as headquarters for the world's finest bass fishing. From downtown Orlando, more than 100 good fishing lakes can be reached within 45 minutes and the renowned St. Johns river is within 30 minutes driving time.

Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce operates a fishing center on Lake Ivanhoe, five minutes from the heart of the business district, where boats rent for only one dollar daily.

Florida Raceway.

Ben White Raceway, the world's largest winter training center for light harness horses, is located only three miles from downtown Orlando in beautiful city-owned Fairview Park. The raceway is open from November through April.

Favorite Spot at Montego Bay, Jamaica

—Delta Air Lines.

Doctor's Cave Beach at Montego Bay, Jamaica, a favorite of European royalty, is now the North Shore center for many swank hotels. Jamaica, largest of the British West Indies, varies tremendously in terrain. Its countryside includes tranquil rolling hills in the western region, flat northern beaches, and towering mountains in the east.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Hundreds of Americans who want to combine thrifty Christmas shopping with a vacation in a sunny foreign land are now heading for Jamaica.

At Jamaica's Free Port shops visitors can buy quality British and European imports at savings of up to 60 per cent off U.S. prices. The reason: The Jamaican government forgoes all taxes and custom duties on free port merchandise. And the United States government has made it possible for United States travelers to bring home up to $500 worth of merchandise duty-free.

14 winter sights to see:

Highest, lowest points in U.S.: Mt. Whitney, 14,496 feet, and Death Valley, 280 feet below sea level, both seen at Dantes View.

Poinsettias: See them tall as a California ranch house, with 10-inch blooms, in anybody's yard!

Beach performers: Pelicans, sea lions, sandpipers put on a constant show along Pacific shores.

Beverly Hills: Handsome home town of the movie elite. Free map locates homes of 80 top entertainers for you. (See coupon.)

Colorado Desert: Where you bask in summerlike sunshine within view of snow-capped mountains.

Subtropic city: Los Angeles. Palm-lined shopping streets; geranium "lawns"; open-air markets and cafes.

The Old West: Mojave Desert canyons, mesas and ghost towns where western movies are filmed. Rugged country, pardner!

Subtropic valleys: Miles of orange groves, world's largest vineyard, an hour east of Los Angeles.

Mission San Fernando: Established 1797. Its adobe walls, long corredor and ancient bells from Spain speak to you of early padres and their Indian pupils.

Sea caves: Strange wave-carved Pacific caverns over 2,000 centuries old. See giant ocean goldfish, senorita fish flash by.

Movie star footprints: At a big Hollywood Blvd. theater, see footprints of 125 film stars impressed in concrete forecourt.

Show people: Look for TV, radio personalities in the shops and cafes around Sunset & Vine—the heart of Hollywood.

Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbor: Fruit boats from Panama; tuna clippers from the Galapagos; freighters bound for Yokohama or Madagascar.

Aerial view: From 5,710-foot Mt. Wilson, 2 hours from Los Angeles, gaze out across orange groves, lights of 60 cities.

These are just samples of many unusual sights to see in Southern California. You've wanted to come. Plan your trip now!

FREE: Color Sightseeing Map of Los Angeles County, all Southern California. Locates all these sights, hundreds of others, too. Valuable. Mail coupon today.

HAITI COMBINATION OF OLD AND NEW

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—A near-Utopia combination of old-world atmosphere and new-world convenience is the claim of Haiti—an island republic in the Caribbean sea that's attracting more visitors from the United States, Canada and other countries every year.

One reason why Haiti is becoming such a popular vacation resort is that it's so easy to visit. No passport is necessary for United States citizens—simply a certificate of smallpox vaccination and an entry permit, obtainable on landing.

Only two and one-quarter hours separate Haiti from Miami by air, while direct flights also are available from New York and New Orleans. Numerous cruise ships offer leisurely voyages to Haiti.

Haiti's quaint charm has not diminished with the years, even though modern tourist accommodations in up-to-date hostelries have been provided in the island's recent construction program.

In the picturesque "Iron Market," visitors are plunged directly into the past as they see a native marketplace teeming with life and color, as peasant women vie to tempt tourists with fruits, vegetables and woven baskets.

To complete the picture of a bygone era, the pedestrian in Port-au-Prince (the best way to see the city, according to those who have been there) will see brown-skinned native women proceeding in line down dusty roads, bearing baskets of tropical fruits and vegetables on their heads. In the cool, dim shops, souvenirs of French perfumes and native handcraft are available.

Around Port-au-Prince are mountain foothills, and nestled on their slopes is a suburb of the capital, called Petionville. Best visited by auto, Petionville also has many luxury hotels.

Available to the sports-minded are facilities for fishing, swimming, skin diving and duck hunting.

NASSAU'S MARKET ON WATERFRONT COLORFUL SPOT

The waterfront market, a native trading bazaar that combines all the romantic elements of such far-away places as Bagdad, Singapore or Bombay, is a "must" on any Nassau sightseers list. To this colorful trading district come the fishermen and the farmers of the Bahamas.

Old-time sailing sloops, similar in appearance and design to the sailing vessels used centuries before Christ, are their means of transporting from the far-flung islands to Nassau such tasty delicacies as sugar-loaf pineapple, so sweet and juicy that no sugar is required, apple bananas, tiny fingerlings that taste like a cross between a banana and an apple, and a wide variety of other fruits and vegetables.

Other popular sightseeing spots are the ancient forts that once guarded this Colony's struggle for survival in the New World, Government House, where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor once lived and the present Governor now lives, and the fabulous homes of internationally known figures of finance and society, located to the east and west of Nassau proper.

After first seeing the island by taxi, vacationists in this unique city then have an opportunity to select a number of other forms of transportation to suit their needs. Bicycles of peddle-it-yourself or motor-assisted varieties are for rent at extremely reasonable rates.

But for those who like a leisurely way of getting about, there's nothing like an old-fashioned surrey with the fringe on top. These horse-drawn vehicles, often endowed with drivers whose soft Bahamian accents and colorful vocabularies are reminiscent of the days of centuries past, are for hire at 10 bob an hour, British slang for 10 shillings.

OUTDOOR LIVING

Famous for its outdoor post-office, St. Petersburg, Fla. also has an outdoor bus terminal, outdoor church and several outdoor schools.

Even in conventional schools corridors to classrooms, locker spaces et cetera are in the open air.

PORT OF CURACAO A CRUISE HIGHLIGHT

One of the highlights of every Caribbean cruise is the entrance of the port of Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies. Except for the largest giants of the sea, which dock at Caracas Bay, a few miles east of the city, all ships steam up through the narrow channel, St. Anna Bay, which bisects colorful Willemstad.

Brightly painted, gabled houses, many of them beautiful examples of old Dutch Colonial architecture, line the waterfront on both sides. And without exception, passengers on their first visit take a special interest in that strange contraption, the pontoon bridge, which is pulled away before their eyes, as the ship is skilfully maneuvered between the Napoleonic forts, which in bygone days protected the harbor.

Willemstad's wharves are almost in the city, and its famed shopping center, reminiscent of old Holland, is in walking distance of most docks. Curacao is practically a free port and its many fine stores carry a surprising variety of exquisite merchandise sold at bargain prices.

During the 1955-1956 season more cruises than ever before will include Curacao in their itinerary. The Netherlands West Indies Tourist Bureau reports that 124 cruise ships will call at Curacao between October 1 and March 31. Included in this figure are the regular voyages of Alcoa Steamship Company, Grace Line, Delta Line and P & O Steamship Company. The duration of these cruises varies from 11 to 42 days.

Bermuda Custom.

Vegetables are grown throughout the year in Bermuda. Many families pick strawberries from their gardens for Christmas.

Going to Market

—Delta Air Lines.

Native women in Haiti carry their goods to market in large baskets balanced on their heads.

Good Luck Farm.

The only four-leaf clover farm in the world is located in St. Petersburg. One family has devoted 30 years to the culture of clover plants which grow four, instead of the usual three leaves. Millions of the lucky clovers are sold all over the world.

WINTER SEASON GAY IN FRANCE

France, whose summer attractions are well known to anyone who has ever opened a guide book, will go all out this winter to offer thrift-season tourists a full schedule. From the whirling windmill in Paris' Moulin Rouge nightclub to the waterfront in Marseille, all sections of the French tourist industry will prove in 1955-56 that it is as much fun to go French in the winter months as in the summer.

And, to add a bright note to the picture, there are the price reductions in many of the Paris hotels, which promise to be 10-20% from Dec. 1-March 1. One can live comfortably in Paris for as little as 2,000 francs a day, all expenses included. (Try the small hotels in St. Germain des Pres, across the Pont de Caroussel from the Louvre.)

Parisian Pastimes.

Winter in France with its pleasant combination of cool white ski trails, sunny beaches, theaters, fairs and shows, is just the thing to bring life back into the jaded and tired spirit. In Paris, specific events for the traveler include exhibitions, and ever-changing shows at the Louvre, the Grand Palais, the Museum of Modern Art, and other famed exposition halls. Theaters and night clubs bring out their brightest productions.

In the provinces, of course, there are local sights like the newly opened Folklore Museum at Pont l'Abbe, or the Marine Museum at Lorient, and, at Christmas and New Year, such festivities in the little villages as yule logs and live lambs to proclaim the joys of the holidays.

Season in the Snow.

For sports enthusiasts, there are thrill-packed ski races in the French Alps, with such tourneys as the international ski-jumps in Chamonix, Megeve and Les Contamines, Dec. 30-January 1, the international slalom contests at Morzine, Jan. 17-18, and the military championships at Chamonix, February 4-5. Skiing Americans can participate in graded competitions of their own, and the non-skiers can sit in the heated lodges and sip cognac, or French martinis, or cafe au lait with croissants and butter and marmalade.

Less than two hours away, on the sunny Riviera, is the fabulous Mardi Gras at Nice (Feb. 2-16), this year featuring the mock monarch, the King of Humor. For two riotous weeks, floats, parades, balls and pageants will all be built around the theme of laughter and merriment in the world. An interesting sidelight of this Mardi Gras will be humor as it is interpreted by different nations.

An American accent will be added to Riviera winter celebrations this year as both the Lions and the Rotary Clubs sponsor gala evenings. The Rotary Night will occur in Nice in January, and the International Lions Night in February.

Choose what one will, France has something for everybody in winter as in all other seasons of the year, and the American who takes advantage of these months for a business or vacation trip will find the welcome warm indeed.

Bermuda's Coral and Sea

—Bermuda News Bureau.

Natural Arches, a Bermuda hallmark and one of the wonders of the world, provides the shade for this couple out for a refreshing day at the beach, while their companions play and fish by the sparkling sea that surrounds the Colony.

FLORIDA ATTRACTION

The 1,000,000th vehicle crossed St. Petersburg's famous new Sunshine Skyway 10 months before the time estimated by traffic engineers when the bridge was opened.

Besides the 50-mile saving in distance to south Florida cities, the Skyway is proving to be one of the state's major scenic attractions.

Giant Chairlift.

A giant chairlift, five miles from the resort town of Banff, Alberta, carries visitors 3240 feet up the slopes of Mount Norquay to a lookout point.

SPORTS OF ALL TYPES FEATURED AT DAYTONA BEACH

Blessed with a spectacularly beautiful beach, 23 miles long and 500 feet wide at low tide, the Daytona Beach area offers good living in the sun without that "crowded" feeling.

But there is much more to a Daytona Beach vacation than basking in the sun. There is a full program of sports, active and spectacular.

Since the area is known as the "World's Speed Center," it is natural that "Speed week," beginning Feb. 12 and lasting approximately 15 days, should be one of the highlights of the season.

Golfers will find three exacting 18-hole championship courses at their disposal. Invitational tournaments are held throughout the year. These will be spear-headed by the "Pelican Trail" to be held early in December. The five-day Women's Annual South Atlantic Golf Tournament is scheduled for Feb. 28, followed by the Daytona Beach Invitational in March.

For baseball fans, the area is known as the "world's largest baseball training center" with an opportunity to see, within a very few miles, many of the future baseball "greats."

Boating along the beautiful Halifax river is always popular, whether it be sailboats, yachts, outboards, or the safe Catamarans. Often from the Seabreeze Bridge one may see water skiing, an exhibition of grace, speed and precision on water. There are a multitude of charter boats available for a day of deep-sea fishing in the blue Atlantic.

And if sports lose just a bit of their charm, one may switch to an evening of entertainment in a supper club, or enjoy a stage show, ballet or symphony.

RECORD NUMBERS OF TOURISTS VISIT HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

HONOLULU — The Hawaiian Islands are experiencing the greatest influx of tourists in their history, and the so-called Neighbor islands of the chain are sharing this new interest.

With Honolulu and Waikiki as the focal point of their Hawaiian visit, tourists are fanning out in increasing numbers to vacation resorts on the islands of Hawaii, Kauai and Maui. Each is only a few minutes by air from Honolulu.

New hotels dot the beach at Waikiki and more are planned. There are 1000 new rooms along the famed beach strip this year to account for much of the Hawaii "boom." The Neighbor Islands have followed this trend with new accommodations at principal scenic points. June and July were record months.

One of the most popular tours with visitors, once they have surfed and sunned at Waikiki and toured Oahu, is the Island of Hawaii. One hour by air from Honolulu, it is nearly twice the area of all other islands combined. It offers an unusually wide variety of attractions.

New Materials.

Interesting new construction materials frequently are first put into use at Miami Beach where bright sunshine and year-'round balmy weather permit many innovations impossible in a less pleasant climate.

Miami's Season Off to a Good Start for Winter

Last Month's Special Events Set Pace for Fun-Filled Weeks Ahead; Racing Season Opens Soon.

MIAMI, Fla. — This is the time of year when potential visitors start dreaming about Miami, and Miamians begin getting set for "another record season."

Every season since World War II has been bigger and better than the one before, and local business men and transportation officials see no reason why this year should be an exception. In fact, prospects were never brighter.

The American Legion convention and Notre Dame football game brought thousands of October visitors to town and got the autumn season off to a good start. The resultant publicity is expected to keep the ball rolling until Orange Bowl time.

The usual number of swank new hotels have sprouted among the area's palms since last spring and are being rushed to completion for opening this winter.

Among these is a 12-story apartment hotel on downtown Biscayne boulevard. It is scheduled to open in January, about the same time as the new $5,000,000 department store a few blocks up the boulevard.

The Orange Bowl football stadium has been enlarged by 10,000 seats, to accommodate 76,000 fans. Hialeah Park race track has added 4500 seats to the grandstand.

New attractions making their debut this year include the seaquarium, a paddlewheel showboat, which is now plying the waters of Biscayne bay, and a plush theater-restaurant, scheduled to open in January.

The lone road traversing Everglades National Park will be closed during the 1955-56 winter season while a new road is under construction, but sections of the park still may be visited by car and bus, and tours to the famous rookeries may be made by boat.

Airlines, railroads and bus lines are continuing their low-cost summer package vacation offerings to the Miami area until mid-December, making a Miami "winter" vacation possible for even the most budget conscious individuals.

The city's regatta program was launched this weekend, the dog racing season opens Nov. 14, and Tropical Park ushers in the horse racing campaign Nov. 26.

All sightseeing attractions are open on a year-round basis with prices remaining the same, summer and winter alike. Hotel and motel rates also will remain at low summer levels until December.

CRUISE PORT

Grenada, "spice island" of the West Indies, will move fast into the sunshine-travel picture this coming winter, with cruise ships scheduled to anchor off St. George on 14 different occassions as compared with only four last season.

A small island some 21 miles long and 12 miles wide, Grenada lies about 80 sea miles north-by-west from Trinidad. Principal attractions, beautiful Grand Anse Beach, two miles long and a mere five minutes by car from the peaceful, off-the-beaten-track port of St. George.

Florida Attraction

—Miami Beach News Bureau.

A pretty vacationer holds the product of Miami Beach's first commercial enterprise—coconuts. What is now a popular winter playground was, in the 1880s, a coconut plantation. Tropical fruits such as the banana, avocado and mango thrive in the mild climate.

CHOICE OF ACTIVITIES AT ST. PETERSBURG

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—To dependable summer-like weather and the incomparable gifts of the sea, the Sunshine City has added the best of living facilities and a program of entertainment matched by no other resort in the land.

Accommodations, many of them spanking new, include luxury and "family" hotels in town or on the gulf shore, efficiency apartments, bungalows and cottages, cabanas, motor courts and trailer villages. Due to the phenomenal building boom on Florida's suncoast, the new arrival has a wide choice of rooms and a sure chance of finding what he wants without delay.

This resort teems with opportunities for fishing, from bridges and piers, from rowboats, cruiser and charter party boats. Twenty miles of gulf beaches await the swimmer and sun-bather. The finest of golf courses, tennis courts and facilities for almost any pastime you can name are available to visitors.

Sports tournaments, festivals, cultural and educational programs, musical and dramatic treats, are on the crowded calendar of events. Among the headline attractions are concerts by the Florida Philharmonic and St. Petersburg Civic Orchestras throughout the winter, greyhound and horse racing, cat and dog shows, free open air band concerts, major league baseball training, sailing and power boat regattas, orchid and other flower shows, hobbies exhibition, national men's and women's golf and tennis tournaments and the annual Sunshine Festival and parade.

Florida's newest and most popular scenic attraction is the famous Sunshine Skyway spanning 15 miles of water between St. Petersburg and the mainland, with its beautiful vists of sea and tropical islands. New to this year's vitas will be the six-lane super-highway, U.S. 19, bisecting St. Petersburg from north to south and connecting with the Skyway at the southern tip of this peninsula.

Pirate Lore.

Water oaks standing within the city of Miami bear gashes made by axes or knives which, antiquarians say, are inscriptions made by pirates, giving the number in their party and the direction in which they were bound.

HOLLYWOOD - BY - THE - SEA CELEBRATES 30TH BIRTHDAY

Nov. 28 will mark the thirtieth birthday of Hollywood By-the-Sea, Fla., and the resort town has planned a year packed full of special events and anniversary programs.

Hollywood is located between Ft. Lauderdale and Miami Beach. This central location on the Florida "Gold Coast" along with the city's seven miles of excellent public beach accounts for much of its popularity among visitors with families and those wishing a wide range of diversified activities.

NEW NONSTOP FLIGHT

Two "firsts" in air travel will be instituted by the inauguration on Dec. 1 of daily nonstop daylight coach service between St. Louis and Miami. Eastern Air Lines' new service will mark the first time the two cities have ever been joined by regularly scheduled nonstip air transportation, and in addition will bring St. Louisans their first daylight air coach service to Florida.

The new schedule calls for a four-engine Douglas Skymaster originating at St. Louis at 2:45 p.m., arriving in Miami at 8:48 p.m. The return flight, also nonstop, will leave Miami at 8:30 a.m., arriving St. Louis at 1:07 p.m.

FLORIDA RESORTS & HOTELS

FESTIVALS GET UNDER WAY IN DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

In November all cities in the Dominican Republic shake off the last vestiges of summer lethargy to load their calendars with concerts, dances, exhibitions, plays and public festivals.

The late autumn calendar begins with the festival of San Andres on Nov. 30. St. Andrew the Apostle was St. Peter's brother and a great favorite with Dominicans, who customarily give his day over to merry-making in public and private parties.

Special festivities take place in and around Boca Chica, the Riviera-like resort town 30 miles east of the capital facing the Bay of San Andres, an arm of the Caribbean. Dominicans dress in white on this day, keeping alive a tradition going back to the Spanish conquest.

First Airliner.

The vast network of airlines which now enmesh the globe had their beginning at St. Petersburg, Fla., on Jan. 1, 1914. On that date the world's first airliner took off on its first flight from St. Petersburg to Tampa, operating on regular schedule for several months.

Anyone for a Bit of Sunning?

—Miami Beach News Bureau.

Here is just the spot to acquire that coveted Florida tan. Sundecks around pool and cabanas are popular relaxation areas for guests at many Miami Beach hotels. This scene, with the broad Atlantic in the background, is typical of winter days in this seaside playland.

Climate, Fashions, Sports Attract Miami Beach Visitors

Resort Prepared to Entertain and House Winter Vacationers; New Construction Provides Ample Accommodations.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Blue, sunlit seas, palm-shaded beaches, new things to see and more hotel and apartment accommodations will welcome winter visitors back to Miami Beach this season.

While every indication points to a record-breaking winter in number of vacationers, this resort capital is well prepared to house and entertain the anticipated increase in sun-seeking guests. Three new oceanfront hotels and additions to several others have added more than 1000 rooms to Miami Beach's former total of 29,000. New apartment construction has brought the city's apartment unit total to 22,000.

Climate-wise, fashion-wise, sports-wise and entertainment-wise, the season is at its beginning. November brings the first sharp freezes to most sections of the nation, but in Miami Beach this merely serves to contrast sub-tropic warmth with the winters of the not-too-temperate temperate zone.

The styles for next spring and summer already have made their bow here, with designers having exhibited their lines of afternoon, cocktail and swimwear in major October showings. This month and next the smart shops in Miami Beach will have the new lines on their counters. Additional shows will be staged in the larger hotels throughout the winter.

In Field of Sports.

The field of sports here is both varied and summery, with football in the light now as the area's greatest concession to winter entertainment. Bucknell, Alabama and Florida games remain on the University of Miami schedule, with the Orange Bowl classic ringing down the curtain with the start of the new year.

Racing, both thoroughbred and greyhound, returns this month. Inaugural of the floodlighted kennel club circuit is set for Nov. 15, with one or more of the four tracks in the area scheduled to operate until June. Horse racing's first post call will be blown Nov. 28 at Tropical Park, with Hialeah and Gulfstream following in that order with their 40-day meetings. The jai alai dates are from Dec. 14 through April 10.

Swimming golf, fishing, tennis and boating are all-year recreations at Miami Beach, with one or more in the plans of practically every vacationer. Eight shoreside parks provide beaches for visitors not staying in hotels or apartments with swimming pools and cabana clubs. Two public and one private golf courses are within the city limits, with numerous additional courses in the area. Tennis can be played on either public or private courts. Fishing can be done from piers and sea walls, small boats in Biscayne bay and on trim sports cruisers in the Gulf Stream.

Recreational Program.

Numerous special events are scheduled in the Miami Beach auditorium, including University of Miami symphony concerts, basketball, boxing and variety shows. The city's recreation department operates a daily program that includes activities for youngsters as well as adults in three community centers. Visitors may participate at little or no cost in dancing, craft studies, card games, musicals and other events at the centers. Night club entertainment here in winter includes many of the best known stars of the theatrical world.

Short trips around Miami Beach by either private car or bus will take vacationers to many points of interest and attractions, such as the new $2,300,000 seaquarium, the parrot, monkey and orchid jungles, a unique serpentarium and Fairchild Tropical Garden with its rare collection of palms and other tropical plants.

TOURIST 'MUSTS' ARE ALL LOCATED NEAR ORLANDO

Many perennial visitors to Florida have stuck close to the coasts, either east or west, and thereby missed one of the most charming regions of the Sunshine State. And that is the lush, tropical Central Florida citrus kingdom. In this comparative "high country" section of rolling hills and sparkling blue lakes lies the nation's seventh fastest growing city . . . Orlando, the "City Beautiful."

Located virtually in the center of the Florida peninsula at the intersection of U.S. Highways 441 and 17-92, Orlando caters to some 50,000 winter visitors each season, supplementing its scenic beauty and metropolitan advantages with a wide variety of entertainment for all ages.

The phenomenal growth of this citrus empire includes thousands of modern accommodations, and the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce boasts one of the finest winter-visitor activities programs in the state. Concerts, lectures, tournaments, dances, variety shows, parades, sports activities, and all types of social events are already scheduled for the coming season.

With a mild, equable climate (winter average, 64.1 degrees), Orlando offers the winter visitor the opportunity to engage in his or her own particular brand of relaxation and even provides the facilities for them. Tennis, golf, shuffleboard, bowling, lawn bowling, horseback riding, skeet shooting, water skiing, swimming, sailing, fishing, hunting and boating . . . all are available. There are dozens of beautiful parks surrounding the 47 lakes within the city where one can just take it easy, perhaps feeding the swans on the water or the seagulls which wheel and soar through the great oaks.

Orlando's strategic location is in itself a definite appeal to the winter visitor who wishes to stay in one place and see all of Florida's wonderful attractions. All the tourist "musts" are located within an easy drive of Orlando.

Textile 'Factory' in Guatemala

'Winter Olympics' Spotlight Europe's Many Snow Sports

THE first snow flurries high in the Dolomites and the Alps are a reminder that Europe's greatest winter sports season is just ahead. World attention will be focused, of course, on the Seventh Winter Olympic Games to be held Jan. 26-February 5 amid the spectacular mountain scenery of Cortina d'Ampezzo in the Italian Dolomites. But there also will be scores of other international snow sports competitions from Norway to Turkey, beginning at Christmastime and continuing well into the spring.

Bookings are already pouring in for the Olympics, reports the European Travel Commission, and by the time the traditional Olympic flame is lighted in Cortina's Ice stadium, hundreds of vacationing sports fans from the United States are expected to be on hand. Included in the elaborate international program will be 15 ski competitions (downhill, slalom, cross-country and jumping); bobsledding; figure-skating; ice hockey and speed skating on the mirror-smooth surface of Lake Misurina.

In the village of Cortina d'Ampezzo, new buildings are going up on all sides to house the visiting athletes and the spectator crowds. Accomodations will range from luxury hotels crowded with the great and near-great to simple, inexpensive inns and hostels where a few dollars will go a long way.

Dozen Countries Offer Sports.

While the Olympics constitute the single most important coming winter sports attraction, at least a dozen European countries will offer magnificent snow sports facilities and major international competitions.

Even now, United States travel agents are featuring a wide variety of all-expense transatlantic "ski-tours" designed to offer vacationists a chance to attend several of these events and enjoy their fill of skiing and skating at Europe's top resorts. Austria, next-door neighbor to Italy and Cortina, will offer a parade of top-flight events ranging from the Jan. 5 Berg Isel International Ski Jumping Competition at Innsbruck to the Austrian Ski Championships for 1956, Feb. 17-March 2, at Leinz, East Tyrol. Germany, long the mecca of the skiing-skating-bobsledding fraternity, plans scores of events such as the New Year's day Austrian-German Ski-Jumping Competition at Garmisch-Partenkirchen and the International Winter Sports Week (Feb. 23-26) at Braunlage.

Switzerland, whose spectacular mountainsides are crisscrossed with ski runs and festooned with lifts, tows and funiculars, boasts a snow season crowded with attractions such as the International Ice Hockey Tournaments at Davos (Dec. 26-31), and the Planachaux Giant Slalom at Champery on Jan. 29. Winter sports highlights in France will include the January International Skiing Week in the resorts of the Mont Blanc region, including the famous Emile Allais Cup Ski Race at Megeve, Jan. 14-15. For hurried vacationists who can hope for only a brief taste of snow sports in a French mountain resort, there will be ski trains leaving Paris on winter weekends.

Norway's Ski Meet.

Norway's famed Holmenkollen Ski Meet, to be held outside Oslo from March 1-4, promises to be one of the largest and most important events of its kind in the world. Elsewhere in Scandinavia, many of Finland's best ski events are slated for late February and March, among them the Salpausselka International Winter Games at Lahti, beginning about Feb. 23. Cross-country ski enthusiasts will do well to make a note of the annual 55-mile Vasa Ski Race from Salen to Mora in Sweden next March 6. This is Sweden's top ski event.

The month of march will also witness outstanding winter sports competitions far on the other side of Europe. In Yugoslavia, for example, there will be the International Ski Jumping Contest at Planica, on March 6, and the Jahorine Cup Competitions near Sarajevo at the end of the month. In nearby Turkey, the winter sports season at Bursa opens on Feb. 20. This resort and spa has been a popular vacation spot for over a thousand years.

Missouri's Autumn Show

Favorable Weather Brings Best Colors Since 1952

By ROBERT E. HANNON
of the PICTURES Staff

MISSOURI has been aflame with color this autumn. Veteran viewers of nature's annual art show regard this year's presentation as the finest since the pre-drouth spectacle of 1952. Trees and shrubs, whether in city yard or farmer's pasture, seemed to take on unusual radiance. But the most dazzling displays were found in the tree-banked hills of the Ozarks.

Highways leading out of St. Louis were crowded with sight-seers the past two weekends. State parks, where nature retains an unspoiled loveliness, have attracted unusually large numbers of visitors who combined late season picnics with scenery viewing.

Nature began preparing for the fall exhibit last spring by sending abundant rains which caused trees and shrubs to take on a lush growth of leaves. Additional rains in early fall revived the foliage after two dry months. Gradually dropping temperatures late last month brought about the right conditions for the flora to start converting starches to sugar in preparation for winter. From such involved plant chemistry came the gorgeous colors.

of the PICTURES Staff

A flaming maple stands in solitary majesty in a farm field in the Clark National Forest area of Iron County. Rail fence heightens the bucolic charm of the scene.

Barren of leaves, the fruit-laden branches of a native persimmon tree stand out against the bright blue of a cloudless autumn sky.

To Missouri farm boys, persimmons are synonymous with fall. This tree was found in Cuivre River State Park, near Troy.

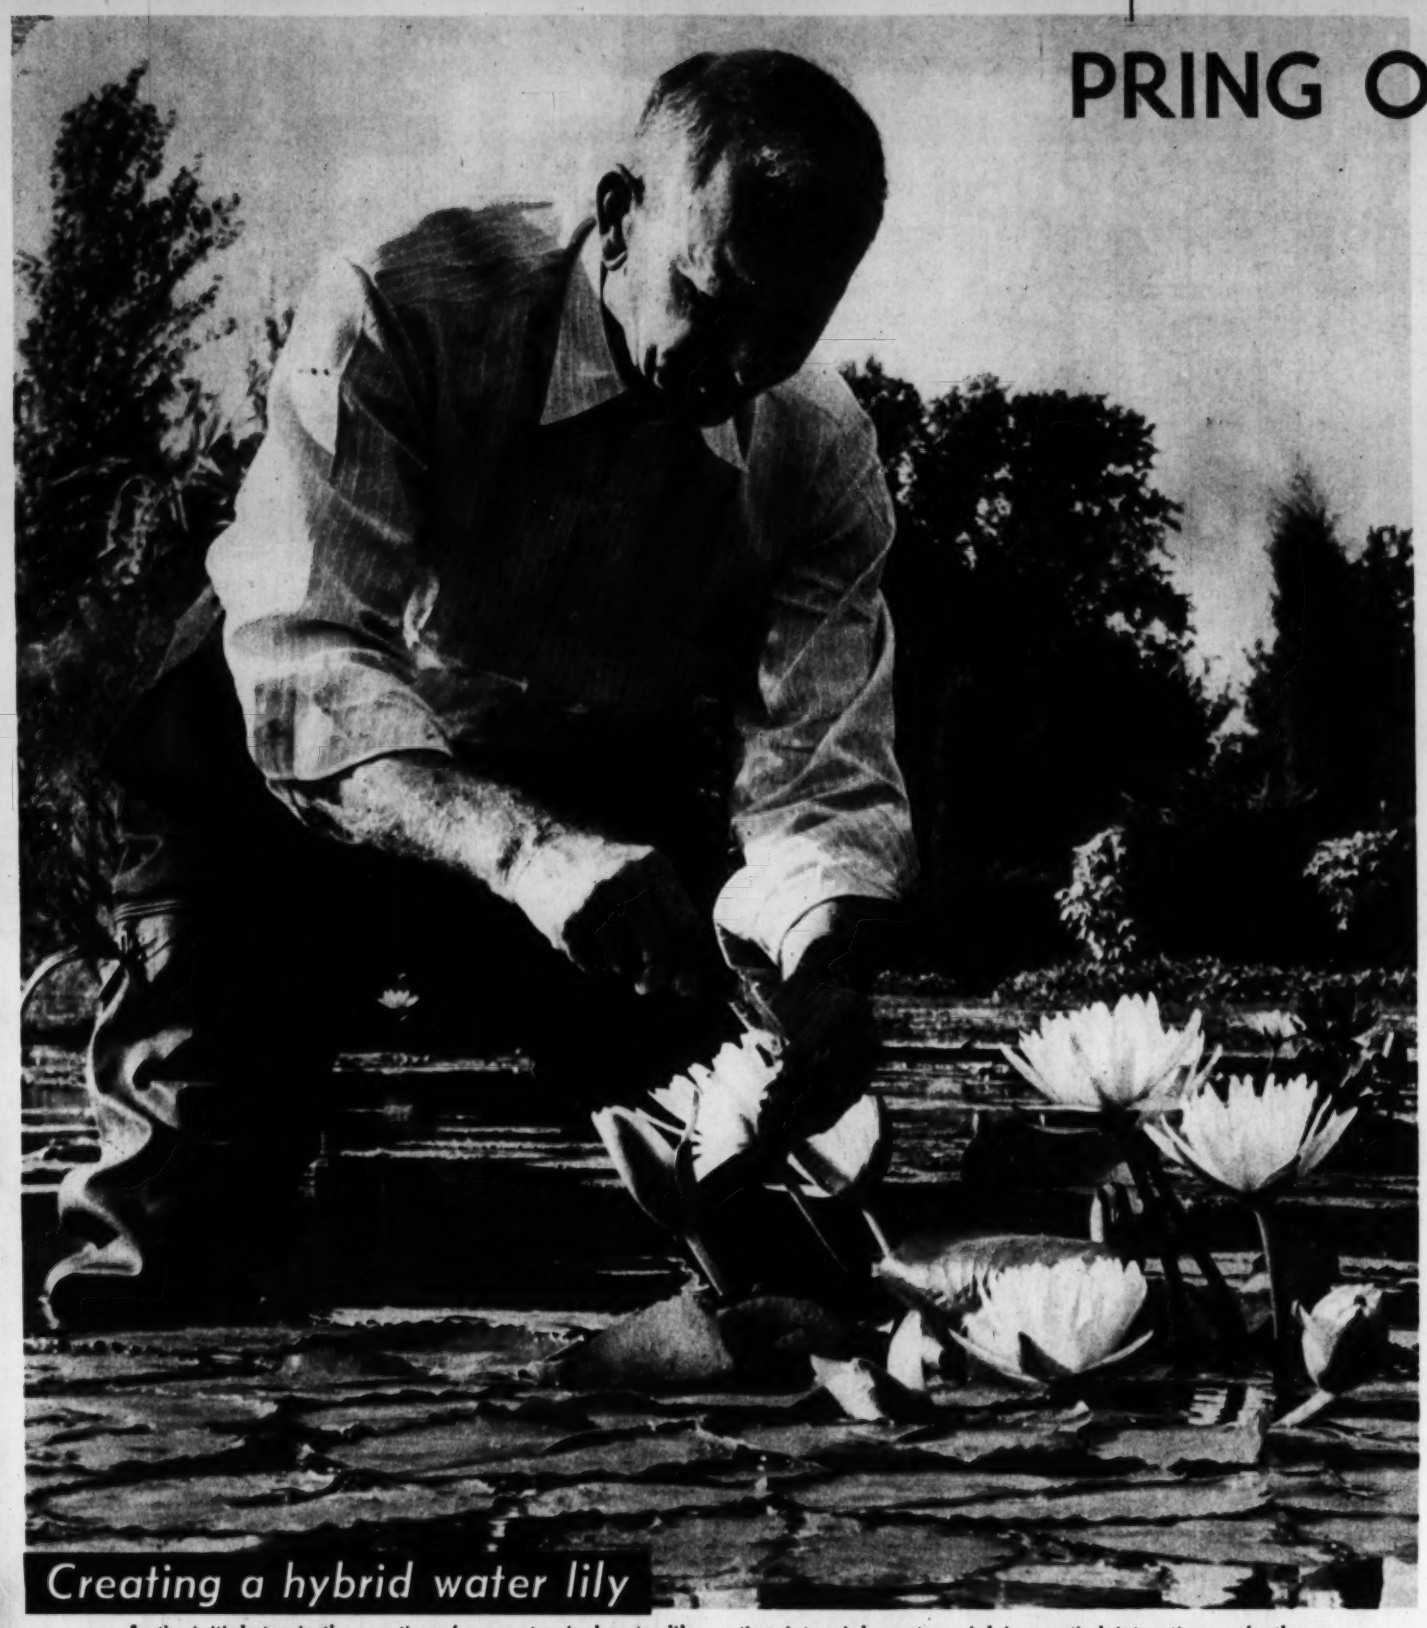
PRING OF SHAW'S GARDEN



Creating a hybrid water lily

As the initial step in the creation of a new tropical water lily hybrid, George Pring wades into a garden lily pool to remove pollen-laden stamens from a bloom. Stamens are put into a small vial, then dumped into the cup-shaped stigma of another flower to pollinate it. Below, close-up of operation. Left, stamens being removed with tweezers for putting into vial; center, vial is emptied into stigma of other flower; right, the ripened seed pod after three weeks, at which time seeds are collected to be sprouted in heated tanks in greenhouse during winter. Put out in May, plants bloom in July. Water lily shown is Aviator Pring, named after a son, Bradford, who was killed in a plane crash in 1948.

Question by mail

In his small, rather severe-looking office just inside the garden main gate, Pring examines a leaf fragment sent him for identification. It was a basswood leaf. He spends most of his time among the garden's plants; one of the chief office time-takers is answering written or telephoned questions.

By OLIVER F. FINK of the PICTURES Staff

AROUND THE ST. LOUIS AREA George H. Pring, superintendent of Shaw's Garden, is the man most residents think about when they want to know what ails their flowers, shrubs, lawns, or other greenery. Nationally and internationally at botanical gardens and among horticulturalists he is thought of as the world's outstanding water lily hybridist. He has, in years of patient, thorough, skilled plant breeding research, introduced 37 new hybrid lilies, now distributed throughout the world.

Pring's reputation as a plant breeding authority is far from being confined to water lilies. He works in a very broad field of horticulture as an originator and propagator of new and unusual kinds of plants. An orchid expert for some 50 years, he has developed 10 outstanding hybrid orchids that are registered with the American Orchid Society—an orchid social register—in addition to many unnamed hybrids. Shaw's Garden has the top orchid collection in the country. St. Louisans get a glimpse of some of its hybrids each year in the Veiled Prophet Queen's bouquet.

Plant breeding and propagating are carried on by Pring as his hobby—which means it is carried on in connection with his superintendent's job at the garden. For to Pring hobby and job are one and the same—horticulture. His complete absorption in that science has even infiltrated his family. Mrs. Pring is active in garden clubs and work related to Shaw's Garden; their two sons have made floriculture their careers, and their daughter is married to a botanist.

As superintendent of Shaw's Garden (or the Missouri Botanical Garden, its official name), Pring's job-hobby covers a lot more than plant research. He supervises all the horticultural activities of the garden, with a "task force" of some 20 employes. He has charge of the orchid development laboratory at the Gray Summit Arboretum. He is in constant demand as a speaker before garden and civic clubs and other organizations, makes radio and television talks. He receives—and answers—innumerable mail and telephone inquiries, has written many articles for national magazines. In his search for new plants he has made eight collecting expeditions to Europe and four to South and Central America. And for most of his reading he turns to botanical books and to garden papers from all parts of the world, as a way to keep up with the latest horticultural developments.

Pring was born on December 2, 1885, in Devonshire, England. His father, a builder, wanted him to be an architect, but at 14 young Pring won a scholarship as "garden boy" to the famous Kew Gardens (Royal Botanic Gardens). Five years later he received a Kew studentship, graduating, at the age of 20, as Kew's youngest graduate on record.

In 1906 Pring came to the United States to become foreman in the orchid and exotic plants department of Shaw's Garden. At that time the garden had about 300 orchid plants—now, largely through Pring's efforts, it has more than 50,000 orchids, in 1200 varieties. Because of the garden's pre-eminence in orchids, the first world orchid conference, held last year, was in St. Louis.

Promoted to floriculturalist in 1918 and horticulturalist a year later, Pring became superintendent in 1928. He had already added water lily breeding to his research in 1912. Orchids continue a top interest, but a hybrid orchid requires six to seven years from seed to bloom to show results. Pring wanted faster results; water lilies bloom the year after hybridized seed is produced.

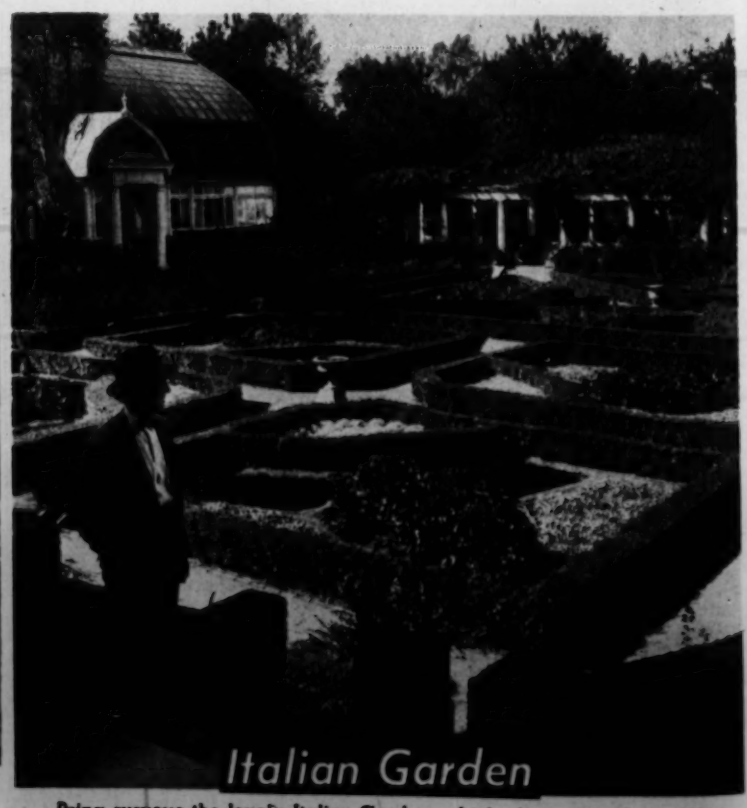
Preparing for spring

A major fall job is preparing for the next spring's planting at the garden by storing bulbs and tubers, propagating new plants in greenhouses from seeds, division, and by other means. Here Pring and Gardener Frank Korte check water lily tubers for shipping to other gardens and for storing. They are kept in sand. Garden winters about 500 lily bulbs a year.

Plants for next year's outside displays are propagated in a greenhouse. Pring is lifting rooted cuttings from sand for transplanting into soil as Gardener Charles Kreher watches. The propagation involves mostly tender plants, is started before frost. One of Pring's two assistants, Paul Kohl, is responsible for outside floral displays, also designs the fall and winter flower shows. The other, Ladislaus Cutak, has direct supervision of the exotic greenhouses.



Italian Garden

Pring surveys the lovely Italian Garden, which alone uses about 8000 plants each year. At left background is the cactus house. Pring has received a number of coveted botanical awards for his work, including the National Association of Gardeners' Gold Medal for originating a strain of day-blooming water lilies, and the Thomas Roland Medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for plant breeding.

He Is World's Top Originator of Hybrid Water Lilies, International Authority on Orchids—And Consultant to the Area's Home Gardeners

Hybridizing an insect catcher

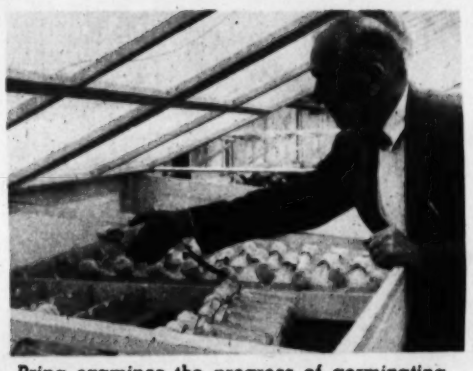
In addition to his work with lily and orchid hybrids, Pring has originated and named 10 new hybrids of the pitcher plants, or nepenthes. Here he transfers pollen from one nepenthe to the stigma of another in a controlled cross pollination. Nepenthes are insectivorous (insect-eating); two insect catchers dangle at left. Shaw's Garden nepenthes form the country's outstanding collection.

Conference at headquarters

Dr. Edgar Anderson, director of Shaw's Garden, and Pring discuss garden affairs in Dr. Anderson's office. The office is in the living room of the old downtown home of the garden's founder, Henry Shaw, the house having been moved to garden. When Pring started with the garden Dr. William Trelease was director—the garden's first. Dr. Trelease was succeeded by Dr. George T. Moore, Dr. Anderson's immediate predecessor and now director emeritus.

Orchid research

Practical research toward the creation of new hybrids in the orchid laboratory at Gray Summit. Pring uses a microscope to examine the embryo of a minute hybrid orchid seed and determine if seed is fertile. An orchid seed pod lies on table next to microscope. Orchidologist Robert J. Gillespie, in charge of laboratory and orchid department, holds a seed incubator flask containing an agar agar germinating base. After fertility of seeds is determined, seeds are sown in the flask, which is sealed.



Pring examines the progress of germinating seeds in a greenhouse incubator. Each flask holds hundreds of sprouts. Below, after eight months of incubation, hybrid orchid sprouts are removed from a flask by Gillespie with a handling needle, separated and put into a dish of water before transplanting in the community pot in foreground.

New orchid

Pring and Gillespie admire a new hybrid orchid—the Ellen A. Ricker, developed at the garden—the result of seven years of patient care and work. After a hybrid has been created, additional plants are propagated by division. Seeds can't be used because they will not grow true to type. On one six-month trip to the Andes in Colombia, Pring collected 4000 orchid plants for Shaw's Garden. Now the garden sends large numbers of hybrid plants to educational institutions and botanical gardens around the world.

Visitor

A visitor to the garden from Oregon, seeing and recognizing Pring, asks him questions about the golden Manihot, a unique member of the tapioca family he introduced from England in 1939. Such questions on the garden grounds are frequent. He refers to his talks and question-answering as the public relations and educational part of his job.

Diagnosis

Pring in his role of plant doctor—another phase of his job—diagnoses the apparent ailment of an orchid brought in by David Geddis Jr., a commercial florist. A shipment of orchids to Geddis was partly closed on arrival; the florist wanted to know why. Pring advised him the plants had probably been exposed to ethylene gas during refrigerated shipment. Garden club members often bring ailing plants to meetings attended by Pring so he can diagnose the trouble and prescribe treatment.

At home

Pring and his wife, Isabelle, in the living room of their home, the brick superintendent's cottage on the 75-acre garden grounds. They were married in 1910—they had met on shipboard on the way to Europe. Mrs. Pring is chairman of "Operation Henry Shaw Home"—a project of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs for providing hostesses every day of the year at Shaw's old country home in the garden.

CYPRUS—ISLAND OF CONTROVERSY

The British-Greek-Turkish dispute over the future of the British crown colony of Cyprus erupted into riots last weekend in six towns on the controversial island and in Athens. In all cases fighting broke out after demonstrations marking the fifteenth anniversary of Greece's rejection of Mussolini's World War II (1940) ultimatum. Demonstrators in Nicosia, Cyprus (photo above), are shown carrying Greek flags in parade that defied ban against celebrating the ultimatum anniversary. In demonstrators' clashes with police and British army units, casualties occurred on both sides. The Nicosia violence was sparked by a church service marking the anniversary and conducted at the city's biggest church by Archbishop Makarios, stormy petrel of the Enosis (Union With Greece) movement.

Associated Press Photos except as noted

In Athens, the Greek capital's main street, Venizelos avenue, is solidly jammed with students demonstrating in favor of the union of Cyprus with Greece. Anti-British slogans, shown on placards, were chanted by the demonstrators. The Athens government contends that if a plebiscite were held in Cyprus, the estimated 400,000 Greek-speaking residents of the island would swing the decision for union with Greece. Turkey (there are 100,000 Turkish-speaking Cypriots) wants the island kept by the British unless it is returned to Turkey. Turkey owned the strategic Mediterranean island for 350 years before losing it to Britain in World War I.

Some of the Athens demonstrators watch from steps of the Old Parliament building as others employ stones, and one an iron bar, to hold police at bay. Police were driven back in their first charge, finally restored order after the arrival of strong reinforcements. Thirty-nine persons, including 13 policemen, were injured. The Cyprus issue is considered a time bomb that could trigger chain reaction trouble through the volatile Balkans, possibly upsetting Balkan end of NATO defense perimeter. To Cyprus, which is now its Middle East headquarters, Britain recently dispatched several battalions of crack commandos.

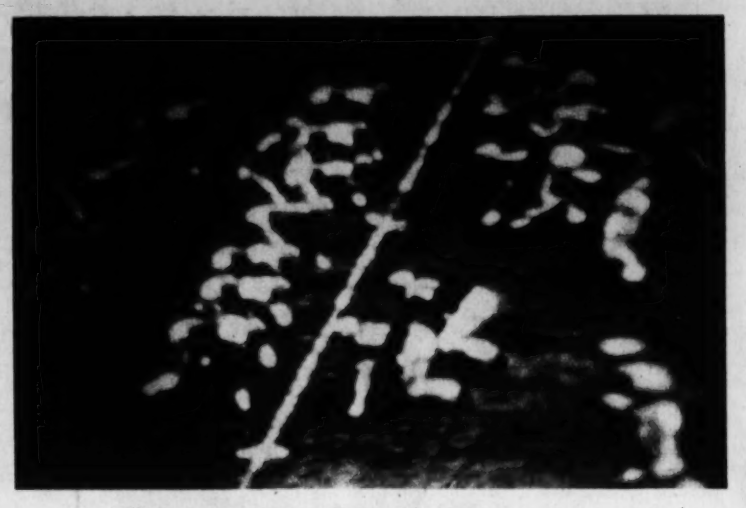
BALLROOM FOOTBALL

Fans Have Fun in Comfort at Closed-Circuit TV Games



Players are seen almost life-size on 9-by-12-foot projection screen.

WHILE SOME 60,000 FANS in Notre Dame's home stadium endured a steady rain to see the Irish beat Navy in an exciting football contest, thousands of other spectators sat in the comfort of hotel ballrooms in various cities throughout the country enjoying the same game. Like those shown here in St. Louis' Sheraton Hotel, the remote spectators were given a close-up view of the action by closed-circuit television. Infected by crowd enthusiasm, they cheered, clapped, moaned, jumped to their feet and otherwise deported themselves as though actually in the stadium.

A form of pay-as-you-see video, the football show—second of three to be put on by Notre Dame—played to standing-room-only crowds in nine cities, despite a $4 admission fee. More than 400 attended here; some 1500 overflowed the Sheraton ballroom in Chicago.

Barred from unrestricted commercial television for home consumption by N.C.A.A. rules, Notre Dame is experimenting with the closed-circuit medium. It originates the telecasts, takes all box office receipts. The hotels cash in by selling the spectators food and drink.

LITTLE AUTOS

While most American automobile manufacturers turn out larger models with more chrome and stepped-up horsepower each year, European car makers continue to meet a demand for small autos. The German-made Messerschmitt — designed by Willy Messerschmitt of aeronautical fame — is shown in Paris by an American acting couple, Tony Curtis and his wife, Janet Leigh. The Messerschmitt's transparent top is lifted to the right side for entering the auto. It seats two persons, one behind the other. In the photo below, the three-wheel car which is shaped in the form of a teardrop is shown with the combination top and door closed for traveling.

An Italian car, the Isetta Velam, is inspected at the International Motor Show in Paris. This two-passenger model has four wheels, the two at rear close together to eliminate differential gears. Auto opens from front, has a hinged steering wheel for easier entrance and exit. The Velam is made in France under an Italian franchise.

Eruption of Sakurajima, on Japanese Island, Fills Air With Smoke, Stones

Black smoke surges up out of the 3689-foot cone of Sakurajima volcano on Kyushu, Japan's southernmost island in Kagoshima Bay. Stones hurled from the eruption injured four college students who were climbing nearby, two of them seriously. Sakurajima, one of three volcanic craters on Kyushu Island, has a long and violent history. It has erupted 27 times since its first recorded break-out in 1468. The most fierce eruption was in 1914. The latest series of eruptions—five in three days—was Sakurajima's first reactivation since 1946. A cameraman, working from a fishing boat, made this picture of smoke, gas and stones being belched from the volcano's crater which is 200 feet deep and 1200 feet wide at its summit. Kyushu's two other craters are not active.

HISTORY. Each of the four Pomerede allegoricals has a title. Research has turned up nothing concerning why the artist used certain symbols as he did.

KNOWLEDGE. Allegorical figures are nine feet high; panels are about 20 feet high, five feet wide. At base of each is gilded plaster replica of Missouri state seal.

COURTHOUSE RESTORATION

Murals at Top of Dome, Badly Damaged by Time, Are Authentically Copied

By CHARLES MENEES of the PICTURES Staff

IN RESTORING THE MURALS that adorn the rotunda of the Old Courthouse at Broadway and Market street, it was discovered that those highest in the dome were beyond repair. These were four tall allegorical figures painted by Leon Pomerede in 1870 at the dome corners, and a band of eight alternating portraits and emblems executed 10 years later by Ettore S. Miragoli inside the "lantern," or summit, of the dome.

After cleaning off as much as a half-inch of dust and grime, the murals were found to be badly cracked, peeled or faded. Working patiently on an intricate set of scaffolds rising 145 feet, Walter Nitkiewicz, museum preservation specialist of the National Park Service, and eight Washington University art students removed the painted-over plastering, a chunk at a time. After the pieces were fitted together again for copying purposes, the murals were painted anew on canvases that were fixed to new plaster in original positions.

In final stages of restoration are the rotunda's famous oval murals by Charles Wimar and others by his half-brother, August Becker. These paintings, dating to the early 1860s, are between the dome's third and fourth balconies. When they are restored, public tours of the building will again include the rotunda which, itself, is being refurbished.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

INSTRUCTION. Original Pomerede murals had probably been untouched since Miragoli retinted them in 1880. Pomerede, painter of elaborate designs on wagons, was one of Wimar's early teachers.

LAW. Public will not be allowed this close to these murals, which are above fourth balcony. Guided tours of the rotunda will go no higher than the second balcony.

Barbecued Chicken Prepared Indoors

1. Davis puts flour, salt and pepper in a paper bag. In this he shakes the chicken, a few pieces at a time, until pieces are well coated. Chicken is then browned in butter.

2. Chopped onion is put into a pan as are the other ingredients for making the sauce. Mixture is cooked 10 minutes.

3. Olives which have been cut into slices are then added to the cooked sauce.

By MERNA LAZIER

IN THE COLD DAYS AHEAD when longing for summer cookery may set in, a top-of-the-stove barbecue is a satisfying substitute. C. R. Davis, a retired oil company executive formerly of St. Louis and now a resident of Fort Pierce, Florida, prepared an indoor-cooked chicken barbecue while here visiting his niece, Therese Dawson.

Davis first flours and seasons the pieces of chicken by shaking them in a paper bag containing flour and seasonings. He then chops onion rather fine and combines it in a pan with brown sugar, paprika, salt, mustard, chili powder, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, tomato juice and water, and cooks it for 10 minutes as a sauce. Sliced olives are then added to the sauce. Chicken is sauteed in butter or margarine until golden brown, then sauce is poured over it in the pan. Pan is covered and chicken is simmered for about 45 minutes.

Chicken is served in a large bowl-type platter with the sauce in which it has simmered poured on top. Rye bread is served with this.

INGREDIENTS: For sauce use one-fourth cup chopped onion, one tablespoon brown sugar, one teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon each of salt and dry mustard, one-fourth teaspoon each of chili powder and Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth cup each of water and wine vinegar, one cup tomato juice, one-half cup sliced stuffed olives. Three and one-half pounds frying chicken cut into serving pieces, about three-fourths cup flour and salt and pepper to taste for coating chicken and about one-fourth cup butter or margarine for browning.

Photos by EDWARD J. BURKHARDT of the PICTURES Staff

4. Sauce is poured over the browned chicken. Chicken in sauce is cooked, with pan covered, over very low heat for about 45 minutes.

5. Chicken with sauce poured on top is served in a deep platter. The amounts given will serve from four to six persons.

Sentry Training for German Shepherds

Police Dogs, Each With One Master, Schooled to Guard Strategic Air Command Bases

A training maneuver for German shepherd sentries at Barksdale Air Force Base near Shreveport, Louisiana. Airman in center, known as the "agitator" in such exercises, is the target of the snarling, snapping dogs that strain on their leashes. Dog at left has jaws tightly gripped on an old jacket held at other end by agitator, who wears protective padding on his left arm. If dogs were not held in check, they would rush the man strange to them.

GERMAN SHEPHERD DOGS are doing sentry duty at United States Strategic Air Command bases throughout the world. Their presence as an added precaution against sabotage at these bases is announced by the sign: "Beware! This Area Patrolled by Sentry Dogs!" The stranger approaching one of these dogs on duty would be doing so at the risk of being savagely attacked.

Each dog is given an intensive eight-week training course with a military master at Fort Carson, Colorado. Obedience instruction for both man and dog is emphasized the first three weeks. The airman becomes proficient in handling and controlling his dog, and the animal cultivates unswerving allegiance to his master. It will obey commands from no other person. Hours of sentry duty and patrolling exercises occupy the remaining five weeks of schooling for the dog. Upon "graduation" the animal is literally qualified for the name commonly given its breed—police dog.

From Fort Carson the man-dog teams go to SAC bases where sentries are utilized. They become inseparable units in guarding jet bombers. If the man becomes ill or goes on leave, the dog is temporarily withdrawn from duty. Should the airman leave the service, the dog has to be retrained with a new master.

United States Air Force Photos

Two members of the sentry dog detachment at Barksdale stick grimly on the trail of a simulated intruder despite distracting acrid fumes from a smoke generator. This is another of the exacting tests the dogs must pass before qualifying for security patrol work. Barksdale pioneered the Strategic Air Command's sentry dog program.

Guard duty team of the Ninety-third Air Police Squadron, Ninety-third Bombardment Wing, marches past a SAC "Stratofortress" at Castle Air Force Base, California. Handlers give sentry dogs six to eight hours training, including marching, each week in addition to regular guard duties. Sentry dogs are best adapted to lonely posts, are used mainly at night when their sensitive hearing and sense of smell can be fully exploited.

Airman First Class Joseph W. Kienath of Marion, Illinois, relaxes with his dog partner "Rex" at the Barksdale base. Airman Kienath is the only person who can safely get that close to the dog's teeth. On SAC posts, a fully trained man-dog team can replace as many as five police.

ESCAPING A FALLING WALL

A Philadelphia fireman runs to get out from under a mass of tumbling bricks and debris from a wall blown out by an explosion at a fire. One fireman was killed and 11 other firemen injured when, while fighting the fire from a sidewalk below, they were trapped under fragments of the wall. The explosion was set off when flames in a lamp manufacturing plant reached stored lacquers and solvents. It blew out the upper front section of the three-story building.

EPIDERMIS ART IN TOKYO

Father and son operators of a tattoo establishment in Tokyo display the kind of work they do as the father, Goro Ichida, using an electrically operated needle, imprints an intricate design on the back of a customer. The elaborate tattoos of Japan, such as those displayed by the shop's proprietors, tell pictographic stories. Tattooing was formerly outlawed in Japan, is now legal under the new Japanese constitution.

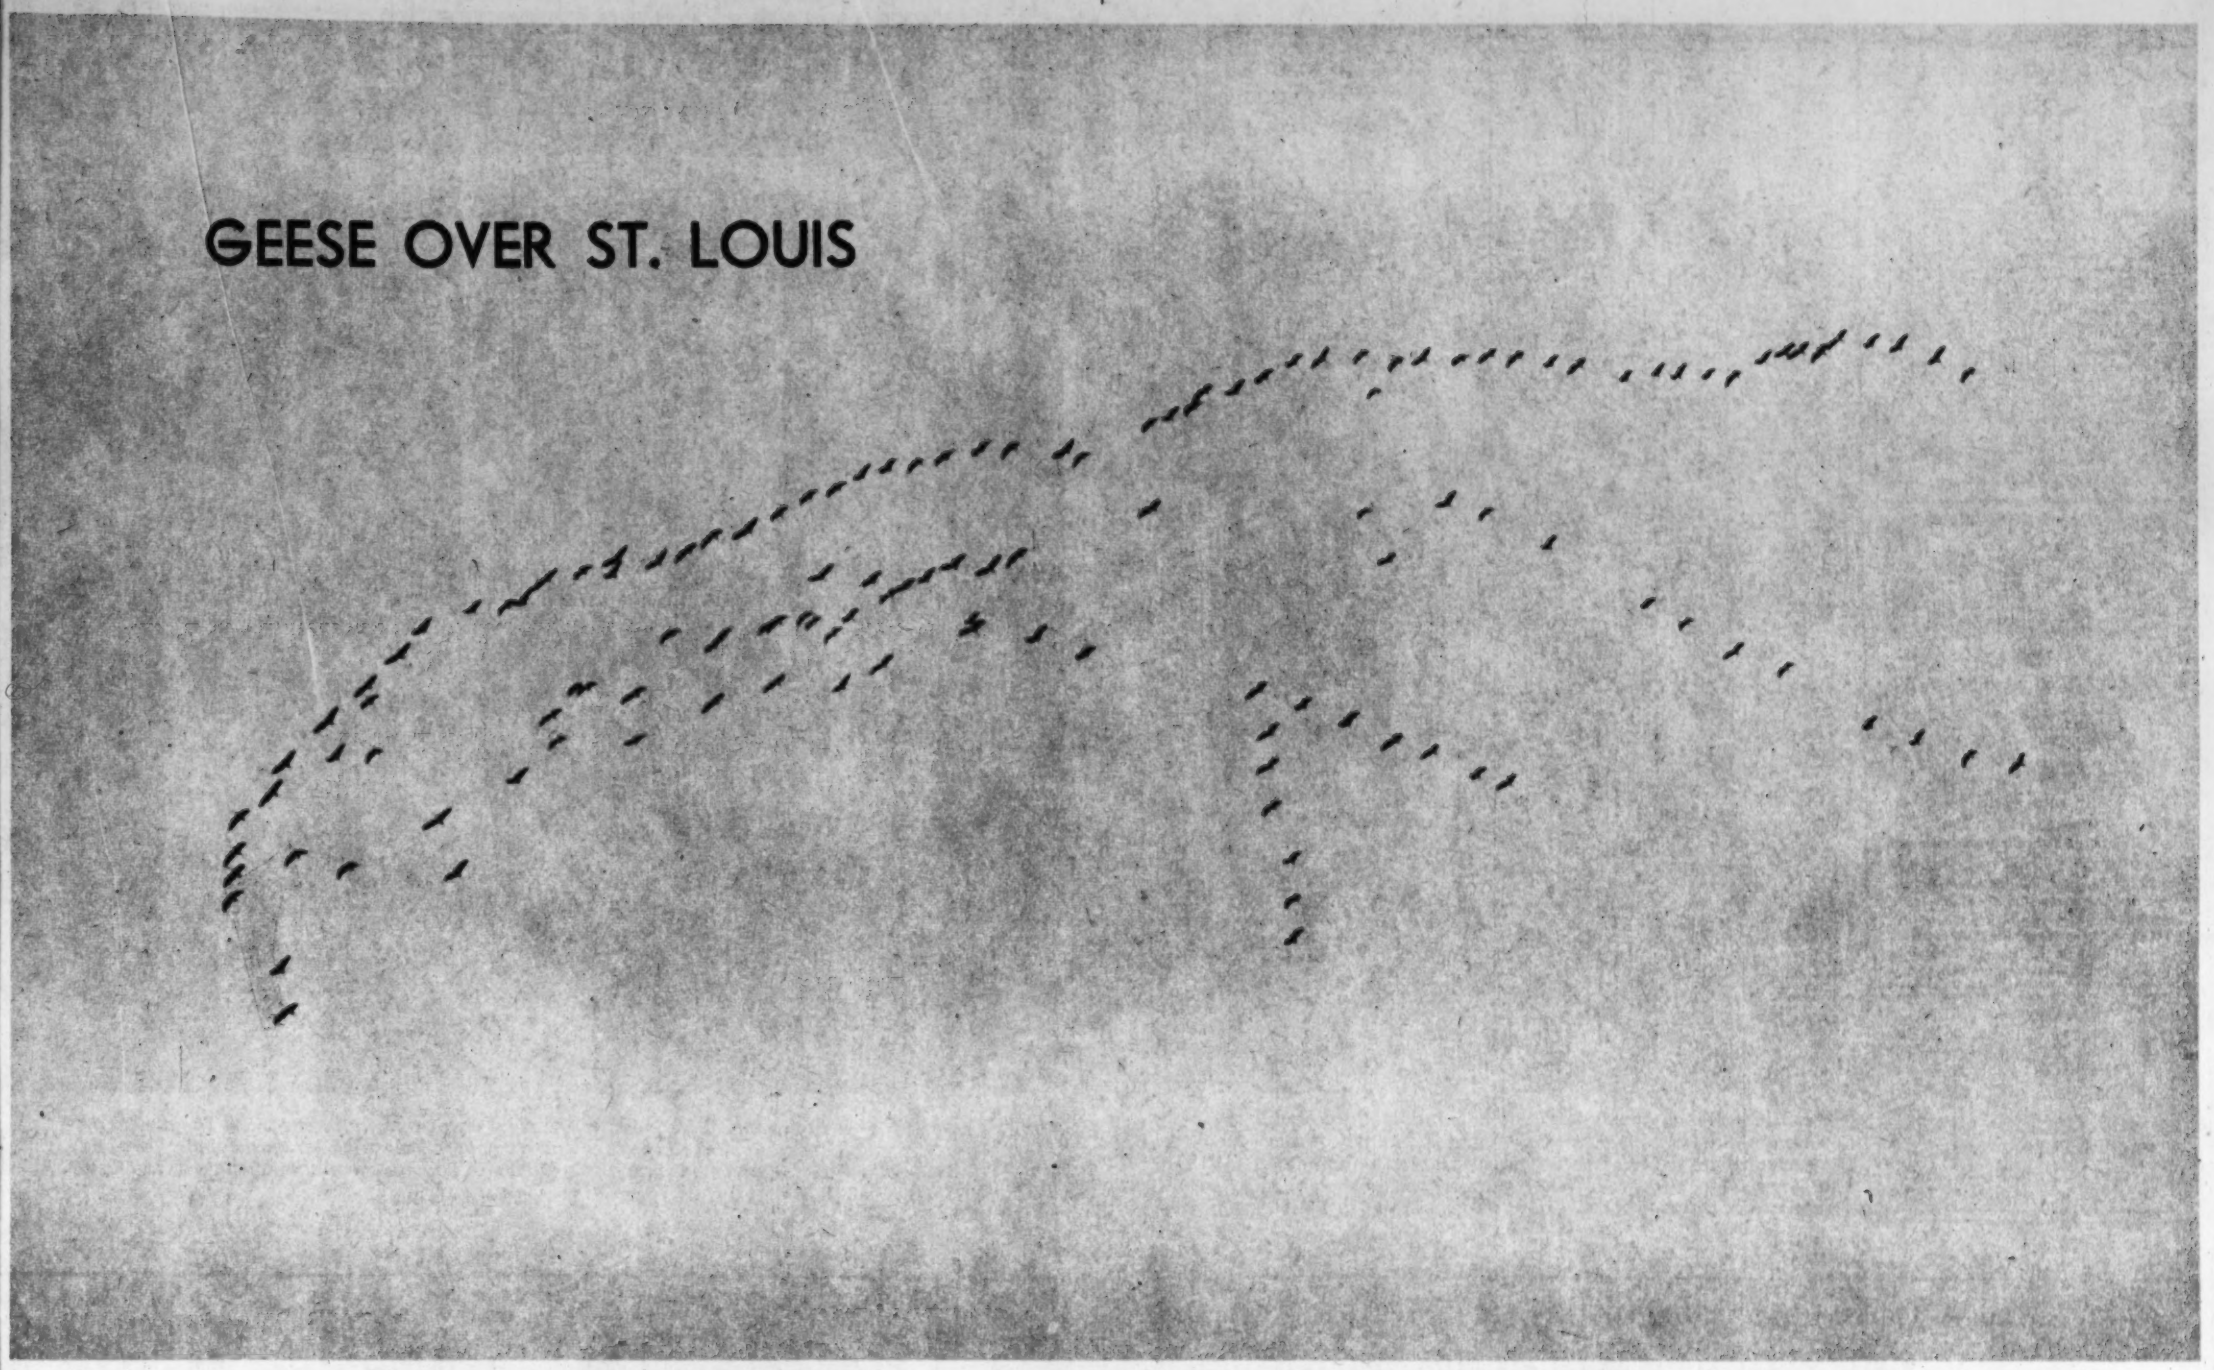
TAPE THAT SHAPES JET PARTS

Technician holds a plastic tape whose perforation code controls a cutting tool that turns out a cam for jet airplane engines in four hours. The tape passes through electronic machine in background, which transmits control impulses to cutting tool. It requires 400 man hours of work to make the cam by ordinary machine shop methods. The cam is used in fuel metering and control system of the jet engines.

GUILT BY COLORATION

Twin nozzles are mounted on turrets of heavy tank trucks designed to break up riots in Rome by squirting the demonstrators with water containing a red dye. The turrets, drivers' cabs and headlights of the vehicles are protected by strong wire mesh. The long line of anti-riot trucks was shown during Rome's annual police parade.

GEESE OVER ST. LOUIS



In long, strung-out formation, more than 100 geese fly southward through the gray sky above St. Louis in mid-afternoon. When this photograph was made, the migrating birds were passing over the Washington University campus, and observers on the ground could clearly hear their honking. The gander or male, at point of the V-shaped echelons of 13 additional geese behind the main flock, has his charges in precise lines. Geese sometimes make part of their migratory flights in diagonal lines, but they are more often seen flying a "V" formation. Sometimes, when a small wedge of birds breaks through a flight line, birds in the line attach themselves to ends of the wedge and continue in the new formation. Geese honk almost continually during their two migratory flights each year—south in the fall and north in the spring. The leader of the flock calls to his followers and is answered at intervals. Birds shown here are probably Canada geese following Mississippi Flyway.

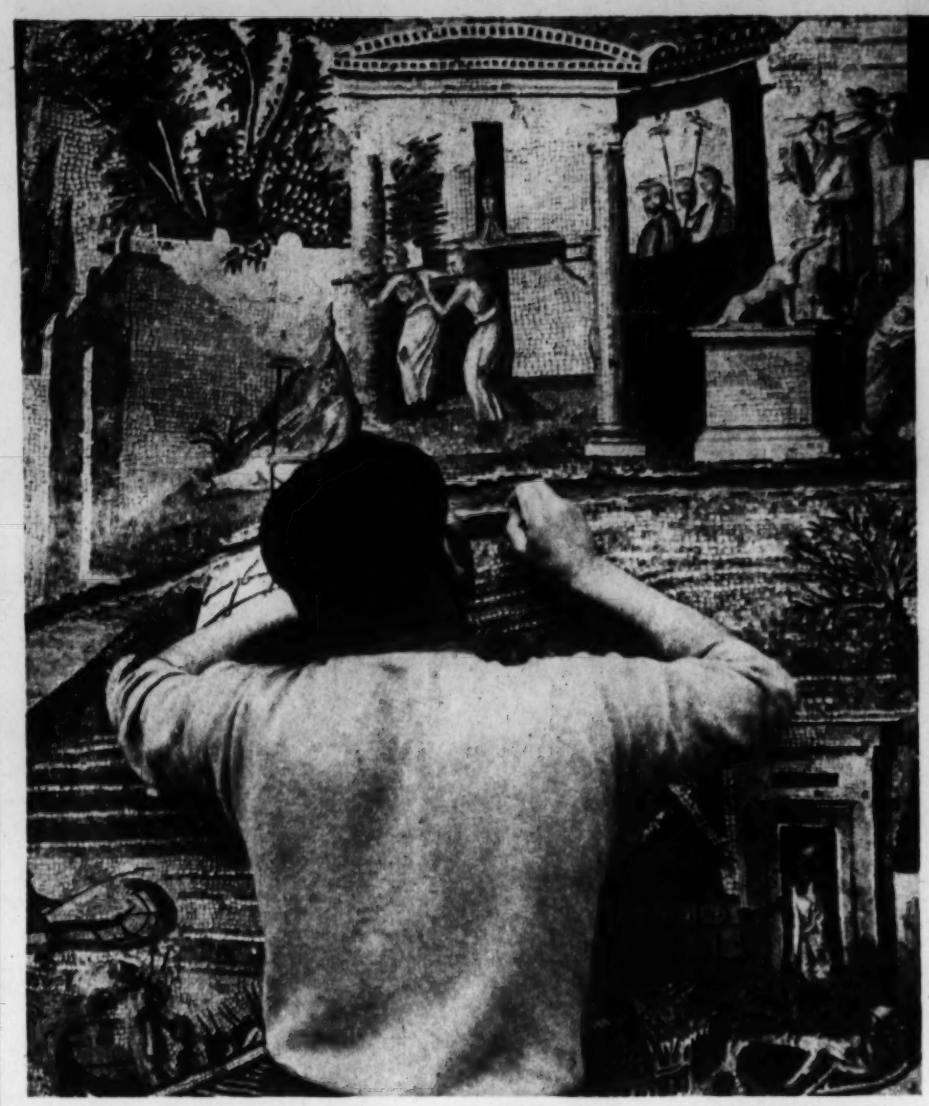
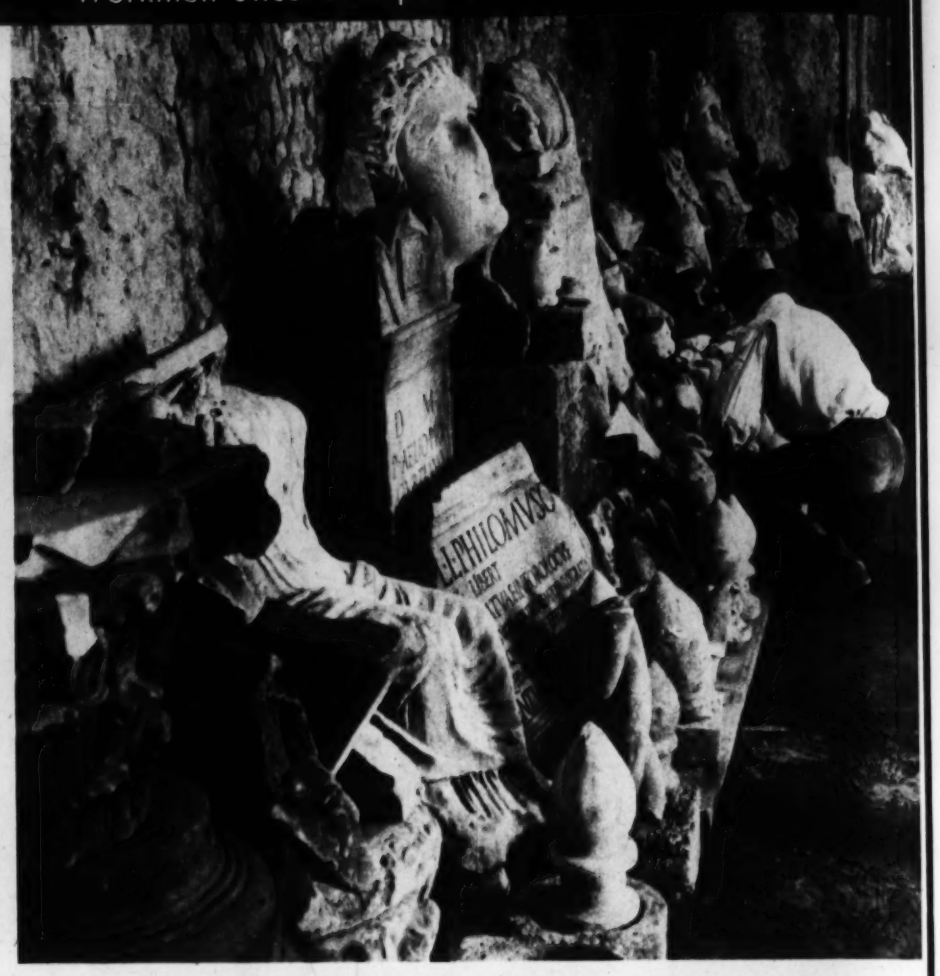
Workmen Uncover Important Relics at Praeneste



A priceless time-damaged mosaic found in the pagan temple of Praeneste (modern Palestrina) is carefully reconstructed by an expert restorer from the Italian Department of Antiquities. Mosaic is believed by archeologists to picture a procession to the banks of the Nile River in Egypt.



Fragments of plaques and sculpture uncovered on the site of the Temple of Fortuna are stacked along a wall at modern Palestrina for classifying. As early as the seventh century B.C., Praeneste had commercial relations with the East.

United Press Photos

ONE of the sources of fame for the ancient Roman city of Praeneste was its great temple to Fortune (Fortuna), long since fallen into ruin. The temple consisted of five terraces resting on gigantic substructures of masonry, the terraces connected by grand staircases.

The modern Italian town of Palestrina stands on the terraces once occupied by the temple. Recently, while workmen were clearing a hillside of World War II bomb wreckage, they uncovered important new relics of the immense temple, including an amphitheater dedicated to the Roman Goddess of Fortune in 200 B.C.

The temple was expanded to its greatest magnificence in the second century B.C. by the Roman dictator Sulla. Under the empire Praeneste, 23 miles from Rome, became a favorite summer resort for wealthy Romans. Praeneste was once a rival, later an ally of the growing city of Rome, and finally became a part of the Roman Empire.

A segment of terrace from which a workman is removing the rubble of centuries. Reconstruction of war-razed homes on the hillside was discontinued and a new site for the houses chosen in order to extend the archeological exploration of the temple ruins.

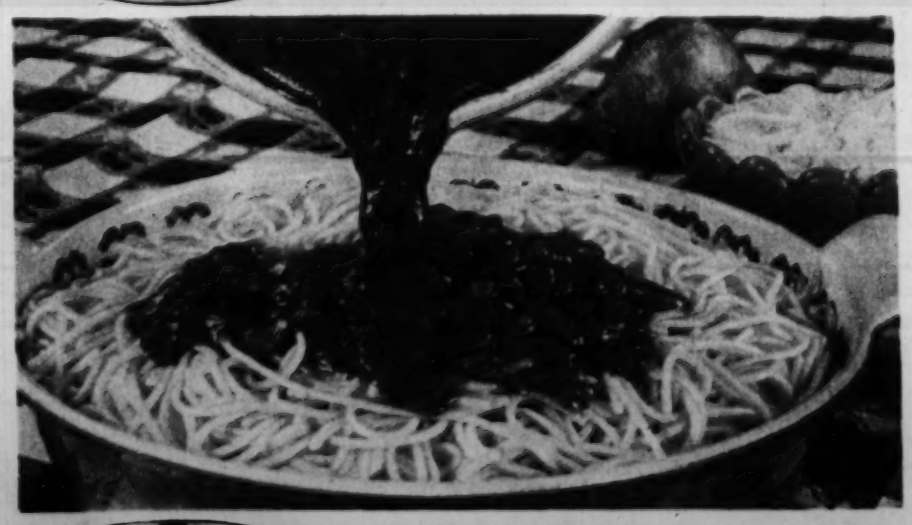
Chicken Neapolitan

One fryer (about 3 pounds, cut into serving pieces)
½ cup flour • ½ teaspoon salt • ⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons cooking oil • ½ cup water
One 8-ounce can Chef Boy-Ar-Dee® Sauce with Mushrooms

Wipe chicken with damp cloth. Mix flour, salt and pepper. Coat pieces of chicken in seasoned flour. Fry in hot fat until browned on all sides.

Drain off excess fat. Blend water and smooth, rich Chef Sauce. Pour over chicken.

Cover and simmer 40 to 45 minutes or until tender. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese if desired. Serve 4 to 5 with the sauciest chicken dish this side of Naples!



Spaghetti with Meat Sauce

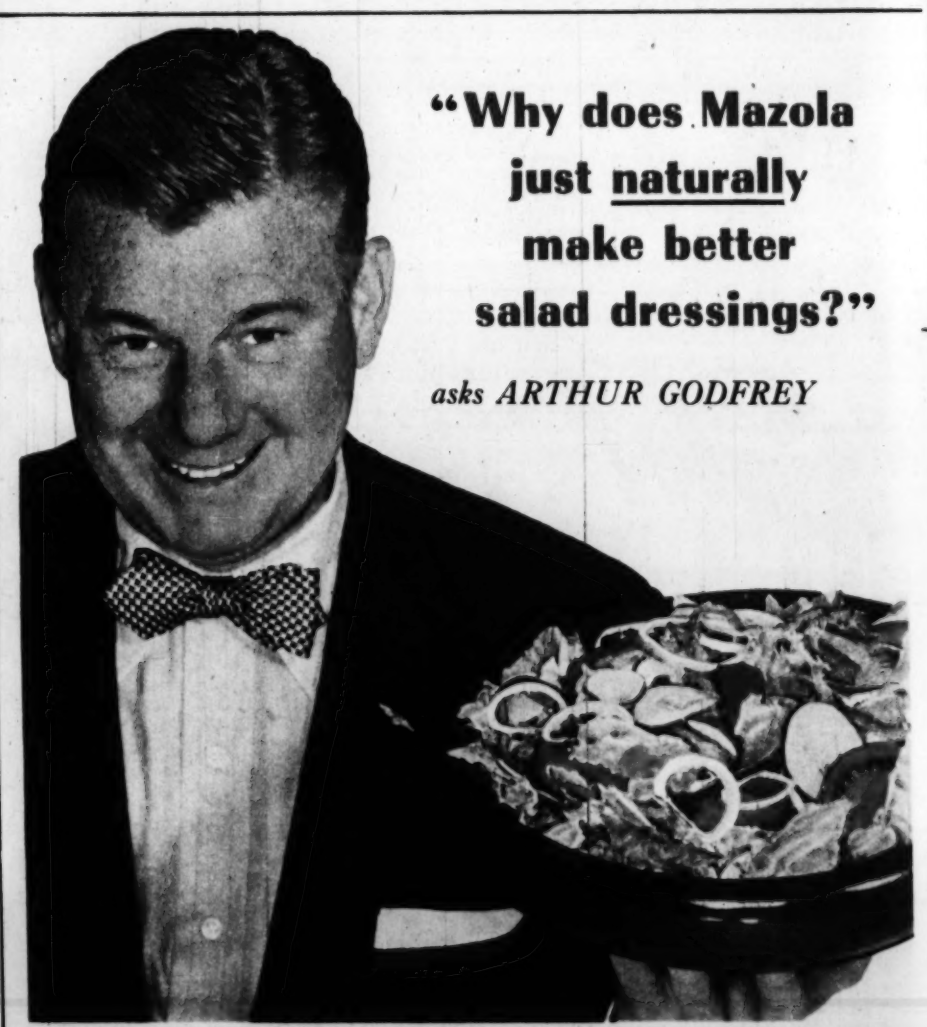
When you wish you could make your home-cooked spaghetti taste like it would at a café in Naples, try Chef Boy-Ar-Dee's economical short cut to real Italian goodness!

Just heat and pour hearty Chef Sauce with Meat over hot spaghetti. Then—savor the perfect Italian-style blend of pure ground beef and red, sun-ripened tomatoes, flavored with just enough spices!

Add delightful new flavor to omelets, rice, noodles, too. Chef Boy-Ar-Dee Sauce with Meat makes tempting Italian-style meals in minutes!

"Why does Mazola just naturally make better salad dressings?"

asks ARTHUR GODFREY



"Of course, girls, I lay no claim to being a great cook. But there's one thing I can do—and that's toss a mean salad. And I'm the world's fussiest about salad dressings!

"That's why, no matter who makes the dressing, I lay down the law. Use no oil but Mazola!

"It's no secret why... of all; note I said all, the leading oils, Mazola is the only one made from golden corn! Mazola just naturally brings out the fresh flavor of salad ingredients.

"So, if you're as particular as I am about salads, nothing but the best is good enough. And the best is a wonderfully fresh dressing made at home with Mazola® Oil. Then you're always sure it's going to be just as zippy or mild as you like it."

QUICK FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup MAZOLA Oil
½ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon catsup
½ teaspoon dry mustard garlic clove

Measure all ingredients into jar. Shake well. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1½ cups.

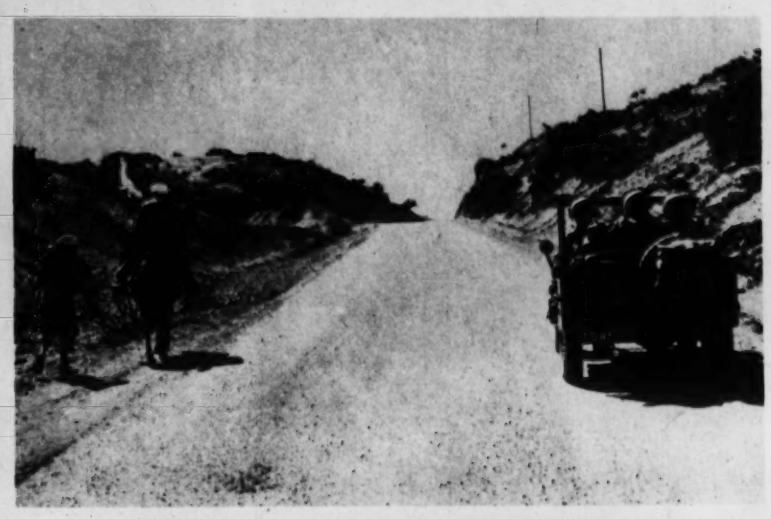
Foods fried in golden Mazola are light, crisp and truly digestible. With Mazola Oil you not only fry right... but keep calories down as well. See simple directions on bottle.

Have you tried the fabulous new No-Roll Pie Crust recipe? Makes a rich, tender pie crust each time—and you do everything right in the pie pan. Recipe is on Mazola label.

Morocco May Get Sultan Back

France Names Council of Four, and New Premier, Then the Council Resigns in Favor of Ben Youssef

The new council of the throne for Morocco meets at Rabat. From left: Ben Mustapha el Bekkai, a nationalist leader; Mohammed Ben Haj Taibi Sbihi, the Pasha of Sale; Mohammed el Mokri, former Grand Vizier, and Si Tahar Ouassou, Caid (head) of the province of Ait Alham. Sbihi is regarded as a "neutral" in the dispute; El Mokri, reported to be 108 years old, is a traditionalist. The nationalists were reported to resent Ouassou as upsetting the balance. Ouassou is a lieutenant in the fierce Spahi cavalry and had a hand in restoring calm when bands of the tribe to which he belongs revolted against the French recently.



A Moroccan traveling by mule in his strife-torn land carries a white flag as a precaution against being fired on by French forces or Arab tribesmen. A French patrol on the lookout for marauding Moroccans passes the rider and his walking companion. Two years ago the French ousted Sultan Ben Youssef as too nationalist minded, last month pressured out the French-installed successor because of nationalist objections to him.

Ben Slimane, the man appointed to form a Moroccan government. The new government was to have 12 members representative of Moroccan interests.
United Press Photo

FRANCE, seeking peace and a solution to the violence-marked nationalist problem in Morocco, has been taking compromise steps toward greater self-rule for the North African colony. It set up a throne council of four Moroccan leaders to replace the two rival Sultans — centers of bitter internal strife — and installed Si Fatmi Ben Slimane as Premier. After only a few days in office, the council resigned to clear the way for possible return to the throne of Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, who returned to France from exile last week.

There were early indications of some disaffection on the part of the nationalists to the council. They had agreed to a three-man regency, objected to the fourth man on the council as a possible partisan of the French, and refused to recognize the council. Further, the right-wing, diehard French colonists in Morocco have opposed any reforms, and are extensively backed by French big business. The colonists' "traditionalist" attitude and power in Paris has contributed much to the terror-ridden Moroccan situation.

International News Photos except as noted

Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, the former Sultan who was exiled to Madagascar because of nationalist tendencies, arrived at Nice, France, last week from Madagascar. Thus far Paris has refused nationalists' main demand — restoration of Ben Youssef to the Moroccan throne.

It takes two to romance

And two to give you an alluring, blemish-free skin — Cuticura Soap and Ointment!

First—Cuticura Soap. Many skin specialists say it takes a superfatted soap to help preserve the natural moisture and normal, healthy acidity of the skin. And Cuticura Soap—alone of all leading soaps—is superfatted and mildly medicated to help you maintain the clean, clear, fresh, baby-soft skin men love.

Next—Cuticura Ointment. This emollient does more than help clear up externally caused pimples. It also goes after hateful blackheads, flaky dryness, oily shine—softens as it helps heal.

Thrilling results often in 7 days. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are so helpful they're used by hundreds of doctors—certain leading hospitals—thousands of brides.

Sensational New Cuticura Shampoo combines advantages of soap and soapless shampoos. Try it!

1. Women do the men's work in Osawkie, Kansas, of 1880. Their husbands and sweethearts ride over the state in a running battle with two other townships over a small safe with the official records of Kanaba County. Each town wants to be the county seat. This depends upon which town can obtain and keep the records. The Osawkie fighters return with the safe, but exhausted. Liza McClure (Jeanne Crain) tells her husband-to-be, Matt Davis (George Nader), that it is a good thing the horses knew the way home.

2. Matt and Liza are married. On their wedding night, Matt goes to lock the barn, finds the men of Mandaroon have stolen the safe. The Osawkie men leave to raid Mandaroon. The ladies hold a doleful knitting bee in the saloon. Katy Connors (Kitty Kallen), from behind the bar, sings a lonely song. Liza recalls how in the ancient Greek play of Lysistrata the women of Athens went on a strike to put a halt to the warring of their men.

3. The men of Osawkie return without the safe, which has been lost in a flood-swollen stream. They find the women have barricaded themselves in an old Indian fort. Job McClure (Bert Lahr) leads the men's war cry.

4. When the flood stage has passed, the men of all three towns find the safe has sunk in quicksand, leaving them nothing to fight about. The men hurry back to the fort. But, from behind the parapets, Liza, leading the women of all three towns, insists on a signed truce. On a signal, the women line the parapets — their men are helpless.

5. Liza gets her terms — a signed truce and a neutral site for the county seat. The fort gates are opened. The married couples head peaceably for their homes, and many of the single men and women resume their interrupted plans for marriage.

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

THE 1956 Buick CENTURY can go from standstill to 25 miles per hour in 3.7 seconds flat.

But that's stunt stuff. All by itself, it doesn't tell you who's got the greatest transmission for day-in, day-out driving.

It's when you try today's advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow* that you find all the answers to a superlative degree.

You want smoothness. And you find Dynaflow smooth to the absolute.

You want instant, predictable and unfaltering response to pull you out of a tight spot on the highway. And you get just that when you switch the pitch of Dynaflow by flooring the pedal.

And now you get something new which makes average traffic driving a thrilling delight—and also brings you an added saving of gasoline.

It's what Buick engineers call "double regeneration." It's a new way of multiplying the turbine action of Dynaflow in the take-off period. And it gives you a new, quick, smooth nimbleness in getaway at the top of the pedal, without switching the pitch.

It's a brand-new and wondrous road command you can use in all your normal driving—and it's backed up by the full-power acceleration that's there, instantly, for emergencies when you floor the pedal and switch the pitch.

So come see and try for yourself the most modern advance in getaway and gas savings.

And at the same time, sample the mighty horsepower that gives life to this transmission—and the great new chassis that bulwarks the whole car.

Your own eyes will tell you that the styling is new — the colors are new — the fabrics are new — the instrument panel is new. You'll discover, too, that there's new smoothness, new levelness, new steadiness to the sweetest-riding Buick in history.

Come in soon—this week, for sure—and meet the best Buicks yet.

An important message to everyone who takes aspirin for the relief of headaches, discomfort of colds, muscular aches and pains.

BUFFERIN®

acts twice as fast as aspirin!

Won't upset your stomach

Check these facts with your physician:

BUFFERIN combines aspirin with two effective antacid ingredients. These ingredients accomplish two very important things:

1. They cause the pain reliever in Bufferin to get into the blood stream, to relieve your pain, twice as fast as aspirin.
2. These same ingredients protect your stomach from any aspirin irritation, so you do not suffer the upset stomach which aspirin may cause.

NOTE:

BUFFERIN was first made available to the public and to the medical and dental professions in October, 1948. Since then, EACH YEAR, MORE AND MORE PEOPLE, by the hundreds of thousands, have been changing to BUFFERIN for fast relief of pain without stomach upset.

Most people take two Bufferin tablets as the usual dose.

P.S. If you suffer pain of arthritis or rheumatism, ask your physician about BUFFERIN.

Fall Fruit Soufflé Salad

MADE WITH SMOOTH, CREAMY HELLMANN'S WHOLE-EGG MAYONNAISE

It'll melt in your mouth, it'll look as cooly fresh and beautiful as the picture on this page . . . and it'll take you only 20 minutes to get it ready!

The secret of this heavenly and fool-proof Soufflé Salad is the "fast-frosting" of Hellmann's creamy-smooth whole-egg Mayonnaise and gelatin.

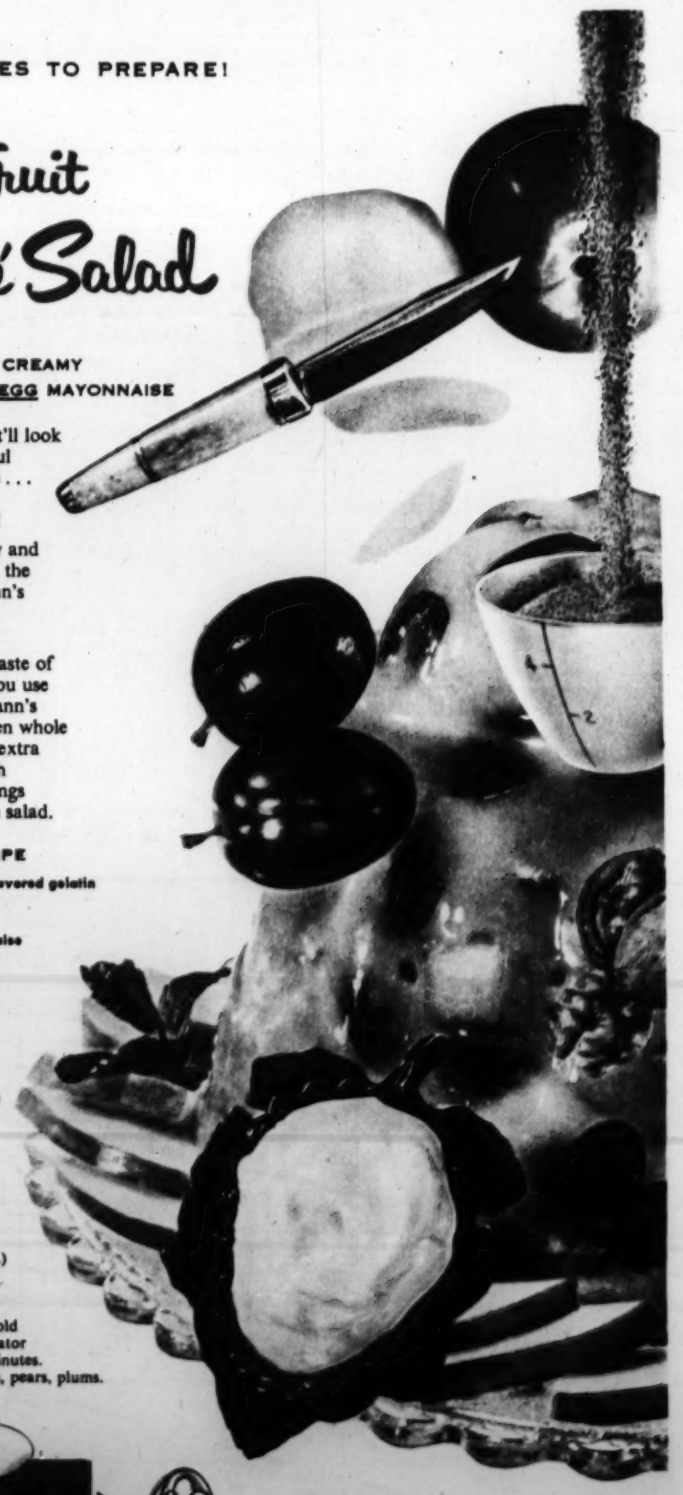
You capture the delicate taste of all the ingredients when you use Hellmann's . . . for Hellmann's is made with freshly broken whole eggs—whites, yolks, even extra yolks. And creamy-smooth whole-egg mayonnaise brings out the whole flavor of the salad.

SOUFFLÉ SALAD RECIPE

- 1 package lime or lemon flavored gelatin
- 1 cup hot water
- ½ cup cold water
- ½ cup Hellmann's Mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup diced, pooled apples
- ¾ cup seeded red grapes
- ¼ cup chopped walnuts

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water, Real Mayonnaise, lemon juice and salt. Blend well with rotary beater. Pour into refrigerator freezing tray.

Quick-chill in freezing unit (without changing control) 15 to 20 minutes, or until firm about 1 inch from edge but soft in center. (While chilling, prepare fruits.) Turn mixture into bowl and whip with rotary beater until fluffy. Fold in apples, grapes, walnuts. Pour into 1-quart mold and chill until firm in refrigerator (not freezing unit) 30 to 60 minutes. Unmold. Garnish with grapes, pears, plums. Serves 4 to 6.



The smooth, creamy real mayonnaise is

North Church Service

AS SERVICE is held dedicating the recently completed new spire for Boston's historic Old North Church, family groups sit in pews partitioned off into high-walled numbered cubicles just as they were in pre-revolutionary days. In a pew lined with red tapestry (center) are Honduras Ambassador to the United States, Carlos Izaguirre and his wife.

The original steeple on the church, where lanterns were hung to send Paul Revere on his famous midnight ride in 1775, was completed in 1740. Its construction costs were paid by Honduras shipping interests, whose main interest in having the spire was its usefulness as a conspicuous landmark to guide Honduran vessels into the port. To acknowledge this gift, the church placed a bronze plaque on the double pew space shown and reserved it for Honduran merchants and seamen.

Few churches now remain with partitioned family pews, once prevalent in English and in Protestant churches of Colonial America. In England, pew rights often went with a certain house in the parish, and in America many were held by families and legally counted in valuation of their assets. It was pew rent, paid by the year, that sustained the churches, and the pew's location often indicated the importance of its occupants in the community.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: THE WOUNDED VAL IS RELATING HIS BOYHOOD ADVENTURES TO HIS CHILDREN. HE CONTINUES: "DISGUISED WITH MY FEARSOME GOOSESKIN MASK, I SWUNG ON A ROPE INTO THE OGRE'S CHAMBER AND LITERALLY SCARED HIM TO DEATH. THEN I LEFT TO CLEAR THE CASTLE OF HIS HENCHMEN."

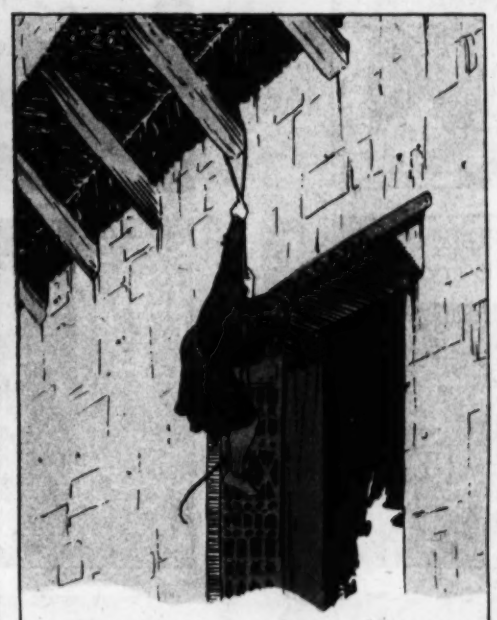
"I WAITED HIGH AMONG THE RAFTERS OF THE DINING HALL. AT LAST, WHEN THE OUTLAWS HAD ALL SEATED THEMSELVES, I FLEW SCREAMING OUT OF THE SHADOWS OVER THEIR HEADS, THROWING THEM INTO PANIC."

"ALL THAT NIGHT, I WATCHED THE GROWING TERROR WITH SATISFACTION. ALREADY THE MORE TIMID WERE FLEEING."

"SOON THE WHOLE RUFFIAN BAND WAS RUSHING MADLY FROM THE HAUNTED CASTLE."

"I CLUNG TO THE HIGH TURRET LIKE A BIRD OF DEATH WATCHING THEIR FLIGHT."

" 'THAT'S THAT!' "I SAID, QUITE PLEASED WITH THE SUCCESS OF MY TRICK, AND REMOVED THE OILY GOOSESKIN MASK. BUT TWO OF THE OUTLAWS HAD REMAINED BEHIND!"



"ONE MADE A WILD RUSH AND TOPPLED OFF THE LEDGE. TO ESCAPE THE OTHER, I LOWERED MYSELF TO THE WINDOW BELOW AND SWUNG IN."

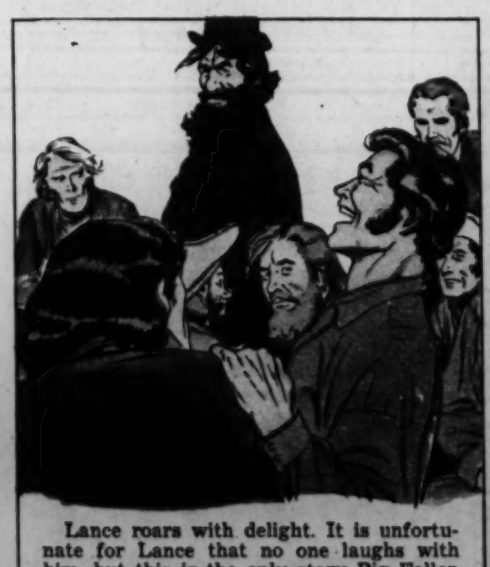
"...so I lit out, an' them forty score Arappyho forked thar buffler ponies an' lit arter me!
"Bein' thar ain't a hoss made what's faster'n a buffler pony, yew kin quick see how it tuk me three days an' nights t'outrun 'em, with me bein' slowed by mortal hurts!..."

"By th' fo'th day I were gittin' hongry! Figgerin' I lost th' injuns, I stopped an' rassled me two, three o' th' biggest buffler yew sot eyes on an' et em' then an' thar, ha'r an' all!..."

"When I clumb t'th' mount'ns thar were a blizzard goin'. Hevin' no fahr wood, I pushed over one o' them tall pines, broke it up over m'knee, had me a right cozy fahr an' went t'sleep....."

"But, do yew know, durin' th' night them sixty score Arappyho snuck up on me an' buried sixty score tommyhawks in my haid???
"Yessir, thet fust mount'n winter were a HARD 'un! I shore were glad when summer come on!"



Lance roars with delight. It is unfortunate for Lance that no one laughs with him, but this is the only story Big Fallon knows and everyone else has heard it ten times or more. Fallon has grown so used to silence that now he takes offense at laughter!

"Whut're YEW laffin' at, Blue Belly?"
Lance fights back tears, tries to answer and can't.
Big Fallon studies him intensely and decides he doesn't like this army clod.
"Whut part didn't yew B'LIEVE!" he growls.

DICK'S Adventures

by NEIL O'KEEFFE and MAX TRELL

SHOWERING THE BRITISH SOLDIERS WITH PAMPHLETS, DICK AND THE EXTRAORDINARY MR. TOM PAINE RACE OFF LIKE A WHIRLWIND! BUT TWO OF THE SOLDIERS TURN IN PURSUIT!

IT LOOKS LIKE A GETAWAY UNTIL THEY RUN INTO A ROAD BLOCK!

"WE'LL SELL OUR LIVES DEARLY!" PAINE ROARS. BUT THE BRITISH SOLDIERS ARE THROWING DOWN THEIR WEAPONS, SHOUTING: "DON'T SHOOT! WE WANT TO JOIN YOUR SIDE!"

PROTECTED BY THEIR RED-COATED RECRUITS, THEY ARE ALMOST SAFELY PAST THE BRITISH-HESSIAN ENCAMPMENT AT TRENTON WHEN THE FIRE-EATING, UNPREDICTABLE MR. PAINE YELLS: "GOD GAVE GEORGE WASHINGTON!"

INSTANTLY THE WHOLE PACK IS IN FULL CRY AFTER THEM! DICK, ACQUAINTED WITH THE COUNTRYSIDE, KNOWS OF A COVE WHERE A BOAT IS HIDDEN!

THE SWIRLING MIST OF THE DELAWARE SWALLOWS THEM UP. AND MR. TOM PAINE IS BEAMING: "LUCK IS WITH US AGAIN, MY FELLOW AMERICANS!"

BUT HARDLY DOES THE BOAT SCRAPE THE PENNSYLVANIA SHORE, WHEN THEIR LUCK RUNS OUT! STICKING OUT OF THE HEDGES ARE THE BARRELS OF A DOZEN GLEAMING MUSKETS!

NEXT WEEK: THEY WENT BACK!

QUICK and EASY DESSERTS made with

Sealtest TRADE MARK CREAM

FRENCH CREAM PUDDING

French Vanilla Cream Pudding: Empty 1 package vanilla pudding into saucepan. Add 1½ cups Sealtest Milk gradually, stirring until smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat. Cool, stirring occasionally. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla to 1 cup Sealtest whipping cream; whip until stiff. Fold cooled pudding gently into whipped cream. Chill. Garnish with maraschino cherries. 4 to 6 servings.

French Chocolate Cream Pudding: Follow basic recipe and add 3 squares unsweetened chocolate with the milk.

French Coffee Cream Pudding: Follow basic recipe and add 1 tablespoon instant coffee powder.

French Coconut Cream Pudding: Follow basic recipe; fold in ½ cup moist shredded coconut before chilling.

CANDY CANE CAKE

Make or buy 2 eight-inch layers of your favorite cake. Combine 1½ cups Sealtest whipping cream, 1½ tsp. confectioners sugar, ¾ tsp. vanilla; beat until stiff. Chop about a dozen green maraschino cherries coarsely; fold into ¼ of the whipped cream.

Spread the cherry whipped cream between the 2 cake layers. Spread the plain whipped cream on the top and sides. Decorate with thin candy canes and holly as pictured.

QUICK CREAM CAKE

Spread 1 pint Sealtest chocolate, strawberry or coffee ice cream on the top of a single layer white cake. Top with 1 cup Sealtest whipping cream, whipped and chilled. Serve immediately.

Paper Mate's finest!

The New Jewelry Finished "Capri"

2.95

51-4-10 The luxury gift for anyone on your gift list! Popular Paper-Mate in new jewelry finish.

FEATURES OF ALL PAPER-MATE PENS:

PEN CAN'T LEAK! Only the silvered tip fits super-snug, can't wear down, so Paper-Mate stays clog-free clean.

POINT ALWAYS CLEAN! No messy point! No ink blobs. Point never needs wiping. Retracts when not in use.

INK CAN'T TRANSFER! Ink dries instantly. Can't smear or smudge. No more ink rubbing off on fingers or hands.

SILVERED TIP REDUCES WEAR and friction. This gives more constant flow of ink, more words of smoother writing.

Dolch Games are FUN . . . and they TEACH!

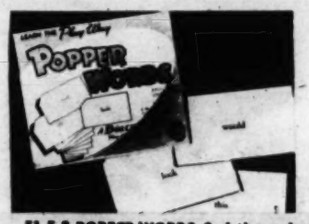
Do you want your child to be a success in school? Then help him learn the school-approved way! Get Dolch "Play-Way" Learning games! Children love them because they have fun while they learn, easily . . . naturally! Designed by E. W. Dolch, Ph.D., Professor Emeritus of Education, University of Illinois, and noted teaching authority. Many teachers use these same Dolch games in classrooms. Choose games suited to your child's age and grade . . . or get the teacher's advice!

51-5-1 PICTURE WORD GAME, 5 years through 1st grade. They learn the 95 commonest nouns quickly as they win a card every time they can tell a word by the picture they know — — 1.00



51-5-2 POPPER WORDS, 2nd through 4th. Teaches the 220 Basic Words, which cannot be learned from pictures. The words begin to "pop" in their minds as they play. In two sets: Easier half 1.00
51-5-3 Harder half — — — 1.00

51-5-4 LOOK, 2nd through 4th grade! Lotto-type game which teaches the 220 basic words to groups. As many as 6 can play. Slowest child will win as often as the fastest, and all learn the words — — — — — — — — 1.59

51-5-5 PICTURE READINESS GAME, for pre-school and 1st grade. Fun to match the pictures. They learn early to pay attention and perceive detail. One or more can play! — — — — — — — 1.25

51-5-6 THE SENTENCE GAME, 2nd through 6th grade. Win tricks by combining cards with various phrases into complete sentences. Teaches recognition of words in proper sentence structure — — — — — — — — 1.00

51-5-7 TAKE Sounding Game, 2nd grade and up. Teaches sounding through matching pictures and words which have the same beginning, middle or ending sound. Two decks to game 1.50

51-5-8 Syl-la-ble, 3rd grade and up. Teaches sight recognition of the parts of words. Solitaire type of card game, with all fascinations of adult game. 2 decks to game — — — — 1.50

SAY-IT PLAY-WAYS TO ARITHMETIC for 2 to 6 players. They see, hear and say the combinations.
51-5-9 SAY-IT ADDITION, 1st and 2nd grades — — — — — — 1.98

CHIEF U. E. BAUGHMAN

I'll always remember . . .

Advice from Officer Birch

by U. E. BAUGHMAN
CHIEF, U.S. SECRET SERVICE

ONE OF THE most important jobs in the world is that of Chief U. E. Baughman of the U.S. Secret Service, charged with protecting the President and guarding U.S. currency against counterfeiters.

A policeman doesn't have to arrest people to have an important influence on their lives.

As a boy in Philadelphia I used to go with other kids to a neighborhood store to buy ice-cream cones — that is, whenever I had a nickel. After getting the cones we would congregate in front of the store, talking, laughing and sky-larking in the street until Officer Bill Birch sauntered by and told us to go home.

I guess most of us were a little scared of Bill's gruff tone and silver badge. Anyway, we never argued with him — though we expressed our opinions of him when we were out of earshot.

Later, Bill was assigned to a playground where we worked off our excess energy in baseball, football or some other athletics. We came to know him as a man rather than as a cop. We discovered that he was a pretty good scout.

In 1927, when I was 22, I was appointed to the U.S. Secret Service as a clerk-stenographer at $1,800 a year — about $35 a week. I enjoyed the work, but after a few weeks my friends, who were making $50 to $75 a week in ordinary jobs, started kidding me.

"You're crazy, working as a Government clerk," one told me. "You'll never get anywhere."

"That's right," said another. "Get smart. You don't want to be a clerk all your life."

They had me pretty well convinced. My father was ill and I worried about helping my parents. When I told my mother about trying to decide about looking for another job, she didn't exactly try to talk me out of it. "Your father and I have enough for our immediate needs," she shrugged. "If you like Government service, stay in it — but look forward to your own future."

A day or so before I was ready to resign, I ran into Officer Birch. He knew I was in the Secret Service and asked how things were going. I told him I had almost decided to leave, and why.

"Do you like the work?" he asked.

"Sure. I like it fine, except for the pay."

"You could probably make a lot more somewhere else," he agreed. "You'll never get rich in the police business. And if you stay in the Secret Service you'll probably see the time when you'll be insulted by a lot of people who don't know what your real job is. You'll work long, hard hours doing things nobody will thank you for."

"All the more reason to leave," I admitted.

"Wait up, now," he said. "I'm not done. Maybe someday you'll be protecting the President of the United States — and what more important job is there than that? And you'll be taking a lot of crooks out of circulation. You'll be helping to make this country a better place to live in. And when you go home at night, you can sit down like I do and be satisfied with yourself. That's worth a lot more than money, son."

Bill Birch talked for a half hour — and I'm glad he did. In nearly 30 years in the Secret Service, my duties have taken me into slums and palaces. I've mixed with crooks and killers, with presidents, princes and kings. As he predicted, I've worked long hours at thankless jobs. But as he said, I feel it's been worthwhile.

I wish I could personally thank Officer Birch. And tell him he was right about one thing: I'll never get rich on the job. But who cares? ■

What's happening to VENUS?

THERE SHE GOES: As onlookers watch enrapt, Venus turns willowy . . . shifts to a frozen shimmy . . . and then, when her body returns to normal, she gets it right in the neck.

No, the pictures on these pages weren't taken through a funhouse mirror. They're the handiwork of the famous photographer Weegee, who dabbles in darkroom distortion when not otherwise occupied. To achieve the startling effects here, he had to devise a special lens for his enlarger — one that gives the effect of built-in astigmatism.

LINDBERGH'S LANDING in Paris is recreated for film with extras as cheering Frenchmen. The pilot in such flying shots is not Stewart but stunt flier Paul Mantz.

FLIGHT IN PROGRESS

James Stewart is reenacting Lindbergh's epic transatlantic hop. Here's how he sees his job

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

Next May 21, 29 years to the day since Charles A. Lindbergh flew the Atlantic in 1927, Warner Brothers will release one of the biggest pictures of 1956, The Spirit of St. Louis. Its star: James Stewart, 46, in the role of Lindbergh at 25.

In Paris, shooting the end of the picture first — Lindbergh's landing at Le Bourget airport — Stewart recently confided that of the 52 motion pictures he's made in his 20-year career, Spirit of St. Louis is the most difficult.

"To begin with," he explained, "we're not telling in this picture the life story of Charles A. Lindbergh. If we were, we'd have plenty of drama, plenty of incident. An embarrassment of riches. Instead we're limited to 33 hours in Lindbergh's life, the 33 hours in which he sat in the cockpit and flew the Atlantic Ocean.

"Now movie-wise that's a pretty tough thing to show and make interesting. Matter of fact, if General Lindbergh hadn't been so understanding — he's let us take liberties in the script — we'd be up a creek.

"For example, before Lindy took off from Roosevelt Field on Long Island, he equipped his plane with a new compass. There was no room for it on the instrument panel, so he installed it overhead. In order to read it, he looked through a mirror placed on his dashboard. The mirror was given to him by some girl reporter. He doesn't remember her.

"In the movie, however, we use that girl to suggest a little love interest. The girl gives Lindy the mirror. As he approaches Europe he's so sleepy he can't stay awake. The Spirit of St. Louis banks to the left and is headed into the ocean. A shaft of sunlight suddenly hits the mirror and the reflection flashes in Lindbergh's eyes. It snaps him out of his sleep. He rights the plane and continues to Paris, and by giving him that mirror the girl has saved his life.

"It really didn't happen that way, but that's how we're playing it. We're trying to materialize, via flashbacks, Lindbergh's thoughts as he piloted his plane. His fear of landing in Spain or even Egypt. His terrible overwhelming urge to fall asleep. That was his greatest fear. That's the stuff we're trying to show. And brother! It isn't easy.

"Take this problem of locations. It's impossible to duplicate things as they were 30 years ago. In 1927 Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt Field. Today Roosevelt Field is a housing center, and if you try to use any nearby airport, the camera picks up the television antennas on the surrounding roofs.

"As a result we're shooting the takeoff scene outside of Eureka, Calif. Billy

JAMES STEWART, 46, as Lindbergh.

CHARLES LINDBERGH, 25, as himself.

Wilder, our director, is making every possible effort to avoid anachronisms.

"The landing scene which we shot the other night. It wasn't shot at Le Bourget, because Le Bourget today no longer resembles Le Bourget of 1927. We shot it at Guayancourt aerodrome. Wilder had 5,000 extras breaking through the police lines to greet me as I climbed out of The Spirit of St. Louis.

"Actually when Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget, there were 150,000 Frenchmen on hand to greet him. But who can afford or control 150,000 extras?"

How did he feel playing so famous a contemporary as Lindbergh?

"Frankly," Jimmy confided, "I feel a bit shaky about it. But this is one role I really wanted. And if it hadn't been for my dad I don't think I would've gotten it.

"He put the pressure on Leland Hayward just at the right time. When Leland bought the book a while back, I called him up and said, 'How about it?' He was very frank. 'Sorry, Jim,' he said. 'You're too old, too old for the part.'

"A few months ago my father — he's 84 years old — got married again and came out to the Coast with his new bride. We had dinner with the Haywards one night, and Leland began talking about his casting difficulties with The Spirit of St. Louis. 'Now, look here,' my dad spoke up, 'Jim's the boy for that Lindbergh picture. Jim's the boy and I want you to put him in it.' Leland looked up. 'You're probably right,' he told my dad. Then he turned to me and said, 'Let's talk about it tomorrow.' That's how I got the role."

"Since then," I asked, "have you and Lindbergh conferred frequently? Have you talked to him about his feelings, his actions, his memories of the flight?"

"I've seen him a few times," Jim said. "But there's never been any such discussion. First time I met the General — Hayward introduced us at Romanoff's — I made a fool of myself. I was so nervous that I spoke too much and said too little. The next time, after the role was finalized, I said, 'General, I'll try and do a good job.' He smiled and said very kindly, 'Jim, I'm sure you will.'

"There's one thing, however, I must talk to him about. That's how he handled The Spirit of St. Louis. I want to hold the stick just right, not too much play. In Strategic Air Command I made the mistake in one scene of showing too much business in landing a plane. Later, an Air Force pilot called me on it. 'You flew during the war,' he said. 'You didn't have to go through that rigmarole to land the ship.' That's the type of technical mistake I don't want to make this time."

Stewart, who has been willing to take a percentage of a picture's profits instead of straight salary — his share of the profits on 10 films will bring him a minimum of $7,500,000 — is receiving a straight salary for Spirit of St. Louis.

"Between the two of us," he admitted, "I would've played this part for pretty nearly nothing. In my book, acting the role of Charles A. Lindbergh is a great honor. I don't want to sound corny, but for a small-town guy like me from Indiana, Pa., it's a great honor. I'm getting more kick out of it than anything I've done in years." ■

THE SPIRIT OF 'SPIRIT'

Billy Wilder, the film's director, says, "This film is not the biography of Lindbergh; it's the biography of his flight. It starts with Lindbergh (Jimmy Stewart) standing in the Los Angeles International Airport, watching the arrival of his old plane, The Spirit of St. Louis, from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. All around him we show the progress in aviation which he made possible by his epic flight. We then go back to his days as a mail pilot and barnstormer when he dreamt of one day flying the Atlantic.

"Hardly anybody believed he was a good enough pilot to cross the ocean. The Ryan people in San Diego and friends in St. Louis finally helped him get his crate of wood and steel together. And he took off. He was an unknown without money or influence or position. But he had his dream. And he made it come true."

OUR EAGLE-EARED AUTHOR

Don't listen now, but—

The man learns a lesson: bad hearing can cost you

by DICK EMMONS

It was the day after our marriage that I learned that Helen had a voice. All through our courtship she had simply smiled up at me with a shy awe that, frankly, I found her most appealing trait.

As soon as the trap snapped shut, however, it developed that she could talk. She has been talking more or less regularly ever since.

I don't mean that she speaks any more than most wives. I believe that if you took a poll of husbands, you would find that most of them think their wives — well, few husbands would dare to respond to such a question, so there's no use pursuing that any further.

The problem around our bower of love, to bring the matter into sharp focus, is not so much the volume of Helen's speech as the fact that I don't listen to, hear and commit to memory every syllable she utters.

Like the other day when my attention was on the televised football game. Suddenly the screen went snowy and I was reaching for the control knobs when I realized that a dotted swiss apron was standing in front of it.

"What do you mean, Grace Newcomb keeps a neater house than I do!" my wife wailed.

"I said that?" I asked defensively.

"You certainly did. We were talking about the supper party at the Newcombs' and I asked you if you thought she was a neater housekeeper than I am and" — the girl's voice rose hysterically — "you said 'uh-huh'!"

"If I said 'uh-huh,' I apologize." I tried to peer around her at the screen. "What I meant to say was 'huh-uh.' It's my personal conviction that ours is the neatest house on the block and that you are . . ." My words trailed off as I watched Tech return a punt.

Dimly I heard Helen's voice and, keeping my eyes on State's eight-man line, nodded in vigorous agreement. Before you could say "Hold that line," Helen was out of the room. A few plays later she reappeared with hat, gloves and purse.

"I'm ready," she sang.

"Good," I answered.

"You all set?"

"You bet."

"Aren't you going to put on a tie?"

I looked at her uneasily. "Who's coming?"

"Nobody's coming," she said in annoyance. "I asked if you'd like to take me out to dinner tonight and you nodded. Let's go."

It is just this sort of ambush that has led me to evolve my own system for what I call the Emmons Approach to Protective Listening. With a little practice, any husband can free himself from the drone of wifely conversation and at the same time keep clear of misunderstandings that lead to expensive restaurants.

It's simply a matter of conditioning your ears to pick up certain key, trouble words. They must be taught to act as filters, receiving only danger sounds. The thousands of other words are automatically discarded, thus allowing the husband to continue safely whatever is preoccupying him.

Too Many Times "No"

For example, I have trained my auditory system to react to "buy," "shopping," "charge" and "dress," among others. When my antenna picks up one of these, my head automatically starts shaking violently from side to side and, by conditioned response, my voice barks out a long string of Nos.

While engrossed in the sport page at breakfast the other day, I caught all four of the alarm words and the bells started ringing, the storm warnings went up and I machine-gunned my answer: "No-no-no-no-no-no!"

Naturally, I was dismayed to see Helen bring out a new dress that evening for my inspection.

"I thought I told you no," I pouted.

My wife gurgled happily. "You did, duck. I asked if you would mind if I took my charge token and went shopping to buy a new dress. By my count, you said 'No' six times."

Admittedly, the defeat represents a weak spot in my system. I can fix it, though. I just have to listen to every word she speaks. ■

During Indiana pep rally, Patt Kozacik comforts a girl who tried for yell squad, forgot her lines.

With the Big Games coming up, here's a report on college spirit 1955 and one of those petite young ladies who roar . . .

RACK 'EM UP! STACK 'EM UP!

by JOHN DEVANEY PHOTOS BY ED FEINGERSH

BLOOMINGTON, IND.

THIS IS KING Football's sweetest month. During the next three Saturdays millions of his loyal subjects, half deranged by a fierce thirst for touchdowns, will roll roars across hundreds of gridirons as traditional foes meet in games that "must" be won. They'll be goaded on by garishly dressed bands that jig onto the field in eccentric steps, skirling fight songs, and by white-sweatered cheerleaders who urge their heroes to "hit 'em again — harder!"

One such pleader is 19-year-old Patricia (Patt) Kozacik, captain of the Indiana University "yell squad" here. (They're yells, not cheers, to the boys and girls who lead them.) Patt, a fresh-faced, bright-eyed junior, believes that "yells are a way to tell your team there's someone wishing they could help."

How strong is this wishing today, compared to 20 and 30 years ago? Has this scientific era, with its accent on reason over emotion, washed away much of the college "rah-rah" spirit? To find out, PARADE spent a football week end on the Indiana U. campus as Patt and her yell squad (opposite page, top) tried whipping up enthusiasm for a major game against Michigan State.

The response was ear-splitting. At a Friday-night pep rally, about 3,000 students — nearly one-third the student body — ripped out yells ("Go you, I.U., FIGHT, FIGHT, FIGHT"), roared the Indiana Victory Song ("We're all behind you . . . you'll stop for nothing at all . . ."), rocked the auditorium walls with roars for coach Bernie Crimmins after he had reviewed Indiana's chances ("We're going to have to fight all the way").

But below the noise, according to some faculty members, was less enthusiasm than there used to be. Says Frank Allen, director of athletics: "Twenty years ago you had very few kids — maybe 1 or 2 per cent — going to college. Today it seems that nearly every other boy and girl goes. College, as a result, doesn't have the same importance to students as it did 20 years ago, and they therefore embrace its activities less wholeheartedly."

Other faculty members — here and in other colleges (p. 14) — disagree. To some, football spirit in 1955 is at an all-time high. Whether or not that's true, the job of Patt and her crew is not an easy one. Up until nearly midnight on the eve of the game (as a reporter for the school's daily newspaper, she had to write a story on the pep rally), Patt was awake by 7:30 on Saturday morning. She took a two-hour test in English from 10 to 12, played hostess at her sorority house to her visiting parents and the girl yell leaders from Michigan State, then strode bravely to the game. For how Patt and her Indiana team fared, turn to following pages.

ONSTAGE at rally (forced indoors by rain)

GAME starts with a defiant yell from Patt (second from left) and squad: "Hey, hey, whata-ya say? Get that ball and fight." Meanwhile Michigan State squad was similarly whooping it up.

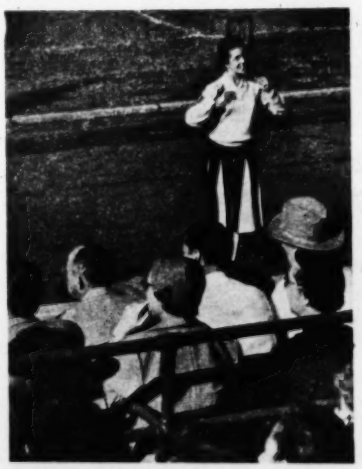
Patt helps to lead a yell.

PRE-GAME DANCE, held outdoors after rain eased, drew nearly 1,000 students, most of whom just listened.

MORNING of the game dawned with trumpet blasts as school band — The Marching Hundred — rehearsed their marching maneuvers.

'Some people say we're boisterous, but it's really just a large friendliness'

BEFORE GAME, Patt pins a flower on father, a Whiting, Ind., lawyer. It was Dad's Day; Patt's mother and younger sister and brother also were on hand.



DURING GAME, crowd gets absorbed in play and ignores Patt as she tries leading "Kill him! Kill him!" screamed Patt, bouncing up and down in her saddle shoes as a Michigan State halfback burst into the open. A moment later he was flattened by an Indiana tackler and Patt whirled to lead a yell of thanksgiving.

Then Indiana took the ball on the 50-yard line. "We want a touchdown!" the home stands thundered on cue from Patt. An Indiana pass brought the ball to the Michigan State 25 and a panting Patt, her face flushed from excitement and exertion, called for a new yell:

"First and 10, do it again!"

Indiana did, grinding down to the 1-foot line. "GO, GO, GO," boomed the student section, as Patt and her crew punctuated the yells with right- and left-hand punches at the air. Then, suddenly, a hush fell over the crowd of 25,000 in Memorial Stadium as quarterback Gene Cichowski hunched over the center. Cichowski rasped out a final signal, took the ball from the center and disappeared into the line.

Up shot the referee's arms, signaling a touchdown. The crowd cracked out a roar that shook even Patt. She was shaken some more a few minutes later as Michigan State rolled to two touchdowns and a 14-to-7 lead.

Still bubbling with outward confidence, however, Patt peppered the team with chatter ("Come on you guys out there, let's go"), lectured a new girl on leading yells ("No, don't let them lead you; you lead them"), begged cheers from the stands:

"Hey, Hey, HO! HO!

Come on Hoosiers, let's GO!"

But only Michigan State went — for another touchdown, to lead, 20-7. Patt wrung her hands, squinted at the scoreboard, suddenly swung to the crowd: "We're still with them; let's let them know it!" The crowd obliged with a roar.

Indiana forged back in the final period for a second touchdown, but Michigan State then ran out the clock, winning 20-13. A bone-tired Patt took defeat stoically: "We're used to it out here." (Last season, Indiana won but three of its nine games.)

The off-the-field Patt looks and acts more like a serious college woman than a bouncy cheerleader. Poised and unhurried, she displays an adult sureness. Her ability to switch into a cartwheeling yell-inciter traces to an early training in show business: as a child in Whiting, Ind., she tap-danced professionally in hotels and USO shows.

Yelling Is Living

Her first yell-leading job came in grammar school ("I wanted to meet some boys"). In high school she led yells for two years, appeared in school plays, played violin in the school orchestra, still managed to graduate third in her class.

On entering Indiana, Patt — like all would-be Hoosier yell leaders — competed with about 40 other freshmen for the two open spots on the six-member squad. First she flashed locomotives to a special student-faculty committee, which picked her and four others. These finalists performed before the students at the season's first pep rally, and Patt was one of two chosen by student applause.

"Most of the kids who win have had yelling experience in high school," says faculty adviser Bob Stebbins. "As a result they can start right in with little practice."

Patt has few moments for practice anyway. Besides reporting school news (she hopes to be a newspaperwoman), B-student Patt spends about 60 hours a week in classes or studying for them.

Nevertheless she never misses a home basketball or football game and usually travels with the football team for "away" games. As a yell leader, she has only one peeve — "students who think it's kid stuff to yell. They're being kids themselves, for yelling is living the game with the players, just as you would live a movie or play with the actors."

Are the college kids too noisy on football week ends? "Some people say we're boisterous," Patt says seriously, "but what they take for boisterousness is really just a large friendliness."

She's made only one blooper as a yell leader. In her first game — against Ohio State — she got the Indiana fans booming. "We want a touchdown," then looked around to discover Ohio State had the ball.

DEFEAT left Patt with a headache, low morale ("I'm getting too old for this"). Nevertheless, she spent evening dancing.

Longines announces the world's most advanced Automatic Watch

World-wide acclaim greeted the debut of the first Longines Automatic Watch—the product of a million dollar, ten-year research program. Now, a decade later, Longines announces still further improvement in this distinguished timepiece—the most advanced self-winding watch in the world today.

You should know that an Automatic is, in fact, a complicated watch, and in that field the experience of Longines is unique. As example, Longines complicated watches include chronographs and timing watches that are the finest in the world.

Thanks to this experience, the harmonization of watch movement and automatic driving power has been achieved with astonishing simplicity and precision. Wear and strain have been virtually eliminated. These Longines Automatics can promise in full measure all of the accuracy, the ruggedness and long life for which Longines watches are world honored.

If you would like the convenience of an Automatic watch, Longines has made a style—just for you. Longines Automatic watches are priced from $75 to $295. Your Longines-Wittnauer Jeweler would be honored to serve you.

PRE-GAME BONFIRE flames on Southern Methodist campus. But such displays are getting rarer

College rah-rah: It's not the same

Is that old football spirit — with yell leaders, bonfires and pep rallies — becoming as obsolete on U.S. campuses as coonskin coats and mandolins? It depends on whom you ask, PARADE found after surveying 20 colleges across the nation. But one thing is certain: football spirit in 1955 is not what it was in the '20s and '30s.

There's a lot less idolizing of the football player as a BMOC (Big Man on Campus). "To be popular, players have to be top notch in other things besides football," says Ohio State Assistant Dean James H. McElhaney.

The influx of war veterans and married students has had a restraining effect on the "rah-rah" boys and girls. At Brown University, says Provost Samuel T. Arnold, "students during the '20s and '30s were more feverish and less rational than they are today. I think it's part of the generally higher stage of maturity among undergraduates these days."

One of the most noticeable changes is fewer and shorter victory celebrations. "In the old days," says Michigan Dean Walter B. Rea, "students would overturn streetcars, create disturbances in theaters and generally be troublesome. These things don't happen on the campus any more."

That may be overstating the case, however, for some schools report student enthusiasm at an all-time peak. At Texas Christian, says Dr. Henry Haret, chairman of the Athletic Council, "we seem to be returning to the great enthusiasms that swept the campus prior to 1942."

Other schools report equal student fervor — but only during a good season. At Arkansas, for instance, last year's student body put on the largest demonstration ever seen by Athletic Chairman Delbert Swartz, who's been there 27 years. When Arkansas unexpectedly won the Southwest Conference title, student cars were lined for 20 miles.

The main reason for these low and high tides in football spirit today seems to be more "things to do" on campuses. Twenty and 30 years ago, says Russell Battreall, dad of an Indiana U. football player, "all we had to do was root for our football team — whether it was good, bad, or indifferent. But now there's more social activity on campus, and the kids have autos to take them off it."

That doesn't automatically mean less school spirit as such. "Pride in the school," explains Florida Dean Dennis Stanley, "has been transformed from simple yelling for the football team to a deeper pride, that of belonging to some part of the school — whether it be the French club, the Dramatic Club or some other active school group."

Sound Off!

Florida, nevertheless, would like to see more spirit behind the football team. As a result, students and faculty are trying to encourage a new campus cry. Instead of the traditional "Here, sir" at ROTC roll calls, students now answer with "Fightin' Gators!"

Many schools — like Maryland, Illinois, Miami (Florida) and Tennessee — report football spirit as high and even higher than ever before. But even they have found some changes. Says Tennessee's alumni secretary John Smartt: "Today it lacks the personal touch, because the student body is much larger and not many of the students are personally acquainted with the players."

With this personal touch gone, there are fewer pre-game bonfires. But professors are most delighted by one change: post-game celebrations, that once might go on for days, now end usually on Saturday night. ■

What about those

CONGRESSIONAL JUNKETS?

They're run on your money. Are they good—or bad? Here are inside facts

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL
PARADE WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

WASHINGTON, D.C.

By unofficial count, no less than 231 Senators and Representatives — over a third of Congress — went globe-trotting this past tourist season in the biggest Congressional exodus in history.

The great lawmakers' game called junketing — played largely, of course, with taxpayers' money — reached such proportions that when President Eisenhower considered calling a special session of Congress, an aide remarked wryly: "You'd better call it in Paris." Meanwhile, in London, Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich cabled the State Department plaintively that the Congressional horde had just about worn the British red carpet thin. And dozens of Congressmen were admitted behind the Iron Curtain for the first time in years.

Many junketers followed grueling schedules, inspecting U.S. spending abroad, gathering information to shape future legislation and spreading goodwill. But others simply enjoyed a plush vacation at the taxpayers' expense. One Senator's wife, on an "official" trip with her husband, wrote back frankly to friends: "John is truly relaxing and having the time of his life. He and I are having a long-delayed honeymoon."

Most Congressional committees rate a special military plane, complete with Air Force stewards to serve meals and handle baggage, an escort officer to smooth out travel arrangements and sometimes even a doctor to minister to aches and pains. Wives, children and assorted relatives are common free-riders on these planes.

Congressmen traveling alone don't get a private plane but go free anyway, usually on an Air Force plane or Navy ship going their way. They are supposed to travel on a space-available basis, but it's a bold transportation officer who gives a corporal priority over a Congressman. In September, for example, a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, including wives and assorted aides, displaced 40 military wives and children booked to join their menfolk in Europe.

One Southern Senator toured around the world, tying up embassy limousines, pressing embassy employes into guide service and using embassy planes to hop from one nation to the next. Then he came home and wrote a report criticizing waste in embassies, particularly high expenditures for limousines and planes.

This time of year a favorite Congressional vacation is a two-week cruise to sunny Panama. Three small ships of the Government-owned Panama Line — each equipped with swimming pool and bar — operate between New York and the Canal Zone. Any Congressman can take the free cruise for the asking and need pay only $92 round-trip for each extra guest. The ordinary citizen pays $315 round-trip.

Justification for Congressional junkets is easy to find on Capitol Hill. "If I had my way," says Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), "I'd pass a law requiring every member of Congress to spend at least three months of the year traveling to different parts of the world. You can't run a business from an office desk. It's the same with the United States Government; you can't run it from an office in Washington."

Some Other Opinions

As for free transportation, Capehart adds: "The Army and Navy ought to give us all the transportation needed. They're running planes and ships anyhow."

From Rep. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.) is heard: "It is hardly fair for the press to refer to these trips as joyrides. Many Congressmen work themselves almost to death trying to keep up with their travel schedules."

House Republican leader Joe Martin observes: "In some instances the trips are overdone, but it would not be wise to discontinue them. We can't ignore the fact that we have interests in all parts of the world. To find out about them firsthand is money well spent."

Speaker Sam Rayburn prefers to confine his trips to his home state, Texas. But he Congressmen abroad have made friends–and enemies–for U. S.

acknowledges: "Overseas trips can, I suppose, do good."

Once abroad, at any rate, traveling lawmakers can take advantage of a peculiar money deal. Most countries, being short of dollars, are allowed by law to pay for U.S. supplies in their own currencies. In 1953, Congress slipped through a special amendment giving members free access to "counterpart funds," as this money is called, to pay their overseas expenses.

Special account No. 19 FT 561 was set aside for exclusive use of junketing Congressmen. All they need is a requisition signed by a committee chairman. This is good for free spending money at our embassies in 42 countries. It is dished out liberally, no accounting asked and none given except for vague totals.

Souvenirs for Sale

Result has been free-spending binges that amount, in many instances, to the point of scandal. The funds have been used to finance lavish entertainment, to purchase expensive gifts. One Oklahoma Congressman, his pockets stuffed with counterpart funds, loaded up on fancy merchandise in Europe. He set up shop in his office to sell the goods to House employes at fantastic profits. Others bring back for their own use well over the $500 limit on purchases.

Some committee chairmen, of course, set a strict spending limit. Chairman Clint Anderson (D., N.M.) of the Atomic Energy Committee, for instance, paid all hotel bills for his junketing members but limited their counterpart spending money to $15 per day apiece.

How much counterpart money has been spent by Members of Congress? And exactly how was it used? Says a State Department spokesman: "We are the bankers for the committees of Congress. As the bankers, we cannot give out any information."

A Treasury Department man: "That's the State Department's baby. Talk to them."

Another State Department employe: "I tried to find out myself, but I was told I would be better off not asking any questions."

By law, these counterpart expense accounts are supposed to be submitted to the House Administration and Senate Appropriations committees. Except for a few general totals dating back to mid-1954, however, the figures are locked in Congressional safes.

Even these padlocked figures don't give a breakdown of the spending, a confidential source reports. Based on incomplete vouchers, he estimates that junketing Congressmen will spend well over $350,000 in counterpart funds this fiscal year.

In contrast to the free-loaders, many Congressmen spend frugally and even pay for their own transportation. Senate GOP Leader William Knowland, for example, pays his own way when he feels a trip is not "strictly Congressional business even though I am informing myself on matters important to Congress."

Whoever foots the bill, the American people are judged by the behavior of their representatives overseas. Most leave a good impression and improve our standing with the rest of the world. A few do not.

A horrible example — one Europeans are still talking about — was set by a Southern Congressman who literally staggered through Europe a couple of seasons ago. In Paris he entertained himself playing the harmonica and yelling rebel war whoops. Once he was caught cavorting in a Paris hotel corridor in his underwear. In Madrid, he tore the dress off a frightened lady guide and stopped citizens on the street, demanding belligerently: "Why don't you like the United States?" This Congressman finally landed in a hospital with delirium tremens — to the relief of American officials.

Another gay Senator slapped the King of Greece on the back and hugged the Queen. This was the same man who grabbed West Germany's President and swung him around the floor in a heavy-footed version of a Viennese waltz. Then there was the Senatorial imbiber at a recent Helsinki reception who shocked the assembled dignitaries by smacking a prominent Finnish lady on her equally prominent derrière.

At the Vatican, a member of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee harassed the Pope with belligerent and irrelevant questions. When an embarrassed colleague tried gently to silence him, the truculent Congressman jerked a thumb at His Holiness and blurted: "I don't want any answers from you. I want an answer from him."

Fortunately outnumbering such cut-ups are the many traveling Congressmen who make friends and improve relations. Massachusetts' Joe Martin created so much goodwill on a German tour, for example, that a member of the Bundestag later used a picture of himself with the American statesman as campaign literature. He wrote Martin: "Your picture got me many votes."

One of the most publicized trips — the unauthorized and self-financed visit of Harlem's Congressman Adam Powell (D., N.Y.) to the Bandung Conferences of 29 Asiatic and African countries — was the direct cause of our gaining face in that area. Powell created a sensation with his remarks at a press conference embarrassing China's Red dictator, Chou En-lai.

Jokes with Khrushchev

Behind the Iron Curtain this year Congressmen generally made friends with people who had had only a propaganda version of America. Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) even preached a sermon at Moscow's only Baptist church. And chief Communist Nikita Khrushchev exchanged wisecracks with Sen. George Malone (R., Nev.) during a private audience with five U.S. Senators. "Columbus discovered America. Now Senator Malone thinks he is discovering the Soviet Union," grinned Khrushchev.

Lawmakers, junket-bent, have come up with a variety of flimsy excuses for free trips to see the world. The House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, for instance, toured Europe last summer to compare European shipbuilding costs with our own. The committee could have taken a shorter junket — just a few blocks up Virginia Avenue to the State Department. There, more detailed information is on file than ever could be picked up on a whirlwind tour of Europe.

Likewise, Congressmen George Andrews (D., Ala.), James Frazier (D., Tenn.) and George Shuford (D., N.C.) went off to study — with the aid of their families — laws of foreign countries. Just a block from their offices they could have found the same information neatly catalogued at the Library of Congress.

On the other hand, many junkets are based on sound reasons and produce valuable results. Take the work of the far-ranging House Government Operations Committee. Here are some accomplishments, direct or indirect, of its junketing subcommittees:

- Recapture of $100 million worth of U.S. equipment that had been transferred without authority to a German government agency, which was happily peddling it — to the tune of about $44 million — to any country it could find, including the original owner.
- Halting the activities of a busy Britisher from Hong Kong, who had bought and was carting away 60,000 tons of needed military supplies from Okinawa.
- Regrouping $16 million worth of U.S. property scattered over Greece.

Then there was a 55-day junket to South America, led by Indiana's Senator Capehart. The touring Senators learned that U.S. business was taking a beating all over South America from foreign competitors, largely because the Export-Import Bank's stiff credit policy was literally driving business away from us. The trip resulted in a revised Export-Import Bank Act.

DISTINGUISHED GUEST, House Speaker Joe Martin, addresses the West German Bundestag (parliament).

The examples could go on endlessly. In the world outside, where two-thirds of the U.S. budget is being spent, Congressional committees have uncovered and remedied waste and bumbling. They have learned firsthand of needed reforms and written appropriate legislation. They have talked directly to the people of the world. Such trips, with split-second schedules and heavy work loads, are anything but glamorous.

So American taxpayers pay their money and take — not their choice, but potluck as to whether junkets are worthwhile. Here's the way Congressman John Vorys (R., Ohio) sums it up:

"Congressional travelers perform abroad pretty much as they do at home. Some work hard and others loaf. Talking about the merit of Congressional visits is like talking about muskmelons. The good ones are very good, and a few not so good." ■

IF YOU NEED A PRAYER, DIAL...

Thousands of New Yorkers have heeded this invitation since April. Result: Prayers by phone are catching on all over the country

by KARL KOHRS

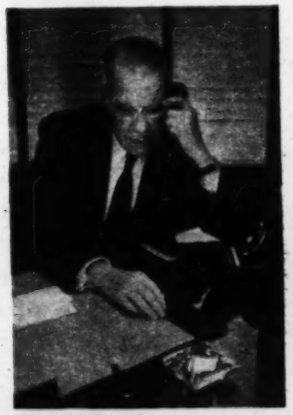
Phone prayers helped them . . .



EXECUTIVE: Sales representative Frank Lovejoy, a church elder, suggested phone-prayer idea. Says he, "It can teach you how to pray and what to pray for — unselfishly."

STUDENT: Bruce Young, high-school senior, says, "I first dialed out of curiosity. But later, when I wanted to say a prayer of my own, I got just the help I needed."

SCARSDALE, N.Y. In the last seven months, the phone number pictured above has become a symbol of hope, courage and comfort to thousands of people here and in neighboring suburbs of New York City. Reason: The answer they get when they dial it is a 56-second recorded prayer.

In a small mullion-windowed room of the Hitchcock Memorial Church here, three telephone-answering devices click steadily away to deliver their streamlined yet inspirational messages. For 24 hours a day, seven days a week they are rarely silent.

In the long hours of the night, a young woman sleepless with grief over the recent death of her husband is comforted by a prayer. A hospital patient, restlessly awaiting the dawn, picks up the phone. In mid-afternoon, a harried executive dials the prayer number and finds a moment's relaxation. A mother, worrying over news of a son ill at college, hears words that give her renewed

HOUSEWIFE: "My husband and I usually dial in the evening," says Mrs. Arja Adair. "It's now part of our household routine. A prayer has cheered us more than once."

PRINTER: Says W. L. Wick, who prints the Scarsdale Inquirer, "Lots of people think I need it, and I think so myself. When I'm under the gun, I get help and comfort."

PATIENT: A. P. Butler, Scarsdale attorney, recovering in hospital, heard prayer for first time and said, "This is a different kind of medicine — and a very good one."

courage: "Thou art a very present help in time of trouble . . ."

Clergy and congregation of the 42-year-old Presbyterian church marvel at the amazing response to the "dial-a-prayer" idea. When two machines operated at full capacity, calls were coming in at the rate of 1,600 a day. With the recent addition of a third, the rate has jumped to more than 2,000 a day. Since the first machine was installed last April, more than 200,000 prayers have been transmitted over the telephone wires.

Says Dr. Robert W. Youngs, pastor: "At first we expected about 50 calls a day. The telephone company, which wasn't too keen about installing the machine, estimated 25. The very first day there were 200 calls. Within a week the telephone company was begging us to install another machine. The first one had reached its saturation point and overflow calls were jamming the lines."

These things also happened:

• A parishioner whose number was similar to the one originally assigned to the prayer phone irately demanded that the church change the number. He said his telephone was ringing day and night.

• As a result of a newspaper headline reading "Dial a Prayer," people began dialing A-P-R-A-Y-E-R, which corresponds to the number of a tombstone dealer in Brooklyn, N.Y. He complained that he was getting about 200 calls a day asking for prayers.

Thanks — and Pranks

• One caller sent a letter of thanks to Dr. Youngs for his recorded prayers and enclosed a dollar for a copy of one he had heard. Later, he sent $5 more.

• The pranksters had their day. On a local golf course a man made a particularly bad score. To rib him, his fellow-players sent out a caddy to tell him to call the prayer phone number. Fuming, the man dialed and listened — then hung up in silence.

"We knew things like this were bound to happen," says Dr. Youngs. "That's why we resisted publicity. But the pranksters and curiosity-seekers soon stopped dialing."

The prayers are composed by Dr. Youngs and his two associate pastors, Dr. Frank L. Gosnell and the Rev. Bruce Bowen. All are undenominational and are recorded twice daily — at 6 a.m. and at 5:30 p.m. There are prayers for morning, evening, Sundays and holidays. Some are original, some are taken from the prayer book, some are keyed to familiar passages in the Bible. In every case, Dr. Youngs points out, they have a specific theme.

When disastrous hurricanes battered the Eastern part of the country, for example, listeners could hear a prayer for "such confidence in Thy love and care that however heavy the clouds, we may without fear abide all storms and troubles of this life." When President Eisenhower was stricken, a prayer was composed for his recovery.

PASTOR: Dr. Youngs records a prayer on answering device. Between the machines is an automatic counter.

The publicity Dr. Youngs does not want is spreading the prayer-phone idea across the country. In an East Cleveland, Ohio, church, 10 machines are operating at the rate of almost 13,000 calls per day. Other prayer phones are busy in churches in Orlando, Fla., Kansas City, Kan., and on the West Coast.

Meanwhile, the machines at the Hitchcock Memorial Church hum steadily around the clock with their inspirational messages. With calls building up to the rate of more than one a minute, Dr. Youngs hazards a long-range guess as to the future of dial-a-prayer.

"It appears to me," he says thoughtfully, "that it will go on forever." ■

Let's face Fat

...then we'll FEEL better...and LOOK better!

Facing facts about your fat may not be fun . . . but, better now than in a hospital! For fat is dangerous. Overweight often shortens life. What's the answer?

Everywhere you turn, somebody's selling some scheme for reducing. Freak dieting . . . fad menus . . . "Slimjim's Secret" . . . half truths or whole hokum. Maybe you try this trick meal-method or that, for a few weeks, and give up in discouragement. First you starve, then you stuff; nothing takes off that fat and keeps it off!

Yet your own physician has known all along the safe, sound, scientific way for you to attain your correct weight and hold it. The secret is no secret at all. It's sound nutrition.

Let's face it. Your problem is not how to starve; it's how to eat!

And Better Homes & Gardens DIET BOOK tells you how in plain language, shows you how in pictures, diagrams, tables a child can understand. It's enjoyable, too, because for the first time, diet makes sense. When you know what you're doing and exactly why, there's no strain on your willpower. There's no struggle, just understanding. Eating again becomes the pleasure it should be.

Friends begin telling you how well you are looking. And, by golly, you feel better! That's what better nutrition will do for you.

Teen-age Topics

Some of you, I gather, are chafing at "being told what to do" by someone older. I sympathize — but remember that older persons are more experienced, and thus may be worth listening to!

Q. My brother works in the corner dairy bar and every time I go there he tells me to go home and put clothes on or comb my hair or other things — right in front of people. What shall I do? — R.F., New Bedford, Mass.

A. Do what he says. Brothers are very sensitive concerning the reputations of their sisters. If he is embarrassed over the way you look in public, there must be justification for it. He knows very well what other boys are saying about your manner and dress.

Q. I am 15 years old and am treated as if I were 10. My father can afford it, but he just won't buy me clothes like the other girls wear. What can I do about it? — M.J., Massena, N.Y.

A. Perhaps you are not able to judge what your father can and cannot afford. At 15 you are able to earn some money baby-sitting or doing other work in your spare time. If you buy some of the clothes that you need yourself, your father may permit you to choose the kind that you want.

Q. I have just moved into this neighborhood and I've heard that it's correct for the girl to say "Hi" to the boys first. Around here they seem to believe that, but I just can't seem to bring myself to say it even if I know the boy by name. I'm afraid that I'll be labeled unfriendly or stuck-up if I don't do something about it. Another thing: I like a boy who is 19 very much (I am 17). I see him at an ice-cream place I go to. Should I speak to him on the street or wait until we've been introduced? — E.M., Knoxville, Tenn.

A. It is the girl who speaks first. Certainly if you know a boy by name and he goes to your school or church you say hello to him when you meet him in town. He should return your greeting, but let him decide whether or not he wishes to stop and talk. Of course, there may be a good reason for a girl to stop a boy she knows on the street and talk to him, but making a habit of this may label a girl overaggressive. There is no reason why you can't say hello to the 19-year-old boy whom you see so regularly in the ice-cream parlor if he seems like the kind of boy of whom your parents would approve.

A complete doll's wardrobe

One of the most exciting presents you could give a little girl — one that is certain to be treasured and played with for many a day — is a complete new wardrobe for her most beloved doll.

It's lots of fun to sew doll clothes: they take a minimum of time and fabric. Illustrated here are two entirely different outfits — a glamorous bridal ensemble (above) and a pretty, practical wardrobe for day or night (below).

The holidays will be coming soon. So look through your work-basket for colorful pieces of fabric, fine lace and ruffling, and start on these miniature costumes. The result can be as many happy little girls as there are on your Christmas list — and, while you're at it, don't overlook birthdays! ■

'Touchdowners' score with teens

Win or lose, these hot, savory, meat-filled buns will make everybody happy after the game

The game is over, and suddenly everyone is chilled to the marrow and hoarse as a crow. But at home there is the spread pictured above: the meaty buns called Touchdowners, crisp raw relishes, a hot beverage and one of Mom's cakes or pies. Welcome refreshment for all the gang!

KITCHEN HINT:

Wrap left-over cheese tightly in aluminum foil or plastic film before storing in the refrigerator, to prevent it from drying out or lending flavor to other food.

HAMBURGER rolls may be filled ahead of time, wrapped individually in aluminum foil and placed on baking sheets.

TOUCHDOWNERS

1 can (12 oz.) luncheon meat	1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 cup (¼ lb.) grated American cheese	2 tablespoons mayonnaise
¼ cup drained pickle relish	8 hamburger rolls

Chop luncheon meat; combine with cheese and pickle relish; toss lightly. Mix together mustard and mayonnaise; stir into meat mixture. Spread about ½ cup of the mixture in each bun. Wrap each individually in aluminum foil. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 20 minutes. Makes eight servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

Broiled cling peaches make this Western Ranch Dinner

EASY RECIPE

All baked in only one pan. Out here in the West we have a wonderfully easy, tasty way with chicken dinner. Here's how we do it—and Betty Crocker of General Mills has tested and approved this recipe.

Heat oven to 425°. Dip cut-up frying chicken in ⅓ cup undiluted PET EVAPORATED MILK*, then roll in a mixture of 1 cup BISQUICK*, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons paprika. Then melt ⅓ cup shortening in a 13 x 9½ x 2 pan in the oven, add the chicken, skin side down, and bake 50 to 60 minutes. Meanwhile, make Bisquick drop biscuit dough using diluted Pet Evaporated Milk.

Move chicken to one end of pan. Drain a No. 2½ can CLING PEACH halves, arrange on chicken. Spoon biscuit dough into the other end of pan, bake 15 minutes more. Remove food to hot plates. For gravy: Blend ¼ cup Bisquick mixture (saved from dipping) into drippings in pan. Stir in gradually 1 cup water, boil and stir two minutes. Stir in 1 cup Pet Evaporated Milk. Heat but do not boil. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Notice how clings set off our dinner, give it color, make it extra tempting! Clings are delicious so many ways—keep several cans handy!

And ask for this wonderful new treat at your favorite restaurant.

PLAYING ALONE, Sal shows little imagination. Here he loads wagon, dumps it again.

THE PUZZLED WORLD

An 8-year-old, groping to understand life, points

JESSUP, PA.

Every afternoon, 8-year-old Salvatore Angello frisks in the yard of his home here, eight miles north of Scranton, and looks out at a world sometimes lonely, sometimes hostile and always bewildering.

At 3:30 his friends stream home from school, carrying books full of bright pictures separated by columns of print that Sal does not comprehend and possibly never will. They play games like football, in which they run and throw themselves on the ground; when Sal runs and throws himself on the ground, too, they ask him — not harshly but kindly — to please sit and watch. Sometimes they play tag, running in circles and whooping; Sal runs and whoops, too, but somehow it is not the same. Thus he sits on the sidelines, puzzled and wistful.

His is a world few know about and fewer yet care about. Sal is a Mongoloid, a mentally retarded child. Although he is 8, his mind is the mind of a 3-year-old. Even his younger sister, Rose Marie (herself only WELCOMING two normal 8-year-olds home from school, Sal is noticeably smaller, shyer.

SCRIBBLING at blackboard, Sal tries to write. Someday, with luck, he may be able to form his name.

ROMPING with grandfather, Albert Bossi, Sal works off extra energy. But poor coordination makes him somewhat destructive EATING, Sal can feed himself, butter bread, pour milk. But mother must cut his food as she does for Rose Marie (r.) — who is five years younger.

of a RETARDED CHILD

up the tragedy of our 4,750,000 mentally deficient

3), calls him "the baby." And even if he lives to be 30 (Mongoloids have rarely lived longer), it is doubtful that his mental age will ever rise above 7 years.

There are probably about 200,000 other Mongoloids (so called because of their slanting eyes and yellowish complexion) in the U.S. They are not insane; they have not "lost their minds." Their brains simply have not developed at the normal rate. No one really knows why; the best guess is that a chemical reaction during pregnancy causes the condition. They are not dangerous. Actually, they are jovial, great mimics and easily led.

Mongoloids, however, make up only a small percentage of the retarded. There are nearly 4½ million others, ranging from the near helpless to the near normal. Although this figure (3,000 out of 100,000) is far higher than the rate for crippling polio (300 out of 100,000) or cerebral palsy (350 out of 100,000), their plight has been largely ignored. New York, for instance, has only two small clinics for mentally deficient children; Washington, D.C., has one. Too often, the mentally deficient have bucked the calloused feeling once expressed to Sal's mother, Mrs. Cecelia Leitza: "These kids aren't all there, anyway. Why start anything for them?"

Fortunately, Sal has never met this cruelty face to face. He lives amid gentleness and care, protected by a devoted mother, doting grandparents and a remarkable stepfather, Frank Leitza, who married Sal's mother although he realized the burden of caring for a retarded child. Even Rose Marie is protective. When Sal is punished, she often will fly at her mother, screaming, "Don't hit Sal!"

He must be sheltered 24 hours a day, for he prowls restlessly, driven on and on by an inability to keep up interest. He has little conception of danger. Once he walked straight into a lake, and the water was almost over his head when his stepfather rescued him. Last fall, he was playing with his grandfather's pointers when one dog's leash looped around his neck; Sal almost strangled before his mother rescued him.

Only TV keeps him still. He can watch it, rapt, by the hour, taking special delight in animated cartoons, commercials and dancing. Often he will persuade Rose Marie to "dance" with him, and they bounce together in zestful imitation of jitterbugging. The two play together a good deal, but the games are Rose Marie's idea — and played at her level.

Sal romps through Rose Marie's games delightedly, for he is an easy-going, amiable child. The first word he ever said was "Okay," and it remains the mainstay of his vocabulary. Sal did not talk until he was 4; even now he can scarcely make a sentence more than three or four words long. Occasionally he startles the family with a longer one. "Go to bed, you bold brat!" he told Rose Marie recently.

Eight Years of Heartache

Life with Sal has alternated between such surprises and heartbreaking disappointment. Not until he was 4 months old did his mother suspect something was wrong: she noticed he couldn't hold up his head. Then followed a painful 10 months in which conflicting diagnoses pronounced him Mongoloid, then normal, then retarded again. By that time his mother's first marriage had broken up; she decided she would devote herself to Sal and never remarry. It took two years of determined talking by Frank Leitza to change her mind.

Thereafter some things, at least, were better. Doctors had said Sal wouldn't walk until he was 4; he beat that by two years. They said he would be hard to toilet-train; it proved easy. Mrs. Leitza, overjoyed when Rose Marie was a normal child (the chances against a second Mongoloid in a family are astronomically high), feared the two children would be jealous of each other; they actually are very close.

But for the Leitzas, even the most hopeful signs are edged with heartache. Sal was, and is, small for his age and fragile. Though he finally has learned to dress himself — almost — his mother cries a little about that, too, for he still cannot remember from night to night which is the front of his pajamas. Once he was sent to a school for the retarded (Pennhurst State) for a few months, but the family missed his dowdy, bouncing little figure and brought him home again. Now they are determined to keep him with them at all costs and all burdens.

Mrs. Leitza has become active in the local branch of the National Association for Retarded Children. With several other mothers, she persuaded school authorities in nearby Throop to set up a special class for the mentally deficient. But again came a disappointment: after 10 days, the teacher decided she was unqualified for such work, and the class ended. The mothers are fighting now to revive it.

"Sal belongs to us," says Frank Leitza. "He's here in this world and we can't just discard him. And who knows, maybe someone will discover a way to help children like Sal. That's what we keep hoping for. There's always that chance." ■

Space-saving storage unit

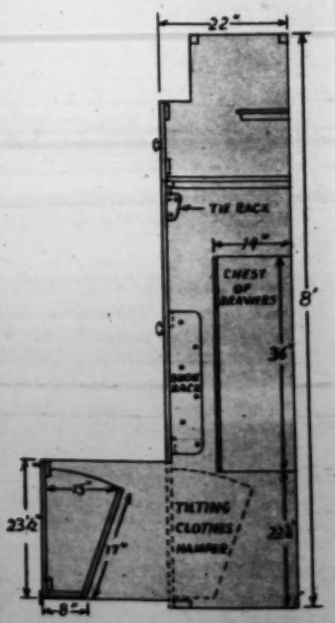
Here's an easy, inexpensive way to increase closet space. All you need is a little lumber and a few tools

If closet space is at a premium or inefficiently organized at your house, here is a unit you can build that will help solve the problem. It can be adapted to most situations. The example pictured here shows a unit 2' wide built into the center of a bedroom-closet alcove 8' long.

Here, sliding bamboo draperies mounted on ceiling tracks conceal clothes-hanger and shelf space on either side of the unit. The latter includes a tilt-out clothes hamper, a built-in chest of drawers, door-mounted tie and shoe racks and additional shelf space. All of this is installed between two ¾" plywood panels that extend from floor to ceiling. When closed, the unit presents an uncluttered pine-paneled front to the room.

To build it, you'll need a 4'-x-8' sheet of plywood for the side panels; a 4'-x-4' plywood sheet for the clothes hamper; an unfinished chest of drawers (obtainable in most department stores); three 8' lengths of 10" tongue-and-groove paneling; 14' of 1"-x-2" lumber for shelf supports and miscellaneous; 4' of 1"-x-6" for shoe and tie racks; hardware and finishing materials. ■

COMPLETE storage-hamper unit is ideally incorporated into storage wall at one end of room.



SIDE VIEW shows dimensions, which may be altered slightly to fit different space situations. Note spacing of dowels in racks to hold both neckties and shoes.

If you have baskets-full of kids...

or if you haven't

...you'll bless the BENDIX DUOMATIC WASHER-DRYER

This fabulous machine "mothers" you.

Even stays up nights to wash and dry your clothes while you sleep like a baby.

It's like having regular, constant, every-day laundry help. And you don't have to give the Duomatic lunch, or Thursdays off. You don't have to do anything but dump the clothes in and leave 'em... to wash and dry all by themselves.

You'll "dress" the baby out of your Duomatic

Junior's never out of diapers, because the Bendix Duomatic can take care of three dozen a day.

And, if you'll pardon us for growing up your family in a sentence... the Duomatic also does a wonderful job of taking care of teen-agers. They need a lot of changes, too. But with the Duomatic to wash and dry while they're asleep, they don't need many clothes.

The steps you'll save... and time!

The Duomatic does both your washing and the drying automatically... in one continuous operation. Even if you had a separate washer and dryer, you'd still have to play nursemaid... switching clothes from one machine to the other. But with the Duomatic, you're free as a bird.

The Duomatic gets clothes clean, clean, clean

The Bendix method of Tumble-Action plunges clothes deeper into suds... 50 times a minute! Unfolds every piece. Rinses three separate times!

And drying is done with such loving care that manufacturers advise it even for Miracle Fabrics.

See the new 1956 Bendix Duomatic at your dealer's now. More convenient, handsomer than ever... available in both gas and electric models. Only Bendix gives you this choice.

134,001 homes love the Duomatic

New as it is, the Bendix Duomatic has been in use for two years or more in homes all over the country. You'll find it wonderful to live with, too. Put it anywhere... in the kitchen, the utility room, even the bathroom. Although the Duomatic fits into just 36 inches of wall space, it is completely cushioned against vibration. The only combination unit that is.

Bendix prescribes all for best washing results

all never chokes up your washer with suds that slow down washing action. That's why a free box of all is packed in every new Bendix.

SPACE-SAVING DOOR: A new accordion-fold door creates about 6 square feet more floor space and wall space in your home — and becomes part of your decorating scheme. You can slip-cover it or paint it; special double-fold construction gives you two identical sides to work with, so you can decorate each side to fit the room it faces. You can install it yourself, too, in just a few minutes, using only a screwdriver. Comes with track, screws, instructions, in standard sizes to fit most doorways. NEW CASTLE PRODUCTS, Dept. PP, New Castle, Ind.

COFFEE CLEANER: Now there's a stain remover for those dark-brown spots that appear on unbreakable plastic cups. It also cleans china cups, glass, china and metal coffee makers and teapots. The powder is simple to use. An oxidizing agent in it dissolves stains without rubbing. $1. REEN'O, 3520 Hampton, St. Louis 9, Mo.

FOOT CONTROL: If you use power tools and motors in your home workshop, a foot switch will increase safety. You can plug it right in — no wiring or splicing needed. It gives you instant control when a motor stalls, a tool breaks, a workpiece flies about or any emergency occurs — no need to bend and grope for a switch or yank the cord to shut off power. It leaves both hands free at all times. $7.95. VERSA TOOL, 400 Lake Ave., Racine, Wis.

SQUARED NECKLINE includes adjustable straps that tuck in for sunning. Suit is by Jantzen, $25.

PREVIEW

1956 Swimsuits

If you're a woman, you're already thinking about next year's resort and beach wear. Here's an advance look

Until now, you've had to work at being a siren to be in style on the beach. But now you can plan to relax and be the pretty girl you really are. Next year's swimsuits make no bones about femininity. They give you the best figure you've had in years with supple, natural, sheath lines. Some reflect the news of the French-American couturier collections with tunic effects and Oriental pagoda lines. Even the bloomer suits look sleeker.

Dressmaker details give many of the new suits an almost custom-made look, plus most refreshing touches of femininity. You'll see lace used — as a delicate trimming, often dyed to match the suit, or as an entire suit. You'll see many sequins and jewels sparkling under sun and water. You'll see rich all-over Swiss embroideries that look like tapestries, as well as colorful embroidered trims. Stripes and checks go together effectively.

Pleats and tucks seem as skilfully made as the ones you see on a baby dress. Buttons look as if they were arranged by a French dressmaker's clever hand. Smart lacings give a figure more curve. Some necklines are news with demure young collars.

But perhaps the biggest news is the use of lastex — not as you remember it, with high shine and a heavy feeling, but in a wealth of new textures. It may be dull-surfaced; embroidered with eyelet, flowers or cross-stitch; printed with delicate and exotic flowers, Black Watch plaid or paisley; woven with satin-ribbon stripes, golden threads or a brocade look. Among other things, it can be the making of a really "sissy-look" suit.

There are still many cottons, and, in the very advance collections, wool. Unlike yesterday's shapeless tank suit, the latter is made to give you the best shape possible, in lighter weight and smart textures.

The two-piece suit is making a bigger show than it has in years. So many women like its comfort and sun-exposure that they've asked for more of it again. Newest are in subtle Oriental prints, some with smart skirt effects.

Since this new pretty-girl appeal begins with a much softer look, how you take your suntan has a great deal to do with all-over effect. The very deeply bronzed skin is passé. Actually, it flatters no one. A flowing golden tan — if yours is the skin that achieves one — is so much more becoming. If your suntan never deepens beyond a rosy blush, this too has its charms. And if you can't take much sun at all, never overlook the great and time-tested allure of the girl under the parasol!

Quaker develops new oatmeal that cooks completely in just one minute

NEW PRODUCT TASTES SMOOTHER, CREAMIER...AND ITS HIGH-PROTEIN CONTENT CAN HELP YOU CONTROL YOUR WEIGHT

Quick as coffee—that's today's new oatmeal. Cooking time has been cut to just 50-60 seconds with the new Quick Quaker Oats.

The new oatmeal is smoother. Has an extra creaminess that especially appeals to children. The oat flakes have simply been rolled thinner for quicker cooking. All the nourishment of oatmeal, all the traditional oatmeal flavor, is there.

Today's high-protein oatmeal has special significance for those who want to gain weight . . . or lose it. Protein is a key to weight-control. It is the fundamental "must" for building up strong bodies, good red blood. At the same time, a diet high in protein is essential for those who need to lose weight. Protein raises the blood-sugar level, helps keep appetite inactive. It reduces hunger while supplying needed strength and energy.

Due to its high-protein content, new Quick Quaker Oats can help to correct either kind of weight-control problem.

For those who prefer the taste and texture of old-style oatmeal, Old Fashioned Quaker Oats cooks in a mere 5 minutes.

ALL-MORNING ENERGY, for work or play is provided by a single bowl of hot, creamy oatmeal. Oatmeal supplies more stamina, more energy than any other whole-grain cereal . . . and a serving of Quaker Oats costs about 1¢.

PAN RINSES INSTANTLY when oatmeal is prepared properly. Just keep pan tightly covered, before and after serving, until ready to wash. It will rinse clean, without scouring.

WEIGHT-CONTROL SECRET is food high in protein to curb appetite, maintain stamina. And oatmeal supplies far more protein than any other leading cereal. Bowl of oatmeal, with sugar and milk included, contains only 210 calories . . . yet supplies 9 grams of protein.

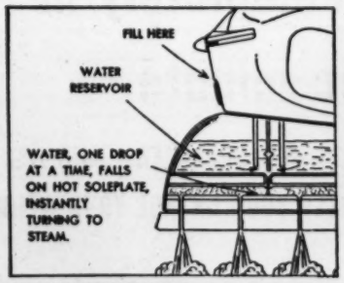
NEW QUICK QUAKER OATS

Changes Instantly from Steam to Dry!

IT'S TWO IRONS IN ONE!

USE IT AS A STEAM IRON

1. IRON WITHOUT SPRINKLING, everything except heavy cottons, linens and starched fabrics! The steady flow of steam moistens fabrics, saves you the time and work of sprinkling, and of ironing pre-moistened clothes.



2. INSTANT STEAM! Drop by drop, water falls onto hot soleplate . . . flashes instantly to steam. Then the steam stops automatically when the iron is placed on its heel rest. Uses tap water in all but extremely hard water areas.

3. PRESS LIKE A TAILOR! Press suits, skirts and sweaters without a damp pressing cloth! You can see where to put creases, so you press perfectly! Save money on all kinds of pressing bills—you can do it at home, professionally.

1. FOR HEAVY COTTONS, LINENS and starched fabrics, use it as a dry iron. You simply press the button to change your steam iron to a dry iron—no need to let iron cool down or even empty the water! You make the change instantly!

2. LIGHT, LIGHT WEIGHT! Only 3¼ pounds! This iron weighs less than a woman's purse. Means much easier handling and a lot less work. Larger soleplate—more than thirty square inches—covers a much wider ironing area in far fewer strokes.

3. NO MORE SCORCHING! Visualizer Fabric-dial gives perfect heat for whatever fabric you're ironing! See this G-E beauty at your G-E dealer's today! General Electric Company, Small Appliance Division, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.
